Hees Wants Controls Here

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The Trudeau government must immediately bring in price and wage guidelines backed by the announcement that controls will be mandatory if guidelines are not obeyed, says George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings. Price and wage controls, he maintains, are the only way to halt inflation and keep Canada in a competitive export position.

In a statement this morning, Mr. Hees said "The announcement by Statistics Canada that unemployment remains at the very high level of 6.3 per cent of the work force, seasonally adjusted, shows clearly that the measures introduced in the June budget have been ineffective in reducing high unemployment, from which this country has been suffering for the past year and a half.

"The government refusal to effectively stimulate the economy and thus produce jobs is in sharp contrast to the dramatic program announced by President Richard Nixon Sunday night to stimulate the American economy."

Mr. Hees said a 10 per cent cut in income taxes is the measure needed now to put sufficient purchasing power in the hands of Canadian people to stimulate sales, production and jobs to the degree necessary to reduce unemployment to an acceptable level.

"As the Candain ministers' meeting in Washington today will be unable to obtain any immediate exemption from the 10 per cent surcharge imposed by the American government, Canada's only chance of remaining competitive on the $3-billion a year of manufactured products which will be seriously affected, is for the Canadian government to take immediate steps to halt inflation in this country.

"Such a step would require the announcement of price and wage guidelines, backed by a statement by the government that it will impose mandatory price and wage controls if the government gidelines are not obeyed.

'But could you afford to love, honor and keep me through a wage-freeze period?'

Seasonal Rate Decline Small

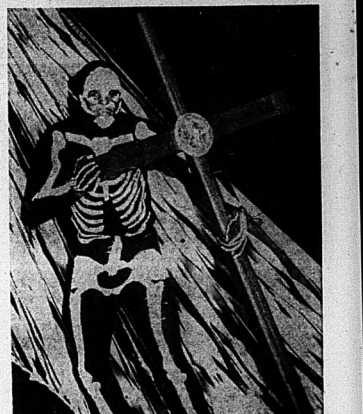
OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment declined in Canada to 514,000 at mid-July from 551,000 in June and 518,000 a year earlier, as more students and young people were absorbed into the labor market.

A joint report by Statistics Canada and the manpower department said employment in Canada "showed the usual strength in July" as the number of jobs increased by 246,000 over the June figure to a total of 8,554,000.

The July labor force stood at 9,068,000, an increase of 209,000 over a month earlier.

The statistics are based on a survey of 30,000 households for the employment situation that existed in the week ended July 24.

The number of unemployed in July represented 5.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 6.2 per cent in June and 5.9 per cent a year earlier. But there was a much smaller decline in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate—the rate that is designed to take account of the normal slump in winter employment and increased activity in summer.



This seasonally-adjusted rate declined slightly to 6.3 per cent in July, from 6.4 per cent a month earlier. The rate had reached a peak of 6.8 last September, and then dipped to six per cent in March before rising again to 6.7 per cent in April.

Officials said this unexpected April rise was due to a late spring which held up normal economic activity. Finance Minister Edgar Benson has predicted that the seasonally-adjusted rate would decline slowly for the balance of the year.

The report said that persons in the 14-24 age group showed a greater-than-usual gain in employment during the month as 270,000 of them were absorbed into the working force. There was little change for men in the over-25 age group; the decline in employment for women over 25—40,000—is less than usual for this time of year, said the report.

Reporting on the increased employment activity, the report noted an "unusual increase" of 42,000 jobs in the service area "which appears to reflect the federal government. Opportunities for Youth program." There were above-average gains in primary industries up by 11,000—in finance, insurance and real estate—up by 10,000 —

Benson Says Visit to U.S. 'Not End of Our Position'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin fly to Washington today to argue for a Canadian exemption from new U.S. import duties.

But Mr. Benson said Wednesday the one-day mission is "not the end of our position" in trying to soften the effects of the new U.S. economic policies.

President Nixon Sunday ordered a 10-per-cent surcharge on all U.S. imports subject to duty, and this could mean $250 million to $300 million on total Canadian exports to the U.S. running to $12 billion. About one-quarter of Canada's exports to the U.S., mostly manufactured goods, would be affected.

On their return, the Canadian delegation leaders will report directly to Prime Minister Trudeau who, cut short a 25-day European tour with his wife to return to Ottawa today as a result of developments.

Mr. Benson would not predict what effect the surcharges would have on Canadian industry and unemployment until he knows what the United States will do in response to the mission's hard-line request for an exemption.

Also unknown, he said, is how long the surcharges would remain in effect, "and what action the Canadian government might take."

This was the finance minister's first suggestion that the government might have some alternative in mind since his return early Wednesday from an abbreviated holiday in The Netherlands.

His remark, however, did not indicate whether he had some retaliatory action against the United States in mind, or some federal government plan to soften the blow of the surcharges on Canadian exporters.

"We'll have to decide this — what action the Canadian government might take—after consultation with the United States," he said.

Mitchell Sharp external affairs minister and acting prime minister, dismissed as unanswerable a reporter's question about what the Canadian government would do "if the Americans simply turn a deaf ear."

"It is my belief that the government of the United States does understand our situations and that these particular measures were not directed against us.

"That is the burden of our submission to them, and we are hoping—and, I think, with some justification—that this will appeal to the U.S. government."

The rub of the Canadian argument is that such heavy imposts on imports from Canada would be counter-productive. They would do so much harm to Canada that the growth of the Canadian market for U.S. goods would be jeopardized.

Exemption Might Bend GATT Rule

WASHINGTON (CP) — A cabinet-level Canadian mission today begins its first crucial moves to have the Nixon administration lift a new 10-per-cent levy that would affect 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States, or roughly $3 billion annually.

There were hints that the mission may face rough going. U.S. Treasury Undersecretary Charles Walker said Wednesday he believes exempting any country from the import levy might violate rules of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. The Common Market already has accused the U.S. of violating the agreement by imposing the tax in the first place.

Walker said he could not state authoritatively this view—which would block Canada's request for an exemption from the tax —is a correct or final one.

The treasury is confident the surcharge does not violate GATT rules, Walker told a news conference, "because it is across-the-board, non-discriminatory."

British Soldiers Targets Of Ulster Propaganda Drive

BELFAST (AP) — The British Army, while claiming it is on the way to victory in Northern Ireland's shooting warfare, has been flung on the defensive by a sustained barrage of criticism over its conduct as peacemaker.

After a day in which two civilians were shot dead and two members of Parliament arrested by troops who had fought a pitched street battle with gunman, Lt.-Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander-in-chief, said Wednesday: "I still think events are going our way—except for the propaganda campaign against the army."

The Guardian, published in London, demanded an impartial inquiry into the allegations. The Irish Republic government is pressing Britain along the same lines. The charges are expected to consume a large part of today's discussions between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner.

A document published in the Irish Times of Dublin today was said to have been smuggled out of Belfast's Girdwood Barracks detention centre.

Government and army officials said such assertions are "monstrous lies" and note that only 20 formal complaints out of a flood of unofficial allegations have been made to police.

The army late Wednesday night came under more immediate criticism for its behavior in scattered violence Wednesday.

A man killed by soldiers for ignoring orders to lay down a pistol turned out to be a deaf mute. Eamk's McDevitt, 28, was shot in Strabane, 15 miles from Londonderry, after a civil rights meeting addressed by Bernadette Devlin, a member of the British Parliament.

John McKelbey, chairman of Strabane City Fathers, said he had 23 witnesses who would swear McDevitt was not carrying a gun, but a rubber bullet. These six-inch missiles are fired by soldiers to break up riots.

Crowds in Strabane subsequently went on an orgy of burning and stoning. Three people were arrested.

In Londonderry, where early Wednesday morning troops clearing barricades from Roman Catholic areas were fired on by gunmen 23 times in a devastating hail of more than 300 bullets, soldiers arrested Belfast MPs John Hume, a Catholic, and Ivan Cooper, a Protestant.

They were part of a crowd sprayed with purple dye from water cannon as they tried to obstruct barricade clearing operations.

Hume, Cooper and civil rights leader Hugh Logue were frisked then charged with obstruction and released on bail to appear in court Monday.

No Decision Reached On Night School Future

The status of night school courses for adults in county secondary schools is still up in the air.

No decision was reached at a special meeting of Hastings County board of education Tuesday on turning the administration and funding of night school non-credit courses over to Loyalist College.

But trustees did give unofficial agreement in principle to the move, pending more information on the financial aspects of Loyalist's administration of the program versus county board administration.

The co - operative approach to adult education to prevent duplication of effort by all agencies offering night school instruction has been discussed this summer. But, said superintendent D. C. Stirling, "we were trying to do too much too quickly and working with too many agencies" to complete a co-operative plan in time for night school registration the end of September.

Mr. Stirling suggested that all agencies operate in 1971 as they have in the past. But it might be possible for Loyalist to assume financial responsibility for interest courses formerly conducted by the board of education.

The superintendent suggested that courses be held in board schools, but students, except those taking courses for secondary school credit, would be registered by the board's staff as Loyalist students. The evening class principal would be the day school principal or his appointee, and he would select the staff, who would be paid board rates by Loyalist. Advertising and promotion would also be taken over by Loyalist.

Night school courses have always been a losing proposition for the board, and the Loyalist takeover would be in the board's financial advantage, Mr. Stirling said. Last year the board paid $62,200 for night school teachers' salaries. No estimates were available on the cost of custodial staff and maintenance.

Trustee Macdonald Smith questioned Loyalist's director of extension, H. J. Butterill, on the size of the government grant available to the college for night school operation and the cost to the college of running the interest courses.

Mr. Butterill replied that because of the complexity of the grant formula he could give no figures on the amount Loyalist is entitled to for taking over interest courses. And because the college is as yet inexperienced in offering the courses now given in the schools, no firm figure is available on cost to the college.

Trustees were opposed to night school fee increases, and Mr. Stirling suggested that the board forego charging Loyalist for use of facilities to help fees down.

Night school interest courses have been offered for a fee of $10 a year. Loyalist charges a standard 50 cents a teaching hour, half the amount charged by most community colleges, Mr. Butterill said. The average interest course operated in the past by the college consisted of 30 teaching hours and the fee was $15.

Board chairman Donald Williams asked the trustees to "go forward in good faith" and agree in principle to the eventual takeover by Loyalist of night school interest courses. But trustees refused official agreement, pending further investigation of financing.

At a Loyalist board of governors' meeting July 8 the college's director of finance, P. G. Harry said about $130-000 extra revenue could be received by the college from the provincial government for night school operation. He estimated that the cost to the college of running the courses would be about $30,000, leaving Loyalist with a surplus of $100,000 on the operation.

Tieup Marks Opening

A giant-sized traffic jam marked the opening of Quinte Mall on North Front St. Wednesday morning. But the situation was sorted out by noon time. All available parking spots were filled and city police were forced to wave mall-bound cars past.

"We are talking about 2,200 cars here," said inspector Ralph Blatchford from the roof of the Ontario Provincial Police building where he maintained a command post yesterday.

He was referring to the Mall parking lot and two adjacent fields pressed into service as additional parking space during the morning.

By noon traffic lights at the intersection of North Front St. and Bell Blvd. were final ly in operation, easing the situation around the mall entrance.

A second traffic jam expected this morning failed to materialize and city police believe the traffic situation generated by the mall opening is now under control.

Car Starts Block Party

Residents on Charles Street held a block party in pre-dawn hours this morning but the occasion was not necessarily one which was being celebrated.

At 12:42 a.m. a northbound car came careening down the street, ran through a hedge owned by Benjamin Williams of 137 Charles Street, bending several fence posts and trampling trees in the process.

The high flight did not end there, however. Travelling east, the out-of-control car continued through hedges at 141 Charles Street, crossed the road and ran down two trees, coming to a halt against a car parked in the driveway.

Arrested and charged with having more than the legal limit of alcohol in his blood and careless driving was Donald W. Murray, 21, of Bleecker Avenue.

A resident who lives near the scene told The Intelligencer this morning many neighbors who has previously been unacquainted, took the opportunity to introduce themselves.

Dress was completely informal: pajamas, nightgowns and slippers were the order of the day.

The "party" did not break up until after 2:30 a.m.

More Vacancies

Bon Echo, consistently filled most of the summer, reported nine vacancies this morning. Lake St. Peter had 24 vacancies, Black Lake 120, Outlet 100 and Sandbanks 35.

Essay Winner Opens Plant

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — Residents of the town of Campbellford, for the first time in their history, are now having sewage treated in an ultra - modern $1.2 million secondary treatment plant, constructed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

In opening ceremonies yesterday, George Hees, MP Prince Edward - Hastings, referred to the facility as the "first plant of its kind to be built on the Trent waterway".

Total cost of the plant south west of the town, were financed over a 40 - year period on a Central Mortgage.

Designed to handle sewage from 10,000 people at a rate of three million gallons a day, the new treatment plant is now putting through 9 million gallons. Resident manager Jack Drobot predicts, at the town's present growth rate of close to 3,500, the average daily flow over a 40 - year period will be no more than 1.7 million gallons.

Ratepayers soon were never before faced with such charges, will now pay 35 cents for every 1,000 gallons treated. However, Dr. Charlotte Hurley, medical officer of health for the Haliburton, Kawartha and Pine Ridge district, said such costs were minor when compared to the pollution problem of today.

"Pollution is part of the problem of living in a modern society," she said.

Russell Rowe, MPP for Northumberland, said citizens "must be prepared to pay for it (pollution costs). If not, life will get pretty serious."

Waste water from the town will enter the plant from two pumping stations via an 18-inch trunk sewer. Grit channels and screening devices have been constructed in the influent chamber at the termination point of this trunk sewer.

Influent chambers are designed to minimize the inlet agitation and direct the flow through a coarse screen into two parallel grit - catching channels. The grit channels reduce the speed of sewage travel, thereby allowing the solid matter to settle while keeping the organic materials in the flow.

Raw sewage then passes through a device which shreds the larger particles to a size suitable for handling. This flow is then discharged through a 12-inch magnetic flow meter which automatically records the total daily flow at the plant.

Flows from the grit tank are stored for 3½ hours to allow heavier solids to settle on the bottom of sloped tanks. The solids are later drawn off by pumps and the effluent is sent to digesters.

Agitated in three aeration tanks to maintain a biological balance, the activated sludge is then transferred to settling tanks for a further 5½ - hour storage period. Effluent from the final tanks is discharged to the chlorine tank for a 15-minute treatment.

The effluent is then discharged from the chlorine tank through a 24 - inch diameter outfall sewer into the Trent River.

Raw sludge withdrawn through this process is heat-treated and eventually forms a marketable soil conditioner. The heat digestion of the sludge produces a gas which is used for operation of the plant boiler.

"This is going to be well maintained and operated," OWRC Commissioner Aubrey Moodey told the 50-odd guests present for the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

He said plans for the sewage treatment plant were first instigated four years ago and when the province announced legislative permission such projects, Actual work began in 1969.

Council was told that 700 additional housing units were badly needed in the city and Mayor Scott assured he would do all he could toward getting lenders to make more mortgage money available.

Today, as he announced Friday's meeting at city h a l l Mayor Scott said two years ago he had been successful in getting more than $15 million made available for local home building.

"I expect I will be able to do the same this time," he said.

Meet Tomorrow To Raise Money

A special meeting with local bank managers, mortgage lenders and representatives of the Belleville home builders has been arranged by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott to try to obtain additional mortgage money for home construction.

The meeting will be held Friday morning at the city hall council chambers at 10 o'clock.

Arrangements for the meeting were made at the request of Quinte home builders following a letter to council earlier this week in which it was noted that mortgage money had again run out and as a result home building was grinding to a halt.

The letter noted that two years ago, under similar circumstances, Mayor Scott had been able to persuade lenders to come up with more mortgage money for city h o m e building and asked he would undertake a like approach this year.

Trenton PUC Expected To Spurn Council Idea

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities commissioners meeting here this afternoon are expected to reject a town council formula for the joint signing of subdivider's agreements.

Council had decided, in view of protracted delays over the Dufferin Developments agreement, t h a t it would sign separate subdivider agreements, breaking the long standing policy of council and PUC working together on them.

By the new arrangement, the commission and council would negotiate individually with developers for extension of services.

However, solicitors for the PUC, Fasken and Calvin have advised that the joint signing procedure is best and the alternative may be unacceptable to various provincial authorities.

Word of this legal opinion was transmitted to council, and it appears councillors are ready to accept the joint sign ing method again but with certain conditions.

Utilities commissioners will deal with the council position additional willingness to work with PUC — but they will likely reject the formula because of expressed dislike for the conditions not made public at this time.

Paul Riddell A Daredevil 18 Years

Check these qualifications: you must be at least 25 years old (21 if approved by the insurance companies), have had no traffic violation or chargeable accident in the past 36 months, love travel and the glory of entertainment.

Got that?

"We used to use the airport at St. Thomas, Ont., but the folks there thought it wasn't just dignified to have a bunch of crazy d r i v e r s running around loose at the airport," Mr. Riddell pointed out.

It all started nearly two decades ago when Mr. Riddell's older brother enticed young Paul to enter the unique world of daredevil driving. In 1953, he started as a junior apprentice as a ramp boy and gradually worked himself up to the top, being a part of such professional road shows as the Canadian Congress of Hollywood Dare Devils, North American Thrill Drivers, All American Dare Devils, the Auto Dare Devils and drove for that great one-armed stuntman, Stoney Roberts.

Mr. Riddell organized his own first show in 1959 and thus became the youngest thrill show operator in business.

Today, the production includes a crew of 30, involving eight 1971 m o d e l Chrysler automobiles, 10 ATVs (all-terrain vehicles), an Apache airplane, three truck trailers and two house trailers.

"We perform 139 times in 97 locations stretching from nine Canadian provinces (except Newfoundland) through t h e New England states to the western U.S. states of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. We start on May 15 and finish September 21 each year, and the rest of the year is devoted to planning, booking, publicity and business administration," Mr. Riddell stated.

"It's a lot of work, but we're all professionals."

In essence, the business is run through two full-time employees, Cliff Oldfield, 67, handles shows east of Sault Ste. Marie acting as general advance agent, while Joe Gauthier, 34, of MCM Productions, books business west of that point.

All drivers are under contract, getting 50 per cent of their salary per week, the rest coming on the last day of the season.

"But, if they should get fired, for reasons of rudeness, drinking before shows, traffic violations, accidents or antimoonie, then they lose that 50 per cent that would have been coming to them at the end of the year," Mr. Riddell explained.

The show includes an expert sky-diver who plunges from the Apache at the beginning of the show, but last night Dick Wilbur misjudged t h e smoke signal and landed on top of one of the Daredevil cars parked in front of the grandstand.

"Actually, there were two signal fires, and I judged the one coming from the antique steam farm vehicles as the legit," Mr. Wilbur commented afterwards.

Two of the top drivers with the show are Winnipeg's Jim Cunningham and Doug Henessy of nearby Picton.

Mr. Riddell brings his family along with him, including wife Micheline and children Andree, 10; Scott, 8; Gregory 6, and Christine, 5. The family resides in Dollard des Ormeaux, a suburb of Montreal.

"You know, it's safer doing these stunts than driving on the public highways. And the people, especially the kids, always stand along the fences while watching the s h o w, which we think is dangerous. Would you allow your children to stand four or five feet away from the side of the 401?" Mr. Riddell emphasized.

Daredeviling Can Be Fun When You Get Used to It

By JIM WILLARD
Staff Reporter

"Where is it? I can't find it. Paul."

"Hurry, Jim. It's right there beside you."

"Okay, I got it." And as the Challenger r o a r e d down the track in preparation for some stunt driving, the seat belt was finally secured and I prepared to join the world of George Plimpton Or some other world.

Was it only a few moments before that I was an innocent bystander at a performance of the Imperial Hell Drivers, doing the job that newspapermen do, reporting and shooting photos? The editor always mentioned that a good newspaperman should get inside of a story . . . but was this carrying things a bit far.

"Ready when you are," said I, fingering the shutter on my camera. Why not take some photos of the occasion, perhaps a memento to display before my wide-eyed grandchildren some future day.

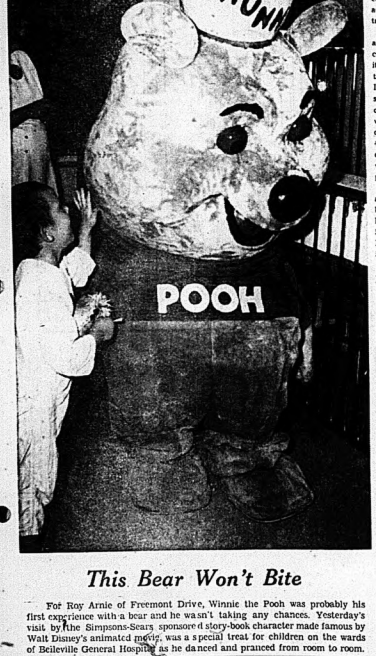
Slowly like a jealous bull preparing to ram an unsuspecting picnic gathering, the souped-up Challenger dare-devil car picked up speed, the speedometer quickly jumping up the scale . . . 30 . . . 40 . . . 50 . . . 60 . . .

Was I to panic? Daredevil Jim Willard? Nah, I was too busy loading the camera to worry about panicking.

The ramp appeared suddenly . . . where did it come from? . . . and, oooh, the car suspended on its side for a split moment in time. At this moment, I felt there were no yesterdays, no tomorrows, only now, and what a now!

Again, we challenged the ramps, and to add more foolhardiness, four cars traced a fast ribbon down the track several times, weaving a zig-zag pattern around obstacles and each other.

We actually bumped one ahead of us, the jolt sending surprising thrills throughout my system. My immediate thoughts: let's ram him again, Paul . . . but, both being humanitarians, and aware of the repair costs, the Challenger pulled back, just slightly.



"Liked it?" Paul inquired after the stunts.

"Liked it? Loved it." Move over, George.

Mr. Daredevil

Behind every daredevil show production, there's the man that puts it together. And Paul Riddell of Toronto is Mr. Daredevil with Imperial Hell Drivers who put on the two-performance show last night in front of Quinte Exhibition grandstand before close to 3,000 persons.

Seasonal

and there were average gains in agriculture and trade.

There were below average increases in the areas of public administration, " construction, transportation and utilities.

The decline in the seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate occurred entirely in Ontario where it dropped to 4.6 per cent from the month-earlier figure of 5.1. In the Alantic provinces the seasonal rate rose to 9.4 per cent from 8.8; in Quebec there was a rise of 8.6 from 8.4, and on the Prairies the rate rose to 4.7 from 4.3. There was no change in British Columbia, where the rate remained at 7.3 per cent.

But only two regions showed an actual increase in the number of unemployed. In the Atlantic provinces it increase to 51,000 from 47,000 and on the Prairie it rose to 61,000 from 53,000.

While Quebec's seasonally adjusted unemployed rate decreased, the actual number of unemployed declined to 104,000 from 191,000 a month earlier. Ontario's unemployed decreased to 159,000 from 194,000, while British Columbia's dropped to 59,000 from 66,000.

Driverless Car Case Dismissed

Charges against the Belleville man who Tuesday told provincial court his car had traveled down West Moira Street by itself and struck three parked cars, were dismissed by Judge T. Y. Wills today.

Kenneth Kelly of 83 Lewis Street testified he had secured his car to escape another auto which came at him from a side street. While manoeuvring, the door of his car swung open and he was dragged down the street. Police testified his trouser knees had been torn badly.

Attendance Up

Attendance at Quinte Exhibition celebrating it's 150th anniversary this year continues to climb.

The figures released by Exhibition manager E. C. Gowsell today showed the total number of adults and youngsters visiting the five-day agricultural fair on Wednesday, August 18, was 16,276 for an increase of 2,143 over the comparable day in 1970.

Head-on Crash Kills Two Men On Forces Base

TRENTON (Staff) A violent head-on crash along the western perimeter of CFB Trenton, claimed the lives of two men last night.

MacDonald, a mechanic at the forces base, suffered severe head and internal injuries in the 9 p.m. occurrence and was dead on arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Rushed from the scene to hospital at Trenton and then on to Kingston, the other victim, a military teletype operator at CFB Trenton, died before the ambulance had reached Kingston General Hospital. He also sustained head and internal injuries.

Both men were alone in their late-model cars when they collided on the 6 RD Road—just above Arrow Drive in Middleton Park last night. The automobiles were completely demolished.

Travel and Education

The low fare structure which International Air Transport Association members are trying to establish has been vetoed by the German company Lufthansa, but the feeling is that other airlines will go ahead with the plan anyway, giving rise in all probability to a price war.

Low fares of course are the only way half empty aircraft are going to be filled and for that reason it will be to the advantage of the airlines to offer them. We see how low student fares have resulted in a flood of young people in the direction of Europe. Unfortunately the $200 or so required in many cases was about all the kids had, resulting in problems soon after arrival. This leads us to muse on what might be accomplished for students if some of the millions being poured into education were diverted into organized tours to Europe in the summer. There is dead wood enough in the educational system at home that could be sacrificed, with the funds perpetuating it diverted instead into travel. This would not only be educational, it would also solve the problem of how to spend the summer vacation for those without work.

However the mills of God grind slowly and we cannot imagine the education authorities adopting such a plan in the foreseeable future. If, however the authorities could get such a scheme going here they would be doing our young people and the country a favor. Come to think of it, there were those journeys to Mexico and Europe by students of Centennial Secondary, but that was on the school's initiative and paid for by the students themselves. There should be no objection to some tax money going toward such a scheme if comparable savings could be made in routine school budgets.

The Mob and All

It is difficult at times to know whose side people are on. For one thing we have never been able to understand the psychology of people who go out and demonstrate on the public street. Nor do we dig the psychology, or lack of it, of the mob.

In Toronto the other day a group calling themselves the Communist Canadian Party of Labor was out protesting Chinese arms shipments to Pakistan. One poster carried a poster of Chairman Mao criss-crossed with inky signs of disfavor. Clearly this group was not Maoist in their allegiance!

In another demonstration Toronto Chinese paraded in protest against treatment of demonstrators from the Hong Kong Federation of Students who were taking part in the Tiao-yu-tai movement. The latter agitate against Japanese control of the Tiao-yu-tai islands and demands their return to China.

Yet another rally took place outside the British government office where the Militant Co-Op expressed its support of shipyard workers on the Clyde.

It may be democracy at work but it does not say much for individualism. Rather - it seems to be the clan instinct at work and how much solidarity is involved is a moot point. Another thing, since many groups are mixed, membership may play a part in the boy-meets-girl thing in the big lonely city and politics be damned.

Apartment Buildings

Leaving aside the technicalities of zoning and rezoning in relation to housing and industrialization in Belleville our thoughts turn to the situation in other cities. The trend in big cities appears to be construction of high-rise apartment buildings in well-designated areas which do not conflict with suburban single-dwellings. Here in Belleville the location of new apartments does not seem to adhere to such a concept, and that is why we are hearing so much opposition to their construction. Are there no sites in Belleville that could be given over exclusively to apartment construction?

Memories

CFB Trenton's 40th anniversary is an auspicious occasion and we see that a cocktail party and dance is planned for August 31. We wonder if anything is planned for Mountain View which recently came alive so spiritedly with the antique Air Show, only to lapse back into its customary somnolent state. At Rotary the other day an Ontario government official, E. A. Starr, recalled he had been based at Mountain View and reminiscenced attending a dance there. Even in the midst of preparations for war there were always occasions such as that; now they are part of the nostalgia we feel for days gone by.

The Squalid Consequences of Rock on the Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Guess what late summer fun-and-games State Secretary Gerard Pelletier has been up to now?

So Liberal MP Ralph Stewart, who has been publicly protesting that Gerard Pelletier is shovelling out $25,000,000 of your tax money to keep idle youth doing just about anything but earning it, can relax.

Ralph Stewart, who is spending his parliamentary summer recess "researching" Gerard Pelletier and some of the State Secretary's quite extraordinary "social activation" programs, as they are called, might want to shoot this in the cossier.

The State Secretary has shot something better than $1,000 — atop all other multi-millions spent on summer hi-jinks — not to "employ" youth in travel and let's - pretend work projects, but simply to entertain them.

But even for the imaginative and inventive Gerard Pelletier it was something new.

The hillblock square of lawn at the foot of the Peace Tower was solid with wall-to-wall people, perhaps 10,000 or more, so many, no actual count could be made.

The State Secretary's Department was overcome with the success of it all — measured, if you can believe they meant what they said, in terms of there being no rumbles, no hassles, no disorders.

But by dawn's early light, the litter, the filth, the stink of it!

The National Capital Commission and the federal Public Works Department had to rush in emergency crews to repair the devastation. To sweep the lawns clear of hundreds of broken bottles in time for the daily Changing of the Guard, and the 5,000 tourists who watch it. To pick up the waste paper. To wash down the night's urination from the shrubs and the defecation from behind the bushes below the Confie Block walls.

The summer wind cleansed the air of the clouds of marijuana smoke.

"Animals," said the chief of the Public Works emergency crew of the rock fans.

"Creeps and cop-outs," mourned a National Capital Commission gardener lamenting ruin of the flower beds trampled under thousands of trendied feet.

Where did this strange band of weirdos forming Gerard Pelletier's army of subsidized summer gypsy young come from?

Many from their resident encampment on Ottawa's small 2nd their squatting patch at the National Arts Centre which cost you something approaching $50 million to build.

Some of them are year-round careerist moochers, - crashing autumn, winter and early spring nights in the Centre's underground parking garage and in its entrance hallways, and - in summer setting up housekeeping on the outside lawns, panhandling money for food and joints.

In summer, the National Capital Commission makes a pass at clensing the "youth population" around the Centre by running a big power water sprinkler along the sidewalk washing down the canal banks where the migrant young are still sacked out at mid-morning.

The kids have even staged their own live sex show on the Centre's lawns, a couple of them spending the rest of the night in the police cells for their exhibitionism.

It has been all pretty ugly — but it has taken an out-of-town visitor to underline the ugliness.

Not just any out-of-towner, but C. G. Cook of Montreal, who was project engineer in the creation of the Arts Centre.

In an angry letter-to-the-editor, given a well-displayed editorial page play, he has written:

"Some years ago I spent a lot of time and effort building the Arts Centre. Last week I went back to Ottawa to look at the present state of this national showplace. It is a beautiful job, a kind of a shrine in the heart of your national capital.

"But some civil servants approved a 'Youth Centre' there and the whole eastern facade of this monument to civilization now is infested with half-naked, dirty, stinking bums, too lazy to get off their backsides.

"It is a crash-pad for hippies and the whole of Canada suffers because some 'youth-oriented' idiot authorized this degradation. Get with it, call the department of sanitation and flush out these scrofulous vermin."

He only was telling it like it is with many of the guests for whom Gerard Pelletier entertained at the other evening's dirty and destructive rock festival on Parliament Hill.

Ask your MP, as Liberal Member Ralph Stewart is doing, what in hell does the State Secretary think he is doing?

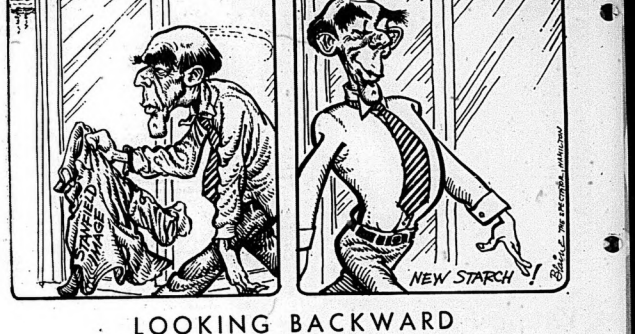
A Royal Dilemma

Ottawa Journal

The heat, no doubt, and the dullness of daily life, have got at Princess Anne, poor soul, just as they do at the rest of us.

She tells a Reuter man that rather than live the formality of royalty she'd like to gallop a horse on a wild heath or sail a small boat in the teeth of a fresh breeze.

What she hates, she says, is getting hemmed in by photographers, and bores who steal upon her in public.



Well Annie old girl, if we may drop the royalty you have momentarily tired of, in these impatiences you are but one of us.

People hem us in too, even relatives and wives and children. We'd like to get rid, too, of some of the people doing things to us in your name such as collecting taxes, asking us how many flush toilets we have, and generally making us tick like computers.

About the galloping horse we're not so sure; most everything else is galloping hereabouts these days, what we'd prefer is a hammock but they don't make 'em any more, or hardly.

But stick with it Anne. We need you and you need us. Perhaps we can draw mutual comfort from each other: you'd like to have a shot at living our life for a while, and, no kidding, some of us could do with some of your life for a while.

Cheers!

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 19, 1971 . . .

Canadians paid a heavy toll 29 years ago today—in 1942—when units of the 2nd Division raided the French town of Dieppe during the Second World War. Of the nearly 5,000 men who crossed the English Channel, 3,369 were killed, wounded or captured. The main body of attackers were stalled on the beaches and only a handful of troops managed to break into the town. Despite the great loss, the attack was regarded by many military strategists as a valuable lesson for later seaborne landings.

1955—Hurricane Diane killed 400 in eastern United States.

1954—The United States Congress approved a bill outlawing the Communist party.

1916—The British cruisers Nottingham and Falmouth were torpedoed.

1909—Accommodation, the first Canadian steamship, was launched at Montreal.

Judge Defends Man's Right to Be Broke

Hamilton Spectator

Provincial Judge T. R. Bogora has defended a fundamental right of free men — the right to be broke. Justice has illuminated a dark corner of Canadian law.

It's a sad reflection on Canada's sense of justice that those circumstances even brought a man before a criminal court. The same circumstances have put countless men in jail.

The Criminal Code of this enlightened land declares "Every one commits vagrancy who (a)-not having any visible present means of support is found wandering abroad or trespassing and does not, when required, justify his presence in the place where he is found . . ."

Trespassing can be dealt with separately, under provincial statute if necessary. But the law does not require trespassing to incriminate merely walking around without money, apparent means of support and not justifying one's presence is enough.

That particular paragraph of criminal law seems a holdover from the grim, dank social attitudes that attended punishment for anyone outside the norm, prison or exile for the "crimes" of mental illness, leprosy, debt.

Being broke and homeless do not, somehow, seem to themselves a crime. If they are, who is to blame? The man who goes to jail or the society that put him there?

European Job For Student

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

I heard of a Brock University student who spends his summers working in a West German tourist resort; he makes $300 a month, with bed and board provided. After hearing this, I noticed a newspaper report saying that there are 50,000 jobs standing open in the West German restaurant industry alone. If our young people can't find work here, why don't they go there? They will now get a return ticket for little more than $200.

Bicycle Etiquette

The Trentonian

Bicycles have come back into vogue. There is nothing wrong with that. Their use may provide good exercise, and they certainly do not pollute the atmosphere.

But having said that, we must also recognize that their use on roads and streets in Ontario has created safety problems.

Partly this is due to disregard of safety rules. Too many bicycles are being used on the sidewalks. They have no business there. They are also being used at night, without lights. Several on one bicycle is another offence. One also sees them zigzagging across streets, riding in clusters, riding facing traffic, and riding in the middle of the travelled lane and refusing to yield the road.

We should licence all bicycles for a nominal fee, say $2 each and register them as a protection against theft. We should also insist that they have necessary safety equipment, brakes, lights and reflectors. The drivers should know and obey safety rules.

Unfortunately, many of our streets were not constructed for bicycle use. The bicyclist keeping to the right is likely to run into a car door being opened. Sidewalk walk into his path. Cars brush too close to him.

Perhaps we ought to mark bicycle lanes on all roads. If the bicycle is used enough, we should widen roads, and make an area to the right where bicycles exclusively could travel.

Something needs to be done to ensure everybody's safety. At present the use of bicycles has reached chaotic proportions, with few rules observed.

Permit Issued For Apartment

Toronto developers planning construction of the controversial seven - storey apartment structure at 217 Bridge Street West, have lost no time in taking out a building permit at city hall once the green light was given by city council.

City building inspector Grant Stickle said the permit for the 67 unit structure was taken out Wednesday morning and construction will get under way as soon as demolition of the existing residence is complete. Cost of the new apartment building as listed for permit purposes is $850,000.

To screen demolition and construction operations, Mr. Stickle said a plywood fence would be erected around the apartment site.

The construction superintendent for the project has already arrived in the city.

Issuance of the building permit for the apartment structure across from the East Hill Playgrounds was held up until sewer service requirements were met and court actions seeking to block the project were completed.

REV. LORNE C. BALL has been appointed minister of the Belleville Centennial Free Methodist Church, succeeding Rev. R. Barclay Warren who is taking leave of absence. Mr. Ball, married with one daughter, will begin his ministry here August 22.

Madoc Art Centre Is Sold, Pearson Peace Park Stays

The Madoc Art Centre on Highway 7 has been sold to the Bartonian Metaphysical Society of Ottawa, art centre owners and directors Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cadwell announced this week.

The metaphysical society is now conducting three two-week courses on the premises. The society will continue to give courses in extra - sensory perception, meditation and other metaphysical subjects.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadwell are retaining a life estate in the cottage on the Art Centre site as a summer residence. They have also given an option to the purchasers for an additional ten acres along the Black River, but are retaining the balance of the eighty acres of school property, Mrs. Cadwell, in a press release, said the selling price was about $35,000.

"This will provide more time to devote to the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park, which was our Centennial project," said Mr. Cadwell.

The art and writing centre was organized in 1952, the first of its kind in Ontario. Dr. A. Y. Jackson was head art advisor, and Mr. Cadwell, a retired lawyer, was the administrative director. In 1968 creative writing was added to the curriculum, together with art, French conversation and ceramics.

The Schneider school of art in Actinolite was established by former students from the centre.

Mr. Cadwell is now writing a book on the origin of town names in Canada and Mrs. Cadwell will continue her interest in art, free from teaching responsibilities.

Good to Last Drop

The newest gimmick in refreshments at Quinte Exhibition is the chocolate drink in a plastic bag, as 14-year-old Kim Defosse, of Carrying Place, demonstrates technique he uses to the very last drop. Reid's Dairy sells them in building six.

Bags for Drinks Are Dual-purpose

Is chocolate milk your bag? If it is, then Reid's Dairy can literally oblige you when you visit their exhibit in building six at the Quinte Exhibition this week.

Remember the now old-fashioned method of buying pints of chocolate milk: the cardboard carton and the inevitable annoying problem of disposal. What possible use can an empty cardboard carton be to a nine-year-old youngster or a father with seven tads swinging on his arms?

Except maybe to create more pollution.

A clear, plastic bag filled with cold chocolate milk sipped through a straw is the answer that Reid's has devised, and judging by the results so far at the sales counter, they're selling like the proverbial hotcakes.

Who wouldn't appreciate being squirted with cold water on these muggy days from a water-filled plastic bag equipped with a small hole, just big enough to permit streams of water to pass through.

But you can't do that with the carton.

When the war games are over, then there's that last resort to which the ancient carton was relegated, the loud bang as it collapses under a foot stomp. In the bag, it's filled with air by blowing into it and slamming the inflated bladder against a free hand.

Also offered are bags of orange drink.

A refreshing and comparatively cheap method to cool off while at the fair.

Young Farmers In Spotlight

Its Junior Farmer and 4-H club day at the Quinte Exhibition today and rural juniors from four counties — Haslings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland — are on hand to take part in their annual judging competition.

The number of juniors participating at the exhibition in some past years has sometimes reached as high as 350, although in recent years there has been a falling off in participation.

Registration for the day's competition got under way this morning at nine with judging to continue through to 4 o'clock when results will be tabulated and the top boy and girl named.

During the day the 4-H members judge cattle and hogs, judge forage crops and identify seeds of all kinds. And to keep the competition honest and assure that placings are not merely accidents, reasons for the ratings must be given.

The annual junior competition at the fair is directed by agricultural extension office personnel from the four counties, assisted by people from department headquarters in Toronto.

Council Discusses City Trailer Park

Possible establishment of a trailer park for the accommodation of tourists and travel trailer owners will be an agenda item on a future meeting of the Belleville parks board.

At city council this week a request for such a trailer park from the Trent Centennial Trailer Club of Belleville was read and referred to the parks board for considerations.

The request asked that a pumping station and other facilities be included in any park established.

Alderman E. A. Orr agreed that establishment of a trailer park should be of concern to the community but Alderman Ben Corke asked if it was policy for a municipality to provide facilities which normally are provided by the private sector.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said provincial grants were available for such undertakings.

Alderman Donald Sadler said the city was eligible for a grant of up to $100,000 for the development of a trailer park or swimming beach area.

Belleville had applied for the grant but most of the money was being spent on redveloping a swimming beach along the west bank of the Moira in its new park area opposite Riverside Park on Cannifton Road.

Government policies and programmes can create a climate for growth. But Governments can't legislate public confidence. Nor can they control the private initiative and enterprise which will finally determine how far and how fast Canada grows. That's up to individual Canadians.

People. A guaranteed investment.

The history of Canada was written by generations of tough, self-reliant people who came here with the same determination to build something worthwhile.
Think of the incredible difficulties that faced the immigrants who first settled here. Read about the Canadians who literally forged this country together a hundred years ago, in miles after impossible miles of railroad track. And remember the challenge of Expo '67. How many people even dreamed that Canadians could put on the greatest show the world has ever seen? People like that are still the most important resource we have. Unemployment is a waste of that resource — a waste that affects every one of us, at every income level. If we can find enough confidence in ourselves to grow the jobs we need, we'll all be better off for it. As a nation, we'll be producing more and selling more. As individuals, we'll be earning more and buying more. Something else. When we give people a chance to build — a chance to fulfill themselves — we also give them pride and a sense of achievement. And those are gifts too valuable to be measured in dollars and cents.

What are our chances?

Most economists agree that Canada is beginning a new period of growth. In the past year, we've contained inflation more successfully than any other country with a free economy.
Things are moving. Companies are expanding. Opportunities are opening up.
But we can still do much better. How much better depends on all of us: on how much we want to succeed.
We have the people. We have the skills. Now we'll find out if we also have what it takes to make use of them.

What Canada Manpower Centres can do.

Canada Manpower is the operating arm of the Department of Manpower and Immigration, responsible for the development and utilization of our human resources. In other words, their business is matching people with job opportunities. Last year, for example, they helped more than 700,000 Canadians find work. There are 390 Canada Manpower Centres across the country, all linked by Telex so that they work together as one cohesive force.
They can arrange the training and retraining of workers and help them relocate in opportunity areas. They also have access to the researchers, the economists and the statisticians needed by business and industry to take full advantage of existing opportunities and to create new ones. Canada Manpower Centres are there to help every way they can.

What Canadian businessmen can do.

Our economy depends on the enterprise and energy of the private sector to create new wealth and employment. There has rarely been a better time (or a more urgent need) to translate that fact into meaningful action.
Now — when thousands of skilled people are ready and anxious to go to work.
Now — when there are Government programmes available to help with all kinds of business expansion plans.
Canada's economic future is very much in your hands. The real stimulus for growth must come from your initiative and your confidence in the future of this country.

What Canadian workers can do.

If you think Canada Manpower Centres are just for unemployed people, you're wrong. A Canada Manpower Centre is also the place to go if you're underemployed. If you're interested in learning a new trade or up-grading your present skills — the counsellors there can tell you all about Government sponsored retraining programmes. (In these days of constant technological change, they can make all the difference in the world to your future).
And if you want to find out about employment opportunities in other parts of the country — Canada Manpower is the place to get answers.
If you fit any of these categories, and haven't already registered with a Canada Manpower Centre, then do so now.

What the Canadian people can do.

Right now, personal savings are at a ten-year high. Which simply means that people have been careful about spending — as people always are when times are difficult.
There's much less reason for that caution today. What's needed now is the kind of confidence that will persuade people to make those expenditures they've been postponing. Because when people start spending, manufacturers will be encouraged to expand into new markets and new product areas.
That's what keeps the economy moving. And that's what grows jobs.

Have we got what it takes to grow the jobs we need?

Common Market Ministers Drafting Joint Stand on U.S. Currency Policy

BRUSSELS (CP-AP) — Key cabinet ministers from the six Common Market countries, the world's biggest trade bloc, were meeting today in emergency session to hammer out an agreed stand in the face of President Nixon's moves to slow imports and raise the value of other currencies against the U.S. dollar.

The meeting was marked by an unprecedented consultation with Anthony Barber, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer.

The ministers' immediate problem: How to get foreign exchange markets going again so that international businessmen can price their goods for buying and selling, and U.S. tourists can be certain of a fair rate for their dollars. Major European currency markets have been closed since Monday.

Nixon's decision to suspend gold backing and imposing a 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports.

Nixon wants other currencies to rise in value against the dollar, so that U.S. imports become more expensive, U.S. exports become cheaper and the payments moves out of the red.

France and the Common Market's executive commission are urging adoption of a two-level rate for the dollar in Europe, a flat fixed and part floating. West Germany wants an all-floating free exchange market, with the rate determined by supply and demand, the system in Germany since the monetary crisis last May.

Britain wants to maintain the system of fixed exchange rates but with the Japanese yen and the stronger European currencies revalued upward as a bargaining point to get Nixon to abandon the 10-per-cent import surcharge.

Japanese newspapers reported that their government was coming to the realization that it would have to raise the value of the yen despite its insistence this week that there would be no revaluation.

The French government blasted President Nixon's new economic measures as violations of international monetary and tariff agreements. The cabinet said it would maintain the gold parity for the franc that was in effect before Nixon announced that foreign dollar holdings could no longer be exchanged for gold.

The two-tier plan, which France said she would propose to her European allies at the meeting today, has been in force in Belgium since the May crisis. The plan calls for two rates between the U.S. dollar and the total currency: An official rate for trade in goods and services and a free rate for movements of capital, whether intended as speculation or investment. The free rate would be determined by supply and demand, while the official rate, as in the past, would be maintained by national bank purchases and sales of dollars.

In the past, the permissible fluctuation has been one per cent above and below the official exchange rate. The Common Market executive commission is willing to see this distance broadened, so that currencies of its member countries could float two or three per cent or perhaps more in either direction. But it wants to see the currencies of the six Common Market countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—float together, with less than one per cent variation allowed. The aim is to have that margin diminish gradually so that by 1980 the member countries will have a single currency.

Businessmen were pressing for an agreement that would allow the foreign exchange markets to reopen. They were closed again today for the fourth day, the longest time the market has been out of action since a 1968 crisis over the West German mark.

Electronics Firms Accused Of Hypocrisy Toward Imports

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian electronics industry comes close to hypocrisy when it blames falling profits on dumped Japanese television sets, the anti-dumping tribunal was told Wednesday.

J. D. Richard, counsel for the Electronic Industries of Japan, argued that the cause is rather that the industry's monopoly on television patents in Canada has expired and left the market open to legitimate foreign competition.

Mr. Richard suggested the industry has protested too hard in its role as complainant before the tribunal during seven days of hearings into a customs department ruling that Japanese sets were dumped in Canada last year.

"Canadian manufacturers were among the first importers of television sets from Japan and they remain heavy importers," he said. "Yet they come to this tribunal complaining of damage."

"They themselves are part of the cause of a situation in which they claim injury."

The Ottawa lawyer was cautioned by W. W. Buchanan, chairman of the tribunal, that the importing of sets would not disqualify Canadian manufacturers from seeking redress of damages from dumping by foreign competitors.

The tribunal is empowered to decide whether dumping has resulted in damage to the Canadian industry. Pending the decision, the customs department has imposed temporary tariffs of up to 30 per cent on imported television sets believed to be selling at a price below that in the home market.

Demands for Meeting Of Group of Ten Grow

OTTAWA (CP) — Demands are growing for an early meeting of the Western world's 10 richest countries to explore new ways to bring stability to international exchange markets, sources said Wednesday.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson, who is this year's chairman of the so-called Group of Ten, said he has had formal notice of requests for such a meeting from Britain, Italy, and The Netherlands.

The United States earlier proposed a Group of Ten meeting to discuss one of its proposals made before President Nixon's new economic program was announced Sunday night.

Mr. Benson told reporters he now is canvassing other members of the group to determine whether they want a meeting. The others are Japan and Sweden, in addition to Belgium, France and West Germany in the Common Market Six.

Sources close to Mr. Benson described as "highly speculative" reports from Washington that the Group of Ten may take there this weekend. Some exploratory talks are going on among Group of Ten representatives to the International Monetary Fund headquarters in Washington, but so far little more.

CNE Opens 93rd Season Today With Things Old, Ontario Place New

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition opens its 93rd season today with some old favorites, some inovations and a lot more of everything.

The old favorites include concerts and band performances, a midway, art shows, crafts and hobbies, sport exhibitions and an air show.

Innovations include having the Ontario government show piece, Ontario Place, as a next door neighbor and Quebec's first ever exhibit, a $500,000 display that will be honored by having opening day officially dubbed Quebec Day.

To overcome criticisms that the CNE has become a dowdy old fraup, $1,250,000 has been spent on a face lift of buildings and grounds.

Officials say they hope the $23 million Ontario Place, connected to the CNE by a bridge, will raise attendance 10 per cent over last year's 3,171,000 visitors.

Ontario Place has reduced its admission charges to 75 cents for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children during the exhibition, which ends Sept. 6.

However, there is no combined entrance fee, and the fees for Ontario Place are charged in addition to the $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children asked by the CNE.

Attendance at the CNE usually runs 120 000 daily, soaring to 300,000 on element Saturdays. By contrast, even with additional staff that has been hired for the exhibition season, Ontario Place can cope only with 60,000 visitors a day; hence the separate admission charges.

The exhibition opened at 8 a.m. today, but the official opening will be performed Friday at 2.30 p.m. by Gov. Gen. Roland Michener.

Contaminated U.S. Eggs Slipped by Inspectors

WASHINGTON (AP) A month after discovering a persistent poison was leaking into fish meal destined for chicken, pig and catfish feed, the U.S. government has acknowledged an unknown quantity of contaminated eggs has been eaten by consumers.

Food and Drug Administration spokesmen say the level at which the eggs were contaminated by the DDT-like chemical —although illegal—is so low there is no health hazard. Ralph Nader says it is a hazard.

"The FDA judges the current problem with eggs to be one of undesirable food adulteration not associated with any health hazard," said an FDA spokesman Wednesday. Earlier, a Washington egg distributor said he had no idea 5,000 dozen eggs he received were contaminated and the eggs slipped through the agency's enforcement net a week and a half ago.

"The FDA judges the current taurants and grocery stores already had received the eggs by the time lab tests were completed.

Last Friday, five days after a futile seizure attempt, the FDA's spokesmen were saying they knew of no incident in which contaminated eggs had reached consumers but could offer no assurance this had not happened. Wednesday they went one step further: "Well, we just have to assume some did," said one.

The eggs were tainted with PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, a family of compounds implicated in skin disease, liver damage and birth defects in Japan in 1968, when people spent a month or more eating rice oil laced with PCBs at a level of 200 parts per million.

The legal level for PCB contamigation in the United States is the same as DDT: 5.5 parts per million in eggs and five parts per million in meat and poultry.

An FDA spokesman noted the highest level of PCBs found in eggs during the last month was two parts per million. He cited this as part of the scientific evidence leading officials to the conclusion that there is no health hazard.

Nader attacked the FDA reasoning, saying officials should realize legal tolerances are set up to guard against gradual poisoning through small, persistent doses of different kinds of contaminents.

"A little bit of poison here. A little bit of poison there. It adds up to a very serious problem."

"If individuals did this in private life they'd be prosecuted."

So far the FDA has seized 6,000 dozen eggs and 45,000 pounds of catfish feed. The contamination has been traced to a cooling system leak at a Wilmington, N.C., fishmeal processing plant. The agriculture department has detained 53,000 pounds of processed eggs.

Indians Threaten Toll on Highway

CALGARY (CP) — A meeting was scheduled for today between Stony Indians leaders and two Alberta cabinet ministers in an attempt to prevent establishment of toll gates on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Highways Minister Gordon Taylor said Wednesday he and Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colbourne would discuss the mineral rights dispute with the band chiefs.

A spokesman for the tribe said they are pleased there will be a meeting, but if an agreement is not reached the Stonys will go ahead with their toll barriers Friday morning.

They planned to set up the tolls to support their claim for mineral rights on 13,188 acres of land they received from the government in exchange for 340 acres of land the government obtained for highway expansion.

The government says the mineral rights were not included in the swap.

The Stonys plan tolls of 25 cents a vehicle on parts of the highway they say runs over land they claim they still own.

FLQ Claims It Set Bomb

MONTREAL (CP) — The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec has claimed credit for a bomb explosion at a Steinberg's super market in Arvida, Que. earlier this month.

In a communique, a group which calls itself the Narcisse Cardinal cell of the FLQ, said the bomb consisted of eight sticks of dynamite. The explosion occurred during an eight-week strike by store employees and caused an estimated $30,000 in damage.

The communique was published in the French-language daily Le Devoir Wednesday.

Ann Landers

Married Couples Don't Have to Nag

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Remember the nagging wife who signed her letter "The Screamer?" Well, your answer was Nothingsville.

My husband is a beautiful guy, but I am not blind to his faults and I see no reason to act like everything is hunkey-dorey and keep my mouth shut. (Your stock advice.) My husband has all the human frailties mentioned by "Screamer," plus a few more. To be specific, he:

ANN LANDERS

(1) Takes a bath once a week. Maybe.

(2) Ignores the fresh underwear I set out for him and wears the soiled things for a week or ten days at a time.

(3) Brushes his teeth once a week. Maybe.

(4) Spends tax and insurance money on sports equipment.

So what? Nobody's perfect. Sure I yell a lot and I nag him plenty, but I have my faults and he yells at me, too. Yelling is an essential part of every marriage. The only time it becomes a problem is when some jerk like you sells out her own sex and sides with the men. If you don't know what I'm talking about, Anne old girl, you and your husband must be a couple of plaster saints. — BENTON HARBOR WIND PIPES.

* * *

DEAR BENT PIPES: Plaster saints? Don't bet the rent. We have, however, learned to live together without nagging or screaming, so please don't tell me it's an essential part of every marriage.

I love the way you list your husband's faults and then say, with a perfectly straight face — "So what? Nobody's perfect." If you can put up with a man who takes a bath once a week — maybe —ignores fresh underwear ten days at a time, brushes his teeth once a week — maybe — and can call the guy "beautiful," you must be a plaster saint.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do something more educating. will you please? After several years of wanting a baby but not being able to have one of our own we decided to adopt. As is often the case, I began pregnant within a few months after the adoption. I gave birth to a darling little boy when our adopted son was 13 months old.

Friends and relatives have made the following remarks: "I'm so happy for you. Now you know what it means to be a real mother." And how do you like this one: "An adopted child can be a great joy, but it can't compare with having your own baby." The most incredible remark was made by my aunt. She said, "Isn't it a shame you didn't wait just a few months more before adopting. Tough luck.'

I don't know how to answer these ignoramuses. Will you please tell people through your column that when parents adopt a baby they love him with all their being, and to suggest that he is loved less than a child born to them is outrageous and insulting. — SEEING RED.

DEAR RED: You told them, and in a most convincing manner. I can't add anything. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Settle an argument, please. Situation: A man is in a restaurant having dinner with his wife and mother. A friend stops by the table. The friend has never met either the man's wife or his mother. Who should be introduced first? — ROCKY ARLENE.

DEAR ROCK: The man should introduce his mother first — unless, of course, his wife happens to be older.

Daughter's Request for Party Upsets Mom

by DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My daughter (22) moved into an apartment to live with another girl. She asked me for furniture and I did give her a bed and a bridge set with chairs, out of our home.

Now she has asked to use my home for a party while my husband and I are out of town. I refused and she hung up the phone on me.

My husband gave me you know what. He said I was a heartless mother for not letting our daughter use her own home.

Please, Doris, tell me what I should have done or should do now when she asks for things from our home, or to use our house. — In The Dog House.

Dear In The Dog House: Are you unconsciously resenting her move to her own quarters? Or do you shudder to think of the mess she will leave your house in?

If she is a reliable, responsible person, it seems to me she could be trusted to use her old stamping grounds without wrecking the home where she was raised.

Yet it would be better for her to plan such a party for when you were there. Not that you would settle down for the evening in the livingroom. But you would be around and would come and speak to the young people.

* * *

Dear Doris: About these canvassers. I really think the powers - that - be should do something about them. I had a sign on my gate: "No canvassers or collectors". A lady called, took the sign down and threw it at me. — Disillusioned.

Last winter a youth came to the door and asked if he could step in. Said he was enumerating the jobless in the city. It was too cold to hold the door open. But I had a time to get rid of him. He was polite but wouldn't go.

Dear Disillusioned: Sorry. One rotten apple — or two or three — spoil it all for the callers who are trying to do an honest job.

* * *

Dear Doris: The outer parts of my legs just below the hips bulge. Are there any particular exercises that would help me? My bulging thighs have become worse since my little boy was born two years ago.

With today's fashions, it is fairly easy to disguise problems such as this but in the end they are still there, and noticeable to my husband and myself. — Bulgy.

Dear Bulgy: We call them saddle bags — a common feminine affliction which shows up in a bathing suit.

The Yoga exercise called the Spread Leg Stretch gets to them; so does the hip roll, in which you merely lie on the floor and roll back and forth over the bulges. I am sending you directions for the S.L.S. exercise.

(There is helpful Canadian literature which may shed light on your problem. Ask Doris about it.)

Sour Cream Muffins Are Delicious

By MARY MOORE

There are no ordinary muffins. They call for one cup dairy sour cream and a small can of pineapple. When they come from the oven and are served warm they cannot be excelled.

So try these little gems. How about for a Sunday morning brunch when you have summer weekend guests?

SOUR CREAM PINEAPPLE MUFFINS (12)

2 tbsps. sugar
1 large egg
1 tbsp. margarine (room temperature)
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 1-3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
¾ tsp. salt
One 8½-oz. can pineapple tidbits or dice, well drained

Into mixing bowl measure the sugar, egg, soft margarine and sour cream. Stir and beat until well blended.

Sift the sifted flour with the baking powder, baking soda and salt. Add to mixture in bowl and stir to barely blend. Stir in drained pineapple tidbits or dice just to mix. Do not overstir. (NOTE: If you are working from a large can of pineapple tidbits or dice, measure 1 cup drained pineapple from it instead of the drained 8½-oz. can.)

Fill greased muffin tins 2-3 full and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 22 - 25 min. Serve warm with butter.

Billboard Operators Now Seek Return On Free Ads Granted Groups in Past

OTTAWA (CP) — Many national health and other voluntary agencies have received letters seeking support in a campaign against the federal government's plan to ban cigarette advertising.

The same letter reminds each agency that it is among the groups "assisted in the past" by the billboard advertising industry through donated billboard space.

The letter has caused concern in some voluntary health agencies who fear the billboard advertisers are trying to put pressure on them to discontinue support of the federal anti-smoking campaign.

A number of the agencies declined to permit identification of their association in this connection.

"In no way was that the intent of the letter," said J. H. C. Pentalgon, whose name as president of the Outdoor Advertising Association of Canada is attached ot it.

"The intent was to alert them that we have a problem, that the government bill to ban cigarette advertising will create a hardship for the industry.

"Our purpose was to get support for our position that if it is legal to sell a product it is legal to tell about that product."

U.S. Dollars Refused

TORONTO (CP) — The United States dollar was not accepted at some Toronto stores Wednesday in the wake of uncertainty as to its possible revaluation following President Nixon's announced economic changes.

A bakery store in the Toronto Dominion Centre was among several Metro stores which posted signs around cash registers with notices such as "No American Money Please."

Some stores later took the signs down for fear of offending U.S. customers.

The Canadian dollar closed at 99.84 cents to the U.S. dollar Wednesday in trading on the Montreal and Toronto foreign exchange markets, down from Tuesday's closing rate of 99.22 cents.

Threat of Monoxide Reported in Corvairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers Union says if its sampling of the 900,000 Chevrolet Corvairs on the roads is representative, some 90,000 owners of the car now drive at great risk in cold or wet weather.

The reason: Exposure to excessive levels of poisonous carbon monoxide.

CU, a testing organization, said it found that passengers in 25 of 221 Corvairs were exposed to the excessive levels.

"It's quite likely," CU said Tuesday, "that some 90,000 Corvair owners now drive at great risk in cold or wet weather, when they're likely to shut the windows and turn on the heater."

CU said the Corvair heater is so constructed that it will "almost inevitably" blow odorless, colorless carbon monoxide into the passenger compartment "should a small leak develop in the engine's gasketing or exhaust system."

The organization said that, in the 221 Corvairs it tested, 25 produced carbon monoxide concentrations in the passenger compartment in excess of 50 parts per million, the recommended maximum set by the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygenists.

Stocks Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York stock market Wednesday took a steep setback after rolling up a huge gain in the two previous sessions.

The favorable reaction to President Nixon's new economic program seemed to a market influence, analysts said, and profit-takers gnawed at the price gains.

Victim of Firm's Bankruptcy Admits Extortion Attempt

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A man who faced financial ruin when a cannery went bankrupt was handed a suspended sentence Wednesday in provincial court for attempting to extort almost $16,000 from a man he believed was an officer of the bankrupt company.

Joseph Liberato, 34-year-old father of four, was charged after police rescued George Clayton Dresser from Liberato's residence near Harrow, about 20 miles southeast of Windsor.

Judge Lloyd Henriksen placed Liberato, who pleaded guilty to the extortion charge, on 12 months probation.

Court was told Liberato had sold 20 acres of tomatoes to Pleasant Valley Canners of Harrow in the summer of 1970. He was paid $3,000 but he was still owed $15,866 when the company went into receivership last fall.

Liberato believed Mr. Dresser, a companion of Daniel Pilon, the cannery owner, had himself an owner of two canning companies that went bankrupt, was an officer of Pleasant Valley Canners.

Because of the bankruptcy, Liberato lost the money owed him by the canner, owes $12,000 to area business for fuel, feed, and fertilizer and had to borrow $11,000 to pay tomato-pickers last summer.

On Jan. 20, Mr. Dresser was called to Liberato's home, where Liberato threatened to kill him unless he paid him the money, the company owed him.

Mr. Dresser talked Liberato into letting him call a Montreal broker to arrange to have the money transferred to an area bank. The broker called police.

Population Control Advocated

OTTAWA (CP) — The urgent call of the Science Council of Canada for control of population growth will get an early hearing at the new ministry of state for science and technology.

Alastair Gillespie, named to the new policy-advisory portfolio in the federal cabinet Aug. 11, said in an interview Wednesday that one of the first tasks of his new cabinet agency will be to examine recommendations of the Science Council in population as well as other areas.

The Science Council's annual report to Prime Minister Trudeau June 30 urged that Canada immediately set up an institute for sudy, research and analysis of the future.

It pressed especially for attention to population growth, warning that "disaster is inevitable unless we begin at once to reduce growth of world population."

"This is a problem that all nations have got to consider," Mr. Gillespie acknowledged. He added that examination of this and other Science Council proposals will be one of his new ministry's first tasks.

France Plans Nuclear Tests

PARIS (Reuter) — France will continue its current series of nuclear tests in the South Pacific despite protests from Japan and New Zealand and a Peruvian threat to break diplomatic relations, French officials said Wednesday.

The officials said the French government is satisfied its nuclear tests, which they said are carried out in an isolated area, have not contaminated the atmosphere of the countries bordering the Pacific.

On Saturday France exploded a high-powered nuclear device, apparently a hydrogen bomb, at Mururoa Lagoon, the second detonation in a week.

The blast came a day after Japan renewed its demand for a suspension of the current series of French tests.

French and foreign scientists have established that tests could not be held responsible for the earthquakes in Latin America or countries elsewhere in the Pacific, as charged by some, the officials said.

Wanted: 5 Homes That Need Painting

Five local home-owners will have the opportunity to eliminate outside painting permanently and beautify their property at substantial reductions with the new 1970 Solid Vinyl Siding pioneered by B. F. Goodrich Company.

Engineered to eliminate denting and noisy defects of old style metal sidings, the new product is laboratory tested twice as strong as any other metal siding and provides excellent winter insulation.

Reinforced by a color thickness thirty times that of sprayed aluminum finishes, it renders a beautiful, textured appearance restoring the home to the traditional early Canadian style.

As a pre-winter introductory offer the authorized dealer will renovate five homes at reductions ranging up to 25% off the nationally advertised price as advertised in House Beautiful and other publications. The offer is being made to familiarize property owners with new advances in exterior building products.

Trained dealer mechanics install the panels right over outside walls with nothing to remove. The completed work duplicates the natural beauty of wood without its defects, while eliminating the cracking, peeling effects which have disappointed owners with wood, asbestos and aluminum siding.

Davis to See Sharp On Import Surcharges

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis flies to Ottawa today for an emergency meeting with Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp to discuss the impact on Ontario of the new United States import surcharges.

Mr. Davis met with reporters Wednesday after a cabinet meeting to announce the private talks with Mr. Sharp, and warn that the surcharges can only hurt Ontario, heart of Canada's manufacturing industry.

"We're still seeking information," he said, adding it was premature to say what the U.S. decision will cost in lost Ontario exports.

He said Ontario will not be represented on the federal delegation to Washington that will seek an exemption for Canada of the 10 per-cent surcharge announced Sunday by President Nixon.

The meeting with Mr. Sharp, was arranged by phone during the cabinet session as a means of putting Ontario's position before federal officials.

Mr. Davis spoke with Mr. Sharp, acting for vacationing Prime Minister Trudeau. Indications are that the surcharges will mean a loss of $1.3 billion in Ontario exports, particularly in the pulp and paper, steel, brewery and food industry.

But Mr. Davis emphasized that the surcharges will be beneficial in that they won't apply in such areas as automotive products which constitute Ontario's largest single export commodity.

Mr. Davis declined to say what action Ontario will propose to federal officials but said the province had not considered a joint federal-provincial price-support program to help the affected industries. He also said it was premature to predict that the surcharges will offset gains made in fighting unemployment in recent months.

Many Ontario industries—he did not name them—had been in touch with his office to express concern about the U.S. policy change.

Mr. Davis was due to leave for Ottawa late today for a two-day visit to the capital, arranged several weeks ago. Plans now are for him to arrive earlier than expected because of the talks with Mr. Sharp.

Four Survivors In Junior League

By Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

If the Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey situation gets any worse, the league will amount to a Peterborough inter-squad game.

Perhaps it's not fair to centre out the league powerhouse as the reason for the reduction of the group to a four-team basis, but then again, it's about time the fast depreciating league began to realize it's only as strong as its weakest link.

A four-team 1971-72 operation was made official at the group's second organizational meeting Wednesday night when Cobourg Cougars, fifth-place finishers last winter, said they were dropping out.

Like Trenton, the Cobourg organizers feel they can lee more competitive teams, thence draw more spectators to their arenas by stepping down a notch to Junior C competition.

There had been hints of player help from Peterborough for weak sister Cobourg at the group's first meeting, but something in the interim — perhaps a chat with Peterborough Petes' Junior A big wheels — changed that seemingly generous tune.

"I don't think Peterborough can be expected to build the other clubs in this league,' a Lions' spokesman said last night. "Of course any boys that don't make our club and want to go to Belleville or some other place — we wouldn't stand in their way."

Naturally. Why would you refuse to release players to a rival who couldn't make your own squad? What's easier to beat than a bunch of guys who couldn't make your team. Montreal Canadiens proved that to St. Louis Blues' satisfaction a couple of times.

Rivalry Best Hope

Belleville remains as the smallest entry to try and hold its own in a league which boasts Peterborough and Oshawa entries that have plenty of Junior A fringe players just itching to prove their worth against underdogs like the Fairways.

About the best that can be hoped for is a rivalry with Kingston as a gate attraction, much like the one the cities' senior hockey entries have nurtured over the years.

Manager Jim Matthews has several reasons for optimism. First, his team can lose every one of their 30 games and still make the playoffs. Secondly, he will get a chance to draw crowds to 11 Friday night 9 o'clock home dates, since this year's senior Quintes will only be using eight Memorial Arena Fridays.

But as well as being low team on the totem pole this year, the Belleville B's have several strikes against them before they even step on the ice for their Oct. 18 home opener. Coach Floyd Crawford is non-committal about assuming the often harried reins of the club, and talk of Trenton and Wellington or Picton Junior C entries, and a scheme to stack a city juvenile all-star team will make player-recruiting a task worthy of a great white hunter.

Players Not Plentiful

A proposed Trenton-Belleville merger that failed to materialize might have postponed the league's problem, but not avoided it. The eastern group still remains a shooting gallery for Peterborough and Oshawa clubs that may some day find themselves the only teams left in the league.

There is no parent club "A" money to back up the operations of Belleville or Kingston operations to compensate for the traditional dismal attendance at Junior B games, and it's a question of how long Belleville, for one, is prepared to lose money.

Trenton players may yet be available, however. There is no junior A application in the OHA office as yet from Trenton organizers, who are supposed to be holding a meeting within the week. Since they have not met the Aug. 1 deadline, any of last year's Trenton 'B' players could be signed by the Belleville 'B's.

If the strong and weak league entries differed on their willingness to share the player wealth, they were unanimous on one point. They quickly rejected an OHA suggestion that they adopt a twin-referee system to replace the existing one referee, two linesmen one.

Team representatives as much as came out and said, they preferred three blind mice to two.

Some 'Kids' Too Big

SHORT JABS — Junior hockey prices will remain the same as least season: $1 for adults, 75 cents for students, and 50 cents for under-12s. Occasions of people bringing in 25-year-olds as "children" helped convince manager Jim Matthews his $2 family special had to go, although he will retain his special-price high school nights. He is also planning exhibition games with some of the talented Metro 'B' entries . . . Newly-elected president of the senior A Quintes Bob Lloyd reminds the public season's tickets are on sale and booster club meetings are held Monday evenings at 8 p.m., Prince Edward Suite, Quinte Hotel . . . A special general meeting of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association Friday could well decide the fate of that highly successful organization. The meeting, at 8 p.m. session at the Pinnacle St. Recreation Centre, will deal with alleged infractions by the Faleasa club which could effect all of the 990 boys enrolled in the city's soccer program . . . The Quinte Hockey League is ready for expansion, possibly to six teams. The league has Thursday night Memorial Arena ice times booked from 8.15 - 11.45 this winter and will hold an organizational meeting Monday, Aug. 30 at 7 p.m. in the City Hotel's Amber Room.

Dogs May Come Yet

TORONTO (CP) — Grey hound racing is still slated for three fairs and exhibitions in Ontario this summer although races scheduled for this week in Belleville had to be cancelled, says the organizer.

Mike Dix of suburban Scarborough said Wednesday night in an interview "a series of complications", prevented him from being able to prepare in time for the Belleville fair. He did not elaborate.

However, he said the speedy dogs will be at Kitchener, Welland and London later this summer. The first races are scheduled for the Central Ontario Exhibition at Kitchener Aug. 31 - Sept. 2.

Dix also said he hopes to present races at Belleville later this year.

Dix hopes to bring the sport of greyhound racing, traditionally known as coursing, at least some of the popularity it enjoys in Europe and the United States.

"Avast ye landlubbers! Lower the boom, drop anchor and break out the rum for the Pirates are coming!" exclaims Belleville Lions Club Midget Gary Christopher. Gary will only be one of many hopeful baseball players who will be attending this Sunday's Pittsburgh Pirates clinic and camp at Park Dale field. Five scouts from the National League team will be on hand to observe prospective pro baseball players from the Quinte district. Uniforms such as Gary's are not equipped but if it helps ! ? !

Pirates Off Port Bow!

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

There's no need to sharpen the scabbards or clean the muskets for these Pirates. But a little extra work to sharpen hitting eyes and a good cleaning of the spikes might be more appropriate, because these Pirates are more likely to come weilding hard balls contracts rather than cutlasses.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, scourges of National League pitching and not the sea, will be sending five of their top scouts and coaches for a clinic and tryout camp this Sunday at the Park Dale baseball diamond beginning at 10 a.m.

The camp will be open to all players between 15 and 20 years old and all equipment is supplied by the Pirates' organization except gloves, cleats and uniforms. The camp isn't just a players exclusive domain as all coaches are invited and urged along their team.

Pirate scouts on hand for the camp will be Jim Frail, Bill Brandt, Joe Frisina, Branch Rickey and scouting supervisor Joe Consoli. Each scout will be concentrating on one aspect of the game, helping young prospects in either infield or outfield playing, pitching, catching and hitting.

Purpose of the clinic, in the words of chief Ontario scout Jim Frail is to be able to contract players for the Pirates or to offer professional guaranteed baseball academic scholarships or to recommend players to college coaches and to find players who will be qualified for pro baseball in two or three or more years from now.

"There's lots of talent up here and the big teams have just began to realize this," states Kinmen Junior executive Garth Bradshaw. "They're hungry for talent and I don't think this is the first or last such clinic of this type to be held in Canada by a team other than the Expos. In fact there is a good possibility that the Detroit Tigers may be coming through sometime this year."

Even if baseball isn't a major future career, the available players should make an effort to attend. "If the kids have ever had the opportunity it's now!" exclaims Bradshaw. "They're going to be getting some useful advice because this is these men's jobs and they know what they're doing. All baseball and midget players should most certainly be out."

The tryout camp will commence about 10 a.m. and last until 3 p.m.

Horwood's Homer Applies Icing

One entry in this year's Belleville Minor Softball squirt city championships was determined Wednesday night but the other is still up for grabs.

Stephen Lacroix captured the East Hill crown by whipping Wray's Furniture 16-7. The big blast was Bruce Horwood's grand slam homer which iced the cake for the Licence.

Andy Plane had a triple and double for Wray's.

Andy Rossit worked five innings for the winners fanning six. Danny Vance took over for the last two innings blowing third strikes past four batters. Vance had a home run and double and Bill Wallbridge a homer for the Jewellers.

Tim Soule struck out 14 batters in a losing cause for Tuck's. He also had a triple with Mark Wardle connecting for a double in the losers four run, fifth inning.

Printers Make Most Of Free Trips

A pair of three - hitters highlighted Wednesday night's Belleville Minor Baseball softpole play-offs — both in the same game!

Richard Ellis Printing and Plane's Concrete exchanged only three hits each but the Printers jumped on eight walks to pull out a 5-1 win. The victory tied the best-of-three series at one game apiece.

Jonathon Dent and James Forester hurled the win fanning 17 batters. Forester smashed a homer and Dent two, doubles to lead the winners at the plate.

Brian Crookright and Tony Parks were tagged with the loss. They fanned 15. Crookright's double was Plane's only extra base hit.

In a tyke play-off game, Hopkins Wreckers advanced into the next round of the eliminations by out-slugging H - 5-12 to win that series in two straight games.

Willy Gagne and Tom Masterson picked up the win striking out 15. Masterson punched a triple, double and two singles and Gagne a triple and three singles to pace the winners.

Read Forces Final Game

Read found the ride less than comfortable as they teetered on the edge of elimination in the South Hastings Baseball League so they quickly extended their predicament by whipping Latta 13-3.

The win ties the best-of-seven semi-final series at 3-3 with the deciding game this Sunday in Read.

Harold Pascoe fired the win for Read giving up just four hits

Takeoffs of One Sort On Milligan's Mind

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Jetting off to Winnipeg for the weekend, Trenton's Glenn Milligan has been thinking a lot about takeoffs, flights and landings but not the airplane kind.

The 18 - year - old athlete will be hurling himself down the long jump runway into national competition at the Canada Junior and Juvenile Track and Field Championships that open Saturday in the Manitoba capital.

"I am no high jumper'," he says while stressing it is ability to achieve height that determines good long jump results.

Getting well up in the air is such an important factor, for training Glenn sets hurdles along his long course on the long jump pits.

"If I can get the height," says the Trenton High School graduate," the speed gained by going down the runway will look after the rest."

Aiming for a science degree at Queen's, Glenn has submitted his long jump knacks and shortcomings to a rigorous analysis that has brought consistant improvement throughout his high school career.

Breaking down his track specialty into components, he has developed each considerably and the process continues.

He jumped 15 feet. 11 inches at the hantam level in Grade 9 and last week at the Eastern Canadian Junior and Juvenile Championships in Toronto his distance of 22 feet 8¼ inches earned him first place in the event that marked a personal record for the Trenton standout.

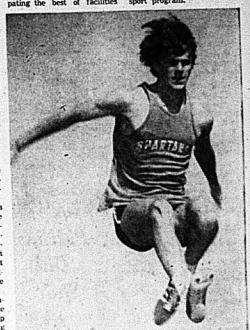
Knowing what can be improved and working to make the improvements, sums up Glenn's approach to the long jump.

He gives a lot of credit to the kind of competition Trenton Track Club has allowed him throughout his school days here. Participation of the team in Toronto indoor and outdoor meets and the series of invitationals staged by Trenton High School during the year have been vital to his field successes.

"Trenton is used to good competition." he says. "and it really helps — you can relax more, you're not so tense."

Felling frequent contact with stiff competition is important psychologically, Glenn entered the Ontario championship for seniors (over 20 years) held at the University of Waterloo earlier this summer and came in third against a field of much more seasoned intercollegiate competition.

The Trenton Junior says long jump facilities vary once in the distances one can greatly and make a difference.



"Some have rubber runways, others cinders, asphalt, some have springboards in several varieties and others have none," he says, anticipating the best of facilities for the weekend contest.

Glenn's entry into track and field began when he entered Trenton High School. He says he had no interest in competitive sports of any kind in public school.

"I was just running down the street one day and a friend said I was going quite fast so I decided to go out for track at school," he explained.

Capitalizing on that speed and striving for height, Glenn is preparing to go if long, long way with his jumping at the college level.

His efforts have not gone unnoticed. The federal department of health have awarded him a $1,500 scholarship under its new fitness and amateur sport program.

Up in the Air

Against a backdrop of West Trenton homes, Glenn Milligan was flying through the air yesterday as he practiced his long jump at the high school track. The 18-year-old Trentonian will participate in this weekend's national junior and juvenile track and field championships in Winnipeg.

Lions Leave Eskimos In WFC Deep Freeze

VANCOUVER (CP) — Head coach Eagle Keys of British Columbia Lions wasn't elated after his club's 11-1 Western Football Conference victory Wednesday over Edmonton Eskimos but said, "from the eyes of the coach, it was a good win and we needed it."

The Lions were never behind and sent a crowd of 32,454 home happy after moving into sole possession of second place in the west with a record of two wins and two losses.

Calgary Stampeders lead the WFC with four straight wins. The first meeting of the season between the Lions and Stampeders will be next Tuesday in Calgary.

Keys said the Eskimos "did what we thought they would. They didn't fool us at all."

"We need more confidence to play that type of defensive ball club. Our offence didn't bust out at all."

The Lions scored only one touchdown, with quarterback Paul Brothers throwing a 25-yard scoring pass to Lefty Henrickson on the first play of the second quarter. Their other points came from kicker Ken Phillips, who converted the touchdown and kicked a field goal and a single.

B.C.'s net yardage passing was 107 while Edmonton's was 113. The Lions rushed for 155 yards and the Eskimos for 128. Final statistics showed B.C. with total offence of 292 yards and Edmonton total 241.

The Lions had 16 first downs and the Eskimos 14.

Skrien Excuses Showing

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Dave Skrien says the loss of all-star defensive tackle Ed McQuarters has been a big factor in Saskatchewan Roughriders' showing to date this western football season.

McQuarters lost an eye in an off-season injury and hasn't returned to action. The veteran linemall has been working out with the club, however, and Skrien expects he will be in uniform again Aug. 27.

Roughriders, smarting from a 32-21 loss to Bombers last Friday night in Regina, where Winnipeg hadn't registered a win since 1965, will be out for revenge, and for sole possession of third place.

Roughriders, league-leaders a year ago, now are locked in the cellar with Winnipeg and Edmonton Eskimos, each with two points on one win and four losses.

Skrien said: "I don't think there's ever been that much difference between teams in the west, so really it doesn't take much to tip the balance of power.

"But all you have to do is look at some of last year's films closely and you can see how many times McQuarters burst through and got a hand up to make the big play. We're simply not getting any more.

"I sincerely believe McQuarters would have made the difference in two of our losses."

Spevital expects quarterback Don Jonas, who had a shoulder injury in Regina and appeared only to kick placements when Bombers were trounced 36-21 Monday by Calgary Stampeders, will be back in top shape for the game.

Phillips Did Share

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia Lions placekicker Ken Phillips booted a field goal, a convert and a single Wednesday night in Vancouver to move into fourth place among Western Football Conference individual scoring leaders.

Phillips's five-point performance ass Lions beat Edmonton Eskimos 11-1 gave him a season total of 23 points, one less than Saskatchewan Roughriders' George Reed.

The first and second positions are held by Don Jonas, Winnipeg Blue Bombers' place-kicking quarterback, with 31, and Calgary Stampeders' kicker Larry Robinson with 27.

The leaders:

	TD	C	FG	S	Pts
Jonas, W	1	10	4	3	31
Robinson, C	0	10	5	2	27
Reed, S	4	6	0	0	24
Phillips, BC	0	4	1	2	23
Abendschan, S	0	8	3	2	19
Larose, W	3	0	0	0	18
McKenna, C	3	0	0	0	18
Cutler, E	0	5	3	4	18

Five players tied with 12 points each.

Riders Promise Hot Time

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Gotta, head coach of Ottawa Rough Riders, promises Toronto Argonaut quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton a "hot time" in tonight's Eastern Football Conference encounter.

"We'll be after their quarterbacks like something they haven't seen," said Gotta. "I can't say we'll win, but I'll tell you — they'll know they've been in an eXtra fight.

"We're quick and strong in the centre and we'll not pressure you with their quarterbacks and we figure to upset their guards pulling out. We've got a lot of things we can do."

Argos lead the EFC, having won all three of their games while Ottawa has won two of four. The Rough Riders are in second place with Hamilton-Tiger-Cats, two points behind the Argonauts.

Leo Cahill, Argonaut coach, took Gotta's remarks in stride.

"Jacko (Gotta) is a good friend of mine and one of the few coaches I have a rapport with. I guess it's the sort of thing he would feel he had to say."

Fullback Dennis Duncan is a shade behind Toronto's Leon McQuay with 344 yards gained on the ground and also runner-up in the pass-catching department with 109 yards on 11 receptions.

Ottawa quarterback Gary Wood is slightly ahead of Argos's Joe Theismann in scoring production while Wayne Giardina, although not getting much mileage out of his pass receptions, is leading the conference in completions with 11 for 69 yards.

Hugh Oldham, Ottawa's speedy flanker, is fourth in the East with nine completions which he has converted into 169 yards to lead in pass yardage.

"Sure, Wood is my No. 1 quarterback but Rick does some things very well and he might upset the Argo defence," said Gotta.

"I don't believe in too-pid tossing system for quarterbacks but a change now and then keeps your starter on his toes."

Gotta said he will make the final decision just before game time.

Packers Lose One Gold Twin

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Jim Grabowski's career as one half of Green Bay Packers' Gold Dust Twins combination came to an end Wednesday when the National Football League club asked waivers on the ailing running back.

Grabowski, 25, was signed for a high bonus following a brilliant career at the University of Illinois, where he broke all of Red Grange's records and six Big Ten marks. He and Donny Anderson, another bonus baby, were eyed as successors to Green Bay's great backfield combination of the early 1960s, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung.

Both saw limited action in their rookie years, 1966, but made the starting lineup the following season. Grabowski, despite being sidelined after the eighth game with one of a series of injuries that have plagued him, led the Packers in rushing that season with 468 yards.

Anderson, after being relegated primarily to punting duties and a reserve role in the backfield in 1969, regained his form last season and was the Packers' top rusher with 853 yards.

But Grabowski was bothered by injuries the last two seasons, underwent knee surgery during the off season. He was bothered by a hamstring muscle injury during the current training camp and had not carried the ball.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mike McLaughlin of Toronto won 24 games straight Wednesday to go undefeated in the second round of the Canadian closed junior tennis championships today.

McLaughlin, 15, defeated Tom Bettauer, of Vancouver, 6-0, 6-0, and Andrew Isaac also of Vancouver, 6-0, 6-0, losing a total of only 16 points.

McLaughlin plays Josef Brabenec, Vancouver, today in the under-16s, and his own doubles partner, Graeme Duff, in the under-18s.

More than 400 juniors are entered in the tournament which ends Saturday. All matches are singles events with players divided into four age groups according to sex.

In addition to the junior closed titles, players are vying for a spot in the Canadian junior open championships which begin here Monday. The open is limited to 32 Canadians, selected on the basis of the showing in the closed tournament, and 32 foreign players.

In girls' competition Wednesday, Theresa Quigley, a tennis teacher from London, Ont., defeated Ellen Cates, Vancouver, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Quigley was to meet Quebec champion Vivian Terkel today. Misp Terkel defeated Cathy Brten, Calgary, 6-0, 6-1 Wednesday.

Scarlett Best Coming Back

The newly - formed Peterborough Panthers are finding the early going rough in he Ontario Junior Football Conference dropping their first two games and falling three games off the pace set by the undefeated Scarborough Rams.

The Rams defeated the Oakville Colts 32-6 Wednesday night to enhance their number one position.

A pair of Belleville youths have been playing for the Panthers, specializing on the offensive squads. Mike Scarlett has been the starter at the Davis Tilden's kick-off return team, running back six kicks for 128 yards.

Scarlett has also run back three punts for four yards and another local, Steve Ford, picked up 11 yards in his only return.

Ford has also been seeing action at the flanker position where he has caught three of nine passes for 58 yards.

Grill Softball Gals Get Fingers Burnt

The Cosy Grill should have let a sleeping dog lie but instead they woke up the Belleville Yardmen's Benefit Fund and suffered the consequences of a 10-9 loss in a Women's Softball League semi-final game this week.

The Yardmen girls finished in last place this year's four team league, but Tuesday night's win evened their best-of-five series with Cosy at one game apiece.

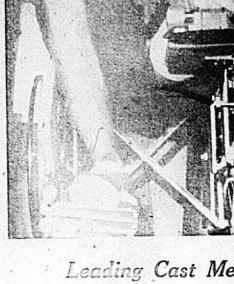
Sue Morton fired BYBP win giving up 11 hits. Donna Preston and Ann Rice had four singles each in the nine inning contest with Morton adding three singles and Donna Lucas a double and two singles.

Sandra Claus was tagged with the loss allowing 15 hits. Verna Hill cranked a homer for the losers.

United Stays on Top

Belleville United needed an all-out effort Tuesday night to stop the Bata Braves and preserve their slim two-point lead over Parsons in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League standings.



United tallied two goals in the second half to squeeze out a 3-1 win over Bata. Mario Collavigh had opened the scoring in the first half blasting a hard shot into the net after 40 minutes of play.

United went to work quickly in the second half with Joe Romano scoring after five minutes. Bata got onto the scoreboard 10 minutes later with Adams tallying. Collavigh finished out the scoring heading in a shot.

The Belleville Parsons kept within striking distance of United with a 1-0 win over the Falcons. No game report was submitted.

Gullett Shines

Reds' Hurler Head of Class

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two years ago Don Gullett was in high school. Now he's at the head of the class in the major leagues, giving pitching lessons to fellows like Bob Gibson.

"It's some satisfaction beating Gibson," said Gullett, the Cincinnati Reds' 20-year-old pitcher who outdueled the St. Louis Cardinals' ace 5-0 Wednesday night.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Houston Astros 3-2, Chicago Cubs walloped Atlanta Braves 7-2, New York Mets turned back Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 10 innings, Montreal Expos whipped San Diego Padres 4-3 and San Francisco Giants hammered Philadelphia Phillies 7-0.

Gullett's marks continue to be all the more impressive, since he wasn't even in professional baseball in 1969 and used sparingly in relief in 1970.

The hard-throwing southpaw, 14-4, impressed Gibson Wednesday night.

"The kid pitched a fine game . . . he's a real, good young pitcher," said Gibson, who authored a no-hitter last Saturday against the Pirates and has won two Cy Young awards as the National League's No. 1 pitcher.

Gullett's record has overtones of a possible 20-game victory season. But the youngster isn't thinking about it, he says.

"I never expected to come this far in the first place," he said. "I'm just going to take those victories one at a time."

Johnny Callison smashed a grand slam home run in the eighth inning to key a five-run explosion the Chicago and beat the Cubs within 5½ games of the front-running Pirates in the National League East Division.

Ken Singleton drove home the winning run with a single in the 10th inning, pacing the New York triumph over visiting Los Angeles, which dropped 7½ games behind San Francisco's West leaders. Singleton's game-winner followed a double by Tommie Agee.

Pinch-hitter Coco Laboy brought Montreal from behind, with a two-run single in the seventh inning.

A single by John Bateman, a walk to Ron Fairly and a sacrifice hunt by Ron Brand set up Laboy's single that rubbed out a 3-2 deficit and helped Carl Morton curb a personal four-game losing streak.

Norman Heads Reduced CPGA Field

SASKTOON (CP) — The smallest field in years, headed by colorful Moe Norman of Bidford, Ont., teed off this morning in the 72-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament.

Norman, top money winner on the Canadian tour this season with more than $9,000, including the Alberta open championship, led the pro-am section Wednesday with a sizzling five-under par 66.

He had a three-under par at on the front nine and came home in 32, two under.

The major tournament of the Canadian season, worth $25,000 in prize money, was reduced to the smallest field in years when 10 players withdrew. Another 10 missed the cut after rounds of 76 and 77.

Playing in the most unusual temperatures on the tour's 64-year history, the pros had trouble finding consistency in the cool, damp weather.

Norman, who has won the Canadian open three times, was followed by Gene Borek of Toronto, Ken Hallett of Montreal and Bob Panasik of Hamilton, Ont., at 68.

Panasik, a former Canadian amateur champion, was the only player to break par in the second round, posting a 71 over the 6,600-yard course.

Leo Bolstad of Winnipeg, Ont., Bob Cosper of Vancouver and Al Balding of Burlington, Ont., were at 69.

Cosper, a former Canadian amateur champion, was the only player to break par in the second round, posting a 71 over the 6,600-yard course.

Yankee Red Hot Since Call-up From Farm Club

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ron Blomberg ripped a two-run double Wednesday night that gave New York Yankees a 3-1 victory over Kansas City Royals and lifted his batting average to .347 in 41 games since being brought up from Syracuse of the International League.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Washington Senators walloped Oakland Athletics 10-1, Chicago White Sox trimmed Detroit Tigers 4-2, Baltimore Orioles tripped Milwaukee Brewers 6-4, Boston Red Sox edged California Angels 4-3 and Minnesota Twins tripped Cleveland Indians 4-2.

Blomberg doesn't shy away from comparisons with Yankee outfielder Bobby Murcer, the American League's second best hitter at .328, who is tied for second in runs batted in with 72 and tied for third in homers with 22.

"When I came up here," Blomberg said, "I went to Murcer and he said he had adopted the philosophy to hit the ball where it's pitched, so I copied him."

The young slugger has driven in 19 runs and scored 16 in his brief shot so far, and the plans are to limit his action to right-hand pitchers only for the remainder of the year.

Blomberg's game-winning hit rewarded Manager Stottlemyre's four-hit pitching and gave Yankees' veteran right-hander his 13th victory of the season.

Stottlemyre struck out six and drove in New York's first run with a third-inning single.

Washington exploded for seven runs — the Senator's biggest inning of the season — to break a tie in the eighth inning and whip Oakland.

Pinch-hitter Rodberg pitched a five-hitter and Don Mincher drove in three runs with a single and a homer for Washington. The Senators hooked six Athletics pitchers and trimmed Oakland pitcher Vida Blue, who had won his last five decisions.

Bill Melton ripped a two-run homer and Wilbur Wood won his 16th game of the season with a six-hitter as Chicago clipped Detroit.

The victory was Chicago's fifth straight, three of them coming against the slumping Tigers.

Ellie Hendricks and Dave Johnson drove in two runs apiece as Baltimore exploded for six runs in the sixth inning to beat Milwaukee.

Mike Oeller became the Orioles' third 15-game winner, scattering eight hits including a two-run homer by Andy Kosco.

The Red Sox were held hitless for six innings by Clyde Wright, but broke loose for three runs in the seventh on Phil Gagliano's bases-loaded double and Luis Aparicio's pinch single to beat the Angels.

Junior Day Dunks Mariners

Union Carbide has made no bones about it — they want another title and the Morch Mariners felt their determination Wednesday night as the defending Industrial Softball League champions took their opening semi-final game over the Mariners 4-2.

His teammates gave him a 4-0 lead to work with after five innings leaving the veteran hurler more than enough room to maneuver. Jack Hughes led the winners' hitting parade connecting for a triple and double. Bob Zalkowitz had a triple and single, Cliff Hineman a double and single, and Garnet Bird a single for this year's pennant winners.

Wilson Bolpet took the loss for Morch's, allowing seven hits and fanning eight. MacCormack provided the Mariners with all their runs by smashing a two - run homer in the sixth inning.

Tonight's playoff action sees Mont Johnson and the CN Yanimen meet at 6 p.m. at the Y field.

Japan Weakens Under Pressure For Revaluation of Its Yen

TOKYO (CP) — Tokyo newspapers reported today that the Japanese government is weakening under pressure for an upward revaluation of the yen and is inclined to let it float.

Despite official denials that revaluation of the yen is imminent, the papers said informed sources told them the Japanese currency must eventually be adjusted upward. The government has not wanted to increase the value of the yen because of the deflationary effect on the already sluggish economy.

The Sankei Shimbun said the government was waiting to see what action the European Common Market countries would take before making a decision.

Yoshizane Iwasa, chairman of the Fuji Bank, told reporters Japan could not but "take some action" including floating of the yen—implying a virtual yen revaluation—if European countries were ready to adopt similar systems.

He said his opinion could well reflect the general view of Japanese economic and business leaders.

Shigeo Nagano, chairman of the Japan Chamber of Commerce, told a news conference he would agree to the yen revaluation, provided the 10-per-cent import levy announced by President Nixon was rescinded. He spoke after conferring with Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura.

Nagano told a questioner it was more profitable to the Japanese industry to accept a yen revaluation than to pay the import surcharge.

The Tokyo foreign exchange market remained open, and the Bank of Japan continued to buy U.S. dollars to maintain the dollar at 360 yen. But the national bank, in an attempt to check sales, announced a ban on fresh borrowing of dollars by Japanese banks from foreign banks.

Four leading commercial banks temporarily suspended spot transactions of dollars with customers. However, they said interbank transactions were not affected.

Tadashi Sasaki, governor of the Bank of Japan, announced the bank would continue to purchase dollars and that Tokyo's foreign exchange market would remain open. The dollar sold se-

Plant May Close

HESPELER, Ont. (CP) — The economic situation in the United States and a directive from the Ontario government to reduce pollution could force Domtar Chemicals to close a plant here, plant manager Pierre Gervais said Wednesday.

Mr. Gervais said the Ontario pollution directive was issued in July and requires the company to reduce atmospheric pollution from the lime-producing plant by the end of the year.

Exemptions Unlikely

TORONTO (CP) — R. M. MacIntosh, an economist and executive with the Bank of Nova Scotia, said Wednesday he doubts that a Canadian delegation to Washington will be able to extract exemptions from United States economic controls.

Mr. MacIntosh said there should be exemptions for Canada but "I don't think we'll make much mileage this time."

He said exemptions for Canada would mean pressure from other countries for further lessening of the impact of the economic measures and said he did not believe the U.S. would want to open such negotiations.

U.S. President Nixon announced Sunday a series of controls, including a wage-price-rent freeze and a 10-per-cent surcharge on a wide range of imports to the U.S. Most economists here believe the surcharge will mean a 10-per-cent increase in the duty paid on at least 25 per cent of the goods exported to the U.S. from Canada.

Mr. MacIntosh was speaking at panel session of bank economists. He and F. L. Rogers, economic adviser to the bank, disagreed over the wisdom of the U.S. move but agreed that the wage-price freeze would likely have the most impact on Canada.

Mr. MacIntosh's objection was to the imposition of a surcharge. The U.S. apparently hopes the surcharge will force revaluation of some currencies and the ultimate impact would be to improve U.S. trade balances.

Liberal Chief Wants Price Supports

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon called Wednesday for government financed price supports to help Ontario industry affected by the 10 per cent United States import surcharge.

Mr. Nixon told the Ottawa East Liberal Association that $1.3 billion worth of Ontario exports are affected by the surcharge announced last week.

A price support program, jointly shared by the federal and Ontario governments, would cost $130 million for a year, he said.

"Such a commitment from our government is a small price to pay to maintain against uncertainty a vital sector of our economy."

Mr. Nixon said the province should immediately seek new markets in Russia and China "to fill the vacuum of lost American sales." Ontario should also press Ottawa to maintain the Canadian dollar at one per cent below the U.S. dollar until that currency stabilizes.

Chamber of Commerce Asks U.S. Body's Help

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce Wednesday called on its United States counterpart to intercede on behalf of Canadian industry over the recent 10-per-cent surcharge on goods imported into the U.S.

A. Gordon Archibald, president of Canadian chamber, said in a telegram to the American chamber that "this action will inhibit Canada's expansion, thus curtailing our ability to import from the United States."

"Neither Canada's trade nor monetary policies have created problems for the United States, in fact our actions have been directed to encouraging a two-way trade, yet we find ourselves victimized in the same way as those who have created problems for the United States," the telegram said.

Diefenbaker Is Afraid Favors May Be Costly

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Wednesday he fears the government might trade away some of Canada's natural resources in return for an exemption from newly-imposed United States surcharges.

Because of this fear, he urged that Parliament cut short its summer vacation in order to appraise any concessions the Canadian delegation might make.

Parliament now is scheduled to return Sept. 7.

The Canadian delegation goes to Washington today with the hope of getting an exemption from the surcharges announced last Sunday by President Nixon.

Mr. Diefenbaker held a news conference that the Nixon moves, coupled with the uncertain economic situation in Canada, had shaken the government.

He said he didn't expect the Canadians to get a warm reception in Washington. And he didn't want the delegation to go there "as a beggar or mendicant or trade away certain things such as natural resources to get exclusion from the 10 per cent surtax."

Hees Wants Resources Bartered

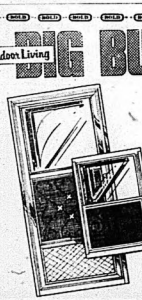
OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative trade critic George Hees urged government negotiators Wednesday to use Canadian energy and water resources as a bargaining lever in talks with the U.S. government on new American import duties.

In a statement, Mr. Hees, member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings, called on Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin—the Canadian delegation to Washington today seeking exemption from the recently-announced surcharge on all U.S. imports subject to duty—to use "every weapon in its (the government's) arsenal" during the talks.

"The best weapon we have is the growing reliance of the United States on Canadian energy and water resources.

"Without making any concessions or commitments of our own today, our negotiators simply should make it clear that continued exports of these resources will not be dealt with in isolation from the interests of our manufacturing sector and the need to diversify our economy."

Exemptions Justified



OTTAWA (CP) — Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Wednesday in a telegram to Finance Minister E. J. Benson that Canada is justified in asking exemption from the recently-announced surcharge on imports to the United States.

"That two-thirds of our export-import trade is with the United States places Canada in a unique economic relationship with that country."

Crisis Faced By U.S. Labor

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — U.S. labor leaders, facing what some view as their gravest crisis in 30 years, meet White House officials today virtually united in protest against President Nixon's wage-price freeze and his request for a ban on strikes.

The big United Auto Workers union threatened to cancel its new contract with the Big Three auto-makers if pay increases and other benefits are not granted.

One AFL-CIO source said of the controls: "It's the most serious thing for us since the question first came up in World War II on how controls could legally be clamped on."

George Shultz, a top Nixon economic adviser, and Labor Secretary J. D. Hodgson were sent by Nixon to discuss the protests and questions of union chiefs at a special meeting of the AFL-CIO's 35-man executive council.

Meanwhile, thousands of striking longshoremen, telephone workers, teamsters, construction workers and others continued their walkouts despite Nixon's back-to-work request and federal hints of stiff fines if they don't voluntarily return to their jobs during the 90-day freeze.

High administration sources confirmed efforts to mollify George Meany, 77-year-old president of the AFL-CIO who protested the freeze and was infuriated at Hodgson. The labor secretary said Meany appeared "sadly out of step with the needs and desires of America's working men and women." Hodgson's comment was in a press release after federal officials tried but failed to stop.

"We have to be conciliatory," said one source of administration efforts to calm labor fears, win voluntary co-operation on the wage-price freeze and end strikes involving 150,000 workers. Labor contracts covering another 500,000 workers are due to expire during the freeze and the government asked unions involved not to start new strikes.

One AFL-CIO source indicated the 13.6-million-member labor federation will try to challenge Nixon's authority in the federal courts.

"We will not permit abrogation of the wage provision, the cost-of-living and annual improvement factor clauses of our agreements," said the United Auto Workers, which threatened to cancel contracts for some 600,000 workers in major auto firms if they don't get raises due them during the freeze.

Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, denounced the freeze and refused to call off the 49-day-long strike of 15,000 dock workers tying up most West Coast shipping.

The Auto Workers and West Coast Longshoremen are independent unions which frequently quarrel with Meany's federation of 120 unions. But their responses indicated a virtually united labor front against Nixon's freeze and no-strike request.

However, Bridges told a news conference Wednesday he expects negotiations will resume next week between the West Coast dock union and the Pacific Maritime Association.

Patrick Gorman, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen who frequently criticizes Meany on many issues, leaped to his defence, denouncing Hodgson's remark that Meany was out of step with workers.

"Let him (Hodgson) talk to the 60,000 packinghouse workers who will be denied the 25-cent-an-hour wage increase called for by their contracts as of Sept. 6. They have gone without increases for 17 months."

When Meany criticized the Nixon wage-price freeze, Gorman said, "he spoke automatically for the millions of Americans who work for a living."

Hangman's Trap Door Brings $250

But he didn't steal the door, through which at least six men dropped to their deaths.

He bought it Wednesday for $250 at an auction of furnishings and fixtures from the century-old Frontenac County Jail.

Glen James, known to his friends as Jesse, intends to display the door outside his antique store in nearby Collins Bay.

The Frontenac jail, dating back to 1860, was closed earlier this year when the Quinte regional detention centre was opened at Napanee.

Local historians claim the last hanging in which the door was used occurred in 1927.

Bennett Confuses Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. E. C. McCoy, executive director of the British Columbia Medical Association, said Wednesday that doctors will continue negotiations with the provincial government although they are confused by Premier W. A. C. Bennett's offer to halt recently-imposed controls if they will keep down medicare costs.

Dr. McCoy, in a prepared statement said the premier's offer to retract an order-in-council giving Health Minister Ralph Loffmark the power to say at which hospital a doctor may practise had "confused the issue considerably."

He said Mr. Loffmark had already met with doctors and hospital administrators and outlined the situation as he sees it. Mr. Loffmark had said the point of the order in council was to ensure good distribution of doctors throughout B.C.

"Now we read that this order-in-council was really only concerned with money. This is wrong. It was and is concerned with the rights of all persons in this province to follow their own profession or their trade in a free manner," Dr. McCoy said.

Tour Was Tough

"What do you have to do to get on this tour?"

"Just be here every night for the next nine nights, and on the 10th night, get on the plane with us."

That was Pamela Poland's invitation from Leon Russel to join one of the most incredible rock 'n' roll barnstormers in history, Joe Cocker's Mad Dogs and Englishmen, from the movie of the same name.

She had been on a two-day visit to Los Angeles last March from her home in Mill Valley, Calif., when a girl friend told her "there was going to be a jam at the A and M sound stage with Joe Cocker and Leon Russel and they were trying to find some singers and pot together some sort of a band."

"Like Leon had just called up a bunch of his friends and so Rita (Coolidge) was there and Jim Gordon, Joe, Carl Radie, Dave Mason and Donna Washburn, and, oh, Don Preston, the cat who played second guitar.

"It sounded really nebulous to me, you know. I like things that are just slightly more organized. I just was really confused.

"I thought I'd take it 'a day at a time. I didn't sing the first night, but the next night I came back and Leon came up to me during a break and said: 'Next time we get up and play, I want you to get up there and sing.'"

Pamela did about an hour and a half and Leon came over "first thing and said: 'It's imperative that you go on this tour with us.'"

Pamela would lose her voice every three days on the tour. She gave it a lot of visual energy and helped create the kind of circus atmosphere Leon envisaged when he gathered together the 40-odd singers, musicians, children, pets and hangers-on that was Cocker Power.

"Some of the other people who sang in the choir just stood there like some ghosts or something," she said.

"What they sang was right-on, but Leon wanted to put on a real circus show, a three-ringer, and he did."

If the movie did anything, it put the rock 'n' roll star in a more sympathetic light—when Cocker was on stage, he was dynamite; the rest of the time, he looked lost and out of touch with what was happening.

"He's really a sincere, lay-back groovy cat, who is not . . . to say that he is not articulate is the understatement of the decade. I mean he just can't say anything, all he can do is sing," said Pamela.

"He can receive, but he doesn't really seem to care about receiving all that much from the environment. He's just a singer and he likes to go to the pubs, have some beer. . . .

"He's just quiet and all the style of the life of a rock 'n' roll star is not at all in keeping with him.

"He's not a stylist, he's not sophisticated."

Once in Connecticut, we were on an outing together in the woods for an afternoon and we just took a walk.

"At one point, Joe sat of his own accord, said to me: 'You never smoke, do you Pamela?' I said: 'No.'

"And he said: 'I'd really like not to be taking drugs too, but I have no will. I have no will at all. Wherever I turn, some's putting a joint in my mouth or some pill on my tongue. . . . I can't turn it down. That's what I'd like, just to live naturally, enjoying life!'

"And I just felt for him so strongly when he said that."

The movie stuck with the tinsel imagery and forgot about some truths.

"They showed the fun, but they didn't show the time that somebody got beat up, or the time that everybody had to be taken away in the big bus, to go to the VD clinic," said Pamela.

"When I look back on it, I'm amazed that it all existed. It's very surreal.

"Nobody made any money. Joe and Leon were on a weekly salary. We spent it all on private planes and Greyhound buses and meals for 42 people.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said today that Canada's case for an exemption from President Nixon's import duty surcharge is weak.

"I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be," Connally said in a television interview.

A cabinet-level Canadian mission was due to meet with Connally at 2 p.m. EDT to seek an exemption from the 10-per-cent extra levy on dutiable imports imposed by the Nixon administration. The surcharge would affect 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States, or roughly $3 billion annually.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin were due in Washington for the meeting.

The Canadian government sought the exemption on the grounds that Canada does not impose discriminatory tariffs against the U.S. and has not undervalued its dollar to grab off trade.

Connally said that when the tables were turned in 1962, Canada turned down a U.S. request for a similar exemption from their own duty surcharge. Also, he said, the United States imports $1.6 billion more goods from Canada than it sends there, compared with a $650 million U.S. surplus that existed in 1965.

He was asked what outcome he predicted for today's meeting with Benson and Pepin.

"Well, they are going to come down and complain and ask that they be exempt from imposition of the surcharge," Connally said.

"We're certainly going to be co-operative. They are our largest trading partner in the free world, they are our friends. We won't wags to irritate them or anger them, but I'm going to very frankly point out to them that when they imposed a surcharge in 1962 and we went up there to ask for relief for American products, they said no, and they never did it.

"I'm going to point out that in 1965, when they had real economic problems, we entered into an automotive agreement with them. At that time, we had a surplus trade balance with Canada of approximately $650 million a year. Last year we had a deficit, a negative trade balance of $1 billion.

"So we've had a net change of $2.3 billion in our trade balances with Canada in the last five years. So I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be."

Does that mean he will say no he was asked.

"Well, I don't want to prejudge what I'm going to say," Connally said, "but I think it is apparent that I'm not without some arguments to respond to their request for an exemption to the surcharge."

La Presse Workers Parade

MONTREAL (CP) — About 250 workers and their families demonstrated in front of La Presse in downtown Montreal Wednesday to protest lagging negotiations with the Montreal French-language newspaper.

The workers, locked out by La Presse over a contract dispute, carried placards and shouted anti-La Presse slogans as they marched peacefully around the newspaper building.

Five labor groups involved in the dispute—pressmen, typographers, photoengravers, stereotypers and mailroom personnel —are seeking public support by demonstrating instead of striking, a right they have had since the first lockout began July 19.

La Presse officials made what they described as a final contract offer Monday, giving typographers, stereotypers and pressmen a $40-a-week raise over a 38-month contract and a work week of 35 hours or less.

The newspaper also proposed up to 30 weeks severance pay for employees laid off because of technological changes but the offer was rejected as "a policy of evident bad faith." Contract talks now have broken off.

The workers say La Presse is offering less money than Montreal's English-language dailies, but they also say money is not the central issue in the dispute.

Report to Male Teachers Stresses Need for Training

TORONTO (CP) — A survey prepared for the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation recommends more leadership training for teachers starting to become principals and more up-to-date training for incoming teachers.

The report was prepared by Dorner Ellis, a woman engineer turned educationist, and was released Wednesday at a news conference during the federation's convention here.

It says the chief characteristics of men teachers is that the majority of them are upgrading their educational qualifications and expect to become administrators.

The survey showed that 42 per cent of the men public school teachers interviewed held at least a bachelor's degree. Most had gained it through night and summer classes.

The survey was commissioned by the federation two years ago to discover the aims and needs of its members.

Garth McMillan, executive assistant to the federation, said the survey also showed that teachers were dissatisfied with their professional training at the province's teachers' colleges because the same courses were taught "25 years ago."

The survey also showed few teachers had experience in other types of work.

"Perhaps we should reach out to other professions and encourage people to shift into teaching," said Mr. McMillan.

The Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario, also meeting here this week, said Wednesday that radicals are infiltrating the elementary school teaching profession.

"We are aware by the student teachers we get, that anti-establishment type people are trying to get at us through the children," said Cathy Groxson, a secondary school teacher in North York.

"We've got to be careful of the calibre of people in the teaching profession," she told a meeting of 800 Federation delegates.

The delegates later passed a resolution requesting the federation to screen students and set a quota on enrolment in teachers' colleges.

The resolution was aimed to dealing with a surplus of elementary school teachers in the province.

Third TV Network Sought in Ontario

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An application by a Toronto company to establish a third English-language television network in Ontario will be heard in September, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

Al Bruner, president of Global Communications Ltd., said the proposed network would have outlets at Windsor, Sarnia, Uxbridge, Paris, Bancroft, Maxville and Ottawa, with studios in Toronto and Ottawa.

He said the application, filed in April, 1970, will be heard at Canadian Radio-Television Commission hearings in Toronto in September.

The company is basing its application to the CRTC on a 50-per-cent Canadian content level, which would amount to "22 hours of Canadian content a week," Mr. Bruner said.

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs for that matter. Because the boy or girl with a newspaper route has a year round income. The few minutes he or she puts in every day not only provides them with monetary rewards, but even more the more significant dividends of learning about the business of free enterprise.

The business of learning the value of money, bookkeeping, selling, buying, punctuality and responsibility.

A newspaper carrier learns all year round. His experience helps him to acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success. He makes money at it too.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor tells me that I am in the middle of change of life. In addition to having hot flashes and excessive perspiration, I have been quite depressed. He suggests that I take some hormones and special medicines that will make me feel more comfortable. But I hate to do so. Isn't feeling this way natural?

It seems to me that every day is the same. Every night I go to bed and sleep until morning. Then I have my cup of coffee and pack a lunch for my husband. He says, "Have a nice day." Then we kiss good-bye and out the door he goes to the same place he has worked in for years — to the same job he did yesterday and will do tomorrow.

My children eat their breakfast and off to school they go. Then I turn on the radio, hear the same commercials and do the same dishes, make the same beds, put in some wash and click on the TV set.

Then I'm alone again seeing the same furniture, vacuuming the same carpet, and fixing the children's lunch again. I don't talk very much, or see friends or go anywhere.

Around 5 o'clock I get dinner ready and set the table with the same dishes. After dinner, I wash the dishes, watch TV and go to bed. Then it is morning and it's everything the same all over again.

I often picture millions of people doing the same things over and over for years and years. The only thing that ever changes is the weather. I feel like "here I go again" every day of my life. What do you think? — Mrs. M.

COMMENT: I think it's time to follow your doctor's advice. My guess is that you are in a mild depression. As I reread your letter the word "same" keeps appearing. You are extremely bored. And boredom, I've found, is often tied in with depression. Untreated, it may become more intense.

You can expect much improvement if you will allow your doctor to treat you. I think you will admit you are in a rut. You need to be helped out so you will begin to take an interest in other people and other things. Otherwise, giving you a "lift" will require longer and more complicated treatment than your doctor can offer now.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: If a woman takes birth control pills for several years in succession, is it possible they will no longer be strong enough for her body to keep her from pregnancy? Shall I double up on my pills to make sure? Change to another kind? Stronger perhaps? — Mrs. C.

COMMENT: Don't double up. Don't change — unless your doctor advises you to do so. In fact, he may even suggest that you can get along on pills that are not even as "strong" as the ones you are taking now. It is a good rule not to fool around with hormones.

For Mrs .R.: I agree that cottage cheese is an excellent source of protein. For many elderly people it is a "painless" way of getting a good portion of their daily protein requirement. But there is no age limit — it is good food for the young as well as the elderly.

Dear Dr .Steincrohn: My granddaughter has the atrocious habit of biting people. She just celebrated her first birthday by biting both my daughter and myself. This is not new. She does it frequently. Would she understand punishment-at this age? Someone suggested biting her back. Does this make sense? — Mrs. R.

COMMENT: It makes nonsense. Be patient. Most biters get over it without punishment of any kind.

All communism can ever do is equalize poverty; it can never equalize affluence, for more affluent a society becomes, the more do natural inequalities begin to assert themselves, through merit, cunning or force.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 20

Your birthday today: What is past is merely a preface to what comes next. You needn't burn bridges behind you now — your inner nature evolves in such leaps that no return to previous emotional and psychological conditions is possible anyway. Today's natives live most of their lives co-operating on a mental plane despite physical activity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Wind up your work week with a flourish — you won't pass this particular way again. Persistent effort settles most details well.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Put your main attention onto financial and economic matters. See where your money goes, where more is to come from.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Being forthright needn't include harshness — your self-discipline is under test. Slow down at the earliest reasonable time, take it easy.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22) Expect surprise among people learning of your plans, but keep on working out details.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Speaking out clearly ends some burden and perhaps a different, fresh responsibility. Be sure of what you're asking: don't just pull a tantrum.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Move in to close current negotiations; finish incomplete projects. More affluent times are ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Plunging ahead with your own affairs comes too easily, could displease people whose co-operation you'll need later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): New faces may include potential rivals, competitors. Changes in your field have been long planned, slowly organized, and almost impossible to hold off longer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Sometimes long range self-interest involves quite a bit over the short term. Consider the exchange of an investment, keep good records.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The better you have things organized the duller is the day. Let well enough alone; avoid new controversy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): For the moment deliver what has been agreed upon rather than pushing brash new theories. Use your energy for more detailed ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): It's about time you gave friends, relatives, steady associates — and yourself — a break. Seek a change of mood and scene.

Trudeau Won't Panic

'No Retaliatory Kick' Against U.S. Planned

Conference at Washington

U.S. and Canadian officials met in Washington yesterday to discuss the 10 per cent tariff imposed on imports by President Nixon. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally sits at end of table with hands folded. Clockwise from Connally are Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans; and Canadians J. H. Warren, deputy for Industry, trade and commerce; Jean Luc Pepin, trade and commerce; E. J. Benson, minister of trade; S. S. Reisman, deputy minister of finance; Marcel Cadieux, Canadian ambassador; Marshall Crowe, deputy secretary privy council and U.S. Treasury Undersecretary Paul Volcker. (CP Photo)

Benson Fails To Win Relief

OTTAWA (CP) —Prime Minister Trudeau, home from an abbreviated Adriatic holiday, meets his cabinet today to assess Washington's unwillingness to give a quick relief to Canada's export industry from president Nixon's 10 per cent import surcharge.

He arrived in white duck slacks and sportshirt Thursday night an hour before Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin returned from an apparently fruitless mission to lay Canada's case before U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Mr. Benson described the U.S. attitude as sympathetic and said Mr. Connally promised to consider Canada's case. But the mission returned without any general exemption for Canada from the import surcharge announced by President Nixon Sunday.

Mr. Trudeau said several times in airport remarks that the government here won't panic, and won't go on "a retaliatory kick" to fight—back against the surcharges, which could add $300 million to the price of Canadian goods in U.S. markets, if U.S. buyers were willing to pay the shot and not cut back on orders.

Premiers Robert Bourassa of Quebec and William Davis of Ontario expressed alarm at the damage the import surcharges can do to manufacturing in their provinces. Already orders have been cancelled.

Mr. Trudeau was asked whether the federal government would offer Canadian business some compensation—such as

Money Markets Will Re-open But No United Stand Reached

BRUSSELS (AP) — Britain and the Common Market countries agreed early today to reopen their foreign currency exchanges on Monday, but failed to agree on a unified policy for determining the value of the U.S. dollar.

Differences between France and West Germany doomed agreement, and as a result Britain and the six Common Market members will arrange things separately on their exchanges.

A leading European monetary official predicted that none of the governments would continue to buy U.S. dollars to support the official exchange rate as they have in the past. But he said they probably would not let the rate fall low enough to ruin their export business or attract a flood of American goods made cheaper by the dollar's decline.

"They will come into the market," he said. "It just depends at what level we will be frightened enough to intervene."

Britain's representative, Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber, conferred with the European ministers early in the evening and told them his government wanted to co-operate but intended to open the London exchange Monday with fixed rates but a wider permissible range of fluctuation.

The ministers were unable to overcome the differences between Finance Ministers Karl Schiller of West Germany and Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France.

The German wanted West European currencies to float more or less freely, as the West German mark and Dutch guilder have done since May. The Frenchman, fearing the effect on France's exports, opposed allowing the value of the franc to rise against the dollar, as it would if allowed to float.

Giscard on his return to Paris told reporters today that when the Paris market opens Monday, his government will launch the two-tier or double-rate system it advocated in Brussels. There will be a controlled rate, supported by government buying and selling, for business transactions including tourist exchanges, and a free market for speculative and investment purposes.

Heath Attacks Irish Premier For 'Interference' in Ulster

LONDON (AP) — Relations between Britain and the Republic of Ireland plummeted today following a bitter attack by Prime Minister Edward Heath on Irish Premier Jack Lynch for "unacceptable interference" in the affairs of embattled Northern Ireland.

In a bristling cable late Thursday night, Heath denounced Lynch for trying to stir up tension, bluntly reminded him Northern Ireland is part of the United Kingdom and poured cold water on Lynch's hopes of an all-Ireland summit with Britain.

The Lynch message which provoked Heath into unusually strong diplomatic language said British Army operations and Belfast's introduction of internment without trial for suspected terrorists had failed to solve the North's problems.

"In the event of the continuation of existing policies of attempted military solutions, I intend to support the policy of passive resistance now being pursued by the non Unionist population," Lynch said.

Heath, in terms said by some qualified observers to be unmatched in London-Dublin exchanges since partition in 1922, retorted Lynch's cable was "unjustified in its content, unacceptable in its attempt to interfere in the affairs of the U.K. and can in no way contribute to the solution of the problems in Northern Ireland."

He declared equality of treatment for everyone is both London and Belfast policy and told Lynch: "By seeking to obscure this fact you do no service to any of the people of Northern Ireland."

Sydney Drinks and Drags As Police Out on Strike

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Quiet finally came to this steel producing city of 33,000 early today, but the marks of the first day of a strike by city policemen were clearly visible.

Open drinking, drag racing on the main streets, looting, false fire alarms and several minor accidents were the aftermath of the walkout by the 56 member police force in a wage dispute with the city.

Large store windows were smashed and some looting was reported.

Shortly after midnight windows in the George Street liquor store were broken with rocks and police showed their first sign of authority since going on strike, with seven members standing guard in front of the store.

The racing, two abreast along the five blocks of George Street, and the drinking continued in the presence of the police officers.

The police displayed concern for what they feared could come about today. With Friday being payday in industrial Cape Breton, most of the residents of the neighboring communities flock to Sydney and police consider it to be their busiest night of the week.

No Cure Discovered

World Still Has That Big Bellyache Nixon's Menu Produced

WASHINGTON (CP) — Bitterness . . . revolt . . . deadlock. The words go with the giant bellyache that sprung so suddenly on the Western world.

After a week of meetings of world leaders and money managers in various capitals, nothing has been settled in the world monetary crisis, brought to a head by U.S. moves to save its own economy from depression.

The U.S. line of approach remains as hard as ever: As long as the non-Communist rest of the world accepts the U.S. defence shield, it will have to pay for it, one way or another. The huge U.S. balance-of-payments deficit cannot continue.

The countries of the European Common Market failed today in efforts to form a united front to cope with President Nixon's monetary policy.

Their efforts came as the Canadians failed to win any concessions from the Nixon administration and a Japanese official said his government would not revalue the yen—the prime target of the new U.S. policy—despite intense domestic pressure.

Saying there are too many exemptions in the 90-day freeze, organized labor asked Congress to impose more equitable controls.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, in a scorching attack on Nixon that was backed by most other labor leaders, said the freeze will halt "all workers' wage increases but won't halt inflation until because not all prices are frozen.

"Eggs, fruits and vegetables —which every housewife must buy for her family—are exempt from the freeze. The 10-per-cent border tax on imports will be passed on to the consumer."

Interest rates, that affect living costs, and business profits are also exempt from the freeze, he complained.

The 77-year-old former plumber accused Nixon of deliberately misleading Americans about the gravity of economic problems, and called on Congress to kill Nixon's requested 10-per-cent business tax credit, arguing it would enrich corporations without creating new jobs for the 5.3 million unemployed in the country.

Meany, backed by the full executive council of the 13.6-million-member labor federation, also said Congress should enact controls on profits and interest rates, expense accounts, stocks and bonds and all other forms of income if the freeze remains on wages and prices.

He urged unions to cancel any labor contracts under which scheduled wage increases are frozen by Nixon's order, and to strike if necessary to win more wage increases to go into effect when the freeze is lifted.

The Nixon administration displayed determination to make its tough new economic policies pay off in rejecting the Canadian request for special exemption from the new 10-per-cent levy on dutiable imports to the United States.

Treasury Secretary John Connally took a hard line Thursday with Canadian Finance Minister E. J. Benson, who flew from Ottawa with a high-level mission to seek special treatment for Canada.

In a television interview, Connally said the U.S. measures were aimed at persuading other countries to liberalize their trade and spend more on defence as well as to influence a revaluation of strong currencies.

"I think the other countries are going to have to recognize that so long as we bear the burden of providing the defence shield for the free world, that one way or another they're going to have to pay for it," he said.

"Part of the solution is going to have to be the removal of many of these barriers so that our commodities are treated by other countries just as their commodities are treated by us," he added.

At a news conference after his meeting with Connally, Benson said he had set in motion a request for a deputy-level meeting of the Group of Ten leading non-Communist nations to study the need for a top-flight ministerial conference on the Nixon policy implications.

Trenton PUC Insists Developers Pay All

TRENTON (Staff) — The Public Utilities Commission resolved here yesterday only to sign subdividers' agreements jointly with the town if subdividers pay 100 per cent of the cost of extending services to new developments.

Town council had decided earlier in the summer to ifive separate agreements for its dealings with subdividers and the PUC could have their own.

Learning of this legal judgement, council revised its position and came up with a conditional willingness to return to the joint signing method.

In a letter to the PUC read at yesterday's commission-ers' meeting, deputy clerk of town Arden Royce, asks "if the commission is prepared to accept whatever financial terms council may determine in future subdividers' agreements, should they ever be changed from the present terms of 100 per cent payment by the subdivider."

He also informed the com-

Young Farmers In Competition

Top over-all contestant for the event was Laurie Tuer man, RR 2, Consecon; Tim Wellbanks, RR 8, Picton, was the top Junior, and Ian McGregor, RR 5, Colborne, the top Intermediate.

Also at the fair, members of 19 4-H Homemaking clubs from Hastings county displayed the results of their summer's work in a non-competitive display in the horticultural building at the Exhibition.

mission that, in the future, council and not the PUC will be responsible for accepting services in subdivisions. Commissioners had no argument with this.

On the financial arrangements question, council has already ratified a new standard form of subdividers' agreement calling for subdividers to pay 100 per cent of the cost of extending services to new housing areas.

The arrangement supported by council for the earlier Dufferin Developments agreement was a 50-50 split with the town paying half and Dufferin half. It was this cost sharing to which PUC commissioner Charles Hilton and Mayor Duncan McDonald voiced strong objection.

"If they are asking now," the mayor told the PUC yesterday, "is that if they (council) change it from the 100 per cent, we will accept it."

He said "we can give away for the next teh years and the taxpayer will have to pay."

The commission decided to advise council it will sign jointly only agreements in which the developer pays 100 per cent.

Dufferin-PUC Sign Agreement

TRENTON (Staff) — A subdividers' agreement was signed yesterday between Dufferin Developments and the Public Utilities Commission here, ending a phase of the long - standing water extension controversy.

The agreement provides that Dufferin will pay 50 per cent of the cost of a 12-inch main from Tripp Boulevard on into the subdivision. Earlier, Dufferin had been willing only to pay for half the cost of a 6 - inch line, while the commission called for one of 12 inches.

Meanwhile, PUC plans for a large scale pipeline to carry water up Dundas West has run into snags. Core and Storrie, the commission's consulting engineers are two and a half months behind schedule on the major servicing job now expected to begin next month.

Commissioners resolved here yesterday to lodge a formal complaint against the engineering firm for its delays.

The signing of the PUC - Dufferin agreement will not immediately settle the question of servicing the first phase of Dufferin Developments which is beginning to rise at the end of McGill Street. The new major line will come in from the north, while the homes now being built should take water from the east.

Rotary Extends Support of 4-H

After four years as sponsors of the Belleville Rotary 4-H Calf Club, local Rotary members this year extended their rural interests to promote a full - fledged junior livestock show in connection with the Quinte Exhibition.

With the co-operation that is, of Quinte area 4-H club members.

The Rotary Club junior livestock show was held Tuesday night at the fair with the Holstein livestock classes attracting a total 56 head. The showmanship class for competitors with the entire show staged in the Coliseum taking three hours to complete.

Three Rotarians, club president Bill McKay; Bill Riley and Dave Davey conducted the show. Mr. MacKay was master of ceremonies, Rotarian Riley kept the records while Mr. Davey presented the ribbons. County agricultural assistant Ray Pender was the convener.

Robert Eggleston, RR 6, Belleville achieved top honor in the calf club exhibit and also was the top showman of the Rotary 4-H Calf Club.

The yearling class with 28 calves had the largest entry with Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland counties represented. Class 3 for two-year - olds saw 11 competitors.

But Rotary club participation in the junior livestock show was referred to more than participation at the local judging events.

During the week prior to the fair, nine members took time out to visit the 17 members of the 4-H calf club. In doing so they got some first - hand knowledge in the raising of a calf and also learned from what was involved in being a good 4-H club member.

Trophy Collectors

Kathie Deming, 14, of 20 King George Square, left, and Robyn McKinney, 10, of 306 Dufferin Avenue, were the youngest sailors to win Bay of Quinte Yacht Club trophies last night. The junior sailors received, respectively, the Best Girl Shiplette and Most Advanced First Year Trophies. Cup-winning winners were Jim Trotter, John Haggis, Peter Petto and Patricia Hickey.

Sidney Asks Trenton Water

TRENTON (Staff) — The same arrangement by which CFB Trenton takes water from Trenton's municipal system should be the one to be applied to Sidney Township, according to the town's Public Utilities Commissioners.

In dealing with a request from Sidney Township yesterday, PUC commissioners were asked to supply 50,000 gallons of Trenton water a day to a new industry for the township.

Usual basis by which water is extended to out-of-town customers is 150 per cent of the cost paid by Trenton users.

However, the department of national defence has bought at 150 per cent and also shared in the capital cost of physical plant for the Trenton system and the PUC decided yesterday to ask Sidney to express willingness to do the same for the long-term development of the municipal system.

PUC commissioners have long maintained the Trent River will provide for future needs of the Trenton and the adjacent township area at substantially less cost than would be possible through a Lake Ontario pipeline.

Mayor to Appeal For Building $

Personal letters to the heads of national lending institutions will be sent out by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott in try to persuade them to make more reisidential mortgage funds available for Belleville.

The letters will stress the dire need for more housing in Belleville to accommodate many families desperately seeking accommodation.

The decision to make a personal approach to the national mortgage lending heads was made following a special meeting at city hall this morning attended by local bank managers and home builders to discuss what should be done to help alleviate the local housing shortage.

The meeting was told that there were almost no new houses for sale and that apartment units were quickly rented — often before the buildings themselves were constructed.

Builders said very few housing units were being started as the result of the shortage of mortgage money.

And local representatives of lending institutions for the most part said current allotments of mortgage money had been used up.

Local home building contractor Maurice Rollins told the meeting that in his 15 years of experience, the housing shortage had never been as acute as at present.

He said normally his firm had between 30 and 40 houses at various states of construction unsold and the same went for apartment units.

Currently, however, he had only two houses for sale and had four apartments with a total of 48 units rented which couldn't even be started because of be lack of mortgage money.

But the shortage of mortgage funds was demonstrated by the fact that "when you can't get a $10,000 mortgage on a $25,000 house, things are pretty miserable."

Lending institution representatives attending the meeting gave full approval for Mayor Scott to directly contact their head offices and make a special plea for additional mortgage money.

major corporation tax cut—to spur them on. He described the proposition as "very hypothetical."

"We will want to keep the world a multi-lateral trading world," he said. He indicated the government there would continue to press its claim for relief from the Washington import.

The main purpose of the U.S. surcharges is to force other governments—Japan, in particular, but some major European countries as well—to revalue their currencies and drop trade discrimination.

Hon. Benson's main argument to Mr. Connally was that Canada is guilty on neither of these counts: The Canadian dollar has been free for 15 months to find its own level in international markets and Canada does not discriminate against U.S. imports.

The nub of Mr. Connally's reply was that the U.S. government sympathized with Canadian problems—and officials would study the matter. The two governments would keep in touch.

PUC Seeks Lake Water Alternative

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton Utilities Commission has commissioned a water survey firm to assess Trenton's water resources as ammunition to keep the town out of any proposed regional Lake Ontario pipeline scheme.

At yesterday's PUC meeting David Trumbull of International Water Supply Co. told commissioners, "your wells have never been properly assessed so we do not know if you are getting all the water you could."

The company will assist the commission in determining the amount of ground water available to the municipal water system and whether the PUC's three Murray Township wells are capturing all the water they can.

In 1963, International had reconditioned one of the wells (well No. 3) and, as a result, produced for two and a half times its previous flow of water.

However, Mr. Turnbull stressed "Wells No. 1 and 2 are pretty old and I do not think we could do much with them — we could even ruin them completely if trying to recondition them."

The water specialist expressed the belief that the present water extraction system "may be losing a million gallons a day" — no later than the system would be able to retrieve if it were in good condition.

PUC commissioners want a comprehensive picture of the town's ground and surface water resources before any investment their position that they do not want to and do not need to be part of a pipeline scheme.

It is also expected they will contact the Bay of Quinte and St. Thomas to determine how much their water rates increased when they started to take water from lake water pipelines rather than their former water sources.

The Trenton commission feels that municipal water rates will be lower if they continue to rely on their traditional sources — Murray Township springs and the Trent River.

'Snake' Is Encyclopedia of Rodeo Lore

By JIM WILLARD
Staff Reporter

"Dad, is that a real cowboy, huh?"

"That cowboy, son, is probably the world's only walking encyclopedia of cowboy and rodeo history. Yes, sir, ask him any question about some of the greatest cowboys and he'll talk until your ears bleed."

That cowboy is Clyde "Snakedoctor" Brown.

A veteran of 48 years on the rodeo circuit, Snake, as he is known by all his friends and friends, has met and known most of the world's best known and unknown cowboys dating back to the early part of this century.

A hoarse-voiced, crab-shaped face gentleman of 62 years, Snake travels the rodeo and wild west show circuit of the eastern coast of North America for several months in the year, although it's difficult work, it's probably the only work he knows.

"Sleeping in that bills, roughin' in them trailers and the occasional motel, slippin' ting from show to show, that's the life we lead, you see. But, you know, we draws the big, great crowds of anything there is, nobow how anythin' else can beat it when a professional rodeo hits town. You see, we pack 'em in on all four walls, young and old, sometimes the best thing to show in a town is a rodeo. It draws in the stereotype Texan accent.

Snake has witnessed many changes in the methods of bronco-riding, bulldogging and trick-roping, and when he gets started on the subject he can stop time, slipping you into a dream world of the old west that has become reality for many on the circuit and for their fans.

"You see, back in the old days, they had a different style of riding. They used to have a stirrup on the saddle, not ropes and a different saddle than today. Now, these days, they use a shorter rope and a shorter rein, with the rope hanging five to 12 inches behind the saddle-horn.

"It seems silly to me, but today they expect you to ride on a bronc'or bareback with a different style, 'though they have their spurs turned in, unlike them old days."

In roping today, cowboys use a shorter length of rope, a maximum 34 feet as compared to the 40 - footers employed decades ago.

Boots have change, too.

In the yesterdays, cowpokes used a high undershoe boot, while today 'they wear a narrower and longer heel that appears to be slanted.

"The leather chaps today, man, they's different in color and texture. Instead of the old, straight - forward brown or dark - colored ones, 'most everyone uses two-colored, mix-colored breeds and have their names slapped on them in silver," Snake explains.

"In the big shows, the good cowboys wear clothes costing over 300 dollars just for bronco - riding or bull - dogging. Even the hats changed. They used to wear a shap - brim hat, but then there were some squawking to the rodeo associations, and they passed a ruling that cowboys have got to wear the big hats like the old days in the '20s and '30s."

To make sure in riding, especially bareback riding categories, cowboys use Balsam of Fir (Canada) to 'stick' to the back of the horse.

"You'll be surprised t h a t how dem cowpokes get. When you fall, you'll liable to get hurt, sticking to that horse t h a t way," he warned.

"He was a negro cowboy, and he was the one who started the 'bulldogging' everyone's pattered after his style today."

Among the others, named like Dink McElroy ("one of the oldtime greats"), Felix "the Cat" Cooper, Dick Griffin, Pete Knight ("a really great Canadian cowboy"), Tom Mix ("a good one in his own right") and Tom King.

However, the cowgirl he remembers well was Ann Greely, becoming famous in rodeo history to have been the only rodeo artist to have a funeral staged during a show.

"All the well-known rodeo artists and cowboys attended that funeral after she died during a performance in the Fight Arena in Philadelphia in 1946. It was the most picturesque sight I ever did see. All the great cowboy singers and movie stars attended, singing songs in her honor, fellas like Gene Autry and the Sons of the Pioneers, Roy Rogers and others." S n a k e remembers sadly.

And don't forget the horses. Among the horses that have entered history are included Halfwhite ("he had a bad temper"), Tumbleweeds ("a great horse") Steamboat and Five Minutes to Midnight.

Snake claimed that nobody rode that Steamboat, and when Midnight died, they put the tombstone on her grave: 'Here lies Five Minutes to Midnight, With a heart as black as coal. If there's a horse heaven, May God bless her soul." Yessir, that was some horse.

Snake travels the circuit with his only two children, Terrance, 12, a daughter married after a famous rodeo cowgirl and after a wandering Texan girl found in the last century who led rescuers to the spot where her father had been scalped and buried by Indians ;and Jesse Frank, 8, named after a goddess of Jesse-James, the famous outlaw of the American old west.

Although the youngsters missed some school, they have never failed.

"When they's back home, they pay attention to what's been taught. No rodeo children never failed school, and besides they learn more on the rodeo circuit than if they stayed at home, that's for sure," Snake stated.

His twin brother, Claude, was a merchantman, and if Snake had the chance to revive his life again, he would forget the rodeo and sail the seas. Why?

"Because the sea is my first love above all else," he explained in the simple drawl he's become famous for. "I wouldn't recommend, however, that youngsters today wishing to enter the rodeo to do so. You got to live with stock, with working cowboys, to absorb the atmosphere to become good at it. Besides, 10 years is about the limit of a rodeo artist, anyway."

Snake has many more memories, but the timetable must be kept, and he must now rush to another town and entertain the folks there.

But, he'll be back, as he has been back for the past 48 years.

"Yes, son, he sure is."

Everyman Closes Cothurnus Season

The summer youth theatre Cothurnus will be staging its final performance this week-end with the production of Everyman.

The play originated in the 15th century, and has since become a festival in itself for Germany, the homeland of the author, Hugo Von Hofmannsthal. The play is performed at a gala celebration.

Written by an unknown German, the play was adapted by John Gassner, and deals with morality.

"The play is allegorical in the sense that each player represents not himself, but an emotion or trait common to the human race, and in the case of Everyman, the actor portrays the entire human race," said Laurence Eswaldson, director of the summer youth theatre.

Everyman, played by Milton McCrystal, is summoned by God to come before him and account for his worldly deeds. Death appears on the scene, delivering the message, bidding that Everyman will come soon.

In his fear, Everyman searches out the qualities that he feels will accompany him in a more favorable light when the time of reckoning comes. Love, beauty, compassion, strength are included in the list, who come before him to hear his tale and decide whether or not to make the trip with him.

The visual aspect of the performance is outstanding. Costumes, set design and lighting were all designed by Mr. Ewashen, giving the play the awesome environment needed for this type of theatre.

An interesting side note of the production is that there are only 17 parts and 10 actors, with some players doing as many as three parts.

The play will be running for three nights, beginning tonight with the curtain going up at 8.30.

The end of the season for Cothurnus will also mark the end of the season, in Belleville for Mr. Ewashen.

From Belleville Mr. Ewashen will be travelling back to Toronto to accept a teaching position with the newly - implemented theatre department at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

Cothurnus has provided area youths with the opportunity to get on or behind stage and find out if they have some aptitude in the theatre. Similar programs were held in Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto.

There has been no comment on the future of the plan.

Everyman will charge no admission but the hat will be passed around at the end of each production.

City to be Twinned

The city of Belleville is to have a "twin" over in West Germany.

The city of Quinte will be twinned with Lahr in recognition of the association of CFB Trenton with the overseas airbase.

City council agreed to the twinning at Monday's meeting of council after it was assured that the move would mean no financial outlay for Belleville.

Mayor J. Russell Scott recommended the move, noting that it would be very appropriate.

CJBQ's Power Boost Is Slated for October

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Early in October, CJBQ Radio will be getting a shot in the arm that will provide a clearer, quality signal to more people in the Bay of Quinte area.

Preparations for the power boost began some three years ago and since that time the Canadian Radio and Television Commission has accepted the station's application and CJBQ will be increasing its power rating tenfold. Currently running on 1,000 watts, this figure will be amplified to 10,000.

While it will not make a marked difference to listeners who are now receiving a strong signal (as in Belleville), it will provide a much stronger and more consistent signal to listeners in southeastern portions of Prince Edward County, north of the Highway 7 and points west of Trenton.

The power boost came only after years of planning, hiring consultants from the west coast and submitting an application to the Canadian Radio and Television Commission.

"Before a change of this kind can be implemented, we must first determine that there is a need for the change and that the change will not interfere with other stations operating on the same frequency as CJBQ," said Frank Murray, manager of the station.

At this time, there are several stations sharing 800 on the dial including C K L W (Windsor), CJAD (Montreal), CJLX (Thunder Bay) and WWNY (Watertown) on adjacent 790.

The firm of Hoyles, Niblock and Associates, the foremost broadcast consultant firm in the country, was commissioned to explore the engineering possibilities and determine the feasibility of the project.

The report from the consultants mentioned that the program is workable only if CJBQ could obtain a specific 100 acre site (some 14 miles as the crow flies) in Prince Edward County in the Hillier area. This site could not deviate more than 1.5 miles from the point chosen by the consultants.

Quality of ground contour, ground conductivity and geographic position all were taken into consideration before the final location was named, along with a long list of other factors that would affect the efficiency of the station.

With the technical aspects finished, the CRTC conducted a public hearing to determine the need for the power boost. In December of 1970, the CRTC replied to the station that it would be in the public interest to have this power boost and the application was granted.

With the go ahead, construction began and now six towers stand in the 150-acre field to beam the signal.

The towers are similar to an iceberg in the sense that much of the installation is beneath the ground.

To protect neighboring stations, a specific pattern is broadcast, covering some areas and looping around others so no interference results. These loopings of the coverage are controlled by both the tuning of the six antennas and the ground system.

"To give you some idea of the complexities of this tuning operation," said the project supervisor, "it will take 70 days to make all necessary electrical adjustments to fine tune the correct coverage pattern."

To the base of each of the antennas, wires are connected which radiate to the perimeter of the lot.

These copper wires (miles of wire are involved in the ground system) are laid beneath the ground at specific angles and the surface they form partially controls the resulting coverage pattern.

"There are many features in our new system that justify buying it," said one engineer, "other than the increased performance. With the new radio transmitter link, it is possible to rectify problems at the station without actually travelling to it.

"This link is probably the major modification to the set-up," said Mr. Murray. "Through the transmitter link we can beam the program from the downtown studios to the transmitter site and get rid of the telephone line which was subject to weather. At the same time, we can ship remote control information to the transmitting site.

"There are nominally 20 remote control operations that can be shipped by the link (located on the roof of The Intelligencer Building) to control the status of the equipment in Hillier," said J. H. Buchanan, engineer for the radio station.

As well as the control system in the studio - transmitter link, there are safety valves in the transmitting complex so that when a problem arises the system will automatically switch to a standby circuit. If these automatic functions fail, then the switch-over can be handled from the downtown studio.

"Men will still have to go to the site to repair any damaged components, but the listeners will not suffer through it," said an engineer.

Much of the equipment used in the present transmitting site will be used as a standby system.

"The old equipment is in good shape," said one engineer, "it would be a shame to sell it and have to turn around and buy another unit for standby work."

The consultants will not come out and say exactly what the performance of the new system will be because of the many variables affecting it. They will say that Picton, which in the past received a mixed signal from other stations creeping in, will receive a much improved, stronger daytime signal.

Coverage in CJBQ country will be much better than it is now and coverage as far as Bancroft will be similar to the present daylight coverage received in the Picton area.

Nixon Move Hits Footwear Firm

The 10 per cent surcharge on imports to the United States announced Sunday by President Richard Nixon could have drastic effects for Elaine Footwear of Stirling.

John Svoboda, president of the Stirling firm notes that the surcharge will cost the company $300,000 in business and will destroy any opportunity the company may have had in competing in the U.S. footwear market.

He said the new American policy could result in layoffs at the Stirling factory in September or October.

At the time of Mr. Nixon's announcement, the Stirling shoe firm was in the midst of negotiations with U.S. firms for the export of 50,000 pairs of women's shoes during 1972.

And Mr. Svoboda predicted another problem arising from the surcharge. He said that European manufacturers will be shipping more goods into Canada rather than the U.S. and these products will be cheaper because of the lower wages paid in Europe.

Bible Camp Has 25th Anniversary

Joy Bible Camp on Paradise Lake near Bancroft marked its 25th anniversary last week with a banquet for present and former campers and workers.

The camp was started in 1947 by Mr. and Mrs. William Belch of Belleville. An old barn and a tent housed 24 children in the initial stages.

Since then, Mr. Belch and the camp staff have built permanent facilities of cement block and the camp offers summer programs for children, teenagers and adults.

The camp for girls 10 to 14 years old registered 135 children this year and the boys' camp had about 110 in attendance. The three - week adult camp operated at its capacity of 140 people.

To climax the anniversary celebrations, Mr. and Mrs. Belch were presented with a cheque to enable them to visit Mrs. Belch's family in England.

So Much to Read

What a wealth of new reading matter has become available in Belleville with the opening of the Quinte Mall, and not to mention all the other fine shopping establishments there.

The "trouble" with the mall's new book stores, as well as those downtown, is that they offer so much — everything from inexpensive paperbacks of Fanny Hill and Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot to the poems of Byron, Chaucer, and such contemporary Canadian poets as E. J. Pratt.

Where does one find the time to keep up with reading? It always amazes us, steeped as we are in contemporary newspaper material, to see citizens leaving the library with a mournful of books. How do they get through them, even if they are fast readers? Andre Gide had something to say on this subject. We do not recall all of it but it had to do with "attacking things directly." If you want to read the classics, he said in effect, you must sacrifice much else in order to accomplish the task, including newspapers and magazines. But how can we ignore the contemporary scene; it may be transient but it is interesting too.

There is one other aspect of contemporary reading matter which concerns us. That is the movie and detective magazines, the former full of the alleged misbehavior of film and other public personalities (how do these publications avoid libel actions is one of the legal mysteries of the day), the latter with cover pictures and headlines peddling every sinister piece of imagery that ever was. The fact that the detective articles are based on actual events, complete with pictures of murdered persons, murder scenes, witnesses and all the rest of it, makes this material no less unfortunate.

We have all seen too how the kids bunk down amid the magazine racks where they have a good read. If the movie covers are relatively harmless the same cannot be said for the detective stuff, with half-naked women recoiling from savage looking attackers wielding knives and pistols. The people who model for this sort of thing must be a little sick themselves. Overall this type of magazine projects a questionable image, yet the shelves are full of them.

P.M. Home

So Prime Minister Trudeau thought better of staying in Yugoslavia while the U.S. dollar burns. He just does not have things going his way when vacation time comes around.

Last October it was the FLQ crisis which prevented him from going to the Soviet Union, on a State visit at that. Now this.

We are sure Messrs. Sharp and Benson (also back prematurely from a visit to Europe and his wife's homeland, Holland) could manage very well at the Washington talks; but then it would not look good, would it, with the P.M. once again in faraway places. Given the relentless pressures of office, Mr. Trudeau is as entitled as anyone, more so perhaps, to a vacation, but because of The American dollar happenings his place really is at home this time.

Moreover, it is probably about time that Mrs. Trudeau, with a happy event not far away, started taking things easy amid home surroundings.

Correction

In a recent editorial on the subject of marijuana and a Montreal murder allegedly involving the drug some words were left out. The editorial should have read, in part: "... a 17-year-old Laval student who operated a pushcart concession at Man and His World was knifed at least 20 times in the chest and back. In custody is a 19-year-old student who had been seen earlier scuffling and shouting inside the pushcart kiosk. When police came the victim was lying on the floor and the accused was sitting on the floor against the wall staring at him. The accused reportedly had been smoking marijuana and admitted to another young sweeper that he was "really gone."

Colonial Ring

It was nice to see Miss Dominion of Canada at one of the stores in the Quinte Mall. Isn't it time though that we dropped the "dominion" bit and let the country be known as Canada? It smacks too much of the old colonial days long since gone.

Washington's Protectionist Policy

United States Can Expect Retaliatory Measures

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A number of countries, including Japan, are unlikely to remain idle for any lengthy period, accepting punishment for their competitiveness through the extra U.S. 10-per-cent import surcharge on foreign goods.

Once currencies are floated or otherwise realigned, the drive to get the import surcharge removed will be intensified. But with a presidential election coming up in November 1972, Nixon may be slow to comply.

Politically, Nixon might not suffer much if he removes the protective screen before the election once he is certain that American industry has strengthened to the point where it again can meet foreign competition in open battle.

But whatever aids U.S. industry is unlikely to be cured swiftly. American problems involve deeply-ingrained inflation and other pressures which will not be overcome by the simple expedient of the present 90-day freeze on prices and wages. However, if Nixon is slow to react to foreign complaints, he knows there are costs to be incurred in maintaining protectionism indefinitely.

The spirit of liberalized world trade, which successive U.S. leaders tried hard to uphold, would suffer. Instead of seeking to promote freer trade, many countries would try harder to protect their own markets.

And countries with closely-controlled economies would soon find ways of undermining American protectionism by concealing their own manufacturing costs with the aim of reducing their export prices.

The result could be an intensified struggle for markets accompanied by increasing bitterness which might further fragment free world support for American foreign policies.

Even now, the cynical comment heard on London's financial streets is that Nixon is finally paying Japan off for Pearl Harbor.

A number of countries, including Canada, have been hit by the prospect of a shrinking American market. But Japan depends as much or more on that market than any other industrialized country. The Nixon program has dealt the Japanese government a crippling blow delivered with complete surprise.

Peking may be thankful. For China fears the growth of Japan's economic power. But Tokyo will not be quick to forget the U.S. action.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 20, 1971 . . .

Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, died 59 years ago today—in 1912—after a lifetime of Christian work among the poorest and most degraded people in Britain. Gen. Booth and his helpers worked to bring Christianity into places which the regular churches could scarcely touch. The "Army," in spite of opposition to its begin nings, later gained acceptance and spread throughout the world.

1950—The British Labor government proposed a long-term successor to the Marshall Plan for world development.

1940—Britain announced it was leasing bases to the United States in exchange for 50 destroyers.

P.M. and Mr. Stanfield Indulge in Political Gamesmanship Overseas

Montreal La Presse: The song says it's the time for vacations. We don't doubt it at all. But, for some Canadian politicians, it is also the time for trips. Sometimes even for unusual trips.

Mr. Trudeau and his wife travel through the Maritime Provinces, Jean Chretien has admired the Soviet accomplishments in Siberia, the provincial premiers discuss fiscal policy and pollution at Victoria and Robert Stanfield, the pragmatist, has shown a desire to be one of the builders of a Washington-Peking rapprochement.

The Opposition leader in the Commons wanted to travel the air of China, the popular China, the real China. As now is permitted, he had talks with the leaders of the biggest country in the world. On his return, he gave a news conference in Ottawa. He stated that . . . there is only one China, that of Peking. But the government of Taiwan, to attend the United Nations, must attend at Taiwan.

Then, Mr. Stanfield flew to the United States where he met William Rogers, American secretary of state, and Henry Kissinger, special adviser to President Nixon. What did they say? Top secret. But a commentator in Washington wondered politely if Mr. Kissinger's trip to China was not more determinative than Mr. Stanfield's as the establishment of new relations between the American and Chinese capitals. An interesting remark indeed. . . .

Let's acknowledge that Mr. Stanfield lost nothing in playing big diplomatics when photographers and cameramen "surprised" him shaking Mr. Rogers' hand. If Mr. Trudeau braves the rain and fog of Newfoundland, the leader of the Progressive Conservative party is not wrong in seeking the company of the world's political personalities.

By reading the newspapers or watching television, maybe he will find it in himself to ask: "This man, after all, might not be so bad a prime minister."

And we bet that, profiting from the prime minister's trip to European soil, the Opposition leader will in his turn decide to shake hands in the Maritime provinces.

Ulster Hospitals' Mobile Cardiac Unit Receives Recognition Overseas

Ulster Commentary

The United States has honored an Ulsterman who has been acclaimed one of the most eminent heart specialists in Europe — Doctor J. Frank Pantridge, physician-in-charge of the cardiac department at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast.

Dr. Pantridge — pioneer of the world's first high-speed mobile cardiac care unit, which is now saving an estimated 150 lives a year — has been admitted to Fellowship of the American College of Cardiology. The honor came on his return from an extended lecture tour of the U.S. and Canada.

Dr. Pantridge and his research team introduced the first mobile coronary care unit in 1966, and the number of heart attack victims saved by it, combined with subsequent hospital care, has grown annually. A second unit has now been put on the road by the Ulster Hospital at Dundonald, Belfast.

Northern Ireland's 'Flying Column' system is recognized as the best in the world. And it has been vigorously defended by Dr. Pantridge against criticism.

Dr. Geoffrey Hall, director of the Intensive care unit at St. Thomas' Hospital, London, is reported to have said that mobile units that went 'screaming through traffic lights' proved nothing. Dr. Pantridge replied: This is just nonsense. In 1969, our unit saved at least 150 people who would otherwise have died, and the figures for this year will probably be as high. Surely that speaks for itself.'

And Dr. Pantridge added: 'It is very important to get to a patient as soon as possible after he has had a heart attack. The majority of young men who die of myocardial infarction could be saved, and we are trying to do this with the 'Flying Column'."

A special telephone number is allocated to the cardiac ambulance unit. By this means, general practitioners, first-aid workers and patients obtain immediate and direct access to the cardiac ward, without going through the hospital switchboard.

The number is given to the major stores and firms in Belfast, and general practitioners are encouraged to reveal this number to any patient they consider a special risk. These patients are instructed to contact the unit direct, should they have an episode of cardiac pain lasting longer than 15-20 minutes.

The cardiac ambulance is stationed only 250 yards from the hospital, where a driver is always on duty. A team of four — two medical residents, a staff nurse, and the duty medical student — are equipped with 'bleepers'. As soon as an emergency call is received and accepted, the team run to the ambulance. On the way, the E.G.G. terminal plates are prepared and the portable oscilloscope warmed. Direct contact is maintained with the ward by radio telephone. Direct contact is maintained with the ward by radio telephone. Drugs are carried already drawn up in disposable syringes.

At the patient's house, the E.G.G. oscilloscope and drug case are taken inside. The E.G.G. is attached to the patient, while the history is being taken, and within two or three minutes the rhythm is known, the electrocardiographic changes observed and the necessary treatment instituted.

In a study of advances in acute coronary care, Dr. Donald Julian, London, F.R.C.P., suggests eight reasons for the success of the Royal Victoria Hospital mobile unit. Among them he refers to 'the availability of a relatively large number of young, enthusiastic residents, nurses and the active involvement of the medical students attached to Dr. Pantridge's firm' and also to 'the continued enthusiasm and driving force of the senior consultant and his colleagues, together with the continuous reappraisal of the methods of treatment used by the unit'.

Canada's Trade with Orient

Ottawa Le Droit: A country stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific necessarily has good relations with neighbors along these seas.

On the Pacific our closest neighbor is Japan. . . . Japan is ranked among our leading partners with trade between the two countries valued at more than $1 billion in 1969 and still increasing.

What repercussion could Canadian-Japanese links have on investments, unemployment and industrial development in the two nations, both strongly backed up by the use of the money but both holding fiercely to their political independence? . . .

Some of our vulnerable industries must even protect themselves against Japanese competition. . . . During the last session of Parliament, a law was adopted authorizing the government to restrict imports of textile products which harm our domestic industries or with their low prices. . . .

Japan is not the only country to blame because we also import fabric from Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea where production costs are lower than here. . . .

To seek solutions to these problems . . . a Japanese delegation will come to Toronto in mid-September. Profitable. the discussion will pass from the topic of motorcycles and cars to a new element likely to cast its shadow over the foreign policy of the two nations: The recognition by Canada of Communist China with which Japan does not yet have diplomatic links.

This conference could appease somewhat the areas hit by foreign competition, especially from Asia. It will serve as harmonizing the work outlook of the two partners who have much in common. . . . their spirit of work and concern for the prosperity of the two peoples.

Inflation An Old Chestnut

Were you really surprised to learn that Canada's consumer price index has risen 3.3 per cent since the beginning of 1971 and that it has risen every month for the last six months? Are the newspapers justified in making such a fuss over it?

I don't think they are. If there is one thing that should be said to the credit of inflation, it's that we — the people of North America — have deliberately chosen inflation as a way of life. To be sure, it hurts the old, but the old are in the minority. To be sure, it hurts the savers, but the savers are in the minority. To be sure, it hurts the poor, but the poor are in the minority. To be sure, the whole card-castle will eventually collapse, but how many people care what will happen eventually? Most of us live only for and in each day.

The North American attitude toward inflation is rather like the North American attitude toward booze and sex. Booze is a terrible thing, so let's kill the bottle. Sex is dirty, so let's hop down to Le Strip. As the old Indian fortune said, 'Coin' down to Portland to get drunk, and gosh, how I dread it."

Bandits Jail Constable Then Rob Credit Union

ST. SAUVEUR, Que. (CP) — Three masked bandits armed with machine-guns locked the local police constable in a jail cell Thursday before calmly robbing the Laurentian Mountain town's credit union and bank of $7,000.

And while they were robbing the credit union, St. Sauveur Police Director Jean-Paul Page drove by and noticed a car parked illegally outside the building.

Constable Jean-Marie Berube said he was sitting alone in the police station when he saw three men pull up in a late model car just after 10 a.m.

"I thought I was seeing things," he said. "I took out my service revolver and crouched behind the desk. I heard the door being opened and suddenly I saw a man carrying a machine-gun walk past me.

"I didn't see the other two guys so I sneaked up behind him and ordered him to put his hands up," he said.

"But as I did that, the other two guys burst in and ordered me to aim my hands up. I had no choice. I had to do exactly as they said.

"They took my gun away from me and then handcuffed me behind my back—with my own handcuffs.

"Then they marched me into a cell and locked me up," he said.

The bandits then drove a block to the credit union and scooped up $6,000 from a drawer in 45 seconds.

Two of the men took a short walk to the nearby branch of the Royal Bank of Canada where they shot open two cash drawer locks and stole $5,000.

Meanwhile, a number of witnesses had run for help to the police station only to find the constable out of service.

"What's new around town, Pierre?"

Truck Owners Removing Exhaust Fume Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Some truck owners in Ontario are removing their exhaust emission-control devices to improve engine performance, George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said Thursday night.

Inspectors from the air pollution branch of his department have discovered the practice in routine emission checks, Mr. Kerr said.

Removal of such devices is an offence, punishable by a fine.

Mr. Kerr made the disclosure after announcing plans to train automobile mechanic students at Ontario colleges of applied arts and technology to service trucks and cars to ensure lowest possible emission levels.

Journeymen mechanics also are to be retrained in servicing control devices and general servicing aimed at curbing exhaust pollution, Mr. Kerr added.

Trans-Canada Ends at B.C.

The change began almost unnoticed a few weeks ago when the provincial highways department started removing the familiar « Trans-Canada signs with the maple leaf.

French Canadians Outside Quebec Are Worried

WINNIPEG (CP) — Worries about the future of French outside Quebec were in the forefront of four days of discussions involving French-Canadians from across Canada.

The 225 delegates to a conference of the Association Canadienne d'Education de Langue Francaise—Canadian Association of French-Language Education—included 125 Quebecers.

The suggestion by a CBC's French-language network official that assimilation of Manitoba's French-language minority is a possibility that cannot be eliminated;

—The suggestion by Manitoba's only French-language newspaper—a weekly—that it will go out of business next month unless it gets financial support;

—A statement circulated by the Federation Canadienne-Francaise de l'Ouest—French-Canadian Federation of the West—that the federal state secretary's department seems not to understand the real problems of western French-Canadians;

Leo Remillard, director of the CBC's French television station in Winnipeg, expressed "doubts about the viability of French in this province, which had 85,000 French-speaking Canadians in 1961.

Many younger French-Canadians were abandoning their linguistic and cultural heritage, he said, and many others were leaving the province for Quebec.

The future of French in Manitoba depended on the youth who remained in Manitoba and remained faithful to their French heritage.

But Mr. Remillard said the future of French rested at best on "hopes" and he wondered whether assimilation was not inevitable.

French-Canadian minorities in other provinces seemed in general agreement that the same problems faced their groups.

There was also general agreement that problems of the French language in Quebec and in the other provinces could not be evaluated in the same terms because of the substructure on which the language and culture rested in Quebec.

On Wednesday, about 100 copies of La Liberte et Le Patriote were placed at the door of the conference room.

The newspaper, founded in 1913 and now the only written organ of French-language minorities in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, made a front-page appeal for funds. Without help, it would go out of business Sept. 13.

The same afternoon, the Federation Canadienne-Francaise de l'Ouest circulated its statement expressing concern about "the lack of understanding that the state secretary's department in Ottawa seems to show toward the real problems of Francophone minorities in the West."

Mr. Rioux deplored what he called a sort of distrust on the part of many French-Canadians from English-speaking provinces towards Quebec's struggle to recoupuer its rights and affirm its national identity.

Mrs. Louis-Albert Vachon, reactor of Laval University in Quebec City, was re-elected president of the association.

Manitoba Probe Adjourned

WINNIPEG (CP) — A judicial inquiry into an integrated forestry project in northern Manitoba, built with $92 million in provincial loans, was unexpectedly adjourned Thursday until Oct. 12.

Retired Manitoba chief justice C. Rhodes Smith, chairman of the three-member inquiry commission, adjourned the hearings after lawyers for parties concerned said they were not prepared to proceed with cross-examination of former premier Duff Roblin.

Mr. Roblin, whose Conservative administration was responsible for initial agreements between government agencies and backers of the pulp-paper-lumbering complex, has been on the witness stand for the last three days of hearings, being cross-examined by counsel for the inquiry.

Mr. Roblin, who also made a lengthy two-day statement when the inquiry held its first set of hearings last month, was informed he would be recalled when the inquiry resumes.

The adjournment was requested by counsel for the Manitoba Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties and a lawyer representing one of the companies involved, who asked more time to study documents from government files.

The inquiry into the project at The Pas was ordered after the NDP government obtained court orders last January placing into receivership the four principal companies involved—Churchill Forest Industries (Manitoba) Ltd., MP Industrial Mills Ltd., River Sawmills Ltd. and James Bertram and Son (Canada) Ltd.

Documents produced to date are mostly from the files of the Manitoba Development Corp., the province's industrial loan agency, and its predecessor, the Manitoba Development Fund.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Civility Has Clear Rules

Americans who have visited England are usually charmed and surprised at the good manners displayed there, both privately and publicly. One of the things that pleases them most is the ease with which the ordinary person can get through to the head of a company.

For instance, it is customary for the president of the largest bank in London to pick up his own phone when it rings. He doesn't consider it a loss of status that he isn't protected by several layers of haughty functionaries, as his opposite number in the U.S. would.

But this kind of courtesy and accessibility must be a two-way street, as it is in England. The Briton knows he will not be imposed upon, and his privacy will not be violated without good reason.

Americans, on the other hand, demand that they are not willing to give. I have always answered my own phone when I am at my desk, even when my secretary is here; theoretically, it's simpler, quicker, and more human to talk to someone who wants you than to deal through an intermediary.

Practically, however, I have found that most Americans take advantage of this accessibility without the slightest thought of intrusion.

The average caller will launch into a long discussion of whatever is bothering him, without pausing to inquire if you have the time to discuss it. He will ask an involved question, or lodge a complaint or expect you to explain something you wrote a month ago and would take an hour to document or verify.

And when I say that I am in the middle of writing a column, and would appreciate it if the caller put his request into writing, so that I could answer it at my leisure, he is more likely insulted than not, at my "peremptory" attitude. Rather than being pleased that I took the trouble to answer the phone personally, he is resentful that I won't drop everything at the moment to take care of his request.

Now, civility, as it is practised in Britain, must have clearly-defined rules and limitations; otherwise, the game won't work. If a man is going to put himself at your disposal, you must respect the gesture and return the consideration. Without reciprocity there can be no genuine human communication, and we lapse into bureaucracy.

Americans are so busy asserting their "rights" that they neglect the obvious obligations which those rights entail. As long as we are infringing on others' privacy, we shall continue to be rebuffed by public barriers that dehumanize all our institutions.

Home '71 at CNE Has Many Features

TORONTO — Home '71, one of the many features of the Women's Division at this year's CNE, is a model home designed for the young homemaker. It can be an apartment, town house, condominium or a renovation project — it is designed to be flexible and workable on a low budget.

The area, approximately 1,800 square feet, incorporates three bedrooms, entrance hall, living - dining area, study, kitchen, family room, bath, room and two patios. All of these areas are open but can be closed with decorative panels.

Most of the walls are vinyl-coated and the rest are either painted, wall - papered or covered in fibre glass fabric.

Carpeting is partly shag, partly short pile according to the use of the room. All carpets are low to medium priced.

The lighting fixtures are all in keeping with design and made of either plastic or metal; and easy on the budget.

The entrance hall is very spacious, with silver - background wall-paper and Van Gogh style sunflowers. It is furnished with a mirror and a console for storage and convenience. A contemporary chandelier in plastic completes the decor.

The living - dining area and study are open but could be closed with decorative panels when privacy is necessary. The study can also be used as a fourth bedroom.

The same principal, using sliding doors, applies to the kitchen and family room area.

The young child's bedroom is close to the master bedroom and opens from the corridor. The bed - sitting room is ideal for teenagers and opens into a large, spacious bathroom.

The large patio is suitable for outdoor living with traditional symbol of the three brass balls, a sign says: "We pawn most things, including your wife."

Reading the slogan all too literally, a man brought his human pledge along to do just that.

It didn't need Mr. Scott's sharp eye, developed over 17 years of bargaining, to note that the couple had had a drink or five too many. However, without actually turning down the deal he managed to convince the would-be borrower that there would be a maintenance problem.

"I told him that he would have to keep the pledge in mint condition while she was awaiting redemption in the shop," he said, "and that this would take large quantities of beer and cheese.

"He thought for a long while and then decided that the cost of maintenance would probably be more than the loan he would get. He talked it over with his wife and they left to get another drink and consider the matter."

The same dealer was offered, and accepted, another equally bizarre item as security for a loan. The item, a chastity belt; the loan, $15.

The three pawnbrokers in business here have noticed a new trend emerging. Their clientele now includes a significant proportion of white-collar workers.

Mr. Scott believes these people, rarely seen in such shops before, are feeling the economic pinch.

However, the regular borrower is still the bread and butter of the business.

One man has been a customer of Mr. Scott's for several years, regularly raising $15 on a suit and then redeeming it at the end of 30 days.

That is the usual contract period, after which if the item has not been redeemed it can be offered for retail sale by the dealer.

Victoria's pawnbrokers usually hold the pledges for much longer periods to accommodate the customer, especially if he is a regular.

Says Mr. Scott: "We're not hard-hearted—far from it as a matter of fact. I'm not going to sell a pledge at the end of the legal time if I know that it is something prized and I have some reasonable assurance that it will be redeemed."

"A marriage goes on the rocks and the broken-hearted wife, often destitute, pawns her rings to keep her going," says Mickey Rooney, one of Mr. Scott's assistants.

"Sometimes, though, there's a silver lining and the same woman comes in glowing and happy, with the news that the romance is on again and she wants her rings back.

"Those are the times when we feel good."

Pawnbroker's Sign Taken Literally

VICTORIA (CP) — Pawnbrokers are occasionally asked to lend cash on some pretty weird objects, but it's hard to imagine any stranger than one offered to veteran pawnbroker Bill Scott.

In a way, though, he had it coming to him. For outside his Victoria shop, under the traditional symbol of the three brass balls, a sign says: "We pawn most things, including your wife."

Sweet Tooth Does It

It was a tasty, but busy afternoon for domestic science judges at the Quinte Exhibition. Engaged in judging the large quantity of candy were Mrs. Elsie Franks of Madoc and Mrs. Hazel Reynolds of Stirling, while Mrs. Nelle Henderson (right) an exhibition committee director looks on. Mrs. Ken Vivian of Shannonville (seated) recorded the decisions of the judges.

College to Run Creative Fashion Course

Come September, students in creative fashion courses at George Brown College in Toronto, will be among the first in the country to develop their skills with knits and many new stretch fabrics. With the introduction of lycra, stretch lace and trikot, students will learn design and sewing of girdles and bras, slips and panties, shorts, sleepwear, swimwear and any number of knit fashions for men and women.

The course at George Brown College has been re-structured to accommodate the increasing numbers of people who wish to enter the expanding fashion industry as a career.

A person may study fashion in one of two ways — by emphasizing say, fashion design, and upon completion of a 1, 2 or 3 year course, hope to find a job. The other way, by developing a broad fashion base first — in design, pattern drafting and grading, history, furs, alterations, accessorizing, etc. — and then selecting a specialty. And as a result, being more employable on graduation.

The two - year diploma course is taught by the immersion method, basically covering three years in two. Students learn a variety of techniques in a simulated work environment, the newest trend in adult education. Academic subjects covered are those directly related to fashion, for example, business English. Business administration as it relates to retail operations, fashion in motion pictures, etc.

In the second year he selects one of those areas to specialize in. Or may choose additional specialties, such as fashion merchandising and marketing, illustration, display, advertising and promotion or may use the business skills required to operate his own retail outlet or family business.

At the end of this time the student will have come full circle in fashion. He will have created original fashion design, draped the design in muslin, made the pattern for it, selected the fabric and sewed it — starting from an idea, ending with a wearable garment.

This course at George Brown College opens up numerous opportunities for young people, as well as mature people who have been in the work force and wish to broaden their horizons.

A graduate may be employed as designer, fashion commentator, fashion illustrator or copywriter and in department stores' marketing, merchandising, public relations and advertising departments. Other interesting and well paid jobs are alterationist, fur skin grader, pattern maker and supervisor of factory powersewers. Many graduates establish either haute couture, straightforward dressmaking or alterations businesses in their own homes and derive substantial incomes. And still others take the course in order to sew clothes for the family and save from the housekeeping budget over the year.

Part - time courses may be taken in the evenings for those unable to attend full - time day courses. In which case, credit is given toward the two - year Diploma course.

The creative fashion course starts September 7, 1971.

The Experts Say

University Students Analyze Road Hazards

That's the question six Winnipeg university students spent two months asking of Manitoba road engineers and government officials. The answer came back as driver, vehicle and roadway, but it was the last area they were primarily interested in.

As Connie Backhouse, leader of the investigating team, explained at a Canada Conference of Young Drivers meeting in Montreal, much remains unknown about the vehicle and driver.

But a great deal of research has been done on how to build safe, efficient roads. The problem is that highway designers aren't paying attention.

Armed with an Opportunities for Youth grant of $4,200, Connie and five other girls pored through studies and films on road design prepared by U.S. government departments and agencies, road specialists and insurance associations.

Their 43-page report concluded that there is "a widespread neglect of fundamental safety practices on Manitoba roads."

"Regardless of the reason why an driver runs off the road . . . roadside areas should be sufficiently clear of obstructions to give him an opportunity to regain control of his car and to save the lives of himself and his passengers."

A little digging through accident files showed that 1,176 vehicles ran off the road and hit fixed objects in Manitoba in 1970. Property damage in Metro Winnipeg for this type of accident alone totalled $321!100.

Further research indicated that it is necessary roadside such as a lamp post were 30 feet back from the roadside, there is a 50 per cent of collisions involving fixed objects would be avoided.

Those obstacles which cannot be moved should be designed to break away—to yield to the impact or at least reduce force of impact.

Discussions with highway engineers showed that "more often than not, the guardrail would lead an errant vehicle into an obstruction instead of around it."

Aluminum sign poles which break away when hit by a vehicle are only slightly more expensive than sign poles on cement bases, yet only Alberta, Ontario and Saskatchewan are using them.

In gore areas—that portion of the roadway where the main highway branches to another road or exit ramp—investigators found "excessive use of guardrail with exposed ends, huge concrete signs embedded in heavy cement or steel bases and raised curbs."

The students said municipal and provincial engineers, city planners, bridge designers and insurance company spokesmen were interested and helpful during their study.

Transport Minister Joe Borowski of Manitoba, on the other hand, said flatly that highways would be completely safe if someone could just get the idiots out from behind the wheel.

"Mr. Borowski saw no value in a program of correcting existing roadside hazards and preventing new ones from occurring. Even though we agree with his program of getting rid of the drunk behind the wheel', we feel that an innocent person should also have a chance to live should he suffer a blowout, etc."

For Manitoba, there was a special recommendation that a full-time safety engineer be appointed to act in an advisory and, if necessary, veto capacity to ensure construction of safe roads.

Finally, there should be more communication between provincial highway departments for, as the report explained:

"We were amazed to find ideas and improvements in some provinces but not in all. When we asked some of the engineers why this is the case, they stated that copying highway features from others provinces was not done very often.

Reader Requests Advice on Using Cosmetics

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have never bothered much with my kind of make-up; a bit of lipstick is all. Now, at 45, I feel I need to use make-up for special occasions anyway. I need the lift and added color it would give me.

I don't know where to begin. Can you help me? Does it pay to buy the more expensive brands? I have heard that one sometimes pays for the name only; that cheaper brands are just as good. — Palsface.

Dear Palsface: The trick is to gild the lily so artfully that only your mirror knows it for sure. There are ways of giving a youthful bloom to cheeks, a dramatic depth to eyes, and still not look artificial. Evening calls for more color and accent than daytime.

Any name brand which has the colors to suit you is a good buy. Be influenced more by becoming shades than by packaging or price.

Take pains to achieve perfection. Learn to blend in that tell-tale line of rouge or that drift of complexion cream. A good cosmetic saleslady will show you how.

And my 10 - cent leaflet "Make-Up Magic" will round out your one - easy - lesson cosmetic course.

Dear Doris: You sent me ideas for raising money before, and we did both the book drive and selling souvenir coffee spoons. Both successful.

If you have any other suggestions I would appreciate hearing from you. Our girls are between the ages of 12 and 20 and numbering about 30. — Do-Gooders.

* * *

Dear Do-Gooders: With a go - ahead group like yours, I'm glad to dream up more ideas. What would you think of a talent money raiser? Each girl undertakes to raise a set sum like $5 or $10. She raises it by doing her talents. She might baby-sit, bake and sell cookies or make doll's clothes. She might cut lawns, clip hedges or take in floors to wash. Let's hear about what you decide to do.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 16 years old and like this boy Larry much. I have a chance to go out with him, but I don't know whether to or not.

All my friends say that he is no good because of the way he used to be. You know, the kind of guy who goes out with a girl for all he can get, is hard for me to believe Larry is still like this, because he is really nice to talk to and I haven't got a dynamite body or looks. The only thing I've got of any use is my personality.

Do you think I should keep clear of him? — Dying To Know.

Dear Dying To Know: Where there's smoke, there's fire. A boy doesn't get a bad reputation without good reason. Don't risk getting burned.

Your personality may be what attracts him — to your body!

Therapist Can Help Gain Self-Confidence

By Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a terrible problem and it is ruining my life. I've been sitting here for half an hour trying to word it delicately so you can print it in the paper, but there seems to be no nice way to say it and I'll just have to be vulgar.

I am a girl, 20 years of age, who hates to be around people because I have an offensive odor. I take a shower every morning and every night. I change underwear daily. If I leave an evening date I will change again. I have tried every kind of deodorant, anti-perspirant, mouthwash, breath-sweetener, cologne, dusting powder — all the intimate feminine products advertised in the magazines — but still I have this embarrassing odor.

ANN LANDERS

No one has ever mentioned it to me but I am aware it is there. It has made me very self conscious and I try to keep my distance from people. Is there any medication that will relieve me of this condition? Do I have a chemical imbalance in my system that the doctors cannot identify? I have been to four doctors (two skin specialists and two gynecologists) and they say there is nothing wrong with me. They also say they cannot detect the odor that plagues me night and day. Please help me, Ann. — NOT NICE TO BE AROUND.

* * *

DEAR NOT NICE: I suggest a fifth doctor — a psychiatrist. Your complaint is not uncommon. I receive one like it about once a week. The problem is in your head. The only way to resolve it is to talk out your feelings of insecurity and imagined unworthiness with a therapist.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your hardboiled answer to "Unwilling Screamer" in New York, "You make me sick, kiddo" — made me sick, kiddo. She was the wife who couldn't get her husband to make minor repairs around the house.

I don't know how to tell Ann Landers, Annie Baby, and I don't care, but the last time a repairman set foot into this house it cost me $11.30 and he didn't spend more than ten minutes here. These days you don't get a man in the door unless you are rich, rich, rich.

My husband is an amiable house guest. Like "Screamer's" husband he settled down in the family room the minute supper is over and watched football on television on his head and he wouldn't move a muscle — especially if he is watching TV or reading the paper. Of course, I am able to install a light bulb, screw in a picture hook and paint the basement stairs, but a wife needs to feel that her husband has an interest in the place, too.

So please let "New York Screamer" know she is not alone, Ann, even though you gave her no comfort, no sympathy and no help. I'm — SCREAMING IN OHIO.

* * *

DEAR OHIO: I heard from thousands of other screamers who said I was wrong, but I still think I was right.

Repeated nagging can sour the best marriage in the world. It's like being nibbled to death by a duck. If a wife is going to chew at her husband it should be over something more important than a leaky faucet or an unpainted windowsill.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Caraway Seed Adds to Dark Rye Bread

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: My husband is a European and likes dark rye bread. He remembers his mother making this evidently quite effortlessly and yearns for the aroma of bread baking. Thank you for the recipes you sent me last year. Do you have a recipe for dark rye bread with caraway seeds in it that an amateur could bake? I would dearly love to surprise him. — Olga H.

ANSWER: Because dark flours do not contain the gluten that hard white flour does they require long kneading when made into bread. These test loaves that I made for you came out of the oven at 11:25 p.m. and you would have smiled to see the three adults who were still up standing around in the kitchen eating warm slices of it.

DARK CARAWAY RYE BREAD
(2 loaves)

2 (or 3) pkgs granular yeast
2½ tbsps. caraway seeds
¾ cup lukewarm water (first amount)
1 cup lukewarm water (second amount)
2 tbsps. shortening (room temperature)
½ cup light brown sugar
2 tsps. salt
3½ cups dark rye flour
2 cups (plus) unsifted all-purpose flour

In a large mixing bowl soak yeast and caraway seeds in the ¾ cup lukewarm water 10 min. Add the 1 cup lukewarm water, shortening, brown sugar and salt and stir until shortening is mixed in. Now add the rye flour and stir it in with a large wooden spoon. Add white flour and mix it in as well as you can. Turn out on well floured board and knead 200 times.

Return to greased bowl and let rise until more than doubled in warm place — under light if possible.

Turn out on to floured board again and knead 200 times. Divided the whole into halves of my 15-year-old grandson Gary for this.) Cut dough in half, roll and shape into long ovals and place in greased 8½ x 4½ x 2¾" loaf pans. Let rise in warm place until ¾" above rims of pans. Bake at 375 deg. for about 50 to 60 min. Do not hurry these loaves for they must be thoroughly baked. Cool on racks. Use very sharp knife to cut a slice or slices for sampling while loaves are still warm. That will remind your husband of his beloved homeland.

New Course on Women in Modern Society

MONTREAL (CP) — Women's Lib adherents and members of the other—second sex will both be welcome at Loyola College's new course on women in modern society, says Prof. Margaret Andersen.

Both types probably could use the information that the course this fall will provide, she explained in an interview, "but it is not a course on the Women's Liberation Movement . . .

Prof. Andersen plans to explore women's economic, political, legal and social status in 24 classes with the aid of panels, small discussion groups and special lecturers.

There will be lots of opportunity for critical analysis of women and their relationship to the church, men, children and themselves—one reason why Prof. Andersen hopes to have at least 50 per cent men students.

For research material for her lectures, Prof. Andersen had to turn to the 100-odd U.S. universities which offer similar courses.

"There aren't many Canadian publications on this subject, although there are quite a few French ones.

"Probably my course will be different because of my own background which is literary and international."

Prof. Andersen, who is German-born and has taught in Tunisia, Ethiopia and the U.S., has been in Loyola's department of French studies for six years.

She is the only woman associate professor of 44 on staff—a situation which she describes as "pretty representative of women in university life."

Students enrolled in the course on women will be expected to dig up their own research.

"I would want the student's own conclusions and comments and not a rewrite of what is available in the library."

If good material is turned in Prof. Andersen plans to try to have it published.

As she says: "It would be interesting to produce a collection of essays, an anthology of writings on this question of women."

Guest speakers will include Dr. Nathalie Shainess, a New York psychiatrist known for her writings on feminine psychology; author Suzanne Paradis who will discuss the role of women in novels; Judge Jeanne Warren of Quebec Social Welfare Court and Dr. Mary Daly, a nun, theologian and associate professor at Boston College.

Dr. Andersen says she is neither an active nor passive member of a women's lib movement, but "I'm not that a little bit of noise is being made."

"Salaries (for women) are lower, which is unjust, most of the important positions are held by men, which I don't think is right, and women don't play an important role in politics.

"Also, the world that men have created is not all that good. If women played a more important role, I wonder if the world couldn't be a bit better."

Psychiatrist Says Women's Lib Seeks Liberation of Manhood

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal psychiatrist says that the trouble with the women's liberation movement is that its proponents are more interested in liberation of their manhood instead of their womanhood.

Dr. Nathan Wisebord, a on his theory, saying:

"We've all been living with the false cultural concept . . . that man is powerful, independent, aggressive.

"The women's lib militants say: 'In order for me to be more independent, assertive, aggressive, I have to assume all those characteristics of the male.'

"You know, what they are talking about is not the liberation of their womanhood but the liberation of their manhood," he said in an interview.

Dr. Wisebord, a one-time teacher at the University of Montreal, said that in his mind the sexes were equal "equal in the sense that we need each other."

But he added: "There is this war, this competition.

"The militant not only feels she has got to be like a man, but she has to be a better man. . . . The way it's going, there may be a switch in time.

"The man will stay home and take care of the kids because the militant woman over is saying: 'I'll be the man and you'll be the woman'.

"And in 50 years from now the men will revolt."

Dr. Wisebord said the militant woman believes unconsciously that man is superior. She wants to be like a man because if she is all her "weak" problems will be solved.

"It is her way of trying to have her very strong and terrifying dependency needs," he said.

"There's a tacit agreement that the man is superior, and that's the problem because he doesn't feel that."

"They imply that is all a woman is. It is not true, that's their interpretation," he said.

"A woman is a sex object, a mother, an organizer, a provider, a nurse . . . she has a hand, to her family, to society.

"Of course, if all a woman does is lie there then I would be against it too," he said. "But she is much more than that.

"She can be sexy plus all those other things. Nobody is one thing. We are a mixture of a thousand things," he said.

Heads Consumers Association

OTTAWA (CP) — Maryon Brechin as the new head of the Consumers Association of Canada says it continues to be a grass-roots organization despite burgeoning membership.

Mrs. Brechin, elected to the demanding job as president of the more than 67,000-member national voluntary association, easily recites facts and conclusions about a wide range of consumer problems and products.

But that's natural. A home economics graduate, she joined the association shortly after it was formed in 1947.

She has worked actively in it for the last 15 years, including four years as chairman of its consumer research committee which deals with everything from postal services to charter flights.

One committee study she found most interesting was on hearing problems. "Shocking" inadequacies were found in personnel and facilities to help the hard-of-hearing.

"I think it really came to grips with the effects of hearing loss on the adult population and the tremendous amount of money, pain and suffering involved because we don't have the personnel to test and evaluate hearing loss and prescribe proper hearing aids," she says.

"We brought the problems we uncovered to the consumer affairs department. It started an interdepartmental committee on the subject."

The association's work did not stop there, however. Its provincial groups are pressing for action by provincial governments to clear up some of these problem areas falling under their jurisdiction.

"But it's the federal government that can act to get standards for hearing aids."

Mrs. Brechin, born in Nelson, Que., was raised on a dairy farm and studied home economics in Guelph, Ont., majoring in bakery technology.

For about 10 years, she worked for the home economics branch of the Ontario agriculture department. Canada Packers Ltd. and the T. Eaton Co.

She now lives in Etobicoke, Ont., as Mrs. W. A. Brechin visiting the association's busy Ottawa offices when necessary.

She says the association is planning more membership drives to give it the extra financing needed to increase product testing and information.

It hopes to report on at least two Canadian product tests this year in each issue of its magazine, the Canadian Consumer. It is published every two months.

Club Enjoys Bus Tour

Members of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club and friends enjoyed a bus tour in the Peterborough area last week. Leaving the Recreation Centre at nine o'clock in the morning they travelled via Bridgenorth, Buckhorn, Burleigh Falls and Apsley and enjoyed the scenic route along the Trent Canal System and back to Picton for supper.

Highlight of the day's activities was a visit to a buffalo farm where 27 large buffalo were grazing peacefully in the large pasture field. The animals were brought from Western Alberta as calves three years ago.

During the day dinner was enjoyed at Rock Haven Motel and the evening meal at Diana Restaurant at Peterborough.

BEST CURE

LONDON (AP) — Some British specialists said the best thing for hangup may be the old-fashioned cummerbund, because the broad cloth belt keeps the middle warm. They said a physician got the idea when he saw Spanish vineyard workers wearing cummerbunds in the chill morning air.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: It is my sister I am concerned about. Her son would give her an ulcer if her stomach had room for it. (She has just had most of her stomach removed for an earlier ulcer.)

Her husband is an alcoholic and not much help in controlling the boy, now 20, who gets violently angry once or twice a week. Her son will shout at the family, calling them vile names, break things, slash the furniture with a knife, and do other outrageous things. The rest of the time he seems to act normal. In fact, he is fairly cooperative and affectionate when he is not having an anger spell.

He first got into trouble at 14 when he stole a car. He used to lose his temper as a child, too. He enlisted in the Army and spent two years in Vietnam. We all hoped the Army would change him, but it did not.

Now that he is back home, the members of the family are afraid of him and do not know where to turn. The family doctor prescribed some pills and said he is a mental case. Says nothing can be done.

The boy refuses to take the pills. What can be done? Slowly but surely it is killing my sister. Can you suggest anything? — Mrs. S.

* * *

CMMENT: I am assuming that only the family doctor has examined the boy. My bunch is that he should see a psychiatrist and a neurologist in consultation. I always think of the possibility of brain damage when sudden, violent attacks of anger are interspersed with quiet, normal actions.

In quite a few cases, examination with the electroencephalogram (brain wave tracing) has revealed some trouble amenable to specific medications or other treatment. For your sister's sake — and, of course, for her son's — I think the family doctor should be asked about consultation. Chances are he will agree.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: All my life I have been self conscious about my nose. Years ago I was especially unhappy about it. But lately I have resigned myself to it. I will be quite satisfied as long as it is a healthy nose.

I believe that if a person with an ugly nose remembers to be an darmingly that nobody will notice his nose; he can be happy in spite of it. I have nothing against plastic surgeons — but I would rather take the easy way out and be charming. (Signed — the Ugly One.)

COMMENT: Charmed to meet you! But seriously — I think your philosophy makes good sense. Fortunately, though, we have competent plastic surgeons who can help those who cannot learn to live with themselves.

* * *

For Mrs. M.: Since you have been suffering with trigeminal neuralgia so long, I think it advisable that you consult a neurosurgeon. Aspirin is rarely sufficient to control the extreme pains. Operation is not invariably the answer to the problem.

Sometimes alcohol injections are advised, sometimes special new medications. Whatever the course of action, I believe your family doctor will welcome the opinion of a neurologist or a neurosurgeon.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Has the need for vitamin B12 been established in the treatment of sciatica? — Mrs. H.

COMMENT: More important than vitamin B 12 is a study of the spine to make certain that direct trouble is not causing pressure on the nerve. If this is the case, all the vitamin B 12 in Canada will fail to give relief. Haphazardly taking this vitamin is an ineffectual way of handling the problem.

Quinte Police Advisory To Involve All Citizens

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Sportswriter

In downtown Hamilton, a car pulls over to the curb and four youths get out and take off down the road. This unusual situation, and numerous ones like it that have been reported, were prompted by a commercial radio broadcast from the Hamilton Police Department, giving a description of the car, that had been stolen earlier that day.

Commencing Sept. 7, such broadcasts will be heard in the Belleville area when the Quinte Police Advisory comes into being.

Initiated by CJBQ News Director David Sovereign, the QPA will be the first such public service board to combine communications from police forces in more than one area. With Belleville police co-ordinating the announcements, forces in Campbellford, Deseronto, Napanee, Picton, Trenton, Tweed and all Ontario Provincial Police within these boundaries, will contribute reports.

Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, when contacted by Mr. Sovereign, wrote to Hamilton for further information. According to both Chief Crosbie and the CJBQ news director, Hamilton has been the only Canadian city to date to have produced such broadcast information, acting on a format originally established by John Jay, a radio station manager in Cleveland, Ohio.

Ontario Provincial Police District Nine Superintendent David Wellesley commented favorably on the new program: "this has proven very successful in Hamilton. There has been a noticeable decrease in the number of stolen vehicles."

The forces are not looking for immediate control of crime, however. "If it's even 50 per cent successful, police will be pleased," noted Chief Crosbie.

Mr. Sovereign, who explained the forces have been organizing the project since April of this year, explained such broadcasts will "get police on the air," and is also intended to improve their public image.

On a "trial and error" basis, reports from the various departments will be sent to Belleville, with duty officers broadcasting information over a special hot line. Reports will be recorded at the radio station for air-time, Monday to Saturday at 8.35 a.m., 12.25 p.m., 4.35 p.m. and 7.05 p.m. Sunday reports are to be aired at 10.10 a.m., 1 p.m., and 4.58 p.m.

Following Hamilton's "Calling All Citizens" format closely, the Quinte broadcasts will urge listeners to be on the lookout for missing persons, stolen vehicles, unusual traffic problems, counterfeit money, fraudulent bank inspectors, prison escapees and general alarms.

While both CJBQ and The Intelligencer have relesed such information in the past, the efforts of the Quinte Police Advisory will be intensified.

— In November of 1970, car thefts had been up 63 per cent over 1969.

— By December, after broadcasts began, car thefts were down 23 per cent over 1969.

— In January, 1971, car thefts were down 46 per cent over January, 1970 and in February, they were down 31 per cent over the previous February.

In Cleveland, 22,000 cars had been stolen in 1969, one of the worst records in the world. By the end of 1970, the figure had been cut by 12 per cent.

"It's the old cops and robbers game," Mr. Sovereign explained.

"Everyone likes to play policeman."

It was this theory that gave birth to the original concept of public - police co-operation. Hamilton's Assistant Police Chief Howard Moreau heard the Cleveland broadcasts and set the wheels in motion for Canadian participation.

Mr. Jay, of station WABQ, was invited to Hamilton and that city became the first Canadian satellite for the project.

The reports do not ask the public to go racing off after a stolen vehicle. They simply request information which could lead to apprehension.

Chief Crosbie recalled such an incident concerning three missing juveniles. A broadcast report on their disappearance brought response from a resident near Point Anne who had sighted the youths.

"It does pay off," he said.

On Sept. 7, Chief Crosbie will join CJBQ's What Do You Think open line show moderator Milt Johnston on the air, to explain the functions of the Quinte Police Advisory.

'Be on the Lookout'

City Police Sergeant Ralph Petrie will be one of the broadcasters delivering public service announcements over CJBQ radio for the Quinte Police Advisory. Belleville is the second Canadian city to initiate such broadcasts. The QPA is a pilot for inter-force co-operation, co-ordinating reports for eight police departments in the area.

Council Feels Pressure

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

Town council has voted unanimously to obtain renovation plans for Mary Street School as lockup and town office facilities for comparison with new construction plans.

The decision reached during a special two-hour council session yesterday afternoon, followed a submission by L. Thomas Forbes, solicitor for a group of Picton ratepayers.

Colin Carter, chairman of the citizens' committee, this morning said he commends council for its decision to call for renovation plans for Mary St. school.

He added "our committee hopes, should council decide on renovation of the school, that the cost might by kept within the $50,000 range".

The latest plans received by council for construction of a new municipal building carried a first cost estimate of $68,450. The addition of a police lunch room and locker storage facilities is expected to boost this cost.

Mr. Carter said there will be a substantial contribution from the citizens' committee toward a new front on Mary St. School if it is renovated for lockup and town office facilities.

Earlier this week demolition of the school was halted when the ratepayers, acting through Mr. Forbes, threatened to seek an Ontario Supreme Court injunction unless a referendum was held before the building's destruction.

"I feel quite confident we have made the right decision. Perhaps, however, to regain the confidence of the people, I will move plans be obtained for the renovation of Mary Street School," Mayor Ackerman declared yesterday.

Her motion eliminated Mr. Forbes's submission stressing that the school issue eventually must come before the electorate.

He informed council members of the citizens' committee chaired by Colin Carter were willing to contribute $1,500 toward a referendum on the renovation of the former school.

The lawyer noted the question would be presented to the public "sooner or later" through a public Ontario Municipal Board meeting or through "a money bylaw situation."

Mr. Forbes also remarked council would be doing "indirectly what cannot be done directly if the whole thing is dealt with at this time" by demolishing the school without stating a new structure would be built on the site.

Mayor Ackerman inquired if the plebescite demanded by the ratepayers would be a "yes" or "no" for demolition of the school or for its renovation. She suggested an affirmative vote for the latter would leave council no choice in the matter.

Mr. Forbes explained the plebescite would likely show whether new town offices should be provided through renovation of the school or through demolition and construction.

He emphasized the plebescite would represent "an element of persuasion from a political point of view" but would not be legally binding on council.

Mayor Ackerman asked if the ratepayers, willing to contribute $1,500 toward a plebescite, would donate this money toward the cost of obtaining renovation plans for the school.

Mr. Forbes indicated his clients would be receptive to this plan.

She said by obtaining renovation plans for the school, council could "prove its right" or establish the town's confidence in its efforts.

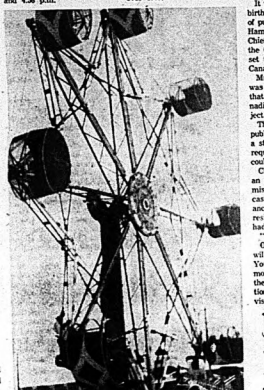
The mayor recalled council's original decision to construct a new building was based on reports, committee meetings and advice from "competent people." She added an earlier meeting this month to consider the use of lockup facilities at Loch Sloy Holdings had been one of several "red herrings" tossed to council.

Deputy - reeve James Bird agreed, "It looks as if many people have no confidence in the present council. Anything we try to do other than general housekeeping chores just doesn't get done."

Ross Cronkwright, absent from council's last special session commented, "If I'd been at the last meeting we wouldn't have had this one."

Mr. Cronkwright, who favored obtaining renovation cost figures, would have been able to cast the deciding vote on a motion to do so which failed in a four-four tie.

He said he still felt council should seek the costing and remarked he was not attempting "to undermine" fellow councillors with his opinion.



Town solicitor Jack Ward reviewed council cost figures received on Mary Street School renovations from the firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicki might be unacceptable to the protesting ratepayers. He recalled the firm of engineering consultants already has made comments concerning the comparative merits of renovation opposed to new construction.

Mr. Forbes was asked to make a telephone call to his retainers to clarify this point and later informed council none of his clients objected to the firm named.

Council also carried a motion to contact the Ontario department of public works to establish the date when it will be compulsory to vacate the provincial court house lockup.

A final motion was passed informing Howe Wrecking demolition of the school has been diferred "for a period of time" while renovation plans are examined.

Absent from yesterday's meeting were councillors William Lane and Harry Abram.

$12,200 Raised For Pakistanis

Roman Catholics in the Archdiocese of Kingston have sent a cheque for $12,200 to Montreal for Pakistani refugee relief.

The office of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace (CCODP) in Montreal is handling the contributions of Canadian Catholics to the Pakistani relief efforts. At the end of May it set up necessary arrangement to channel assistance from Canada directly to the refugees.

Archbishop J. Wilhelm brought the matter to the attention of the priets of the Archdiocese at the close of their annual retreat in June. Special collections were taken up in nearly all the parishes during July and a total of $10,200 was raised. The Archdiocese contributed $2,000.

The people of the Archdiocese have contributed more than $36,000 to foreign relief this year. Through the Share Lent '71 effort more than $24,000 was raised for CCODP, to finance relief projects in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Ready for Playback

CJBQ News Director David Sovereign broadcasts regular news while open-line host Milt Johnston operates tape recorders which will be used to record Quinte Police Advisory announcements. Mr. Sovereign instigated intensified police reports, to be received from eight area departments. First reports are scheduled for broadcast Sept. 7. On that day, Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie will join Mr. Johnston on his What Do You Think, open-line program, to explain the project.

Family Planner Says Belleville Needs Clinic

The Family Planning Federation of Canada has evidence of a need for clinic facilities in the Belleville area and is holding a meeting there next month to discuss the issue.

Peggy Barringer, administrative assistant of the Federation will be in the city Sept. 14 to discuss family planning and the possibility of setting up a clinic in Belleville.

"Due to a large number of requests for birth control advice from Belleville residents which have been handled by our Kingston Association, the need for clinic facilities in your area is very obvious," she said in a letter to Isidore Cooperman of United Community Services.

Our Federation has trained staff and funds available to assist organizations such as yours in setting up family planning clinics and in motivating the public to use them," she added.

Mrs. Barringer's interest in the Belleville area was originated in part by health minister John Munro's verbal support in the House of Commons for increased dissemination of birth control information. In addition, the federal department of health and welfare has made a grant of $100,000 to the Family Planning Federation, to be used in part for initiating family planning programs.

Belleville city council went on record Jan. 18, 1971, as favoring a family planning clinic after a brief was presented to city fathers by Zero Population Growth.

Council recommended that a clinic be formed by the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit. No further action has been taken.

In the meantime, Mrs. Barringer says that anyone in this area needing family planning clinic advice and assistance should get in touch with her by telephone or letter at 96 Eglinton Ave. East, Room 205, Toronto, (416) 487-8286 or (416) 487-3159. The Family Planning Federation of Canada can put people making such requests in touch with facilities in their district equipped to serve their needs.

Music Lover to Jail

A Belleville resident who pleaded guilty Aug. 9 to theft and possession of a tape player and tapes valued at $171, July 19, was sentenced to serve one month in the common jail in provincial court Thursday.

Kurt Schneider, 22, of 60 St. Charles Street, pleaded guilty to the charge of theft at the same time pleading not guilty to a charge of attempted break and enter July 24. The latter charge was dismissed.

Thomas Arthur McIvor, 23, of 413 Bridge Street East, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving July 15 and was fined $150 and $5 court costs. Police arrested him after they observed his car swerve over the white line at MacDonald and Bridge and then strike a road shoulder.

• • •

Two Belleville residents involved in separate incidents Aug. 13, pleaded guilty to charges of causing a public disturbance.

Patrick A. Gunsolus, 20, of 66 Great St. James Street, was fined $15 and $3 court costs concerning an incident at the Canadian Hotel when he was arrested following a bout of insulting and obscene language.

Mary Haggerty, 27, of 170 North Park Gardens, was fined $10 and $3 for causing a disturbance at the corner of Front and Victoria Streets.

Swing Low, Sweet Chariot

Doing a re-enactment of a scene from Ben Hur, this unfortunate driver in first heat of chariot races staged last night in front of grandstand at Quinte Exhibition was dragged more than 50 feet before the horse jumped a side fence and crashed to a stop. The race was declared a non-heat and driver was given a fresh horse and chariot.

Attendance Falls Off

Compared to the figures for the same day last year the attendance at Quinte Exhibition for Thursday, August 19 was 11,167 down 2,252 according to a report released from Fair manager E. C. Gowsell's office today.

The performance in front of the grandstand this evening includes a repeat of adult square dancing and Variety Show featured in the evening program yesterday.

Argo Big Guns Credit Cahill's Sales' Pitch for Move North

TORONTO (CP) — What do three young United States football players, with potentially great futures in the National Football League feel is attractive about the Canadian game, particularly Toronto Argonauts?

It wasn't coincidence that quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton and defensive tackle Jim Stillwagon found themselves together on what Argo fans hope will be the team that brings the city its first national title in 19 years.

The three players credited the selling job of coach Leo Cahill and his staff.

"He's an influential man," says Barton the former Detroit Lion who almost sparked an inter-league war before signing with the Eastern Football Conference club. "Got a great selling pitch."

Stillwagon, fifth - round draft choice of the NFL Green Bay Packers after an outstanding career at Ohio State, said it was the interest shown by the Argo club that decided his immediate future.

Cahill called him after last New Year's Rose Bowl game of Jan. 1. He visited Toronto before the NFL draft, liked what he saw and signed.

Theismann, former Notre Dame ace who was No. 2 in the Heisman Trophy race to Stanford's Jim Plunkett for the outstanding U.S. college player award last year, was more direct.

"I got more money to come here," he admits of his contract negotiations between Argos and Miami Dolphins. "If it wasn't, I wouldn't be here."

Barton, Lions' ninth-round draft choice in 1968, saw little action the last three years.

After the 1970 season, Detroit traded his rights to Philadelphia Eagles, who let it be known at the time they would give the former Tulsa University star a crack at the No. 1 quarterback spot.

But Barton, who had two or three talks with the Eagles — "They're good people," he says — decided on the Argos, which prompted Eagles coach Jerry Williams to shout that Toronto had been tampering.

Barton, however, says he didn't sign anything until after he became a free agent May 1.

"I just think the Canadian Football League is a great league. It's growing and I believe has the possibility of being like the old American Football League."

The AFL, he noted, went through growing pains until it reached NFL status when the two leagues merged and "I think the CFL can do the same."

"The whole place impressed me," he said of his first visit to Toronto. "The coaching staff is as good as any I've seen, and I'm really impressed in the way the front office allows the right people to handle the players; there's no interference."

The Argos didn't offer any more to gain his services, says Barton, but the city had much more to offer than did any of the U.S. cities he would consider playing in.

Theismann almost signed with the Dolphins "but ran into difficulty with the bonus clause in the NFL."

"I was told it was the standard players' clause, but I couldn't see how anyone would sign it," said Miami's fourth-round pick.

In the Dolphins' favor, he added, they finally agreed to his wording of the bonus clause but by this time Theismann had started negotiating with Toronto.

"There are no hard feelings. I don't want to say anything derogatory," he concluded of his talks. There's always the chance he'll return to the NFL after his two-year contract with Argos runs out.

Stillwagon, already a crowd favorite in his rookie season where he has developed into one of the keys to the Argo defence, hopes to make his off-season home here.

"I want to stay up here. I really like it. Besides, there's nothing back home for me," says the graduate in industrial recreation.

"I was really pleased with the people. The club showed a lot of interest. I've got the feeling that Green Bay just took me for granted."

Would he like a shot at the NFL in the future?

Hebner Finds Ammo

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner, who couldn't fight off a slump last week after a stint with the marines, finally found he still has some ammunition left—the home-run ball.

The Pirates third baseman went 0-16 in one stretch last week and struck out eight consecutive times in the span. But Thursday night he rifled a three-run homer in the ninth inning to help Pittsburgh bombard Cincinnati Reds 8-1.

"I hadn't been hitting at all since I got out of the service a week ago Sunday," Hebner said in an understatement, "I got absolutely no practice in while I was at Camp Pendleton (Calif.), but now I feel like I'm getting my stroke back. I just didn't seem to be able to make any connection at all."

Hebner's eight straight strike-outs tied a major league record and he jokingly said Thursday night that "I might as well have struck out the ninth time so I could have broken the record."

The homer, his fifth, came off Cincinnati reliever Wayne Granger, who hadn't yielded a run in his previous 14 1-3 innings, and the round tripper helped snap the Reds' winning streak at four games.

The homer was only the fifth hit of the contest for the Pirates, who had been shackled on two hits through eight innings by starter Jim McGlothlin who was lifted for a pinchhitter. McGlothlin, who was charged with the loss, had given up only one run—a homer by Al Oliver in the seventh inning.

Meanwhile, Bob Johnson was sweating along and until the eighth inning the Reds were able to put only one man beyond first base. Johnson, 9-8, is hurling his seventh complete game of the season, scattered nine hits and allowed only a ninth-inning home run by Oliver.

It was the only contest played in the major leagues Thursday night.

CORK Floating Better Than Ever

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Bigger and better.

That is the forecast as CORK, regarded by many as North America's premier sailing regatta, blows clever.

CORK (Canadian Olympic-training Regatta, Kingston) has been steadily climbing in popularity since its inaugural year in 1959.

CORK will again be held in the waters off the Kingston shoreline, starting Aug. 23 with races daily through Sept. 3. Sailors will be competing in 11 Olympic classes of boats.

Statistics released Wednesday by the CORK head office at KYC listed 396 registered with additional entries coming in increasing numbers as the deadline approaches.

Homenuik Liked Lumpy Greens

SASKATOON (CP) — Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg said the greens were "well tracked" but shot a five-under-par 65.

Vaughan Trapp said he has played in only three major tournaments this year because he helps his father at the Victoria Golf Club. He also shot a 65.

Both entered today's second round of the 72-hole Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament with a two-stroke lead over four other players, including Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont.

Norman, leading money winner on the Canadian tour this year with $8,178 and winner of the CPGA tournament in 1956, shares third place with Bob Cox of Richmond, B.C., the 1969 CPGA champion, Adrien Bizros of Rosemere, Que., and Gery Pitchford of Toronto, who plays out of Lucayan, The Bahamas.

Homenuik, 33, with $19,00 in prize money from the U.S. tour this year, had seven birdies over the par-70, 6,311 yard Saskatoon Golf and Country Club course.

"The greens were a little dumpy—they had a lot of traffic on them—but they're the best I've played on this year," he said.

Sports on All Fronts

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian welterweight boxing champion Clyde Gray of Toronto defended his title with a second round technical knockout over Vic Doucette of Wartmouth, N.S. at the Canadian National Exhibition Thursday night. Gray, who weighed 147 pounds, knocked his Hagsond opponent down once in the first round and twice in the second before referee Sammy Luttspring stepped in to stop it at one minute 47 seconds. The match was scheduled for 12 rounds.

MONTREAL (CP) — Brockville, advanced to the Canadian Little League baseball championship by defeating Lethbridge, Alta., 8-3 Thursday night. Brockville will meet Forest Hill of North Vancouver, B.C., today. If Forest Hill wins tonight they will advance to the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., later this month. If they lose, they will have to meet Brockville again on Saturday.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toronto's Garth Naumoff, 13, scored the big upset of the day Thursday in the Canadian junior closed tennis championship, defeating top seeded Garth Latham of Montreal 6-4, 6-4 in the boys' 16 and under singles. Naumoff, who stands 5 feet 1 and weighs only 109 pounds, said he didn't think he had "a dog's chance" against the older boy. "But I just kept on trying to get the ball back and back again and he fell into errors." He lost his second match 6-2, 6-7, 7-5 to Paul Murphy of Ottawa. "I guess I may have been a bit tired," Naumoff said after more than four hours on the courts. Naumoff won his 14 and under match against William Gedeke of Vancouver 6-1, 7-5, and will be one of the 32 Canadians competing in the national junior open tennis championship which begins here Monday.

Cut Kicker Beats Riders

Ottawa Shoe on Other Foot

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts seem to come up with something new for each of their Canadian Football League outings.

First it was speedy rookie Leon McQuay, who leads the Eastern Conference scoring with six touchdowns. Then it was the quarterback tandem of Joe Theismann and Greg Barton who have kept the Argos undefeated this season.

Thursday night, as Toronto edged Ottawa Rough Riders 30-28, it was the Ivan MacMillan one-man kicking machine.

MacMillan, who Toronto picked up from Ottawa two weeks ago, turned on his former team-mates and kicked three field goals and three converts. He provided the Argos with a large enough cushion to prevent a Rough Rider comeback.

Bill Symons, Dave Cranmer and McQuay, each with a touchdown, provided the other Argo points as Toronto held quarter leads of 19-9, 13-7 and 23-7.

Hugh Oldham notched two touchdowns for Ottawa. Billy Cooper and Dave Cline scored one each. Gerry Organ converted all four.

Oldham's first touchdown was on a 101-yard pass play with quarterback Rick Cassata, who took over early in the second quarter after starter Gary Wood was unable to muster a sustained offence.

Wood returned to lead the Rough Riders to a 21-point fourth quarter.

Toronto's win was its fourth in regular season play, lifted them atop the EFC with eight points. Ottawa's loss was its third in five starts, leaving them in second place with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, each with four points.

"I was damn nervous," said the 19-year-old MacMillan. "It felt like a cold wind going right through me."

MacMillan, a native of Alexandria, Ont., said his former team-mates ribbed him throughout the game, adding to his nervousness.

"They all gave it to me but Barry Arden really gave it to me," he said. "He kept telling me I was going to choke up."

MacMillan said he owed much of his success as a kicker to the coaching of Dave Mann, Argo's former punter and place kicker.

"The main thing he taught me is to keep my head up. That was one of my big faults."

Toronto hit paydirt in the first 3½ minutes of play when Theismann nailed Cranmer for a 45-yard touchdown pass, MacMillan's first field goal followed about 10 minutes later.

MacMillan booted another field goal early in the second quarter about two minutes old before Oldham's 101-yard score. MacMillan's 28-yard field goal and Symons' four-yard jaunt across Ottawa's goal line accounted for all the scoring in the third quarter.

He hit Cooper with a 17-yard scoring pass at 4:43. Then McQuay galloped 32 yards to end Toronto's scoring.

In the last eight minutes of play, Wood completed scoring passes to Oldham for 40 yards and to Pivec for five yards before Toronto's defence tightened up.

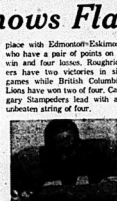
Saskatchewan Shades Bombers

Reed Shows Flashbacks



WINNIPEG (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders, showing flashes of their old fine form, defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 31-25 Thursday night to move into a tie for second place in the Western Football Conference.

"It looked like some of the old magic," said enthusiastic coach Dave Skrien after fullback George Reed had rambled for 95 yards and two touchdowns and Ron Lancaster connected on 15 of 27 pass attempts.

Skrien's charges finished the game in a masterful manner, travelling 85 yards in 11 plays that ended with Reed's second touchdown, a plunge from the three with only 1:45 left to remaining.

Bombers, with Don Jonas rolling most of the shots, held the lead at the end of the first and third quarters, but couldn't stand up to the Saskatchewan drive late in the fourth that turned the tide for good.

The game left Bombers with a 1-5 record and tied for last place with Edmonton Eskimos, who have a pair of points on a win and four losses. Roughriders have two victories in six games while British Columbia Lions have won two of four. Calgary Stampeders lead with an unbeaten string of four.

GEORGE REED

Bombers had two touchdowns on Jonas passes in the last three minutes of the first quarter, on a 14-yard throw that Bob Kraemer caught in the end zone and a two from the Winnipeg 16 that Jim Thorpe caught at mid-field, a spectacular sideline dash as the quarterback fell.

But Roughriders came back with two second-quarter touchdowns, a pass-and-run score from Lancaster to end Nolan Bailey that covered 50 yards and Reed's first touchdown, a short run ending a march from the Saskatchewan 23 that mixed carries by Ue hard-charging fullback and short throws to Silas McKinnie.

Bombers, playing before a crowd of 20,990, rolled back with 10 unanswered points in the third quarter, on a 32-yard Mack Herron trap play that went for a touchdown and a Jonas field goal from the 34.

But Jonas, who kicked four converts and a first-quarter single that Bob Kosid conceded, couldn't get his team on the scoreboard in the fourth quarter while Saskatchewan registered Al Ford's 30-yard touchdown catch and Reed's second major.

Jack Abendschan contributed a 21-yard field goal in the first quarter and converted all four Saskatchewan touchdowns.

Best Stake In Town

It may never challenge some of Belleville's finer restaurants but for one Saturday night each year the Quinte Exhibition has the best "stake" in town.

Included on the regular Fairground's harness racing card will be the annual Greenleaf Memorial Stake Race with approximately $900 awaiting for the winner.

Preparation for the Stakes has been going on since early March when all interested entries were called upon to pay their nomination fee of $10 with subsequent sustaining fees of the same amount coming in each of May, June and July.

The only stipulation for entry in the race is that the horse's lifetime earnings as of January 1 did not exceed $200.

This year's race has 14 entries in the field, forcing two eliminations to be run in the second and third races on Saturday's card with the finals being run in the sixth. The local horses comprise most of the field which should run before the Belleville meet's biggest crowd since the race falls on the final night of the Quinte Exhibition grandstand show.

One horse that has been a regular fixture on the Belleville track is Flying John, owned and driven, by George Thomas of Carrying. The five year - old gelding pacer hasn't seen much action until this year on the Belleville meet's but a time of 2:09.4 has made it the fastest horse of the year on the local circuit.

"He started off pretty good this year but he's sort of trailed off," said Thomas. "I guess he's won about $500 since the season started and he's won nine starts."

Flying John's best time this year wouldn't topple Early Lakes John's stake record of 2:05 but an equally good time should place him near the top. "It'll probably go in 2:10," predicts Thomas. "Nothing this year will break the record and I don't care where the other horses come from or their records on other tracks. You have to have a really good horse to run the Belleville track in ten."

Three-legged Race?

Flying John will be needing more than just three legs in fact an extra set of four would be more helpful when he enters Saturday night's Greenleaf Memorial Stakes at the Belleville Fairgrounds. George Thomas' Carnifton lead Memorial Stakes at the Belleville Fairgrounds. George Thomas' Carnifton gelding has set the track record for this year at 2:09.4 but will have to come up with two equally good performances if he is to win the Stakes, as he has to qualify in a heat and then the finals.

Kinsmen Keep Wins in Family

The Kinsmen Club wanted to keep it all in the family so both of their tyke sponsored teams in the Belleville Minor Softball League came up with series ending wins Thursday night.

The Bobcats bombed Gib Waite Trailers 26-5 to capture the West Hill title while the Hawks whipped the A and W Drive-in 25-13 to win the East Hill. The two Kinsmen teams will not meet for the city championship.

Steve McQuaid's homer and Peter Bishee's triple, double and single led the Bobcats to victory.

Homers were in commodity for the Hawks as Steve Paquet had a grand slammer Steve Lowry three homers, Ed Quinn two homers and Rick Doornbos a solo shot.

Bill Hull, Todd Hogan and John Ford had homers for the A and W.

The bantams opened the city championships Thursday with Foley Supply and Machine nipping the Kinsmen Phillies 9-8.

Bill Forbes had two homers, Fargey a homer and three singles and Jiannpolous a homer, double and single for the winners.

Foster's Finish Fast

Foster's Thurlow peewees wrapped up their Belleville Minor Baseball play - off series Thursday night but the Golden Mile and Legion 99 settled nothing in their first meeting.

Foster's swept aside Fitzgibbon Construction 12-6 to take their best - of - three series in two straight games. Randy Adams and Brian Masterson fired the win allowing two hits while fanning 12. Masterson added a triple and single to his pitching cause.

Golden Mile and Canadian Legion 99 battled to a 3-3 stalemate in the first game of their best - of - three playoffs.

Brian Loveless and Paul Weeks hurled for Golden Mile, allowing four hits and fanning 13.Paul Propokczuk had a triple for the Milers' big hit.

Point Anne Winning Three Ways

The Commercial Softball League's Point Anne Cementmen are a long way from winning the war, but have already won two battles and have an overwhelming lead in the third.

Thursday night the Cementmen dumped Richard Ellis Juniors 10-3 to take a commanding 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven league semi - final.

It was also announced that league batting champion Larry Mavety, who caught for Point Anne during the regular schedule but is about to leave for Buffalo Sabres' National - Hockey League training camp, was the recipient of the league's Cy Barriage Most Valuable Player award.

Point Anne centrefielder Jim Horwood was named winner of the Gerald "Bucky" Ethier most gentlemanly player award in the ballotting conducted by the five league coaches, league statistician Al Howarth, and league president George Rutledge.

In the other half of the Alemite doubleheader, MVP runner - up Bob Ethier handcuffed Rollins Construction 7-3 as Howard and Robert Printing took a 2-1 game lead over the league pennant-winners.

A five - run outburst by the Cementmen in their half of the inning, with key singles from Doug Olnie, Rick Rosebush, Tommy MacDonald and Hunter put the Pointers ahead for keeps.

Hunter only gave the Juniors two hits after they touched him three times in the first two innings. He struck out seven and walked a pair.

Ellis starter Ted Waite moved to the outfield in favor of Ron Hill after the Cementmen's five - run, second - inning explosion. But Waite returned to the slab after Point Anne got to the reliever for four more runs in the third and fourth innings.

Waite recorded seven strikeouts, and issued one walk. Hill fanned only one while walking three.

Outfielder John Campbell's double and single made him the only Junior to collect two safeties.

In the nightcap, the league's new leading batsman set entry, third - place finishers in the regular schedule, pulled their second surprise in three playoff games on Rollins' runaway pennant-winners.

The Printers jumped on Wayne McConnell for two first - inning runs and led all the way to a 7-3 verdict while Bob Ethier was rifling third strikes past 11 Builders, without issuing a walk.

Battery mate Larry Potter, Rod Ridley and Gary Gow each contributed a pair of hits to the 11 - hit barrage the Printers levelled at McConnell, who struck out eight while walking two.

Wayne McTaggart clouted a two - run, fourth - inning home run over the 370 - foot fence, by far the most impressive of the five Rollins' hits.

Game Not Rained Out by Storms

Mead Johnson and the CN Yardmen, gave every indication Thursday night that their best of five Industrial Softball semi - final series will be one to watch as they battled into extra innings before Mead's prevailed 1-0 in the opening game.

Sonny Holoway for Mead's and Greg Bellis for CN fought tooth to tooth on opposing mounds each allowing four hits. Holoway came out on top of the strikeout parade picking up nine to Bellis' five.

Wayne Storms scored the winning run for Mead's, leading off the bottom of the eighth with a walk and racing home on consecutive singles by Ray Finkle and Ken Leslie.

Blaine Young had a double for the winners only extra base hit. Bell had a double for the Yardmen with singles going to Thomas, Plumbe and Bellis.

Second game of the series comes tonight at the Alemite at 8:15 p.m.

Bayview Won't Weaken

Pennant - winning Bayview Orchards have given on indication of letting up in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League play - offs coming back from an early 2-1 deficit to double the score on Hillier 6-3.

In the second half of the play-offsMountain View whipped Foleys 10-5 to jump off to a one game lead.

Don Baxter allowed only four hits for Bayview fanning two and walking two. Paul Kurelek's three for three performance at the bat paced the winners.

Gary Eardley and Earl Colonsaw action on the Mountain View mound totalling two hits and two walks. They allowed five hits. Montgomery, Wyatt, O'Brien, Moran and Callow each had two hits for the winners.

Dextator started for Foley's lasting eight runs and two innings. Ray Allan finished the game for the losers. They had five strikeouts and four walks. Dan Nash had two hits in a losing effort.

Peewee Lacrosse Scorers Were Triple Threat

There weren't many scorers in Thursday night Belleville Minor Lacrosse peewee action but the ones who did didn't stop at one or two.

The Dairy Queen picked up three goals from Jeff Francis' hat trick for the Richard Birds and Ross Hand one in their 4-3 win over the Police Association. Wally Inwood fired all three goals for the losers. The series is now tied at one game apiece.

Another 4-3 game resulted in midget action with Marv's Esso coming out on top of the Belleville Auto Dealers. Rod Mallory with two, Jim Scott and Audie Brant with one each were Marv's scorers while John Loder, Andy Forgie and David Drake answered for the dealers. Marv's win evens the series at one game apiece.

In the only high scoring game of the night the Golden Mile tied up their novice series with Bobs Sport by virtue of a 7-2 win. Steve Vincent with three and Joe Guthrie and Garth Scully with two each were the winners scorers.

Milers Wait For Win

The Golden Mile Restaurant found themselves playing a postponed Belleville Minor Soccer peewee game Thursday night and if it's any omen they'll be wishing for lots more.

The Mile blanked Bob's Auto 2-0 with Jim McCullam and Tom Christopher tallying the goals.

Trade War Feared

Many Thousand Jobs At Stake Says PM

Nixon Opposes Concessions

WASHINGTON (CP) — Less than a week after they were announced, President Nixon's sweeping economic policies designed to halt inflation and protect the U.S. dollar have come under attack on several fronts.

But the administration, with Treasury Secretary John B. Connally out in front, has held firm and is prepared to resist pressure against granting any exemptions to the program.

The attack has included strong pressure from Canada and Mexico for exemptions from a 10-per-cent supplementary duty on many imports, although administration sources indicated there is little chance the exemptions will be granted.

Canadian and Mexican officials asked for immunity from the new duty, citing their situations as unique, in that their economies are closely tied to the U.S.

The treasury department has said it will consider the requests but department sources indicated that exemptions to the regulation are unlikely.

Discussing the Canadian situation Friday, a treasury spokesman said Canada's request is under review but there are no immediate plans to give Canada exemptions from the duty.

"The impression has been given that an announcement is pending," the spokesman said. "It is not."

He said Secretary Connally heard some "very fine arguments, presented very forcibly" by Finance Minister E. J. Benson and other members of a Canadian delegation here this week, "and he has promised to consider them."

"But the interim answer was no, and there is nothing forthcoming that I know of. The answer has to be no to everybody."

Other new developments included:

—An announcement Friday by the justice department it will prosecute Texas Gov. Preston Smith, who said he was ordering state officials to give their workers a 6.8-per-cent pay raise scheduled for Sept. 1, despite a 90-day wage-price-rent freeze announced by Nixon.

—Charges by consumer advocate Ralph Nader that corporate giant General Motors may have been tipped in advance to the price freeze.

—An assertion by Representative F. Edward Hebert (Dem. La.), chairman of the House of Representatives armed services committee, that President Nixon cannot postpone a $2.4-billion military pay raise beyond Oct. 1 without major revision of a draft extension bill already stalled over another issue.

—Almost unanimous opposition to the wage freeze from organized labor, with talk of possible court challenges.

A special Japanese envoy announced at a meeting here with U.S. and international monetary officials that Japan will not revalue its yen. Elsewhere, European money exchanges remained closed, while officials tried to decide what action to take.

Smith's announced plans to ignore the wage freeze put him in a head-on confrontation with fellow Texas Democrat Connally.

The justice department, acting upon a request of the Cost of Living Council headed by Connally, announced it would file suit early next week in an effort to obtain an injunction barring the pay raises ordered by Smith.

'Psst! Wanna buy some American dollars?'

Davis Sees Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier William Davis of Ontario spent 30 minutes with Prime Minister Trudeau Friday discussing the effects of the recently announced U.S. surcharges.

Mr. Davis told reporters afterwards he was "not seeking federal aid" and would not be making his own representations to Washington on the increased import tax.

He said he doubted whether the Americans listen to individual provinces anyway.

Mr. Davis declined comment on reports that the federal government would help Quebec industries affected by the U.S. action.

Motion Enhances Effect of Alcohol

TORONTO (CP) — The effects of alcohol on a person's reactions don't show fully until he gets into some kind of motion—such as driving—a scientific meeting was told Friday.

Static tests may be a poor indication because motion apparently accentuates alcohol's adverse effect on the ability of the eye to fix on an object, said Dr. William E. Collins.

Dr. Collins is chief of the psychology laboratory at the Civil Aeromedical Institute of the United States Federal Aviation Administration.

He was addressing a three-day meeting of the Barany Society, an exclusive group of about 120 scientists from around the world who specialize in investigation of the balance mechanism located in the inner ear.

The society's meeting at the University of Toronto is the first to be held outside Europe.

Dr. Collins said that a series of tests performed in a moving cockpit showed a significant increase in error among drinkers compared with those who had not had any alcohol.

As long as the cockpit was still, he said, the drinkers performed as well as the non-drinkers.

Dr. Collins said people should be aware of this specific action of alcohol. A man who has had a few drinks may feel perfectly normal and be in control of himself, but be unaware his balance is impaired.

Court Says Ky Can Run

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese Supreme Court, reported to be under pressure from President Nguyen Van Thieu and the United States, reinstated Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky on the presidential ballot today. Ky deferred until Sunday his decision whether to run Oct. 3.

Danger Is Seen In Retaliation

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday night that Canada will take all steps necessary to dampen any world move towards retaliation against the United States for imposing a 10 per cent tax on imports into that country.

At the same time, in an address carried on both national television networks, he said Canada would continue to press the U.S. to exempt it from the tax.

The prime minister left no doubts of the serious effects of the tax being levied on Canada.

"If nothing is done to remove or prevent the impact of the surcharge, if it is given full effect, it will cause the loss of many thousands of Canadian jobs."

Mr. Trudeau spoke to the nation less than 24 hours after cutting short a European vacation to return home.

During that time he met with his cabinet to hear reports from Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin on their Washington trip aimed at getting Canada an exemption on the tax announced Sunday by President Nixon.

The U.S. promised to consider Canada's arguments that the tax should not apply to it because it has "no artificial exchange rate" and has not erected trade barriers against U.S. goods.

Leaders of two opposition parties were less than satisfied with Mr. Trudeau's approach to the new U.S. economic policies.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said the prime minister should meet with President Nixon before the U.S. decides whether to accept the Canadian arguments.

He called for large investments and expenditures in Canada to reduce Canadian dependence on the U.S.

Mr. Trudeau assured his nationwide audience that Mr. Benson and Mr. Pepin did not go to Washington "to seek favors, still less to make concessions."

"They went to make clear to the U.S. government there was no justification for what it was doing to Canada," he said.

Canada took no issue with the U.S. decision to grapple with the problems of inflation and unemployment. These were familiar problems to Canada.

But Canada wanted to bring home the message that applying the surcharge to Canada would not help the cause.

"Unemployed Canadians cannot afford to buy U.S. goods," said Mr. Trudeau.

About one-quarter of all U.S. exports are bought in Canada. Without such a market "the U.S. economy would be in much more serious difficulties than it now finds itself."

Canadian prosperity was a result of Canada's success as a trading nation. One-quarter of its gross national product came from external trade.

"We cannot, of course, sit mutely and absorb the impact of this U.S. surcharge which, if it continues in effect against Canada, will hurt us more than any other country," he said.

"But neither is it in our interest to retaliate and set in motion the destructive spiral of an international trade war.

"Everyone would be a loser in those circumstances."

For these reasons, Canada would do all it could to stamp out talk "of such a self-defeating practice".

And it would press the U.S. to reconsider levying its tax against Canadian exports.

Saltsman Wants Tax On Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo), his party's finance critic in the Commons, suggested Friday that Canada retaliate against the United States' new extra 10-per-cent tax on imports.

He had two suggestions which he said could save Canadian jobs:

—Place a total embargo against U.S. goods whose Canadian counterparts were affected by the surtax.

—Where the surtax was not practical, a 10-per-cent export tax should be imposed on all raw materials sent to the U.S.

Lt. Calley's Sentence Reduced to 20 Years

FORT BENNING, Ga. (Reuter) — Lieut. William L. Calley remained in seclusion in his quarters today after his sentence for participating in the My Lai massacre was reduced to 20 years from life.

The reduction, ordered by Lt. Gen. Albert C. Conzer, commander of the 3rd Army at Fort McPherson, means Calley can be paroled 2½ years earlier than if he had to serve the life term. Calley now can be free in 6½ years.

"I'm very happy," said Calley on hearing the sentence reduction.

Calley is not permitted to talk to the press. He has been restricted to his quarters since President Nixon freed him from the stockade in response to a public outcry over the life sentence.

Calley was charged with giving the orders for the massacre in the small South Vietnamese hamlet March 16, 1968. More than 100 men, women and children — all unarmed — were shot to death by Calley's company.

Ontario Liberals Studying Strategy

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 Liberals, including party leader Robert Nixon, began a three-day meeting at York University Friday to plan strategy for the next provincial election.

Those attending the strategy sessions included nominated candidates, members of the Ontario legislature and party officials.

Sessions are closed to the press and public, but Mr. Nixon will announce the resulting election policy Sunday at a news conference.

The meeting follows the Liberals' general policy meeting last January, when the party produced its so called "blue print for government" statements.

Stanfield Urges PM See Nixon

HALIFAX (CP) — There is no indication Prime Minister Trudeau is prepared to take any action on the United States 10-per-cent import surcharge other than that taken by the ministerial delegation to Washington, and "this is not good enough," Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday.

Mr. Stanfield told a news conference that the prime minister should arrange a meeting with President Nixon to talk about "the seriousness of the matter" to Canada. The meeting should take place before U.S. Secretary of the Treasury John Connally replies to the presentation made to him Thursday by Finance Minister Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

"It is imperative to act at this level before the Connally response." Mr. Stanfield said. "The people of Canada want action at this time."

There was "no cause for confidence" in the statement Mr. Trudeau made to a nation-wide television audience.

Summer 71 Is Finale to Fun

Do you have any idea of what your children have been doing all summer? When you ship them off to the playground, do you know what is going on?

Summer 71 will be held in the auditorium this coming Tuesday to give area parents the opportunity to find out some answers.

Sponsored by the city recreation department, the Summer 71 program gave area youths the chance to see what they could do both physically and artistically.

Using five schools in the city (two high schools and three elementary schools) the program offered basketball, gymnastics and archery. Coordinator of the program, John Holgate, explained "this Tuesday evening will be the culmination of the events held throughout the summer."

Both classroom situations and working displays will be on exhibit in the old arena. These displays will be open between the hours of 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Audrey Davies, a local artist and teacher of ceramics, held courses throughout the summer.

"Not everyone wants to break into a sweat playing in a gym. We wanted to provide something worthwhile for the creator as well as the athletic," said a program spokesman.

"We have received great co-operation in the running of the program from the Hastings County Board of Education and from teaching staff at the schools," said the recreation spokesman.

During the program, parents will be invited to try their hand at the displays.

A partial holiday also came from the provincial government and it is hoped for next year that the city will become more interested in the future of the program so that with more funds, the program will be able to expand.

"Next year we would like to be able to include more people and offer a wider range of programs," said a recreation spokesman.

"There was no cost involved for the participants but," said the same spokesman, "children were asked to bring their own crayons and common household supplies on occasion."

Summer 71 will be displayed for one day only so if you care what your kids did all summer, come out and find out.

New Device Aids Diabetics

A pocket - sized medical device is now available to make self - injection of insulin easy and painless.

Invented by the wife of a Canadian diabetic, the device acts as a diabetic's third hand. It's a simple metal-elastic device that fits around the person's arm (or leg), raises a mound of flesh and holds it during injection. Called the Ditek Mound Formation Clamp, it increases the number of body areas available to the diabetic for injection.

For the thousands who must take insulin daily, this is important. If one area of the body is used too frequently, toughened skin makes further injections impossible or extremely painful. The Canadian Diabetic Association normally recommends six areas for injections: legs, arms, left and right side of the abdomen. But most people can't get at their arms and are restricted in the use of their legs.

The Ditek clamp has successfully undergone clinical tests at hospitals in Toronto, Edmonton and Winnipeg and received favorable comments from the officers of the Canadian Diabetic Association. It is now available for less than $10 from the manufacturer, Ditek Corporation Ltd., a subsidiary of Professional and Engineered Patents Ltd., a company formed two years ago to bring inventors' dreams to market.

Accident Creates Omelette

A truck owned by Duncan's Poultry and loaded with 303 crates of eggs spun out of control at 3.20 a.m. Saturday morning after losing a rear wheel.

The accident occurred three quarters of a mile east of the junction of Highways 37 and 7.

The truck flipped and landed on its side in a nearby culvert. Police spokesman decline to estimate the damage to the vehicle other than saying, "extensive and extreme."

Joint Dump Discussed

Selection of the original land - fill plot was strongly protested by a group of residents.

However, a joint meeting between the councils of Madoc and Huntingdon Township met last night to screen a new dumping area, located on Lot 2, Concession 9 of Madoc Township.

A 7.30 p.m. gathering at the Madoc Council Chambers last night, was held to discuss the possibilities of the two townships making use of the village waste disposal facilities.

This use would be on a contracting basis. The respective councils will make their decisions following regular monthly meetings. A committee would be set up to handle future disposal problems, with representatives from each council serving on the board.

"WORK"

One further order we must give you in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ: don't associate with the brother whose life is undisciplined, and who despises the teaching we gave you. You know well that we ourselves are your examples here, and that our lives among you were never undisciplined. We did not eat anyone's food without paying for it. In fact we toiled and labored night and day to avoid being the slightest expense to any of you. This was not because we had no right to ask our necessities of you, but because we wanted to set you an example. When we were actually with you we gave you this principle to work on: "If a man will not work, he shall not eat." Now we hear that you have some among you living quite undisciplined lives, never doing a stroke of work and busy only in other people's affairs. In the order to such men, indeed our appeal by the Lord Jesus Christ, is to settle down to work and eat the food they have earned themselves.

And the rest of you — don't get tired of honest work! If anyone refuses to obey the command given above, mark that man, do not associate with him until he is ashamed of himself. I don't mean, of course, treat him as an enemy, but reprimand him as a brother.

Tweed Buys Back Its Sewer System

TWEED (Special) — The village of Tweed, according to clerk Garrett D. C. Morton, has become the first municipality to have raised funds to purchase a utility back when the community recently sold $115,000 worth of debentures on the bond market. The money enabled the village to acquire the storm sewer system installed in 1970 from the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Debentures maturing in the first 14 years were sold locally, while bonds maturing in the last six years were purchased by the Metropolitan Toronto Pension Fund.

Lung Capacity Meter Frightening for Some

And your capacity to breathe can indicate what condition your lungs are in at the moment, a capacity that can be clearly, and sometimes frighteningly, demonstrated by a machine on view in the Ben Bleecker Auditorium at Quinte Exhibition.

Sponsored by the Hastings and Prince Edward Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, the exhibit provides valuable and oftenforgotten insight into the capabilities of the lungs and the mistreatment to which this most important organ is subjected.

"I'm not really surprised to find how poor a condition that people find themselves when they test our machine. This machine called the Mc-Kesson Vitalor, is the property of the Belleville General Hospital and is a smaller version of the large permanent one there," Mrs. M. Hallam explained.

Mrs. Hallam, executive secretary of the local association, stated that the machine, costing $75 is a simple device. A person blows hard and quick into a cardboard tube leading into a rubber bag. This action triggers a writing apparatus that registers a curved line on a chartered graph.

This graph records your total output of breath as your capacity expressed in litres, and teamed with your height, indicates whether or not your lungs are in good shape.

Many smokers walked away slightly dazed at the results yesterday, but even some non-smokers were surprised at their poor results.

"Many of these people, 'the non - smokers, are in poor physical condition, and that doesn't help," Mrs. Hallam explained.

"Of course, if a smoker with poor physical condition turns up, then the graph result practically scares them, I think."

The local association was formed with the amalgamation of two county groups in Hastings and Prince Edward counties this past June.

Mrs. Hallam is the only full time member here at the exhibition, but the others are all volunteers, putting in their time to explain to the public the dangers in TB and respiratory illnesses. We have a complete selection of booklets and informative pamphlets and would be delighted to answer whatever questions people may ask," Mrs. Hallam stated.

If you are unsure of your lung capacity, it well may be worthwhile to test it on the Vitalor before the exhibition closes tomorrow evening.

It may save your life.

First Tibetan Baby

Belleville had the honor Thursday night of welcoming the first baby born to Tibetan parents in Canada. Mrs. Kesang Golf gave birth to a 6½ pound baby girl at Belleville General Hospital, bringing the number of Tibetan youngsters under eight years old living here to four. The two oldest begin grade one in regular schools in September, but the youngest of the 14 member Tibetan community in Belleville has yet to take a wide-eyed look at life.

City Youngsters Like Farm Visits

STIRLING (Special)—Five farms in the Stirling area have had visitors during the summer in connection with the Urban - Rural Exchange program introduced this year in Ontario by the department of agriculture and food.

The program started this year under the Opportunities for Youth program, with a finding jobs and programs to help pass the summertime for youths. The Opportunities for Youth is being sponsored by the federal government.

The Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food program started this year by sending girls and boys between the ages of 12 and 15 years from city homes to farms to acquaint them with rural life in Ontario.

Under the program, 21 university students are hired to help co - ordinate the program across the province. The youths involved in the exchange went through an orientation program arranged by the co - ordinators involving farm safety, animals, machinery and general workings of the farms. The co - ordinators also delivered and picked up the youths from the farms.

Head co-ordinator for district counties is Monica Alyea of the Prince Edward Agriculture office in Picton. She is looking after the exchange program in Hastings, Addington and Frontenac counties.

The area farms were introduced to the program through the 4-H meetings that their children attended. Letters were sent home to the farms with the farmer contacting the agriculture office if interested in the exchange program. She noted that the response from the Stirling area was very good.

Seven youths have taken part in the program visiting Stirling farms this summer. The youths participated in milking cows, drawing water, feeding calves, and pulling weeds during the week that they spent on the farm.

Michael Wendover and Stephen Kennedy of 1130 Montreal St., Kingston were visitors to the farm of Jack Dunham, RR 5, Stirling.

Clifton Smith, 14, of Toronto stayed at the farm of Malcolm Sharp, RR 3, Stirling as did Yves Lakose of Kingston. Clifton was born in Jamaica and later moved to Toronto.

On Thursday, August 12, exchange youths from Toronto, Belleville, Oshawa and Peterborough were taken to 4-H Day at the Peterborough Exhibition by the district co-ordinators. At the fair a miniature program was held for the exchangers with a banquet being given in the evening. At the banquet plaques and prizes were given out for the first place winner and runner-up in the contests.

Stephen Kennedy of Kingston summarized, "It was a lot of fun", on his return to Kingston from the Dunham farm. It was the first time he had been on a farm and this applied to most of the youths who took part in the province-wide urban-rural exchange.

Chinese Illusionists Live an Eventful Life

By JIM WILLARD
Staff Reporter

It's a modern Chinese version of the Family Affair.

Remember Kee Young?

He's the fellow that romped through Europe and England, with occasional trips to North America, in the 1930s and '40s, and was considered one of the top illusionists of the era. And closely following in his footsteps was his cousin Kenny Young, one-half of the Chinese Young act presently appearing at the grandstand in Quinte Exhibit on.

"I did complete the equivalent of Chinese high school, but I loved to travel. I remember as a young boy travelling for the first time with Kee, and I loved it. It was then that I made up my mind to become just like him, an illusionist," Mr. Young explained.

Born in Macao, 48 years ago, Mr. Young is married to Mary, 40, was born and raised in Hong Kong, near where her husband grew up as a boy.

His cousin, Kee, retired to New Jersey for 15 years, taught Kenny how all the known tricks and illusions, and the latter inherited all the equipment and fame when Kee quit show business.

For 10 months of the year, the Youngs are booked solid, playing before crowds from Montreal to Vancouver, the western United States, and the Orient. There is an occasional trip to Europe.

"Two years ago, we went to Europe, travelling by Volkswagen. We spent six months in Spain, and I knew only one or two words. You know, where to turn right or to turn left to a policeman," Mr. Young stated, and uttered the few Spanish words he knows, smiling heartily.

Mr. Young pointed out that it takes hard work and perfect timing before an act can be staged for public audiences. Most of the illusions he buys from the 10 to 15 professionals employed full-time in Hollywood to devise new ones.

"You know, it's just like buying a song from someone. You pay him, and you can use it. Although I do invent some myself, most of what I do I purchase from Hollywood," Mr. Young explained.

However, each year the team performs, a new act is perfected.

"We sometimes come back to the same town and it doesn't pay to have the same act again. So we change it."

During the two winter months that they are resting, the Youngs spend them in a rented apartment in Montreal.

"We do go for the odd trip to Boston or some other nearby city, but we do not like to travel during the hard winter months, at least not too far away." Mr. Young emphasized.

The reason that the naturalized Canadians chose Montreal as their home base is simply that they consider the province city as having "more night clubs, good night clubs to be entertained."

Like most professionals, the Youngs are very reluctant to reveal their secrets, although when a possible solution was offered to them regarding their swords - in - the - box - with - lady inside trick, Mr. Young blushed slightly and smiled heartily. No verbal response.

Although he was willing to demonstrate a simple rope trick, Mr. Young had the stock answer to queries regarding his secrets.

"It's magic!"

The couple, who have been in show business for more than 20 years, are booked until October, and a tour of the Orient is planned for late fall.

"We don't have any difficulty in booking ourselves. We have many offers, new ones, each year, and it becomes hard at times to decide how to arrange our circuit," Mr. Young explained.

Is it all done with mirrors?

You can have a chance to guess today when the Chinese Youngs perform once more at the grandstand, but you have to be quick.

Ah, so.

Chippers to Convene

At least 200 representatives of companies responsible for the cooking, packaging and marketing of potato chips will be gathering in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto this September to hold their annual convention.

The keynote for the convention will be "the potato chip as a fun food," said a public relations spokesman.

Along with the fun food aspect, lectures will be held on all aspects of the industry including variety of seeds planted for potatoes, to the packaging of the product and finally to marketing.

An unusual American Indian accidentally fell across the method of producing the fun food and since that time, the popularity has spread through out the world.

In a trade magazine called the Potato Chipper, Nikita Khrushchev is depicted in prune gobbling glee and urging that the rest of Russia do the same.

George Crum, the enterprising Indian in question came upon the process when he noticed his sitter fishing out a sliver of potato that had mistakenly fallen into the cooking fat.

Judging from statistics released from a marketing survey team, the potato chip has become as popular an institution as Mom's apple pie and the great American hot dog. Statistics reveal that on the average, every Canadian consumes 4.25 pounds of potato chips a year.

The amount of potatoes used for chipping reached the monstrous figure of 400 million pounds a year. This figure represents an increase of 14 percent from the previous one year period. (1969).

Although torn from the crude kitchen of George Crum, the chip has become an item of sophistication.

Strains of potatoes have been specially developed to meet the requirements of the chipping potato. Refined vegetable oils have been formulated to aid in the taste, texture, quality and color of the finished product. All factors right down to the proper cooking temperature and time of frying have been meticulously perfected, striving to create the ideal fun food.

Processing of the chip has become so automated that once the potato is fed into the peeler, it is never again touched by the human hand.

Spokesman for the industry claims, "the chip is designed to be between meal type food. It was designed for convenience, lending itself to the snack situation. The chip will accompany almost any food on almost any occasion.

Volunteer Week September 12-18

A committee organizing a week Sept. 12 to 18 to recognize community service is seeking the oldest and the youngest volunteer in the city.

The program during volunteer recognition week will highlight the services given free to the city by the many men, women and children participating in community assistance programs.

Local churches will recognize volunteers within their church and those participating in community programs on church premises during the morning service Sept. 12.

Mrs. Ruth Burrows, director of the central volunteer bureau will be interviewed on CJBQ radio on the morning of Sept. 13.

A workshop is scheduled at St. Thomas' Parish Hall Sept. 14 for groups in specialized volunteer fields, prevention work, assistance to the elderly, handicraft projects and sports as well as others.

Each local agency has been asked to choose a volunteer of the year to be honored at a volunteer recognition night at Four Seasons Hotel Sept. 15. Tickets for the banquet at $5.20 apiece can be obtained at the volunteer bureau, 962-9331.

Tentative plans call for a television interview Sept. 16, Sept.17 and 18 displays and demonstrations by voluntary agencies will be set up at the Memorial Arena.

The displays will illustrate the programs directed in the community by volunteers in their leisure time and the public is urged to visit the arena and view the exhibits free of charge.

William Skinner of the national council of YMCAs of Canada will conduct a workshop. So . . . You are a Board Member, at Loyalist College, Sept. 18. The volunteer bureau is sponsoring the session, open to board members.

More functions for volunteer recognition week are in the planning stage, and the organizing committee is expecting enthusiastic citizen interest in the week's activities.

Mall Booster

A letter on this page today draws attention to the vital role of a Belleville citizen in marshalling public opinion in favor of establishment of the Quinte Mall. The writer suggests that even belatedly, there should be tangible recognition of his efforts.

The citizen to whom realtor Don Whalen refers is 41-year-old Donat Clement, a civil service tailor at CFB Trenton. Here is what happened: on March 20 1969 The Intelligencer reported that the Ontario Municipal Board's decision turning down the proposed North Front Street plaza had roused a storm of protest in Belleville. "I've never had so many phone calls," Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott was quoted as saying. "The people are really upset."

The report noted that discussions were going ahead with a view to the city appealing the OMB decision.

Then on March 24 The Intelligencer reported a city-wide canvass soliciting signatures protesting the OMB decision. It followed establishment of the Citizens' for Belleville committee at a gathering of interested citizens in Mr. Clement's Shamrock Drive home.

That was on Friday night. The next morning Mr. Clement, our report noted, personally led off the campaign, petitioning for signatures at the Four Corners. In an eight-hour period he had obtained some 700 names. In all, approximately 11,000 signatures were collected and this plebiscite was credited later with stimulating a provincial government order for a rehearing. Aside from the canvass the committee maintained an active interest in the ensuing negotiations.

After a second hearing in January, 1970, the Ontario Municipal Board approved the plaza — the Quinte Mall as it has come to be known. "All of the evidence," the board observed in its findings, "demonstrates that the shopping facilities within the municipality are, at the present time, inadequate and that there will be definite advantages to the consumers within the area if these new facilities are provided."

It was in April last year that approval finally came through. Thus ended negotiations going back to the beginning of 1968, with the positive consequences we see today.

CBC's Bent

Remember how in the heyday of the FLQ crisis the CBC would run interviews like the one with a couple of young Quebecers receiving guerrilla training in the Middle East — Jordan as we recall — and behind their Arab headgear they talked about the campaign they were going to wage back home in Canada.

Now their evil designs appear to have been nipped in the bud. Maybe some are still receiving this kind of training abroad, but it does look as if the War Measures Act — for all the criticism of it — has been very effective in at least driving the terrorist organization underground.

The CBC meanwhile has another situation tailor-made to its own revolutionary bent. And that is Northern Ireland; practically every night now the late-night news carries interviews with some of the more strident members of the IRA, some so demagogue-sounding that they seem almost like caricatures of the Irish revolutionary.

We do not taken in by these people, but why is the CBC permitted (at the taxpayer's expense) to be a continuing medium of propaganda for every two-bit anarchist that ever lived?

Some months ago Weekend Magazine contained an article about the CBC. It included an interview with CBC president George Davidson. He said in part: "No organization is able to achieve perfectly what its objective is. I would be the last to say that we are fulfilling as completely as we should, or would like to, the mandate laid down in the Broadcasting Act . . . But I think CBC is getting closer to that goal than any other element in the broadcasting system."

Then, after some remarks about the influence of U.S. television in Canada and, by inference, the need for a greater Canadian identity in programming he made this remarkable statement: "I watch TV less than the average Canadian. What with this job, travelling around the country, I really don't have the time."

You should make time Mr. Davidson, and watch those news and documentary programs in particular.

Tit for Tat

U.S. Secretary of the Treasury John Connally has a point when he says Canada's request for an exemption from President Nixon's import duty surcharge is weak. When the tables were turned in 1962, he said in a television interview, Canada turned down a U.S. request for a similar exemption from their own duty. Simple as it is simple as that: if you don't scratch our back we won't scratch yours, Mr. Connally seems to be saying.

Successor to Rochdale

Ottawa 'College' Could Be Another Taxpayers' Disaster

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The federal government must be hooked on self-inflicted pain.

It suffers so much of it.

Especially if the Cabinet's small but powerful "social activist" minority — spearheaded by State Secretary Gerard Pelletier and Citizenship Minister Robert Stanbury — say it is for a good cause.

Gerard Pelletier, as Prime Minister Trudeau's long - time friend, and in earlier days a "world-saving" associate, exerts exceptional Cabinet clout — although there are others in the inner circle of power who whisper that the PM has had about enough of the State Secretary's costly experiments in state-financed mass sociology.

And Robert Stanbury, big in the young Toronto federal power in-crowd, can often recruit part-time Cabinet do - gooders and social reformers to this social cause and that welfare crusade.

Part - timers such as Justice Minister John Turner who sometimes seems more concerned with the rights of criminals than those of their victims; and Finance Minister Edgar Benson who has written himself a role in his White Paper on Taxation as a modern-day Robin Hood, robbing the middle class to pay not only the poor but the rich.

Then, then, along with Welfare Minister John Munro, who has taken a soft line in the continuing debate over penalties for pot-heads, contrive from time to more frequent time to involve the administration in hassles exacting a heavy price both on the administration's public prestige and the taxpayers' pocketbook.

Latest in the continuing series of federal follies is another of those "experimental colleges" this one named Pestalozzi, an "Atlanticized" version of what is calls itself, rising 22 stories in midtown Ottawa.

It is a duplicate of Toronto's bigger, by four stories and costlier by $2,000,000.

However, so far it is far from being in the same sort of trouble that indirectly brought on the federal Government's foreclosure of Rochdale's $5,800,000 mortgage.

But already there is initial cause for vigilance.

Pestalozzi was just opening its doors when in came the RCMP drug squad, picked up a windowbox planter with marijuana under cultivation, and hauled a college lecturer to the cells.

The lecturer pleaded guilty to possession of pot, was fined $25, with the choice of two more nights behind bars.

And there was Pestalozzi, an $8,000,000 "educational happening" — a monumental raised by the taxpayers to the experimental principle of do-it-yourself - education — if you - feel - like-doing - it - or anything else — off to a swinging pot - puffing Rochdale - style start.

The silliest thing about Rochdale — and it shapes up - the same for Pestalozzi — is to call it a "college."

Rochdale had an academic veneer as long as it was transparent—and the Toronto police, the RCMP and successive grand juries were forever peering through it and seeing the place as a narcotic distributing centre for Metro.

Raids became as routine. Rochdale's 1,250 residents wired up their own alarm system to warn, with a shrieking bells and a bowl of sirens, of the approach of police cruisers and even "phoney" cars.

Everyone wanted it closed — everyone except what had to be a majority of the tenants who live, partially rent - free, on the taxpayers — and finally Urban Affairs Minister Robert Andras, who "inherited" the Rochdale mess with his portfolio, foreclosed.

While he openly detested Rochdale's drug culture, his foreclosing of the federal mortgage was a money, not a moral move.

So now, in the Urban Affairs administration, Robert Andras, one of the Prime Minister's truly bright young men — neither a swinger nor a square — is sitting, fingers crossed, watching and listening as Pestalozzi does its thing in the name of "free expression of education."

His one flaw could be, for all his intelligence, that he is too readily responsive.

Any resemblance between Pestalozzi's off-the-cuff courses and accepted educational programs at Carleton and Ottawa universities has to be wildly coincidental.

Like the Government's controversial "Opportunities for Youth" program, Pestalozzi's equally debatable "free expression in education" offers many things in the way of "schemes" of learning — seminars, talk-ins, social experiment — but not much in...the "hardware" of knowledge, like the hard work of study, the sweat of courses, the crunch of grades and the bench-mark of academic success, the winning of the degree.

But what the heck, it is all in the name of social enlightenment, even if it is costing you taxes you cannot afford, especially if you are a pensioner guilty of society's greatest crime of all, aging in the new Youth Age.

The Marriage Scene in Russia

United Church Board of Evangelism and Social Service

The western world is showing an increasing disregard for the romantic and religious aspects of marriage. Even in Quebec, a civil marriage, sans church ceremony, has become acceptable.

In Russia, they have learned from experience to value the glamorous and traditional aspects of marriage, which in the early days of the USSR was little more than engagement in a personal contract. Russia's Bridal Palaces once the palatial homes of Russian nobility represented that country's earlier successful substitute for the once traditional church wedding. A decree of 1944 made obligatory that marriages, to be valid, had to be registered. This measure was deliberately taken to stabilize and strengthen the moral foundations of Soviet marriage and the family. In Moscow, a city of 7½ million people, three such Bridal Palaces celebrate from 2940 marriages each day.

Russian brides are much like excited brides anywhere in the world. They are extremely lovely in their white veils, glamorous wedding gowns, hovering bridesmaids and of course, the nervous groom. Probably such bridal couples are not thinking too much of social significance of ceremony they are participating in. But Russian authorities are contributing everything possible to make it a memorable occasion in a magnificent setting.

The marriage is performed by an impressive woman dignitary. She addresses the couple, emphasizing to them the serious ness of the step they are taking, and its importance to the State, in that their union involves the possible future responsibilities of family life. The bride and groom exchange rings and formally sign the marriage register.

Presently, the bridal pair accept their marriage certificate and adjourn to a nearby equally impressive salon, where their guests extend congratulations and toast them in wine. Obviously the USSR is fully aware of the importance of providing marriage with romantic and emotional associations.

Citizen's Personal Role In Establishment of Mall

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The new Quinte Mall is officially open and indeed a credit to our city. Belleville shall never look back with all of the development taking place and planned for the immediate future.

I recall, however, the controversy and zoning problems before this new Mall could be constructed. I have been waiting however, for someone to recognize the person really responsible for the final hearing which resulted in the approval of this site. There was a citizen (whose name I do not remember) who, on his very own, set up a desk at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets to record the names of citizens who wanted this Mall. Indeed, the attitude at that time was "oh well, it cannot be", and without the interest and enthusiasm of this citizen, there never would have been the final hearing via the most unusual procedure of Order-of-Council. Therefore, I expected this person to be officially recognized and invited to the ribbon cutting ceremony. This person should, even belatedly, be recognized and thanked — like maybe a year's free grocery.

1217—Supporters of King Henry III won the Battle of Dover. They defeated the baron's fleet led by the pirate chieftain known as Eustace the Monk.

Lotus Eaters Of Old

The Manchester Guardian

A nineteenth century account of Ceylon by Robert Percival, which came up for sale at Sotheby's recently describes the use of cannabis by soldiers. In his description of the Malays living in Ceylon, Percival says that "all day long they chew the betel or penang, and smoke bang."

The copy has a signed marginal note by Samuel Taylor Coleridge, in which the poet identified "bang" as the powder made from dried leaves of the cannabis indica.

He had, he wrote, both smoked and taken the powder. Its effects were "merely narcotic, with a painful weight from the flatulence or stiffness of Jaw."

On the cudst of Barbary, Coleridge added: "The charitable Mahometans give it to the criminals previous to the amputation of their limbs, and it inspires a complete insensibility to suffering—and in these circumstances does not commonly disturb the understanding.

"Tipoo Sahib gave to each of the horse soldiers a pipe immediately before the engagement — likewise to those sent to storm forts."

Sunday Schools Undergoing Far-reaching Transformation

TORONTO (CP) — A church without the familiar morning Sunday school? Impossible! The Sunday school, for years, has been a familiar and accepted department of Protestant church life.

Today, however, in many church quarters, the Sunday school is undergoing probing re-evaluation. Alarming attendance declines and second thoughts about its effectiveness have led to the reappraisal.

If today's Sunday school is really tomorrow's church, Canada's major denominations must face the future with foreboding. During the past decade those mainline churches, without exception, have witnessed steady and sharp declines in Sunday school enrolments.

The United Church of Canada, the country's largest Protestant denomination, registered an enrolment drop from 757,398 in 1961 to 425,467 in 1969. That decline of nearly 50 per cent took place during the very time that the church's much-publicized New Curriculum was being introduced to inject new life into Sunday schools.

The Anglican Church of Canada experienced a similar slump in its Sunday schools. The 1958 total of 312,000 skidded to 122,500 in 1968—an even sharper drop than in the United Church. And the Presbyterian Church in Canada Sunday school enrolment slipped from 122,000 in 1961 to 90,000 in 1970.

However, the newer evangelical denominations and independent congregations report increasing enrolments and attendances.

The Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, for instance, now have approximately 155,000 on Sunday school rolls. That number would place them next to the United Church in the Sunday school stakes—ahead of the Anglicans, Presbyterians, and the Federation Baptists.

Toronto's Peoples Church, an independent evangelical congregation, attracts nearly 2,000 children and adults weekly to its Sunday school.

Most observers agree, however, that the success or value of the Sunday school is not determined merely by counting heads.

A Vancouver Mennonite Brethren minister, Rev. Robert Roxburgh, contends that a Sunday school fails if it does not strengthen the home and equip parents to lead in religious instruction in the home.

"I venture to say that most Christian parents leave the matter of religious instruction to the almost totally-inadequate hour Sunday morning," contends Mr. Roxburgh.

"For the future I do not see the abandonment of Sunday school," says Roxburgh, "but a dramatic shift of emphasis. Graded classes where children are taught 'facts' in isolation from their daily experience have little effect in the long haul. We must gear our schools for not only more adult participation but to train families."

A congregation such as the Peoples Church, which already has a large and growing Sunday school, tries to serve the whole family. Adults who attend are offered a wide selection of elective courses, college-age young people discover a constantly improved curriculum, and extensive nursery and kindergarten facilities care for the very young.

Rev. Clifford Plant of Kitchener's Christ the King United Church introduced a Saturday school to replace the familiar Sunday school. And it's held monthly during a three- or four-hour block of time rather than weekly for a hurried hour.

The teaching team meets twice a month to plan the activity-oriented and life-related program. Increased attendances, a longer teaching time, correlated activities, and adequate teaching personnel have all added up to the success of the program, state its sponsors.

The Kitchener church then uses the Sunday morning hour prior to the morning service for family meetings. The minister launches the morning's program by introducing the subject for the hour and suggestions for considering it in the family groups. Each family signs up for an eight-week course.

Eglinton Baptist Church, in the heart of an apartment jungle in Toronto, watched its Sunday school evaporate. The Sunday morning school became a Friday night school. And, reports Rev. Jean Pequegnat, the church is reaching a hitherto-unreached constituency.

All Saints Anglican Church in Waterloo, Ont., is located next door to a public school. The church doors are thrown open on Tuesday afternoon at school closing time. The 16 teachers cope with 80 to 120 children, most of them not from church families and many non-attenders at any Sunday school.

And there's going to be more experimentation as serious churchmen wrestle with the Sunday school slump.

Until someone comes up, however, with a more effective way of imparting religious instruction, the Sunday school or some variant will probably be a part of the Canadian Protestant church scene. The challenge facing the churches will be to make it work.

Course to Be Offered In World Religions

TORONTO (CP) — A course in world religions will be offered to some Ontario secondary school students beginning next January.

D. A. Penny, chairman of the humanities section of the education department's curriculum branch, said in an interview that guidelines for the course will be sent to all secondary schools in September.

He said he expects the course will be taught by some schools beginning next January.

The move is in accord with a recommendation made by a committee headed by the late Keiller Mackay, which studied religious education in Ontario schools and urged in 1969 that all students be taught about all major faiths.

Mr. Penny said the new course deals with seven major religions, including Christianity.

It will be available only to Grade 11 and 12 students in schools that decide to offer world religion as an optional course.

Having Mennonite Neighbors Better Than Insurance

KITCHENER (CP) — There's one thing as good as fire insurance if your barn burns down, and that's having Mennonite neighbors. Just ask the Walter Gohl family of nearby Linwood.

On Aug. 10, lightning struck the Gohl barn and destroyed the building along with 35 pigs, 2,000 bushels of grain and 4,000 bales of hay.

Just four miles east of the Gohl farm a barn belonging to Orivia Wideman burned to the ground the same day as a result of the storm.

The morning after the fire about 100 neighbors, mostly Mennonites, moved in and began clearing the rubble. The Gohls are Roman Catholic.

At the same time, work was proceeding on a new barn for the Widemans and many went from one site to the other to take part in construction.

The Gohl barn is expected to be finished today and community is expected to converge on the Widemans' place to finish the job there.

Old-timers are saying the barn-construction crews have set a record. Although barn raisings are nothing new to the community, the fastest previous time is thought to be 11 days.

The job has been done with a minimum of verbal orders.

"Actually, everyone pretty well knows what to do just from doing it so often," Cleeson M. Hoover, a member of the orthodox Mennonite sect explained. "I'd say we raise six barns a year on the average."

"Nobody who's here has really got time to be here, but we're here so that our neighbors will come and help us if our barn burns down," said committee member Clayton Martin at the site of the Gohl barn raising.

"In our group we don't believe in any regular so-called commercial fire insurance, but we think this is the best kind of insurance there is."

As the men worked, Mennonite women and members of the Catholic Women's League were busy cooking and preparing meals for the barn workers. They brought in them tables, benches, dishes and food.

As accustomed as they are to living in this kind of community, the Gohls found the whole thing almost too good to believe.

"This is a lot more than fire insurance could ever have done," Mr. Gohl said.

City Boutique an Exclusive Shop

A handknitted frock, like the one shown here by Rosemary Russell one of the Butterfly Boutique partners, is high fashion and popular with both the younger and old set. The assortment of hand made wearing apparel, jewellery and other gift items handled by the local retail outlet are supplied by talented craftsmen and artists in the Quinte area.

Quinte Handicraft Sold at Boutique

The wives of two well-known businessmen in the city acted on an idea that popped up in a conversation over a casual cup of coffee and as a result Quinte area residents with handicraft talents have an exclusive retail outlet for the items they produce.

Rosemary Russell and Marjorie Jackson both mothers of four children call their enterprise Butterfly Boutique from a suggestion "pulled out of the air" by Mrs. Russell's daughter Wendy, 15. The most important thing to them is the challenge involved, not the name of the business, it was explained.

They believe there was a service to perform on behalf of other housewives and anyone else who handcrafts wearing apparel for women and men in their own homes. They decided to stock and display only locally made merchandise.

The boutique located at 212½ Front Street upstairs over O'Connor's Jewellery store enjoyed a brisk turnover soon after it was opened in the Christmas season last year. Lately sales have levelled off but slowdown was expected during the summer months. "It's a combination of hot weather and the shopper avoiding the walk up to the second floor," Mrs. Russell said.

"It's the business been good so far and we're looking for traffic to pick up again when families return to the city from holidays for school openings," she added.

If you intend to discover the unique atmosphere of homespun fashions it is necessary to visit (climbing stairs is healthy exercise) the Butterfly. You'll find an adequate assortment of knitted and crocheted apparel including dresses, all lengths and styles, for women of all ages, vests for men in mod colors and clothing for children. You'll also learn it is convenient to order custom made basketweed articles. And on request you'll be shown materials not available anywhere else in the city as fancy goods for evening wear and other "In" fashions.

In the gift line there are wood carvings, paintings, candles and a collection of knick knacks with appeal for all members of the family.

The boutique's customers comprise mainly young women in business and the partners propose to interest grandmothers in buying for teenagers as they reach out to serve all age groups in the future. They consider the ultimate a ground floor location for trade to walk into from off the street.

Two Tests Conducted For Pre-school Tots

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The way a child holds a raisin or draws a circle can tell a trained observer whether he is developing as he should.

The two small tests are part of a screening being offered pre-school children at public health clinics by the Oshawa Ontario County district health unit.

Shirley Appleton, who gives the tests, says they are not intelligence tests. Combined with a medical examination and vision and hearing tests, they are designed to discover any lag in gross and fine motor, development and in language and personal social development.

"We felt that the pre-school era was being left out in planning public health. Unless he was ill, he was seldom seen before the pre-school medical. We needed to close the gap."

Mrs. Appleton says that of 450 children tested to the end of June, 50 had vision problems, 28 speech problems and eight hearing problems. They were referred for retesting and medical attention where it was necessary.

BEAUTIFUL DAIRY FARMING VALLEYS

"... confident that they could make a good life for themselves in the fertile valley ..." — Shippen and Wallace.

* * *

"County-Style Coffee Shop".

So read the black-and-white sign and we entered the white frame cottage's glassed-in-sun-porch where we seated ourselves at one of the three tables, as a sunny-faced matron (with seven children) came to serve us coffee and home-made cherry pie.

"Yes, Forfar is a nice place," she chatted about this Eastern Ontario village quite some miles north east of Belleville, "But I really don't know how it got its name. I'm from Chantrey, another village just down theroad and was told its name was for a family there named Chant. Now Plum Hollow which makes good cheese, that's sold by the store next door, was named after the wild plum trees that once filled the entire valley and hillsides. Most of the trees left are on the hills, for the valley now is for dairy-farming. It's pretty too. You should go there."

We did. We found the cheese factory situated on a grassy ledge overlooking a pastoral valley of farmland, its beauty incredible with summer serenity.

"The factory has been in existence for 100 years. Mind you I'm speaking of the site, for fire has destroyed the buildings several times during that time. This is a valley that grows on you. That farm yonder has been in the same family for three generations. I myself came to work in the factory here as a boy and have done so for 49 years," a gentle - faced white haired cheesemaker with a manner of contentment told us as he wrapped up our cheese order.

Other customers just leaving, laden with an ample supply, entered a camper with a Pennsylvannia license . . . and immediately visions of another lovely dairy farming valley came to mind. Were these Pennsylvanians by any chance, familiar with it, for it is well-known? If so they would surely say:

"Oh you are speaking of the native son of a Mennonite family who warmly loved the valley, who after much wandering and experience as a candy maker, retired to it, his birthplace, to build a candy factory."

"But why here?"

"He wishes to specialize in making milk chocolate — one of the first to do so in North America — and here in this dairy farmland valley this was possible. After persistent experimentation he perfected the necessary formula, and thus Milton S. Hershey became the chocolate king famed throughout the world.

"Around his factory a town grew. A splendid high school, a park, a pool, a zoo were added. A hotel of elegant design stands on the highest hill midst a rose garden with a glorious view of the valley. Fifty farms were bought where orphan boys live and learn agriculture. A stadium and sports arena which holds thousands, makes it a great sports centre. A carillon in a tower which when it rings reminds the people throughout the valley of the spirit and high ideals of the founder."

The town is named Hershey and from its tall factory chimneys a rich aroma of chocolate scents the town. It is annually visited by thousands, and every factory visitor comes away with a Hershey Bar, compliments of the industry.

Since Mr. Hershey's death, (born September 1857, he lived to be 88, the Hersiey Chocolate Corporation has opened new plants in California and Canada. In Ontario — just about five miles as the crow flies from Plum Hollow — as you will know — at Smiths Falls.

Maid of honor was Miss Gail Allore who wore a turquoise chiffon over taffeta gown featuring an empire waistline trimmed with flowers. The bridesmaids Pat Brunner, cousin of the bride, Dale Denning Annis Cullsden, Marilyn Allore, Gail Genereaux and the flower girl Lee Ann Scott were dressed similarly to the maid of honor, but in colors of pink mauve, yellow, green, blue and white respectively. Pills Threaten to Ruin Girl's Wedding Plans

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 20 years old and engaged to be married in the fall. My mother found a bottle of birth control pills in my lingerie drawer last night and went completely to pieces.

I have always wanted a large church wedding and we were talking about the guest list just last week. My mother says now that she knows what kind of girl I am she will not allow me to make a mockery of the church by masquerading as a virgin. She feels it would be dishonest to ask the minister to marry my fiance and me in The House of God. According to my mother, no girl has the right to be married in church and wear a white gown and veil if she has not saved her maidenhood for marriage.

Will you please say something in your column to set her straight? Mother thinks you are very wise and I think perhaps she will listen to you. — TROUBLE IN SALT LAKE CITY.

★

DEAR TROUBLE: You have undoubtedly disappointed your mother deeply and she is responding in a punitive, revengeful manner. Surely your mother does not believe that every girl who marries in church is a virgin. I hope she will discuss this matter with the minister. He will set her straight and put in a plea on your behalf. — I hope.

★

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When school starts again in the fall I want to have some friends for a change. My trouble is that I'm too smart. I wish I were just average but I am one of those kids who get A's without trying. The kids who work their heads to the bone and make B's and C's despise me.

I hate to sound like a braggart but this is the way it's been all my life. The boys especially think I am conceited and stuck up because I win all the science prizes and essay contests.

The mediocre kids envy me but I am not happy with all these brains. How can I hide by smartness and be one of the crowd? — TIZZIE.

★

DEAR TIZZIE: I've got some good news for you. You aren't as smart as you think you are. Smart people know how to put a dimmer on their brilliance so that it doesn't blind everyone within a radious of three miles. It's not your intelligence that irritates the kids, it's the way you handle it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make it short and sweet. My husband (age 42), father of four children (oldest 15, youngest 6), has been cheating on me for the last ten years. I have caught him red-handed. Ilat-footed — every which way. He always says he is sorry, takes an oath on his mother's life, swears on his father's grave, and tells me it will never happen again — but it always does. I left him once for three weeks but it didn't change things.

At present the rat is making cow eyes at the new woman behind the checkout counter in the supermarket. Yesterday he told me to do the marketing and I could stay home and "take it easy." Tell me straight out if I should leave him once and for all or stick it out for the sake of the children? I need your advice. — MRS. DONALD (IN IOWA)

★

DEAR MRS. JUAN: Tell me straight out, would life be better with him or without him? You've had it both ways so you're in a position to judge. Only you know the answer to this one and I say your decision should be based on what's best for you and the children and not on your need to punish the rat with cow's eyes.

Funds for Clinic Not to be Curtailed Says Health Minister

WINNIPEG (CP) — Amid controversy stirred up by Highways Minister Joe Borowski, Health Minister Rene Toupin announced cabinet support Wednesday for continued aid to Winnipeg's Mount Carmel clinic.

Mr. Toupin told a group of pro-abortionists and clinic participants that the cabinet had decided not to curtail funds provided in the 1971-72 budget, and said "you can look for expansion in the future."

The clinic, which provides a variety of community health services for the city's inner core area, last week became a target of Mr. Borowski.

In a letter to E. F. Paterson, executive director of the United Way of Greater Winnipeg which provides funds to the clinic, the highways minister said the clinic is violating the Criminal Code of Canada "by soliciting and procuring patients for abortion operations in New York."

Mr. Borowski referred to a June 24 newspaper interview with clinic director Anne Bass, in which she said she was able to send pregnant women to New York state for legal abortions.

Mr. Toupin, who responded to the letter by accusing the highways minister of "sticking his nose into another minister's business," told the protesters that government aid to the clinic would continue "until proven differently by the courts or by an investigation of the attorney general's department."

Lemon Cream Pie For A Large Family

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION : I just month you gave a recipe for Lemon Cream Pie using m i l k instead of water. My mother used to do that. I have a large family to cook for and need two pies for a meal. Would it be too much trouble to give in your n e x t the same recipe but for two pies? It is so good I'm sure some other readers would want this too. — Anna G.

ANSWER: Of course I am glad to hear you liked the Lemon Cream Pie. As you know I thought it was extra good too. It is no problem to double the recipe. You simply multiply every amount by two times except the cream of tartar in the meringue.

LEMON CREAM PIES
(Two 9" — doubled by request from July 13, 1971)
Two baked 9" crusts.
FILLING:
2 cups sugar
2/3 cup all-purpose flour
2 tbsps. corn starch
½ tsp. salt
3 cups milk (pasteurized if desired)
6 med. eggs — yolks and whites divided
4 tbsps. margarine or butter
2 tbsps. freshly grated lemon rind (not packed)
½ cup fresh lemon juice
Mix together well in heavy pot the sugar, flour, corn starch and salt. Stir in milk until smooth then cook, stirring until thick. Add and stir some into the six beaten egg yolks, stir this into hot mixture and stir over low heat 2 min. Remove from heat and add lemon rind and margarine or butter. Let cool and then slowly stir in lemon juice.

Pour into baked shells. Cover with meringues made by beating the six leftover egg whites with ¼ tsp. cream of tartar until foamy, then slowly add 2/3 cup sugar as you beat until very stiff and all sugar granules are dissolved, each filling, sealing meringues to edges. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10-12 min. or until meringue tips are tinged with gold.

NOTE: These pies should not be cut until they are cold or until about four hours after they are finished.

Helpful Hints for A Guest to Consider

By DORIS CLARK

One of the best things that can happen to a boy or girl is to pay a visit to relatives or friends. If Joan or John want to be accepted as part of the home they visit and want to be such thoughtful guests that they are asked back, here are some helpful hints:

1. Take a gift to your hostess. Needn't be expensive; might be something you have made or a picture you have drawn, or painted yourself. Depends on your talents.

2. When you see dishes being washed, don't dive for the nearest exit; grab a towel. Or offer to do the whole job.

3. Carry your own plate to the kitchen after a meal, and any others which look empty and neglected.

4. When using the bathroom, use the towel your hostess has given you, after the facecloth.

5. Don't leave your jewelry in the bathtub. In other words remove the telltale ring, by scrubbing it down.

6. Make your own bed and keep your room tidy. Hang up your clothes.

7. Ask to help with a cooking chore or to do an errand.

8. Don't kick chairs, table legs, don't kick the piano, don't kick the cat. He may be a favorite family member.

9. Show that you are pleased when your hostess plans a special event for you. Show pleasure when there is something special for dinner. Smile.

10. Don't hoard your spending money. Treat your friend's hosts to ice cream or soft drinks or chips a time or two.

11. When grown - ups are carrying on a conversation, let them. Mind your own business. Don't ask questions about who or what they are discussing.

12. When you leave, make a point of saying thank you in a way that persuades your hostess that you mean it. A kiss and a hug are pretty good gestures, when it comes to showing pleasure and gratitude.

13. Write your bread - and - butter letter the minute you get home.

Most hosts and hostesses will set aside their own interests and devote a good deal of their time to making sure your holiday is a happy change. Let them know you recognize this in as many ways as you can; not only by saying so but by acting the good thoughtful guest all the time.

(Doris keeps in contact with to her for the kind of help you need, enclosing a several - stamped envelope for private reply.)

YOUR ANTIQUES
by Jack Jamieson

Renaissance Chair Designed to Impress

The chair illustrated was the height of good taste in the late 1860s and 1870s. The style is sometimes called Renaissance or Louis XVI although it has little connection with that unfortunate monarch. This particular piece was advertised as "Marie Antoinette" in 1869.

The upholstery is blue-purple damask, diamond-pleated, tufted and buttoned. The 35 pleats in the diamonds in the chair required unusual yardage of material and consummate skill on the part of the upholsterer.

The frame is no less a tour-de-force, basically rosewood that has been carved, partebonized; incised, gilded, inlaid with mother-of-pearl and fitted with brass. The only thing missing was veneer which probably would have been added if the makeer had thought about it.

The chair is comfortable but this was only incidental to the visual effect, which was designed to impress. Together with its matching sofas, side chairs, lamp tables, ottomans, and love seats, the effect was overpowering. The style dates early 1880s.

Chairs of this style, in fact whole suites of the later hand sawn version appear regularly at auctions. They are among the most difficult of Victorian pieces to restore. It takes an expert upholsterer to do a proper job on the reupholstering and diamond tufting and a good cabinet maker to tighten the frame.

Pieces such as this one usually got very little wear. If they sat in the same farm parlor for a century they probably look to be in relatively good condition. However, unless the springing has been renewed in the last 25 years, Louis XVI revival chairs will not stand up and are likely to disintegrate if sat upon by any well-fed Canadian adult.

(Picture Credit: Metropolitan Museum of Art)

Because of the expense involved in manufacturing the Louis XVI revival style is one of the few that has not been reproduced extensively in this century. Old chairs and sofas are cheap because they pose impossible problems for the do-it-yourself restorer. Those with torn upholstery and exposed springs are modestly priced.

It may well be a good investment to consider restoring pieces regardless of the cost. Provided they are looked at rather than used, they will survive for another century — to pose even more difficult restoration problems then.

Teenage Girls Sexually Aroused by Pop Music

WASHINGTON (AP) — A researcher for the President's Commission on Pornography says young girls often are sexually aroused by pop and rock 'n' roll music.

Patricia Schiller, a Washington clinical psychologist and sex education expert, has concluded also that ordinary love scenes in televised movies — as well as love stories and films — can awaken love fantasies in teen age girls.

"Music, by playing on girls' emotions to arouse love and affection," says her study, "frequently serves as a catalyst for love and thereby a stimulus for sexual arousal in the adolescent female."

The study is included in the first volume of technical reports just published by the commission.

The sexual arousal comes not from explicit content of music and love scenes, Mrs. Schiller said in an interview, but from their awakening of girls' romantic feelings, particularly when the girls are with boys.

"The music surfaces this feeling," she said. "It isn't the record that produces unwed mothers — otherwise we'd have unwed mothers all over."

Rather than barring girls from listening to records or watching television, she said, parents should recognize the eroticism in music and love scenes and discuss it with their daughters.

Sports on All Fronts

MONTREAL (CP) — A Friday night baseball game between a team from Brockville and one from North Vancouver, B.C., that could have decided the Canadian Little League championship, was postponed because of wet grounds at the suburban St. Laurent site.

Organizers of the Canadian championship said the battle to determine Canada's representative to the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa., later this month, will resume today.

If the British Columbia team wins they will be Canada's representatives. If they lose, they will have to face the Ontario squad again in an afternoon game.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders said Friday that a shoulder injury to defensive end Dennis Duncan may not be as serious as was first feared.

"In fact, we are hoping that he can play in Regina next week, although there would be some pain," a club spokesman said.

Duncan was injured in the third quarter Thursday night when Riders bowed 30-28 to Toronto Argonauts.

It was thought to be a shoulder separation and serious enough to either put Duncan on the 30-day injury list or out for the balance of the Eastern Football League schedule.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Connie Mack Stadium, where two baseball teams have played for over 30 years, was damaged severely by a five-alarm fire Friday.

Sandy Can Only be Bounced So Often

By RANDY DERBY
Sports Staff

Sandy Parker is one bouncing bundle of joy that can be bounced only so often before she asserts her mode of employment — and in her line of work she learns how to handle herself!

Sandy, a five-foot-two, 135-pound ball of dynamite has escaped her previous existence as a hospital kitchen worker in Vancouver to enter the bizarre world of professional wrestling. "Wrestling offered me the opportunity to travel and make good money without having to live a nine to five existence," states the happy 26-year-old. "I really dig it!"

Travel seems to be a major attraction for Sandy who has been on the wrestling circuit three years since starting in Detroit. "The travel is the really enjoyable part of the business because you get to see the world and meet all sorts of people," she says. "I've been to Australia and across the U.S. and Canada and hope to be going to South America and Singapore. After a while the travel dogs get to some wrestlers but it hasn't got me yet. When it does maybe I'll call it quits."

Her retirement won't be for at least five or six years because wrestling still offers her something that keeps her going. "I quit my other job in Vancouver because it got too routine with no challenge but wrestling always has something new to learn and its more interesting than people imagine."

She may have things to learn about wrestling itself but she certainly has the knack of getting on the good side of crowds.

"They usually come to let off steam and yell which is natural, I guess, but as for myself I never know what I'll be like until I step through the ropes. You have to develop showmanship in this business besides knowing how to wrestle.

"It's the showmanship that brings the crowds but never let it be said that it isn't pretty rough work to be doing every night."

The wrestling profession hasn't given Sandy much time to delve into other past-times which are regularly followed by other women. "I figure you can't travel and be married too and you have to pick either one or the other so right now it's the other for me. Money is no problem it's just that I like the travel, the people and the business in general and when the time comes that I grow tired of it then marriage will probably be the next challenge."

Whatever the challenge the friendly Sandy undoubtedly will remain just an "easy going real person" — but don't you forget it!

Family Tagged Out

The Memorial Arena crowd at Friday night's professional wrestling card might have been somewhat less than average due to the Quinte Exhibition but they were still as excitable and emotional during the four bouts.

The card marked the debut of legalized professional women wrestling in Belleville and it attracted quite a lot of attention from both male and female spectators. Until now all women wrestling had been purely a "demonstration".

Crowd favorite Sandy Parker delighted her following by hammering opponent Lily Thomas and gaining the third pin and the match. A combination of drop kicks, right hooks and "posterior pops" stunned Lily until Sandy pinned her for the three count. The two ladies had exchanged pins early in the best two-of-three fall match.

One sour note as far as the fans were concerned, the tag team loss of Whipper Billy Watson Junior and Senior to the villainous Love Brothers. An assortment of the usual heinous moves gave the Brothers the win. Watson Junior was pinned by Reggie Love for the first fall of the night after Junior received a rough mauling in the corner. He quickly redeemed himself though against the same Reginald as his flying drop kicks layed Mr. Love low for the pin.

The match-ending pin came when Hartford Love and Watson Jr. collided at centre ring after leaping off the ropes. Both men were stunned but while the older Watson regged with the effects Reggie threw his brother onto the prostrate Junior for the pin.

The first two bouts of the evening failed to settle anything as draws resulted in both.

Chris Tolos and Red Pollard battled through 20 minutes of arm twisting, eye gouging and groin - kicking before the bell rang to end the match with no decision.

The second bout of the night also ended in a draw with Sweeney Robertson and Big John Quinn exchanging pins before the match ended.

Let's Twist Again

It may be a good way to exercise a sore knee or to lose some of that extra weight on the thighs, but lady wrestler Lily Thomas had neither in mind as she takes delight in twisting opponent Sandy Parker's leg into knots. Thomas' turning tactics failed to take anything out of Parker though as the favorite roared back to pin Lily twice for the match victory. The fourth bout of Friday night's Professional Wrestling card marked the first occasion of legalized women wrestling in Belleville.

Industrials Teetering

The CN Yardmen and Morch Mariners are teetering on the edge of elimination in the Industrial Softball League semi - finals with Union Carbide and Mead Johnson ready to provide the final nudge.

The Yardmen dropped an 11-4 decision to Mead's Friday night to fall two games behind in the best - of - three semi - finals. Morch's face the same predicament after a 17-10 loss to pennant-winning Union Carbide.

Frank "Junior" Day was again the stopper for the Carbides, lasting seven innings and eight hits to pick up the win, his third straight of the play-offs. He fanned six and walked four.

Jack Hughes had two homers, Cliff Hineman punched three singles and a double and Garnet Bird two doubles and a single for the winners who scored in every inning but the seventh.

Wilson Bulpit started for Morch's going three and a third innings. He gave up 12 runs on 11 hits while fanning five. Glen Barberstock finished the game, allowing five runs on five hits. He also poled a home run for Morch's big blast. Larry Maracle and Bill MacCormack had a triple each for the losers.

Mead's scored five times in the first inning and never looked back as they picked up their second straight win. Sonny Holoway, the mainstay of the Mead pitching staff, picked up the win by allowing five hits while fanning 15 and walking two. Holoway also cranked a home run with Wayne Storms adding a triple and Tom O'Connell a double.

Rob McMurter was the only Yardmen batter to get to Holoway, connecting for two singles. Brian Plumbe was tazzed with the loss although giving up only five hits, as nine errors spelled defeat for the Trainmen.

Next games in both series will be Monday night with a double - header at the Alemite commencing at 6:30 p.m.

Homers Good Erasers

Dickens' Voyageurs had the chances but couldn't make anything of them as they dropped a 10-7 decision to Glen Miller in a Thurlow-Sidney Softball League semi-final game played in Stirling.

Rick Hill and Rick Peterson picked up the win for Glen Miller allowing eight hits. He fanned ten and walked the same number. Home runs made the difference for the winners with Les McGeachy, Ted Clapp and Rick Peterson each connecting for one in the four run sixth inning which erased a 7-6 Dickens lead.

Ralph Sine went the distance on the losers mound giving up 12 hits while fanning two and walking two. Don Berry smashed a homer in a losing effort while Stan Dafoe and Garney Brown had two safeties apiece.

Mavety Gets Sendoff

Larry Mavety describes his call to the Buffalo Sabres' National Hockey League training camp at St. Catherines next month as the "best chance of my life".

Under the critical eye of coach George "Punch" Imlach the big hard - hitting defenceman is being given the opportunity to prove his worth as an NHL regular. The camp opens Thursday, September 9 in St. Catharines.

Larry is the son of Thomas "Red" Mavety manager of a retail footwear outlet in the city. He's married and his wife Billie (nee Ross) and daughter Laurie, 4, and son Larry, 9, live in Belleville.

A native of Woodstock he played Junior hockey for Belleville, spent four years with various teams in the Semi - Pro International League. For the last, three years he was a star for the Denver Spurs in the Western Hockey League and was selected two seasons in a row for the League's second all-star team.

Last night about 50 friends and well - wishers attended a going-away party given in his honor at the Hastings and Prince Edward Sergeant's Mess. The get together was organized by Terry Bennett.

Autograph for Host

At a party given in his honor last night Larry Mavety, reporting to the Buffalo Sabres' training camp in September, expressed appreciation to host Terry Bennett by making him a present of an autographed hockey stick.

Best Greensmen To Be Decided

OSHAWA (CP) — New champions will be crowned at the Canadian lawn bowling championships scheduled here Monday to Wednesday.

Allen Anderson of Westmount, Que., last year's singles champion, has moved into fours competition this year and will skip the Quebec team in that event.

Minor Soccer Problem Resolved by Meeting

Belleville's Minor Soccer Association got out its iron last night and straightened out some difficulties plaguing the 400-boy organization at a special general meeting Friday.

The meeting, focusing on alleged breaches of conduct by the Falcons soccer organization and attended by Minor Sports Association President Tom Cavanagh and city recreation officials, was described by minor soccer president Bill Coveney as "satisfactorily resolving" the organization's problems.

A motion was approved that the Falcons' minor soccer entries will be known as Teams One, Two, and Three until the mandatory sponsorship funds are forthcoming.

Tennis No Exception To City Sport Rivalry

There are many Belleville-Kingston sports rivalries, and tennis is no exception to the rule.

Sunday sees the annual renewal of the men's singles and doubles Doug Grant Trophy competition, with the first half of the traditional home-and-home match being played at the Quinte Tennis Club on Queen St.

Representing Belleville will be Wayne Storms, Tom Findlay, Frank Farag, Mike Walcott, John Wiggett, Dr. "Buck" Bellamy, Allan Bellamy, Doug Grant, Gary Gestrix, Rob Woodley, Hubert Hicks, and Harold Hildebrand. The return bout in Kingston will be Sunday, Sept.-12.

Cablevue Pitchers Turn on Fan

Two winners were decided in Friday night's Belleville Minor Baseball play-offs when Cablevue took its second consecutive win and Plane's Concrete more than made up for its one mistake.

Cablevue advanced in the tadpole post - season activities by pumping Wannamaker's Esso 8-5 to win the series in straight games. Lorne Andrews and Mike Leger pitched the win allowing three hits and fanning 20.

Lyle Kelleher and Jim Gibbs were tagged with the loss for Wannamakers giving up seven hits and striking out 19.

The Plane's Concrete tadpoles reared back after a second game loss to blut Richard Ellis Printing 16-1 and take the best - of - three series two games to one.

Tony Parks and Brian Cruickshank struck out 19 and gave up only two hits in earning the win. Parks had a homer and three singles Blaine Waddell a homer, single and double and Scott Dafoe and Peter Goulah a homer each to pace Plane's 14 hit attack.

Jonathon Dent and James Forster fanned 13 in taking the loss.

In a peewee division game Farrell Motors forced a third and deciding game in their series by derailing the CN Yardmen 6-3. Farrell's picked up their runs on only three hits including a homer from Joe Molaski. Molaski also shared the pitching duties with Howie Coons and Clyde Routley to combine for a one hitter.

Two Titles at Stake

Two Bay of Quinte Country Club golf championships are at stake this weekend, but only one of them is likely to be more than a formality.

Dave Jones, club champion in 1967 and 1968, goes into the final 36 holes of the 72-hole men's medal event tied with Jim McCreary at 153, two strokes ahead of the remainder of the 16-finalist field.

Meanwhile Betty Ingrash, winner of the club women's title for the past 12 years, had virtually sewn up her 13th with a 79-80 in her first two of three rounds to determine the women's club championship.

Going into Sunday's third and final round, Mrs. Ingram holds a 19-shot edge on runner-up Fran Bannon. The women's battle should be for third place, with only one stroke separating Anne Acton, Ena Corke, and Betty Walmsley.

A's Lose Once in Blue Moon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland Athletics lose once in a while, but hardly ever when Vida Blue pitches.

It was one of those once-in-a-blue-moon times Friday night.

"The game is history, there'll be lots more," said the star southpaw after losing only his fifth game of the year—a 1-0 heart-breaker to Boston Red Sox.

The loss can be excusable for Blue, who has never been defeated more than once a month this year as he stormed upon the scene from a baseball nobody.

In Friday night's other American League games, California Angels stopped New York Yankees 6-0; Detroit Tigers nudged Milwaukee Brewers 3-2; Chicago White Sox bombed Cleveland Indians 9-1; Minnesota Twins topped Baltimore Orioles 6-5 and Washington Senators took a doubleheader from Kansas City Royals, 6-3 and 8-2.

Blue allowed only two hits before giving up a leadoff single to Billy Conigliaro in the eighth. Then the roof fell in as Duane Josephson sacrificed and reached first base on an error. Pitcher Gary Peters then sacrificed both runners along and Doug Griffin singled in the winning run.

Jim Spencer slugged a three-run homer and Rudy May pitched a five-hitter, leading California over New York. May was helped out by four double plays and the Yankees contributed to their own downfall with three errors.

Dick McAuliffe broke up Bill Parson's no-hit bid with a leadoff single in the seventh inning and Al Kaline crashed a three-run homer later in the inning for Detroit's winning margin over Milwaukee.

Division Lead Shrinking

Pirates May be Forced to Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With Oakland and Baltimore making the American League division chases almost academic and San Francisco Giants threatening to do the same in the National League West, baseball is in desperate need of a race and Pittsburgh Pirates may just oblige.

The Pirates ran into Ross Grimsley Friday night and the Cincinnati southpaw tamed them 6-0. Combined with Chicago Cubs' 3-2 and 5-4 doubleheader sweep against Houston Astros, it shrank Pittsburgh's NL East edge to 4½ games.

Elsewhere in the NL—Friday, Montreal Expos trimmed San Francisco 4-1, San Diego Padres shaded New York Mets 3-2, Atlanta Braves edged St. Louis Cardinals 6-5 in 12 innings and Los Angeles Dodgers rapped Philadelphia Phillies 9-5.

The Pirates have spent two months in first place but their record lately hasn't exactly frightened off challengers. For example, of the last 31 games, the Pirates' log has read 11-20 and that's hardly scary for the teams behind them.

Grimsley permitted just four hits Friday night and the Reds used two-run homers by Tony Perez and Lee May to make his task easy.

Meanwhile, the Cubs are making things interesting.

Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native, reached 20 victories for the fifth successive season in the opener of the doubleheader with Johnny Callison slugging a three-run homer for the Cubs. Jenkins was nicked for two runs in the first inning, but allowed Houston only six hits after that, reaching 20 victories earlier than he ever has before. No pitcher has strung five straight 20-win seasons since Warren Spahn did it from 1956-60.

In the second game, J. C. Martin delivered a two-run double in the eighth inning to move Chicago to its sweep.

Billy Williams had a two-run homer for Chicago in the nightcap and Callison started the Cubs' winning rally with a walk. He raced to third on Glen James' hit and then both runners scored on Martin's double.

Richie Allen cracked three hits, including a three-run homer as the Dodgers ripped the Phillies and chopped a game off San Francisco's West Division lead.

Allen's towering 450-foot homer got the Dodgers started and he drove in another run in LA's four-run eighth. Deron Johnson hit his 18th homer for the Phillies.

The victory and Montreal's triumph over San Francisco trimmed Los Angeles' West Division deficit to 6½ games.

Bill Stoneman's four-hitter beat the Giants with home runs by Jim Fairey and Ron Fairly supplying the Expo offence.

San Diego snapped an eight-inning tie on Ollie Brown's two-run double and held on to edge the Mets with reliever Al Severinsen snuffing out a ninth-inning New York rally.

Hank Aaron hit his 32rd home run and the 625th of his career but the Braves had to struggle 12 innings to edge the Cardinals.

Fergy Gets His Five

CHICAGO (AP) — Fergusen Jenkins is far from satisfied despite five consecutive 20 game victory seasons.

"I've got a sealed envelope in there with the number of victories I'm shooting for," said the towering Chicago Cubs' right-hander pointing to his locker after he had defeated Houston 3-2 Friday for his 20th victory of the 1971 season.

"I'll show it after the season. But I'm still a long way from that number."

A good guess is that Jenkins, a Chatham, Ont. native, is aiming for 27 or 28 victories.

Should he reach his goal—he will get about 10 more starts—he would far surpass his career high of 22 victories, posted last year. He won 21 in 1969 and 20 in both 1968 and 1967.

Thus is the earliest he has ever reached the 20 victory mark.

He is the first Cub pitcher to accumulate five straight 20-victory seasons since Mordecai (Three-Finger) Brown won 20 or more games six years in a row from 1906-11. And he is the first major leaguer to do it since Warren Spahn of the Braves racked off six in a row from 1956-61.

The victory was Jenkins' third in a row, his ninth in 10 games and gave him an over all record of 20-9.

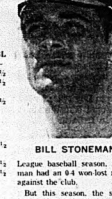
Stoneman Avenged

MONTREAL (CP) — One of the biggest problems Bill Stoneman had in his first two years as a starter with Montreal Expos was finding a method to beat San Francisco Giants.

Going into the 1971 National League baseball season, Stoneman had an 0-4 won-lost record against the club.

But this season, the spunky Montreal right-hander has been able to achieve some measure of success against the Giants, winning twice and losing once. The lost came last week when he was beaten 1-0 by Juan Marichal in a pitching duel.



Friday night, Stoneman avenged his defeat to the high-kicking Marichal, tossing a four-hitter as the Expos downed the Giants 4-1.

Stoneman, now 14-13, struck out nine and walked six men while his team-mates collected nine off Marichal who lost his ninth game in 21 decisions.

The first hit collected off the Montreal pitcher was Ken Henderson's 14th homer of the season in the third inning. Mac Covey added a single later in the inning and then the Giants were held down until the seventh when Jim Ray Hart and Russ Gibson each drilled singles.

Meanwhile, the Expos reached Marichal for two runs in the third when Jim Fairey lined a screwball over the right field fence driving in Ron Fairly.

Fairly provided Stoneman with the Expos' final two runs, socking his 11th homer of the year in the seventh end bringing in Boots Day with an infield single in the eighth.

Homenuik Happy With Consistency

SASKATOON (CP) — Wilf Homenuik, cautious on the greens and happy with his consistency, took a one-stroke lead into the third round of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament today.

The Winnipeg veteran fired a two-under-par 68 Friday for a 36-hole total of 133, seven under par, in the $25,000 competition with $5,0000 going to the winner.

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday.

"The course played a little tougher and it was the wind that made it that way," said Homenuik who had a sizzling five under par 64 on the par-70, 6,311-yard Saskatoon Golf and Country Club course Thursday.

"I'm happy that I'm playing consistent golf," said Homenuik, a regular on the United States PGA tour and who has pocketed about $19,000 this year.

"I take a cautious approach to the greens at all times. Some guys take those little two and three-foot putts for granted—not me. They're the ones that make you money."

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's female track stars, fresh from bubbling success at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, will be shooting the works again this weekend at the Canadian track and field championships.

The harvest of gold, silver and bronze medals reaped at the Games will be forgotten in the two-day event as both male and female track stars vie for Canadian titles, a possible chance at next month's dual track meet in Italy and a spot in the 1972 Olympics.

Anglo-Canadian Links To Be Studied at Meet

LONDON (CP) — Whether Anglo-Canadian relations are withering on the vine—and how to water the plant—are subjects to be given a quiet, private airing at a special conference here.

Brainchild of John Holmes of Toronto, head of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, the weekend gathering Sept. 3-5 is described by its sponsors as the first of its kind in post-war years.

Former prime minister Lester Pearson and Britain's high commissioner to Canada, Sir Peter Hayman, will be among the four dozen participants. Included will be academics, government officials and some military experts.

London merchant-banker Edmund de Rotschild will be a guest. So will Arnold Smith, Canada and, say, Spain and Mexico.

These latter countries have drifted apart, caught in different spheres and beset by different interests and values.

Buchan doesn't think Canada and Britain are going the same way though he is concerned by the reflection of diverging interests in the press of the two countries.

Lord Garner, a former British high commissioner in Ottawa, says communications may be one of the key problems. A lot of British news appears in Canadian newspapers but little Canadian news gets into the British press. He says he will raise that point at the conference.

Garner, a retired diplomat who is chairman of the Commonwealth Institute, suggests Anglo-Canadian relations became tangled about a quarter-century ago when Britain cut imports after the Second World War and this built up resentment in Canada, a major supplier.

Garner says he has the feeling that Canada and Britain are no longer working with their feet in the same ground. Canada has taken the critical side in relation to Britain's policies on Rhodesia and South Africa. Britain has tended to be critical of Canada's recession of NATO forces in Europe.

"These are differences in emphasis," he suggested in an interview.

Trade Surplus Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's surplus in commodity trade with the United States rose to $634.5 million in the first seven months of this year, compared with $413.5 million in the same period of 1970, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

The country's surplus with all countries was down, however, to $1.4 billion from $1.54 billion by the end of July last year.

The big surplus in commodity trade for Canada in its dealings with the United States prompts U.S. authorities to view this as an outflow of American funds.

President Nixon last weekend last Sunday to arrest the outflow by imposing a stiff 10-per-cent extra tax on American imports.

Woman Given Poison

TORONTO (CP) — Geraldine Heighes, 46, of Owen Sound, died Feb. 20, 1970 in Toronto after being given strychnine poison by a "person or persons unknown," a coroner a jury ruled Friday.

The five man jury followed the recommendation of Coroner Dr. David Marshall that no criminal allegations should be made against anyone, but recommended that retail sale of the poison be banned.

Mrs. Heighes' husband, Rae, 56, apparently shot himself in his Owen Sound home Aug. 6, a few hours before he was to have testified at the inquest into her death.

In addition to its recommendation to ban retail sale of the poison, the jury also suggested gelatine capsules containing drugs be sealed so no one can tamper with them.

Evidence showed that Mrs. Heighes' diet pills could have been filled with strychnine. She told a friend and doctors the morning she went into convulsions on a Toronto bus that she had taken one earlier.

"The only thing I understood about it was that the tickets cost us four bucks!"

Father Says Mounties Ruined His Son's Life

TORONTO (CP) — The father of a Cornwall-area youth says his son's life was ruined because he was a paid informer for the RCMP.

The RCMP "praised him up and gave him more and more money and he got so it was easier to be an informer than to work," the father said in a telephone interview from Cornwall. "He was getting this apparently-easy money instead of going to school and training for a decent job."

The son's name was in a document received Thursday by Dr. Morton Shulman, New Democratic member of the legislature for High Park. The document purports to be part of an RCMP list of paid informers in eastern Ontario and New York State, stolen from the Long Sault RCMP detachment May 6. Long Sault is a few miles west of Cornwall.

Dr. Shulman said a man, whom he knows only as Mr. C., telephoned him last Monday and said he would send proof that the RCMP has teen-agers on its payroll.

In a television interview the previous day, federal Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said the force does not. He also said the RCMP accepts information from teen-agers on a casual basis but notifies their parents if that happens more than twice.

The Cornwall man said the RCMP never contacted him about their arrangement with his son.

He said the son, who now is 21, has moved to a large city, drifts from job to job, and has little contact with his family.

The father said he and his wife first became suspicious of their son's activities two or three years ago.

They were suspicious of the amount of money the youth seemed to have but didn't discover its source until about 1½ years ago, when he was beaten up by associates who discovered that he was telling the police about drug trafficking and use.

"I told him that an informer was the most terrible thing on earth to be. If someone did something wrong I would want to see justice done, but for him it was just the money."

Dr. Shulman said he forwarded the document to Mr. Goyer Friday. Papers received with it referred to a 15-year-old and a 22-year-old informer.

Marijuana Patch Raided

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities are so concerned about raids on a research patch of marijuana here that they have called a news conference for Monday to appeal for help.

"We want the press to realize that this is not like a Hallowe'en prank or stealing apples from an orchard," Dr. A. B. Morrison, deputy director-general, food and drug directorate, said Friday.

There have been several "raids" on the guarded patch, growing on the federal experimental farm in the capital's southwest end.

Notations next to the name of the Cornwall-area youth showed 11 payments from April 25, 1969, when he was 18 years old, to March 31, 1970.

One payment was for $10, seven for $25, one for $30, one for $40 and one for $50.

The file on the 15-year-old informer gave the boy's name, age, address, school, and the fact that at that time he had been supplying information on a casual basis for two months.

It said the boy has connections in Cornwall and "access to records of people coming and going. . . . He is also accepted and well known by the 'hippie' element and therefore, he has good potential as an informant."

The figure who identifies himself only as Mr. C. first tried to sell documents stolen from the Long Sault detachment to Dr. Shulman about two weeks after the theft. On May 29, the Toronto Star reported that it had been offered documents but had rejected the offer. On July 7, The Globe and Mail reported a similar offer and rejection.

10,000 Armed Workers March on La Paz

LA PAZ (AP) — The rebel radio said today that 10,000 armed workers are marching on this Bolivian capital to support the uprising against the leftist military government of President Juan Jose Torres.

The radio, broadcasting from the eastern city of Santa Cruz where the insurrection began Thursday, said the insurgents have military control of six of Bolivia's nine provinces. It warned government supporters that further resistance "will be useless."

The government radio countered that Torres is ready to defend his regime "unto the end" against the "uprising of fascists." The president met in La Paz with his cabinet and high-ranking military officers in an effort to solve the growing crisis.

Rock Festival Injunction Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Chief Justice Dalton Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court will rule Tuesday on a motion by the Ontario attorney-general's department for an interim injunction banning a rock festival near Orangeville on the Labor Day weekend.

Mr. Justice Wells said Friday in court that trial of the issue for a permanent injunction banning rock festivals in the area should be expedited.

He said it is likely to be a lengthy trial, "possibly lasting 10 days," and it is in the public interest to have it heard as soon as possible.

The attorney-general's department says a festival held in July near Orangeville was destructive and disturbing to area residents.

La Paz, the seat of the government, remained under government control as workers loyal to Torres demonstrated in the streets. A series of explosions that went off Friday night and Saturday morning were "demonstrating their loyalty," the government radio said.

The Bolivian Workers Confederation, the major union that helped bring Torres to power in a coup last Oct. 6, reported that the cabinet has turned down the labor federation's request to arm workers.

The union said it will form commando units to get arms and organize its own resistance to the insurrection.

All Sectors of Canadian Stock Markets Lower

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Uncertainties surrounding the continued progress of the Canadian economy, following an announcement of severe economic policy changes by the United States, sent prices in all sectors of Canadian stock markets lower this week.

Industrial issues were the hardest hit by the new duty. Beverage issues, in particular, suffered sharp declines. Major distillers in Canada export much of their product to the U.S.

On the week, the Toronto beverage sub-index lost 13.59 points to 302.16.

Gold issues on Canadian markets dropped sharply lower, reflecting the unstable situation on international bullion markets. The U.S. announced it would no longer support gold at $35 an ounce, a level it had maintained for 27 years. Trading on bullion markets was active and prices dropped lower on the week.

At Toronto, the gold index registered its sharpest one-week decline of the year-o-7.92 points to 181.76.

Oil and gas issues reacted favorably to the new U.S. economic policies. Raw materials are exempt from the new duty.

By mid-week, however, prices began turning lower, and on the week the Toronto western oil index was down 1.33 points to 234.12.

More People Riding Horses
Today Than Did During
The Hey-Day of Wyatt Earp!

Maybe it is the increased leisure time maybe it is the worry of modern living — whatever the reason, there is a definite trend toward horsemanship awareness; but it is a fact that more people are riding horses today than at any other time in our history.

And more horses are being bought and sold through the Classified columns of our newspapers than ever before.

If you are interested in buying or selling a horse or equipment and you live in Belleville, Trenton, Quinte West, Picton, Brighton or Campbellford, just dial to place your ad by 962-9171 and let the classified do the rest.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Opinions Differ On Breast-feeding

Mothers continue to differ. Some are in favor of breast-feeding, while others prefer bottle - feeding.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Mrs. R.'s letter was wonderful. It expresses my feelings exactly. I am delighted that you have letters on breast - feeding in your column from time to time. This subject is not given enough attention.

I have one child whom I breast-fed for nine months. A woman is never more feminine than when she is giving to have a child or is nursing one.

I think every mother owes it to her child to at least try breast feeding. If she fails she should not feel guilty, she has done her best. I think a lot of Americans have an unhealthy attitude toward breast-feeding. I think we would see a lot more happy women and families if this custom were followed. —Mrs. L.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I breast-fed our twin girls for 10 months. Although I am small busted, I never needed to supplement the milk supply.

It it is true that breast-fed babies are more tranquil than bottle-fed babies, I suggest that it is because mothers (and fathers) who favor breast - feeding are likely to have a more wholesome attitude toward their bodies and bodily functions than those who oppose breast - feeding.

Thus, I think it is not the mother's milk that produces a tranquil baby, but the mother's attitudes and mental health. — Mrs. H.

* * *

Now for some expressions from mothers who believe in bottles:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I feel I must confess my feelings on the subject. I have five children, ages 8 to 20, and I can still remember the distressing experience I had in attempting to nurse my first baby after reading how "beneficial" it is.

After six weeks of attempting to satisfy a hungry, screaming baby and wondering whether he had had enough (obviously he had not), I gave up. I believe that when a mother breast - feeds her infant, she ties herself down for nine months. If you stop nursing sooner, you must wean from breast to bottle to cup.

So what if you do have to sterilize bottles and open a can of formula? Is that work? Maybe good old grandma will relieve you for a weekend while you get away from it all with dear neglected hubby (who might also give baby his 2 a.m. feedings on weekends and relieve you).

Emotional health? My children are emotionally healthy. No hippies. Two are college students, but not protesters.

Maybe the hospitals influenced me. I went to three different ones and only one in 20 mothers nursed their babies. In fact, you had to request it, or it was assumed your infant would be bottle - fed. The only advantage of nursing in my opinion is the economical one, plus less trouble for some who are too lazy to do bottles. — Mrs. C.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I feel that with all the modern formulas available for the infant and the immunity shots and vitamins, the bottle - fed baby can be as healthy as the one who is breast-fed. As far as emotional security is concerned, a devoted bottle - feeding mother can give as much as a breast - feeding mother.

I have had a few of these righteous mothers breast-feed their children in my home, in front of my husband, with no thought of covering up because they felt they were doing a natural thing!

To sum up, breast - feeding is fine for those who like it, but I wish they would not try to make the rest of us feel as though we are neglecting our children. Thank you for letting me get this off my chest. (excuse the pun) as I have been wanting to shout this for a long time. — Mrs. B.

Rain Helps Check Sydney Vandalism

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Businessmen patrolling their premises and a heavy rainstorm combined Friday night to eliminate much of the vandalism that shook this industrial city 24 hours earlier in the wake of a strike by police.

Drunken youths carrying bottles still strolled through downtown streets, but the damage they caused was cut down by the vigilance of store owners.

Early this morning, police reported that eight windows had been broken but no merchandise had been stolen.

And the racing cars that terrified motorists and pedestrians Thursday night were all but absent from city streets.

Police, on a legal strike for higher pay, said Friday that they had added drag racing, running of red lights and screeching of tires to the list of offences they would deal with during the strike.

Earlier, police announced they would provide only emergency service in cases where there was a threat to human life.

A police spokesman said the rain did much to cut down the drag racing.

"They didn't have an audience tonight," he said. "That's all they really want."

A crowd of up to 2,000 youths watched Thursday night as downtown streets were turned into drag strips, store windows were smashed and goods stolen and at least 29 persons received minor injuries in car accidents and fights.

Fifty-six policemen, members of Local 738 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, began the first legal strike by law officers in Canada at 2 p.m. Thursday.

"We don't have much choice," said Steve Sherman, standing in front of the plywood panel hurriedly installed Friday night after a plate glass window was broken in his shoe store.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 22

Your birthday today: Open an average year of normal growth — nothing fails to change. The direction of change is partly a matter of prayer and meditation. The amount of change is up to you. Strive for a balanced life now. Today's natives tend to be strong willed, somewhat unpredictable people who live as if life itself were an experiment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): In doing your share of your community's Sunday chores, you encounter good advice, counsel which goes a long way toward resolving personal hindrances.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): A full and active program awaits you. With surprises and belated extra demands, you are quite free to continue helping as long as you're willing.

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): Coincidence or luck brings you a rare chance for special observation, to learn something startling fresh about yourself and others.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The light touch brings more and better results this Sunday. Making all the rounds with only a short stay at any one stop helps everybody.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Surely you can look back and see how narrow some of your tight spots have been, and how fortunate you are to be doing so well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Whatever is asked of you now promises to be rare and of unusual meaning somewhere, perhaps a symbol unwittingly presented for your inspiration.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Check carefully to see you've slighted nobody. At least one sensitive soul near you needs your recognition. Affirm your faith.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Be busy early and late to clear your schedule for impending change, new activities. Half-done work not only brings no reward, it can be embarrassing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Do your share to create a serene and peaceful Sunday by prayer and general courtesy. A chore skipped may be done as well at another time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Let this day be as uneventful as you can make it. Study, meditation produce deep, subtle rewards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): There's nothing like calm good humor for the minor quagmires of this moderate Sunday. Leave ambitious moves for the work week coming up.

For August 23

Your birthday today: The Sun leaves the sign Leo at 3:18 p.m. EDT to enter Virgo. In other years the time of this change is different. Both Leos and Virgos born today face a year of serious but subtle questions — no answers come easily or from ordinary logic. Today's natives are studious, friendly, apt to seek diversions at any moment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The work week opens with confusion, delay, and noise. Be patient, unsurprised. Your tranquility leads others well 'as things come to better order in the afternoon.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): An early bugaboo settles to just another routine gambit as you muddle through a slowstarting day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There's no hiding a romantic interest now. People tease and get tiny little or no response pass on to other questions by and by. Keep yourself busy.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): An appeal to your sympathy seems probable, and this time may be subtle and plausible, involving several people. Reflect before involving yourself.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A morning bargain is anything but, although by evening a real one shows up. If an added feature helps an earlier proposal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Being right in the midst of a squabble can be truly difficult. You can't quit, nor is it good to go on to a quarrel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Getting back on the job is a rest once you've gone past the morning thresh-outs and probable delays. Do the minimum so as to get yourself a better break.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Go beyond just listening and watching; ask questions and follow them up to check answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Whatever you left on hand to do is now in the way of fresh, unexpected details and chores. Nothing for it but to pitch in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The onus stops at your door or desk without warning. You should have good answers ready on any pending issues or projects.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Once you verify the morning's news and get corrections in, review your whole program.

Plane Missing After Storm

WELLAND (CP) — A search intensified on the north and south shores of the Niagara Peninsula today for a light plane apparently with three persons aboard reported missing in a thunderstorm Sunday night.

At least two deaths were attributed to a brief but violent storm that ripped through southern and western Ontario

At Niagara Falls, Thomas Coyne, 46, of Kenmore, N.Y. was killed when struck by lightning as he waited his turn to putt on the 18th green of the Willo-Dell golf course.

Provincial Police at Port Burwell, 30 miles southeast of London, said a child was electrocuted by touching a fallen power line.

Provincial police from St. Catharines and Burlington joined Niagara regional police in the search for a Cessna 182, en route to Toronto Island airport from Mansfield, Ohio, when it was reported missing.

In addition, an air-sea rescue unit from CFB Trenton and the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Spendrift were searching the south shore of Lake Ontario and the cutter Spume the south shore of Lake Erie.

Nixon Thinks Alone

SAN CELEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Aides say President Nixon made important economic decisions during the weekend at the western White House. But they aren't saying what the president decided. They report Sunday that Nixon relayed a number of decisions by telephone Saturday to Treasury Secretary John Connally in Washington. The treasury chief heads the new Cost of Living Council that is supervising the current 90-day wage - price - rent freeze.

There was no immediate word as to whether Nixon had been most involved in current controversies—such as anti-freeze opposition by AFL-CIO President George Meany and Democratic Gov. Preston Smith of Texas—or with the council's initial efforts to plan restraints extending beyond the scheduled Nov. 12 expiration of the freeze.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said only that Nixon is taking advantage of a two-week stay at his ocean side home here to "think about" and do "massive reading" on economic matters, the federal budget and his journey to Peking sometime before next May.

In Texas Gov. Smith said he will obey the courts if they rule he cannot implement a state employes' pay raise despite Nixon's wage-price freeze. But the governor repeated Sunday that he thinks the President cannot override the state law permitting the Sept. 1 raises.

The justice department has said it will file suit this week to prevent the pay increases.

Smith said he would obey a possible temporary injunction pending appeal and "if the courts hold with them (the government), well of course we'll have no alternative."

As Smith spoke on CBS, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama told an NBC panel that raises of state employees and teachers should go into effect. But he said he would not defy the government on that point.

Bolivian Rightists In Power

But Col. Hugo Banzer, sworn in Sunday night as president, said his government would forswear the words left and right and "speak only of nationalism."

Banzer, who made an unsuccessful bid for the presidency when the regime of Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia was ousted in October and Gen. Torres emerged victorious, pledged his government would strive to improve the lot of Bolivians.

Dollar Decline Is Only Minor

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar slipped slightly in money markets today when trading resumed after a week of monetary crisis.

British dealers effectively revalued the Japanese yen by 11¾ per cent, quoting the rate of 317 yen for one dollar compared with the official rate in Tokyo of 360.

British dealers effectively revalued the Japanese yen by slightly more than 10 per cent, quoting the rate of 325¼ yen for one dollar compared with the official rate in Tokyo of 360.

Where the dollar eased in European markets, notably in Zurich, Brussels and in London against the British pound, the declines were relatively minor.

Dealers warned though that trading everywhere was cautious and turnover was minor. "The big boys are waiting to see what happens," one London market source said.

For the first time in 27 years money exchanges were operating without an internationally-agreed set of rules.

In London, the first European market to open, the U.S. dollar was exchanged between $2.45 and $2.46, which amounted to a cut in the value of the American currency of about 1¼ per cent.

The last quotation before President Nixon's momentous action cutting the ties between the dollar and gold was -2.4194. That was at the close of business Aug. 13.

Dealers in London said trading was quiet and hesitant.

One London dealer said: "No one is at all certain just where things will go."

A few minutes after the opening, the dollar strengthened slightly, to $2.44 for one pound only to drop back again to $2.45.

Berlin Accord Reached

BERLIN (Reuter) — Ambassadors of the Big Four powers reached agreement today on the draft of a first post-Second World War Berlin settlement.

Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov told correspondents waiting outside the residence of United States Ambassador Kenneth Rush: "The matter is complete."

Rush said: "We have the text of an agreement which we are submitting to our governments."

Rush added: "This agreement represents a real improvement for Berlin. We are very much in favor of it and believe it is a very good agreement, otherwise we would not be submitting it to our governments."

British Ambassador Sir Roger Jackling called the agreement an entirely reasonable conclusion to the negotiations, which have lasted for 18 months.

French envoy Jean Sauvagnargues said in response to reporters' questions: "If we were not satisfied with the draft, we would not be submitting it to our governments."

Ky Refuses to Run In Vietnam Election

SAIGON (AP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky's refusal to participate in the Oct. 3 presidential election plunged South Vietnam today into its gravest political crisis since the Buddhist uprisings of 1966.

Ky proposed that he and President Nguyen Van Thieu both resign from office to pave the way for a new election. He said this was the only way "to avoid the prospects of dark days in the history of the nation."

There was no immediate comment from the presidential palace, but political observers doubted that Thieu would agree to Ky's proposal.

Officials at the western White House in San Clemente, Calif., also expressed regret but indicate the U.S. government still hopes Thieu will face more than token opposition.

Radio Hanoi said the Supreme Court's reversal putting Ky back on the ballot was a "farce ordered by President Nixon in a vain attempt to give the appearance of legality" to the election.

Despite Ky's refusal to campaign, his name will appear on the ballot in accordance with the election law's provision that "candidates do not have the right to withdraw" after the Supreme Court's final posting of the election list.

Ky told a news conference that the Supreme Court, which had barred him from the ballot Aug. 3 and reinstated him Aug. 21, "was unabashedly used to serve the political ambitions" of Thieu.

Farm Union Head Held In PEI

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Further action by protesting Prince Edward Island farmers against the province's farm policies will be announced today at a news conference here by Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union.

The Saskatoon organizer was charged Saturday with "conspiracy to intimidate" after farmers, for the second straight day, blocked the main access route to P.E.I. by moving tractors and trucks on to the highway outside the CN ferry terminal at Borden.

Mr. Atkinson was jailed briefly, then released on $500 bail and is to appear in court at Summerside, P.E.I., Tuesday morning.

There were no demonstrations Sunday when representatives of the farmers met with M.R Atkinson to discuss the next move in the dispute which centres on government farm policies. The meeting was closed, but a spokesman said later farmers would continue to press for their demands.

The issues in the dispute include lower registration fees, long-term, low-interest loans, legislation to abolish corporate farming and the right to use marked gasoline in farm trucks.

Five Die in San Quentin Breakout

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — The San Francisco Chronicle reported today that an Oakland lawyer is being sought for questioning after Saturday's bloody breakout try at San Quentin prison in which Soledad Brother George Jackson and five others died.

The paper said prison authorities identified him as Stephen Mitchell Bingham, 29, and said he was the lawyer who visited Jackson Saturday afternoon.

The Chronicle said Bingham is a grandson of the late Hiram Bingham who served as Connecticut governor and U.S. senate before his death in 1956.

The Chronicle said prison authorities reported that Jackson, minutes after leaving Bingham in the visiting room, produced a nine-millimetre pistol and launched his abortive escape attempt.

The paper quoted prison sources as saying:

"We know he (Jackson) was clean when he entered the visiting room—he underwent a strip search — and that on leaving he was not out of sight of his guards.

"And he was hot — he had a gun — When the guards were about to search him again."

Prison officials say they now believe a San Quentin guard's concerned curiosity may have triggered Jackson into starting the escape try earlier than he and fellow convicts had planned.

The guard and Jackson were among six men killed Saturday in what prison officers call San Quentin's "blackest, bloodiest day."

Sergeant Jere Graham was shot in the forehead when he went inside the maximum security adjustment centre, apparently to check on why other guards had failed to emerge, Associate Warden James Park said Sunday.

Jackson, 29, flashing a foreign-made pistol, was cut down by rifle fire from a guard tower as he and another black convict dashed toward a 20-foot wall.

Four other victims—two guards and two convicts—were found covered with blood in Jackson's cell, some with their throats cut. All the dead but Jackson were white.

Prison officials earlier reported that all five white victims, including Graham, had fires, including Graham, had been slashed to death.

Someone—possibly Jackson—threw an automatic switch which unlocked all the first-floor cells. This unloosed 27 prisoners, including the two other Soledad Brothers given that name after they were charged with killing a guard in Soledad prison, and Ruchell Magee, a black accused of murder conspiracy with black militant Angela Davis in a Marin County courthouse shoot out last year that took the lives of four persons, including a judge.

Half an Inch

Rain Late for Crops

It came too late to benefit much of this year's crop production, but the more than half an inch of rain which fell Sunday over the Quinte area was nevertheless welcomed.

Officials at the city water filtration plant in West Belleville reported that 32 inch of rain fell in the city over a 12-hour period and the rain was general throughout the county.

This brought the rainfall at Tweed so far this month to 1.02 inch. The normal rainfall for August, is three inches.

But aside from its benefit to still growing crops, the rain was also welcomed by the lands and forests department which reported only three fires burning as compared to eight last week.

Biggest blaze was in Sheffield Township where eight acres were reported burning and two smaller fires in Kaladar and Marmora Townships.

Attendance Is Disappointing But Exhibition On Plus Side

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The 150th anniversary of the Quinte Exhibition closed its doors Saturday, falling short by drawing 6,000 fewer people than the previous year.

Security guards, stationed at the entrances claim, "the attendance was strong the first day but declined drastically each day after"

Exhibition manager Ev Gowsell explained, "Several factors led to the lower attendance figure this year. Perhaps the greatest single factor was the opening of the new mall. If the people are there they can't be here."

Although this year's celebration was important as an anniversary, the format of the event remained unchanged. Statistics of the exhibition show that it was almost a carbon copy of the previous year.

"The exhibition was equally good in all facets except attendance," claimed Mr. Gowsell.

There were 328 exhibitors at this year's event ranging from car sales to livestock shows.

"Because this was an anniversary year, we had hoped to set an attendance record," said Mr. Gowsell. "Another factor that hurt the attendance was the heat and humidity during the week."

"Even though the fair attendance figures do not compare too closely with last year, we are ahead of last year as far as profit is concerned," said an exhibition organizer.

This year admission to enter the exhibition was raised by approximately 50 cents. This increase in admission was to cover the cost of the grandstand shows. Once in the grounds, there was no further cost to enter the buildings and displays.

"The books are not closed yet, so an exact figure cannot be released on the financial status of the exhibition," said Mr. Gowsell

"On the whole, we feel that the event ran smoothly, and no complaints were heard from exhibitors or crowd. The midway was probably the best that has entered the city and all is well with the administration. The mall hurt us quite a bit and at any other time a greater success would have been felt," said Mr. Gowsell.

The fairgrounds have been restored to order by Belleville work crews with the massive clean up job completed Sunday.

Local Man Plays Role On Awards Board

The number of eligible claim applications received for consideration by the Ontario Law Enforcement Compensation Board is increasing rapidly, as shown in the board report for the year 1970.

During 1969, an average of six eligible applications a month were received. In 1970 this average figure had increased to 20.5 a month and during the first four months this year had risen to an average of 34 a month.

Last year a total of 247 applications were received of which 122 were found worth awards being granted for a total of $144,463.

During the first three months of this year 44 board decisions were made which resulted in awards totalling $105,507.

The Law Enforcement Compensation Act came into force on April 1, 1968, its purpose being to provide for compensation where a person was killed or injured while assisting a peace officer.

Then in 1969, the act was amended to allow compensation to be paid not only where a person is killed or injured assisting a peace officer but also where the person is simply the victim of a crime.

Last year, compensation awards were paid by the province in 87 cases of assault with bodily harm, 41 cases of assault; 19 cases of robbery with violence, 12 cases of stabbing and in seven cases of rape.

The average award given has been $2,020. The highest was $8,632, given to a rape victim.

Fred B. Deacon of Belleville has been a member of the board since it was formed in 1968.

Roy Higgins Directs Play at La Poudriere

Roy Higgins, a former director of the Belleville Theatre Guild, is currently directing Dark of the Moon, a classic American folk fantasy at La Poudriere, the Montreal International Theatre. He had directed the same play in Belleville in 1969.

"Dark of the Moon is a fantasy combining music, drama and comedy" said Mme. Jeanine Beaubien, director of La Poudriere, who became familiar to Belleville theatre goers when she adjudicated the Eastern Ontario drama festival held in March this year at Centennial Secondary School.

The premiere of Dark of the Moon in Montreal is slated for Sept. 8. "With a cast of 35 members it promises to be a highlight of the current Montreal theatre season" said Mme. Beaubien.

She also announced that Mr. Higgins will be continuing with the Montreal International Theatre in the fall and winter with additional professional duties for the company.

Happiness Said to Be Sobriety

That happiness is another word for sobriety was advocated by Tom B. of Winnipeg, the guest speaker at the 14th annual Quinte district Alcoholics Anonymous conference held at McMeekin College in the city Sunday.

From his first drink of beer at 14 he related how alcohol started him on a "binge" that lasted 14 years. He was 26 when he discovered the AA way of living as a "recovering alcoholic" he said. He pictured himself as a teen age rebel in the early '40s, maintaining that youth with their problems today are no worse than the young people of his time. "And they'll (young malcontents) always be with our society," he reminded his listeners.

Better communication between parents and their children is the first and most important step in helping them to readjust, he claimed.

Representing the city was Alderman Gerald Joyce and his wife along with Chief Constable D. Crosbie and his wife.

The conference, growing in numbers each year, was attended by 350 local and out-of-town members. Some visitors came by car from as far away as Quebec and the United States.

Village Celebrates 50th Anniversary

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Crowds which swelled from dozens to hundreds turned out to salute this village's 50th anniversary of incorporation this weekend.

Although crowning of 16-year - old Debbie Mather as Anniversary Teen Queen took place Friday, Aug. 20, at a special teen dance, the celebrations were officially kicked off with a half-mile parade Saturday at 1 p.m.

Flags lolling on standards in humidity - heavy, sub-90 degree temperatures, were nonetheless born proudly by an eyecatching equestrian mig, who led the march, and clowns in grease paint and paper-mache faces who braved the heat to entertain youngsters.

Sponsored by the Frankford Recreation Committee, the weekend events included a band concert with the Trenton Citizen's Band performing at the arena; a baby contest won by four - month - old Tod Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Gordon of RR 2, Trenton, in the under 12-months category, and Traci Phillips, 21 - month - old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Phillips of Frankford, in the 12-months to two year class; minor baseball games, open house at the Frankford Public School; square dancing exhibition by the Frankford Square Dance Club; a teen-dance in the arena's Centennial Room to the music of Smokey Nelson; a torchlight sportsmen parade and trooping off the Saturday events, a selection of a 50-year queen. Each of these latter contestants born in 1921, received a copy of Historic Hastings, by Gerald Boyce.

On Sunday the Frankford Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion held its Decoration Sunday and flag dedication services at the cenotaph in Municipal Park.

Officials report the barbecue and cold plate supper at the Frankford Arena was a sell-out. "People were being turned away when we ran out of food," the spokesman said.

Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP Quinte, complimented organizers on their program when he officially opened the celebrations Saturday.

He commented on the town's picturesque location and history as one of the early municipalities.

Situated at the head of the Nine - Mile Rapids, one of Frankford's earliest industries was a grist and saw mill constructed by Abel Scott in the 1800s. Early in the 1870s, Richmond Township magistrate and merchant W. R. Bowen arrived and took the lead in developing the community.

In December of that year, Mr. Bowen chaired a meeting called to discuss construction of a bridge across the Trent near Cold Creek, a site highly favorable because of its rapid-free waters. Fund-raisers were successful in their endeavours and the link was completed in 1876.

With no official name at the time of its early growth, the village was alternately known as Scott's Mills, Cold Creek and eventually Frankford; the final name was selected following a government petition honoring Lt.-Gov. Francis Bond Head, who was regarded to have visited the area, in 1836.

The villagers also requested permission to have semi-annual fairs and markets. Both requests were granted and the settlement became a police village on July 5, 1853.

Church settlement was originally deemed improbable by Anglican Church officials, but before 1880, Frankford boasted not only Anglicans, but Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches.

Boom year for the village was 1865, with land offices for construction of the lower part of the Trent Canal system in Brophy's Hotel, one of five which existed. Others were the Clarke House, the Brennan Hotel, the McDonald House, Sweetman's, McCombridge's and the North American Hotel.

Although now housed almost entirely in Belleville, part of the district county court existed in the village. Past becoming of importance in the area, Frankford was linked to the then town of Belleville by the Belleville to Frankford road in 1832; at the same time a gravel road was completed between Trenton and Frankford.

The village was not without its famous personalities.

Irish poet and author, James Haskins, settled in the village, eventually succumbing to dropsy, as recorded by early Belleville historian Susanna Moodie.

Peter Hawley, better known as Oronhyatekha, a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, set up his first practice in the Prince of Wales.

Elected first secretary of the Hastings County Medical Association, which he helped to organize, he founded the Independent Order of Foresters for 26 years and was a pioneer in fraternal insurance, serving as president of the Canadian Fraternal Association.

Frankford sold 13 ma indent on Other prominent doctors were H. W. Ellinwood and T. E. Pomeroy. Dr. Pomeroy also operated his own drug store as well as groceries, crockery, glassware, coal oil and staple goods.

Industries in the 1950s included two saw mills owned by the Roblin family, John S. Huffman's woollen factory, Stevens's Tannery, a distillery operated by Messrs. Turley and Jordan, a foundry, a pump factory, carriage shops and two or three top quality country stores.

However, the village's heyday ended in the early 1860s and growth fell off. By 1870, the population had dropped by 200 to halt a thousand.

Slow progress became the order of the day with a new boom constructed in 1869 and replaced in 1904 after a spectacular iceflow, The local section of the Trent Canal was concluded between 1905 and 1914. A major blow to the small community, the 1929 depression closed down the E. G. Sills paper mill, an employer of up to 175 workers.

With incorporation of the village, Walter Windover became the first reeve in 1921. Part of the district county court existed in the village. Past becoming of importance in the area, Frankford was linked to the then town of Belleville by the Belleville to Frankford road in 1832; at the same time a gravel road was completed between Trenton and Frankford.

ORPHANS OF THE SEA by Ken Jones.

This is a "happy" story about seals. Ken Jones had no idea seals existed in Cornwall when he and his family went to live there but when a storm washed up a pup not yet weaned, they took it in: this was the first of several hundred orphan seals to whom they have given sanctuary. When shown kindness, these young seals demonstrate a high degree of intelligence and affection.

TROPICAL FISH by Ron H. Warring

To all who delight in keeping tropical fish, this is a complete "how to" book, starting with the size and shape of tank. The author also discusses equipment needed, heating and illuminating the tank; the types of fish to purchase or those that live together as a family and those that do not; foods and feeding methods. There is everything you need to know about this fascinating hobby.

ANIMALS NOBODY LOVES by Ronald Rood

One of Amer ica's most widely read naturalists, has written this book in defence of a dozen "critters."

THE FRIENDLY BEAST by Vitus B. Droscher

Are there actually parallels between intelligence and instinct, between the behavior of man and the animals? These are the questions asked in this intriguing book. The author examines these questions in the light of new scientific investigations into animal behavior and psychology. Animals, in their struggle to survive, have learned to use invention, tactical planning in defense, and the use of simple tools and weapons is not uncommon.

BOOK OF TRUE ANIMAL STORIES by Eric Delderfield

This collection of animal stories has enormous appeal for all ages. The stories are all true and have happened recently. There is the story of the training and tasks of London's Household Cavalry, of a Labrador who rescues a boy from river mud, all told with humor and pathos.

FIRST CATCH YOUR TIGER by Oliver Graham Jones

The author of this book is the Senior Veterinary Officer of one of the world's largest zoos. The treatment of sick animals is demanding but rewarding science and the rules are few. Many of the procedures being used by the surgeons and doctors require improvisation, such-as what to do about a panda that refuses to mate, all every day events in the life of a veterinary surgeon at the London Zoo.

Society's Ills

The Granby, Quebec, newspaper La Voix de L'Est makes the point that whatever the situation is in Paris or in Ottawa, the objective is the same: to create a society in which man can live happily.

In Paris, the newspaper notes, Premier Delmas calls this society the new society while in Ottawa Prime Minister Trudeau calls it the just society.

Mr. Delmas considers present society 'too hard for the weak, too complacent for the powerful, too different from what it should be."

What must be created, he says, is "a more efficient society, more solid, more responsible and more favorable to the fulfillment of each person."

"But basically," the Granby editorial observes, "what each seeks is 'to change the inefficient state which affects the collective life, to break down the archaic social structures generating excessive gaps between income and the level of life."

To change the society, it adds, "without seeming to make a revolution is the sum of what Mr. Delmas wants." And the editorial suggests that that is what Mr. Trudeau wants also.

* * *

There is wisdom in these observations, but looking at the situation in different countries it will be appreciated that in some the objective of a more efficient society and one affording more equal opportunities is more difficult to achieve.

In Canada the degree of prosperity is such that it affords many of the good things of life for a large section of the population. It is on record too that a man is sometimes better off financially on welfare than he is while working. The trappings of such prosperity are everywhere — cars, trailers, and all the rest of it — even if they are not paid for.

In the United States it is the same. Also in Sweden and Switzerland, both of which, at last reports, were ahead of Canada and behind only the U.S. in overall material standard of living.

Sweden though may be sowing the fruits of trouble in moving from what was one of the most homogenous societies in the world to one which now admits foreign workers in large numbers. Stockholm moreover has its hippies and what in Sweden they call raggers, or is it raggers, young toughs who represent one of the less positive aspects of the welfare state and a society which has not fought a war for, what is it, more than a century?

Affluence, as well as the concept of the welfare state, produces its problems but the ideal should still be to produce a society which equips all its citizens with at least the basics of the good life. In some places though the gulf between middle class and the so-called working class is so deep that it is difficult to envisage any equalization process. The cleavage between establishment and ghetto dweller in Belfast and Londonderry for example is such that they might be occupying different planets; the fact that they are not is in large part responsible for the confrontation in Northern Ireland today and for the Marxist tendencies of the Irish Republican Army-led factions in the country.

In yet other lands it is the same, with the saving grace that among remote tribes there is a notable simplicity of behavior that is superior to that of our own so-called civilization. In the Philippine Island of Mindanao, for instance, whefe, as the National Geographic describes in its current issue, land grabbers are forcing their way into tribal properties and maiming and killing in the process. Here are gentle people in confrontation with the forces of evil and it is good to note that the Philippine government is taking steps to protect them.

How then to bring the best of our own civilization to those who need it, to preserve the best also of regional characteristics, while at the same time teaching principles of brotherhood to all must surely be one of the highest aspirations of mankind. In working toward this goal we may yet build a truly superior society. Or as Mr. Trudeau once put it, a just society.

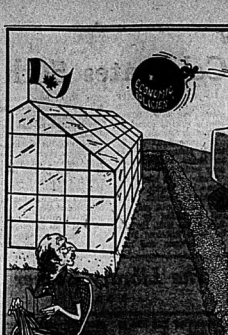
Senate Vacancies

Ottawa Journal

The Prime Minister gives us little hondhes every so often about the need of quality in all our doings.

With his disarming shrug he admits in Commons he has its failings and he sometimes regrets out loud he can't improve the quality of its membership.

Well, let's examine that. There is one part of the appointment he can improve; it being his perogative to name new senators. What has he done about that?



Last October 7 there were 18 vacancies in the Senate, Mr. Trudeau named eight and left the other seats vacant. Today there are 18 vacancies roughly one fifth of the 102 membership.

The standing today in That Chamber, by political hue, is: Liberals, 61; Conservatives, 19; Independents, 2; Independent Liberal, 1; Social Credit, 1.

Mr. Trudeau should fill all 18 of the vacant chairs now. The old political device of not filling empty seats so as to hold in hope and obedience five times that number of applicants and supporters is beneath what Mr. Trudeau would have us believe is his style.

He should, moreover, name all or most of those 18 citizens who have not been "Trudeau Liberals. The Senate is supposed to give "sober second thought" to Commons legislation, is supposed in its committees to examine Government legislation with the most probing and critical eye. To expect that to be done by a Senate with only 39 "opposition" members is absurd.

The Senate should have more Tories and some NDP, but what it needs too is the seasoning of people of no fixed political address but abounding in ability and integrity.

Critic Says Stratford Still Struggling For Canadian Identity

London Free Press

No criticism of the Stratford Festival will be more mulled over by the executive director-ate this winter than that of Irving Wardle of The Times of London. Returning to Stratford for the first time in 12 years, Wardle observed that the festival still has not managed to "shake off its dependence on Britain and develop a specifically Canadian character."

Wardle raises questions which are debatable, but his basic point, particularly in the matter of direction, is one which the Stratford management must earnestly study. The primary involvement of Canadians has grown greatly but perhaps there is reason and opportunity to increase it still more.

The character of the Stratford productions has changed over the years. In the beginning, when it was created by the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, it was natural and probably essential to go to the fountainhead of Shakespearean lore for direction, advice and production ideas.

The Stratford Festival of today is a different and vastly expanded proposition. Moreover, Mr. Wardle may have overlooked some of this development by way of the great productions in the Avon Theatre and the touring "national" Stratford companies in which a Canadian identity has been more strongly established.

Wardle finds that the acting at Stratford is the product of a "monstrous" compromise between Canadian casts and British directors," which in itself may reflect the fact the Canadian content of the total Stratford productions has moved to the fore since their founding.

With Canadian talent thus struggling for primacy, it is an invitation to the Stratford management to make certain its opportunities are not stifled. Very frequently one hears of Canadians who have gone abroad, particularly to the United States, and made their mark in the theatrical world, who say they would jump at the chance to use their talents in Canada. The same lack of opportunity is often cited by Canadian talent still at home. When one hears a British critic suggest that British domination of the production staff of the Stratford Festival is no longer necessary it is an observation worth full consideration.

Heath and Lynch Duel Over Ireland

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A stinging verbal battle between its leaders that can only lead to a hardening of encrusted political positions raises the threat of a serious rupture between Britain and the Republic of Ireland.

There never has been much love between the two states. In the Second World War the Irish Republic turned its back on the besieged British lion with some Irish elements even praying for its downfall.

But in more recent years, especially under the leadership of Sean Lemass, relations warmed to the point where an Anglo-Irish conference that included the leader of Northern Ireland could be contemplated without fear of political backstabbing at home.

That no longer is the case. To most Roman Catholics in the Irish Republic it has become increasingly evident that Prime Minister Heath is throwing his full weight behind the survival of Brian Faulkner, Ulster's Protestant prime minister.

Internment in Northern Ireland has hit the Catholic extremists leaving the Protestant extremists untouched. Daily, the word reaches Dublin that British troops, in quelling terrorism, are using intensified brutality against Catholics but not Protestants.

Whether these reports are entirely true has little bearing on their propaganda value, as Heath's own men acknowledge.

Jack Lynch, Irish republican prime minister, is under pressure to take action, prodded by powerful factions eager to unseat and replace him.

In a sense, Lynch's own political future is at stake. He feels strongly about the hope of reunifying Ireland through peaceful means and has ordered his troops not to get tangled in border skirmishes in the current episode of inflamed emotions.

But home pressures are rising against him. The increasing activity of both factions of the Irish Republican Army which are based in the Irish republic has forced Lynch to speak in stronger terms, even to the point of making public derogatory messages to Heath before they are delivered to the British leader.

This has set off Heath's own explosive temper, sinking relations between the two leaders to a new low. The question among some British observers is whether Heath took the correct political action, knowing that Lynch is speaking mainly for a home audience.

The lines now are more rigidly drawn. Lynch has openly pledged his country's support to Catholic civil disobedience in the North. An increasing number of more moderate Ulster Catholics have quit their jobs, siding with the militants, and Heath's outburst portrays him as largely in support of the Protestant Stormont hierarchy.

With the Irish border easily penetrable, Ulster terrorists are likely to obtain increasing support from the South, forcing British troops to employ perhaps even tougher tactics. Whether Heath and Faulkner can obtain an acceptable military solution to the Ulster riots is questionable. Now there is doubt whether even a political solution, involving a compromise with the South, is possible.

Of course there are a lot of lovely ones — they stand out almost incandescently, so fresh, so natural, their hair shining, their faces clean and unmadeup. Yet they too are a trifle over-exposed and in their extreme mind and hair, resembling nothing so much as a bevy of lovely mermaids.

Brockville Visit

Court Informality Intrigues British Police Inspector

Brockville Recorder and Times

Visiting the Brockville provincial court Wednesday a British police inspector was surprised at the lack of formality in court and also at the big sums of money required for bail.

Inspector D. R. Large, of the Kent County Constabulary, with headquarters in Chatham, Kent, on holiday with his wife in Canada and visiting friends in Brockville, was the guest of Chief of Police N. Leslie Sterritt Wednesday on a tour of local police facilities, which included a visit to a court session.

After leaving the court, where he chatted with Judge John Anderson and some of the lawyers, the inspector said he had been very interested.

"I'm not the British - type of justice," he commented, "but I was surprised to find that the judge — or the magistrate as we would call him — reads out his own charges. In the more formal atmosphere of the British magistrate's court, the clerk of the court reads out the charges."

More surprising to the visitor were requests of sums like $1,000 cash for bail.

The usual bail bond is about five pounds ($12) and only in very rare cases would it rise to 50 pounds ($120)," he commented.

The inspector was quite impressed with the facilities available to the small city police force in comparison with those at his own big station at Chatham.

Regarding the checking of motorists for impairment, Inspector Large said Chief Sterritt had when an officer stops a motorist suspected of being impaired he asks him to blow into a tube containing chemicals. If the crystals in the tube turn green the suspect is taken to a police station for a proper breathalyzer test.

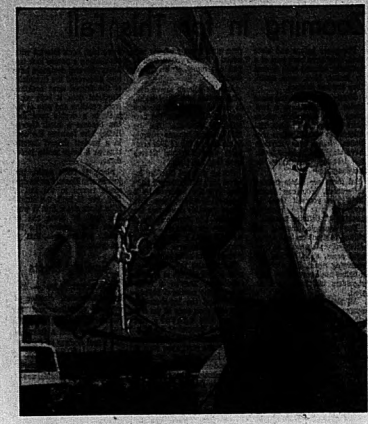
Following the visit to the local headquarters, the inspector paid a visit to the RCMP detachment office on Reynolds Drive.

The Dilemma of Two Chinas

Winnipeg Free Press

The Communist Chinese government, skilled in the game of diplomatic table tennis, has quickly returned the ball to the American court. If the latest official speeches in Peking are to be taken literally, President Nixon will waste his time on a visit to China unless he is prepared not merely to withdraw from Vietnam, as he intends, but to abandon Formosa, as he does not. While these warnings probably represent no more than the first stage in a long negotiation, the key problem of Formosa will remain, with no solution in sight.

Canada already has encountered and glossed over, if it has not solved, that problem for the time being at least. When the Peking government eagerly sought recognition in Ottawa, the mysterious reasons of its own, it insisted that Canada must also recognize mainland China's sovereignty over Formosa. Otherwise there could be no agreement. Canada rejected those terms and, in the end, agreed only to "take note" of Peking's claim without endorsing it. Why should the same precedent not be acceptable in the case of the United States?



From Peking's point of view the two cases are quite different. Canada has no military forces in Formosa, no diplomatic relations with it and presents no conceivable threat to the mainland. The United States has guaranteed the island's defence, maintains naval bases there and patrols Formosa Strait with one of the world's most powerful fleets. Though the mainland has not been threatened in any way since the late John Foster Dulles talked vaguely of "unleashing" Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and then kept him firmly leashed, Peking is still alarmed, or says it is, by the United States presence.

Clearly, however, Peking's main concern is more political and economic than military. It demands ownership of Formosa and the island's rich resources as a matter of national and moral right; also as an assertion of its status among the great powers. But it must know that the United States cannot withdraw its guarantee to Formosa except under pressure from defensive strategy without weakening its position and undermining the faith of its allies throughout the world and damaging the American image. Their future, not the ambitions of Chiang Kai-shek or Mao Tse-tung, is the subject of the moment.

No decision about the future of Formosa actually desire since the existing government has never given them a chance to vote, except in minor local elections. They live under a stern dictatorship, masquerading as the legal government of both the island and the mainland, but it has given them the second most prosperous economy in Eastern Asia and a standard of living that mainland communism will not achieve for a long time yet.

Rider on Long Road To InternationalSet

By JAMES WILLARD
Staff Reporter

Not everyone can hope to become an equestrian jumper.

"It takes constant practice, familiarity with a horse and a love for an expensive sport. You have to be always involved with horses, feeding them, stable management, training them and so on, before you can reach good calibre," 12-year-old Tim Vanden Bosch explained late Saturday afternoon after capturing several awards in the hunter and jumper trials at Quinte Exhibition.

"My horse Bucky, and I have been together for 1½ years, and just now we're getting used to each other's thoughts and moves," young Tim added.

His father, Henry Vanden Bosch, district commissioner of the Highlands of Hastings Pony Club, stressed that the public has a negative attitude towards equestrian jumping.

"They feel it's a sport for the very rich, and that everyone is out to win money and nothing else. Or else go for the Olympics," Mr. Vanden Bosch noted.

"Unlike the United States, where they can choose from 100 to 200 horses for the Olympic equestrian team, we have only 10 or so. Thus, when we win, we must not only have the better horses and riders, but by far the better team.

"And most of the money comes from private sources. The government never seems to think it's worth their while to help us, probably thinking it's a rich man's sport, too," Mr. Vanden Bosch stated.

Young Tim's grandfather, who was an international jumping judge, started the family interest in the sport, and today the family operates a 200 - acre estate on Wallbridge Road where 13 horses are available for riding lessons and training.

The youngster rode his first horse five years ago, and graduated to competition level less than 20 months ago when he competed in the Kingston trials. He is now ranked at D level.

The Hastings club did claim two years ago some 90 members, but due to rising costs and dropping interest on the part of some members, the roll has dwindled to only 38 today.

"Although most of us go in just for the sport of it, like others who go in for softball, the costs are rapidly becoming prohibitive for many people who would like to enter," Mr. Vanden Bosch explained.

"For a good horse, you must pay some $250 to $400 cash, and this is just for a training horse. Then, there's an average of $30 per month you must pay for maintenance and stable care, and feeding of your horse," he added.

Tim, who attends Grade 7 at Belleville District Christian School, is anxiously anticipating the family move to Oak Hill near Stirling where a more expansive estate will be opened.

"Do you know we have to bring along 30 hounds which we use for fox hunts?" quipped Tim inquired.

The budding jumper needs to practice 1½ hours three times weekly to maintain his competitive edge.

"It takes some five or six years of jumping before you can hope for good calibre, but a horse needs only three. However, the good riders can switch horses even during a competition, but only if they are good," the boy noted.

Tim does invite school friends over for riding occasionally, but often he does his training alone, striving to perfect the techniques that he hopes one day will elevate him to international levels.

"It's a long road, I know, but anything worth trying for is worth working for," Tim concluded.

Plane

Air Traffic Control at Toronto International Airport reported to police that it lost contact with the plane at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Dave Fleicant of Toronto, who was monitoring calls on his radio, said he listened to the conversation between the pilot and Buffalo and Toronto International airports for more than an hour.

He said the pilot said he was lost and in difficulty.

Then the pilot said: "I've lost my gyro. I've lost my horizon." This was followed by silence.

When the first call was heard, Mr. Feliciant said the pilot informed the Toronto tower that he had been flying for about 2½ hours and had 1½ hours' fuel left. Later, with urgency in his voice, he reported he was down to 45 minutes' fuel.

"The pilot said he was upside down at one point, said Mr. Feliciant, "then he said he was in a spin and 'things are flying all over the place.'"

A passenger took over the microphone then and said things seemed to be all right "but it keeps stalling."

Shortly after, the pilot reported he was lost and had lost his gyro.

"The pathos of it got to my wife so much she burst into tears," said Mr. Feliciant.

The first performance was held in the new auditorium in the the newly-erected North Addington Education Centre (on Highway 41) on August 14 which was a gospel hymn sing. This is the first Gospel hymn sing to come to that area. It was held to raise funds to build a new Free Methodist Church in Cloyne.

In Tokyo, where the opening preceded London because of the time difference, dealers reported trading was calm with the Bank of Japan taking in about .10 million compared with the hundreds of millions absorbed on most days last week.

Prices on the Tokyo stock market moved down, again because of the uncertainty over the yen.

In Frankfurt, the dollar fell back to about the level it held Aug. 13—3.4250 marks against 3.4225 previously. Today's quotation indicated a sharp strengthening of the dollar in West Germany compared with the rate of 3.3875 marks that banks and travel agencies were giving tourists at the close of business last Friday.

In Zurich, another of Europe's leading monetary centres, the Swiss franc rose slightly in the unofficial free market, against the dollar to 3.9650 Swiss francs, compared with Friday's closing 3.99 francs. The free market was described as calm.

Swiss official foreign exchange markets remained closed while the free market was open.

The foreign exchange in Vienna also remained closed today but will open Tuesday, Austrian government sources said.

The price of free gold in the London bullion market eased five cents to $42.25 an ounce in the morning fixing.

Outside Europe, Indonesia devalued the rupiah 9.5 per cent, setting the exchange rate at 415 to the dollar instead of the previous 378. Israel devalued its currency 20 per cent Saturday night, changing the rate from 3.50 Israeli pounds to the dollar to 4.20.

On the Tokyo foreign exchange, the dollar sold at 357.50 yen, down only slightly from the official rate of 360.

PICTON — The wedding was solemnized in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, August 21, when Sally Hepburn Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ackerman, Picton, became the bride of Lieut. William Lorne Bentley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bentley, Picton.

Rev. Robert S. Stewart officiated at the ceremony where traditional wedding music was played by church organist, Clyde B. Markham.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length wedding gown of white raw silk fashioned featuring princess lines and a deep scoop neckline. The soft lines of the dress were accented by long semi-full sleeves. Her sweeping floor length veil of French embroidered lace fell from a Juliet cap of lace dotted with seed pearls. The headpiece was a family heirloom made by the bride's grandmother for her daughter's wedding. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink "glads".

Dear Doris: What can be done for one who is a homosexual?

I understand there are hormone injections that sometimes help. Where would a person obtain them?

What about psychiatric treatment? — Unfortunate

Dear Unfortunate: A good deal depends on how strong the homosexual tendencies are. The notion of hormones is utter rubbish.

Psychiatric treatment can help, although ideal very a little. Some will work for a complete changeover; but others feel it is more realistic to help the person toward a more creative and fulfilling life whether or not the homosexual feelings go away entirely. You must not dismiss yourself with a single label. Remind yourself that a man is made up of many things: he is a person who thinks, feels and acts in many different situations, has hopes and fears and styles of life that are in a perpetual state of flux. He has talents and creative drives which need to be expressed.

If he has a fascination for and attraction to members of his own sex, that is a small part of what makes him a total human being. Neither he nor anyone else should forget that.

Dear Doris: Does a banana have more calories or is it more fattening than an orange or apple? It is seldom included in diets.

Also yogurt. We have many fruit-flavored yogurts on the market today. Please tell me how many calories these contain. — M. V.

Dear M.V.: A medium-sized orange has 75. Some reducing diets omit bananas because the carbohydrate content is high, whereas most other fruits are low in this heat-producing food element. Personally, I find that banana has have no much going for them that I would hate to leave them out of any diet.

A cup of plain yogurt has about 165 calories, but if the yogurt is flavored and sweetened this rating shoots up to about 270.

To know all is to forgive all. Let Doris help you to understand and live happily with those you care about.

Pork Chop and Rice Casserole A Favorite

By MARY MOORE

Today's contribution was born out of expediency. It was not my intention to pass it on to you but comments at the dinner table were so favorable I decided that my readers friends would want it too.

The situation was this: Marianne and Herbie and family were here for a three-day pause en route from Kingston to Edmonton. All of our local relatives wanted to have one last visit before they moved so far away. We were all invited to my brother's home for a dessert party. All I had to do was make short work of a main course, after our afternoon tea guests had left.

PORK CHOP and RICE CASSEROLE (serves 6)
1 cup raw long grain rice
1 tsp. salt
2½ cups boiling water
3 lbs. pork chops (approximately 9)
1 can condensed cheese soup
1¼ cups boiling water

In a heavy pot add the boiling water to the rice and salt, bring to boil, covered, turn off heat and allow to stand 5 min. Turn on heat as low as possible for 20 min.

Scrape rice evenly into large shallow baking dish. (I used a 13 x 9 x 2" Corningware.) Line up raw pork chops on top overlapping a little. Dilute soup with water and beat with rotary beater to break up lumps and pour evenly over all. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hr.

SPECIAL NOTE: Encouraged by my chef friend, Frank I have been adding soda, salt and sugar to my green vegetables lately with wonderful bright green results. You see, some nutritionists claim that soda reduces the vitamin content but others now refute that. So to fresh green beans, fresh green peas, fresh broccoli and fresh spinach I have been adding ¼ t.s.p. baking soda, ½ tsp. salt and 1 or 2 sps. sugar and a minimum of boiling water — just enough water to keep it wet until tender. Try this method and see what lovely, lively green vegetables you produce.

Club Activities

RESOURCES CLUB

MADOC — The regular monthly meeting of the Madoc 4-H Natural Resources Club was held at the Ivanhoe Township Hall. The president, Susan Ray, opened the meeting and the secretary, Noreen Pigden, read the minutes of the last meeting.

William Bittle of the Department of Lands and Forests Office of Tweed was guest speaker for the evening. All the members enjoyed an interesting talk, and display of pelts from animals native to this area. Doug Murray thanked Mr. Bittle.

The attendance then enjoyed a lunch, supplied by the Madoc members.

The meeting was adjourned, after it was decided to hold the next meeting on Wednesday, September 15, when Grant Ketchenon, who spent the past few months in England on an educational trip in agriculture through a Nuffield Scholarship, will show his slides and give a talk on his trip.

Ann Landers

Wife 'Sings' Praises Of Al-Anon Group

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: It is Sunday afternoon, our 13-year-old boy went to a ballgame, the 18-and 19-year-old girls are in the neighbor's pool and my husband went to his favorite tavern to get drunk. I am not writing to ask for advice. I am writing instead to thank you for the advice you gave me two years ago.

A few years ago I would have been crying my eyes out, or pouring out my anger to a friend on the telephone. But today I am calm, content and very happy with life. Why? Because I listened to you and joined Al-Anon.

Every woman who is married to an alcoholic must at some point decide whether she is going to allow his problem to defeat her or learn how to live with it. Since I joined Al-Anon I have learned how to live with him and I appreciate the many other wonderful blessings in my life.

Please Ann, keep telling people about Al-Anon. It's a life saver, both literally and figuratively — in every sense of the word. — GAGE PARK MEMBER.

DEAR MEMBER: Not a week goes by that I don't receive at least three or four letters from readers in praise of Al-Anon. For those who would like to write for literature, the address is: Al-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc., P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010. I urge you do so. You have nothing to lose but the price of a stamp.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am bothered by a problem which I am sure is a continual source of conflict for many divorced women with small children.

When I first began dating, several men offered to pay my babysitter. I would not allow it because I had a good job and made more money than most of the men who asked me out.

I lost my job three months ago. My financial situation isn't what it used to be. These past several months I hinted to a couple of men who seemed very eager to date me, that it would be nice if they paid my sitter. They did not respond. Finally I came out and asked Mr. Z if he would mind paying my sitter when he drove me home. He agreed, but in such a cloddish manner that I felt like a beggar. Mr. X told me straight out that he didn't feel my sitter was his responsibility, and that I should not have asked him to pay her.

Now I am sour on both of these jokers and think I'd rather stay home. If a fellow really wants to take a girl out, isn't the sitter part of the date? I await your nationally sought opinion. — BELLINGHAM, WASHINGTON.

DEAR BELL: A man who asks a woman out is under no obligation to pay her sitter. He did not hire her, she does not work for him, and it should not be considered part of the date. Sorry I couldn't give you the answer you were after, but fair is fair.

Maoist Revolt Said Under Way in Philippines

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today an armed rebellion supported by a foreign power is under way in the Philippines.

He announced that he has suspended indefinitely the right of habeas corpus "for persons presently detained or those who might be detained for the crimes of insurrection or rebellion."

Marcos said in a broadcast that a rebellious force based in Marxist-Leninist-Maoist ideologies was responsible for the grenade attack on a Liberal party political rally in Manila Saturday night. Two explosions killed nine persons and wounded more than 80 others, including all senatorial candidates of the minority party for November's elections.

The rebels, he said, have the moral and material support of a foreign power, which he did not name.

Marcos said he did not plan to declare martial law at present but was prepared to do so if conditions warranted it. He said nine leaders of the insurrection have been arrested.

The last time the writ of habeas corpus was suspended was in October, 1950, in the face of the mounting threat from the Marxist Huk guerrillas. The government arrested the ideological leaders of the movement in Manila and waged a military campaign that put down the movement, which had tens of thousands of armed men in the countryside.

Though Marcos refused to name the foreign power involved, China has praised publicly the New People's Army, or NPA, an underground armed anti-government organization operating mostly in central Luzon, the rice bowl area north of Manila. The foreign office has notified Philippine embassies that NPA agents were believed to have thrown the grenades at the Saturday night rally.

Police announced they are holding more than 20 persons without charges, including the president of a Manila college. Many of those arrested have connections with anti-government radical leftist organizations, officers said.

Equal Opportunity Is Called Myth

SASKATOON (CP) — Equality of opportunity does not exist in Canada, Hugh Faulkner, parliamentary secretary to the secretary of state, said on the weekend.

The Liberal member of Parliament for Peterborough told the National Student conference on Unemployment that equality of opportunity is a myth in this country.

"There is no equality of opportunity, and I think it is time we . . . determined to do something about it.

"We talk of equality before the law, and despite major improvements recently the fact is that the law . . . discriminates against the poor.

"It's a fact of life that a wealthy person can find his way through the judicial process easier and with a much higher degree of success than a poor person."

He told delegates that the most pressing unemployment problem facing the country today is those people who have little education and few skills.

28 Killed in Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Twenty-eight persons were killed and seven others were missing today after a group of South Korean military prisoners escaped from a west coast island and tried to reach downtown Seoul in a hijacked bus, Defence Minister Jung Nae hiuk said tonight.

The counter espionage operations command had announced earlier that the bus was commandeered by 21 "North Korean infiltrators" who had landed at Inchon in uniforms of the South Korean special forces.

Twenty Arrested For Bid to Steal Records of Draft

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Tipped off by an informant, the FBI arrested 20 persons Sunday on charges of trying to steal military draft records in a well-planned burglary attempt. The arrests came only hours after five persons were seized in a similar raid in Buffalo, N.Y.

The 20 arrested included three clergymen. Six other persons were being sought, police said.

The FBI said some Camden draft records were destroyed. And others were lowered from the fifth floor of the post office in mail bags.

The burglary team arrived at the scene in a van-type truck, the FBI said, and climbed their own ladder to a second floor fire escape, avoiding a burglar alarm.

All 20 were booked for investigation of crime on a government reservation, violating the 1967 Selective Service Act, destruction of U.S. government property and other charges.

The FBI declined comment on whether the Camden and Buffalo raids were related.

U.S. Attorney Guy Goodwin told Magistrate Charles Rudd that the FBI received word of the Camden burglary, from an informant who had attended five sessions in which the theft was planned. He said the sessions took place at the Haddon, N.J., home of William A. Anderson, one of the six still sought.

Goodwin identified John Peter Grady, 46, of New York City as the "ringleader and mastermind" of the plot.

Grady and seven others were apprehended inside the draft office "in the act of removing and destroying Selective Service records from office files," the FBI said.

100 Perish In Monsoon

PORT ELIZABETH (AP) — More than 100 persons were reported to have died in flooding following two days of monsoon rains that swept a 750-mile stretch of South Africa's eastern Cape province and Natal coastlines at the weekend.

Officials said every major dam within 100 miles of Port Elizabeth was overflowing and landline communications between the city and the rest of South Africa were cut off.

Eight of the dead were in a fishing boat that capsized off the Transkei coast.

The worst-hit areas were the Gamtoos and Sunday River valleys west of Port Elizabeth. South African Air Force helicopters so far have rescued 250 stranded people there.

A magistrate at Hankey in the Gamtoos Valley said "at a conservative estimate" 100 people had drowned there.

OMA to Hear Plea Province Take Over Children's Aid

TORONTO (CP) — The executive director of the Catholic Children's Aid Society, which deals with 70,000 children last year, said Sunday he would hate to think working with children could become "a political centred operation."

Ward Markle was commenting on a report made public Saturday that calls for the province to take over all Ontario societies' job of supervising adoptions and children who have been made wards of the Crown. Other functions would be taken over by the social service departments of local municipalities.

The report, by three municipal administrators, will be presented to the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association which starts here today.

The report to the association was prepared by Murray Smith, director of social services, Essex County; Terry Stewart, welfare administrator, Algoma, and Morris Fraser, acting director of social services, regional municipality of Niagara.

The association will also be asked to support a resolution from the town of Timmins calling for the province to increase the proportion of societies' costs that it pays.

At present the societies are financed 60 per cent by the province and 40 per cent by the municipality.

IRA Urges Picketing Mine Firms

WATERLOO (CP) — Sean Kenny, North American representative for the Irish Republican Army, told delegates to a socialist conference Sunday night they should picket and demonstrate against Canadian mining companies that take profits out of Ireland.

Mr. Kenny, who is out of bail on a charge of picketing a government office, told delegates at the first cross-Canada socialist education conference:

"If you want to help, go out and picket one of (the mining company officials) houses or offices. That's the one thing rich people don't like."

He said there are many Canadian mining interests in Ireland and most of the officers of the companies live in the Toronto area.

Mr. Kenny said the IRA is committed to establishing a democratic socialist republic in Northern and southern Ireland.

Civil strife in Northern Ireland, he said, is not a religious war, but a class war.

"God isn't an issue. The Irish people want jobs, housing, civil rights and they want control of the industries and natural resources which are now mainly controlled by the British."

The IRA, he said, will not rest until the British leave Northern Ireland.

"We will not stand idly by while foreign troops provoke ordinary people in jackboot fashion."

Ball Scout Scours Province Looking for Budding Talent

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

There may never be another Mickey Mantle or Stan Musial or Ted Williams but the Pittsburgh Pirates are going to keep looking in the hope that one just as good comes along!

Such was the rendering passed on by the National League team's head Canadian scout Jim Frail who has logged over 1,000 miles over the summer criss - crossing Ontario. "Tryouts are good for everybody; Mantle, Maris, Musial, most of the big stars all went to tryout camps," comments Frail. "Every camp that comes along get out for them — you've got to sell yourself in this business! If another club comes to town tomorrow get out there and show them what you've got," stresses the Pirate scout.

The first such tryout camp to come through Belleville in quite a few years drew 53 local ball - players for the daylong instructional Park Dale Sunday. "This is about average for Canada although the larger centres naturally attract more. This is about the easiest number to work with because you can work a little with each boy, any more and you can't spend enough time with each individual."

Frail, who works out of Hamilton, has been quite pleased with what he has seen this summer in Ontario, and Belleville was no exception. "I've seen lots of pitchers and infielders who are every bit as good as any kid in the States but then the differences start to show up. The bat is the big thing — the kids have just don't have it! A lack of instruction is the big thing, there isn't nearly enough help given to the youngsters. That's why we have these camps. We can go to a game but there all you can see is a player's instincts and knowledge of the game but get them here and we can make them do what we want to see."

Frail and assistant Jim Wolfe of the Hamilton Juniors ran all the players through a speed drill before directing their attentions to the different positions. "You have got to have speed in this business," stresses Frail. "Most people don't realize just how fast you have to be. Some men in the major leagues run to first base in 3.2 seconds so you know how fast the infield has to react. Quick hands are important at all positions, especially batting where some pitches are coming in at 90 miles an hour and they look just like a pea."

Jim has a special characteristic that he watches for in each position and stresses to every ballplayer that his way is the basic right way. "In the outfield we look for velocity on the arm. We try to get the kids to throw straight overhand because most do throw sidearm or three quarters which is all right for 40-year - old men but not teenagers. Lateral movement is something we look for in both the infield and outfield especially to the right. All infielders should have quick hands and good speed and the ability to throw the long ball across the diamond.

"We look for style and motion in a pitcher plus most important — control. We can always show them junk later.

"The batter must have quick hands — like a rattlesnake. We look to see if he rolls his wrists."

Frail uses a 30-point system in rating a boy with all of the previous mentioned points taken into account. A detailed card is filled out by each player before the camp allowing Frail and his colleagues to analyse each boy after the camp. "We know more about a player when we sit down and look at his card then we can see his age, when he graduates, etc.

"When we look at a boy we consider his age and potential which depends a lot on each other. We usually look at a player until he's 23 and then it's getting a little too late for him to make the big time. Also unlike a lot of other teams we don't sign a boy right off the bat. We have only six farm clubs so we have to see if there's room for him, but we do keep in touch and hope he keeps coming out to our camps."

As far as Sunday's Belleville camp no one was signed but according to Frail there are at least two or three boys who will definitely be watched by the Bucs in the future. One such prospect is Paul Goodfellow who put on an excellent display at shortstop. "He has good speed in the field and at bat. We will probably be in touch, but you can never tell he might only be a marginal player down south."

Next stop for Frail and the Pirates will be Brockville today with Hamilton slated for tonight. Ottawa will be the host next Sunday with Sudbury on deck after that. As for Belleville, "We'll be back next year!"

Pirate Prospector

Pittsburgh Pirates chief Ontario Scout Jim Frail gives the order to move out for some outfield practice during Sunday's tryout camp and instructional clinic at Park Dale. Frail was giving critical appraisal to each of 53 boys in attendance specifically noticing speed and movement. His stop in Belleville marks only one of many in his 1,900-mile journey back and forth across the province, scouting future prospective ball players for the National League Bucs.

Simonds Salvages Third in 800 Metres

WINNIPEG (CP-Staff) — The best in the west had the easterners guessing before Saturday and Sunday's Canadian Junior and Senior Track and Field Championships but unfortunately the Quinte District's representative were guessing wrong.

Little was known by Dave Simonds about what sort of competition was to be expected from the west but he soon found out as the top three positions in the 400 metres went to Western Canada tracksters.

Dave's time of 50.4 was not up to his personal best of 50 flat but was the best for any Ontario entrants with the Western boys running in 48 seconds.

Dave got some measure of revenge Sunday, picking up the bronze medal in the 800 metres by recording his best-ever time of 1:55.8.

Another local youth found the competition rough as Glen Milligan's leap of 21 feet 10¾ inches earned him a fourth spot. The Trenton native's jump was well off his personal best of 22' 8¼" and 14 inches behind winner Jim Buchanan.

Both Quinte Champions Quitting While Ahead

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The men's and women's championships were decided Sunday at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, and both winners are quitting while they're ahead.

Jim McCreary overcame a three - shot deficit with four holes to play in the windup of the 72-hole event to shade veteran Dave Jones by one shot 303-304, while Betty Ingram's 78 in the women's 54-hole finale made her a runaway winner of her 13th successive club women's title.

"This is the last time I'll probably be playing golf for five years, let alone the club championship," said McCreary, who is going into his last year of a Queen's University medicine course.

The one - stroke margin of victory between the 22 - year - old and 1967-68 club champion came on the final 210-yard par - three hole when Jones three - putted from 40 feet while McCreary holed out in regulation figures from about 10 feet, closer.

But two key wedge shots in the late stages of the final round turned the tide in McCreary's favor.

One came on the 520-yard par-five 15th that left him a 12-foot birdie putt to hole, while Jones, playing in the same threesome, was carding a bogey six.

The second gave McCreary a vital par on the testy 417-yard dog - leg 17th, carrying his ball over traps and mounds to within four feet of the hole for a one-putt effort.

"I was just consistent — that's the only word for it," said McCreary, who shot rounds of 76 and 77 in the first 36 holes of the event earlier this month, and a pair of 75s Saturday and Sunday over the challenging 6,805 - yard layout.

Jones was 74-79-74-77 holding a one - shot edge as play began in Sunday's rain-dampened final round.

A distant third in the 16-golfer field was Ron Craig (315), followed by Bill Pain (318), Bob Barlow (320) and 1969 winner John Woodcroft (322).

There was no defending champion, since 1970 winner Al McCullam's death.

Doug Bannon's closing 75 gave him a 323 total to top the 16 - consolation shooters. Next came Bill Hurley (326), Alex Ingram (328) and Max Hagarty and Bill Strohan, both at 332.

Meanwhile, the only unusual aspect of Betty Ingram's 13th consecutive women's title was her declaration that she had contested the event for the last time.

"I feel something to prove this year—and I did it," the fiery little competitor said after shooting a nifty 78 in the last of three rounds to determine the women's club title over their 6,100-yard par- 73 test.

Put together with earlier rounds of 79 and 80, Mrs. Ingram had a whopping 30 shot bulge on runner-up Anne Acton, who took second place honors in a sudden-death playoff by carding a par to Ena Corke's bogey on the 219-yard par-four first hole.

Retiring didn't mean quitting for Mrs. Ingram. "I'll challenge next year's winner to a game any time," she said.

Two shots back in fourth at 269 was Millie Craig, followed by Fran Bannon (272) and Betty Walmsley (275).

Consolation winner Laura Gundeson shot 292 to runner-up Helen Lewis' 296, while Coates Tray handicap prize went to Olive Innes, with Betty Ling second.

Damp Winners

Price Proves Right

TORONTO (Special) — For a guy who wasn't feeling well, Price Morris didn't fare badly at Saturday's Eastern Canadian Weightlifting championships at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The Pan-Am Games bronze medallist didn't feel well enough to even make his third clean and jerk attempt but his 1,030-pound total — including a personal best 363-pound press — was good enough for top honors in the super-heavyweight division.

Fellow Apollo Barbell Club member Gary Walt totalled 945 pounds to take second place in the 242-pound heavyweight class, while flyweight Ron Hayes was also a runner up, in his 114-pound class with a 483-pound, three-lift total, despite breaking his own Canadian teenage clean and jerk record with a 204½-pound effort.

Girls Take Glory

WINNIPEG (CP) — The girls garnered most of the glory at the Canadian junior and senior track and field championships on the weekend.

Faced by a duo from British Columbia, the female athletes repeated their recent Pan-American Games performance and left their male counterparts as also runs.

Penny May and Stephanie Berto from Vancouver picked up five gold medals and two Canadian records between them in the two-day meet.

Miss May knocked 9-10 seconds off the 200-metre hurdles mark with a run of 26.9 seconds. Miss Berto blazed through the 200-metre run, shaving 2-10 of a second off the existing record with a 23.3 performance.

The perky Miss May uses an unusual standup start for the 200-metre hurdles, disdaining the starting blocks that most competitors favor.

She said the only reason she entered the hurdles was because she knew she could set a record.

This is the last year the 200-metre hurdles will be an officially-sanctioned event and Miss May wanted her name on the record books before the event finished.

She also took top spot in the 100-metre hurdles and the long jump . Following her record-breaking 200-metre run she jogged across the infield to win the long jump.

Miss Berto also took top spot in the 100-metre sprint.

Miss Berto took a gold medal at the Pan-Am Games in Cali, Colombia and Miss May took a bronze in the hurdles and a silver in the pentathlon.

Abby Hoffman of Toronto, who claimed a gold medal in the 800-metre run at Cali, dropped out of the Winnipeg race at the midway point.

Mike Mason had a bad day Saturday in the long jump, jumping too soon with the wind at his back, but managed to take home a gold medal to Burnaby, B.C.

The wind, however, at 2.4 mph was too severe to allow his jump of 25 ft. 11 in. to stand as a Canadian record.

Attendance was poor and stands were empty for the better part of the two-day meet. More than 540 athletes in three age groups took part

Homenuik Good as Word

SASKATOON (CP) — Wilf Homenuik fulfilled a promise and Gary Slatter was surprised he finished second.

For Homenuik, 33-y e a r - o l d Winnipeg veteran, the promise was worth $5,000 after he won the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association tournament Sunday for the second time with a 72-hole total of 273, seven under par. He struggled to a final-round 73, three over par.

He won the championship in 1965 with a 54-hole total of 215. It was his first tournament victory since mid-May when he also won $5,000 in a U.S. Satellite tournament at Shreveport, La.

Slatter, from Burlington, Ont., who thought he would finish with a respectable score but also believed "other golfers would be lower," c o l l e c t e d $3,500 in the $25,000 tournament.

He had a 277 total with scores of 68-70-70 and a final round 67 including an eagle on the par-five, 495-yard 16 hole.

Homenuik, with earnings of about $25,000 from the United States and Canadian tours this season, said he was dedicating the championship to his father who died in May.

"My brother, Stan, and I told him that one of us would win the cup during Saskatchewan's homecoming year," the former Yorkton, Sask., resident told a crowd of about 500.

Homenuik was never in trouble in the four-day tournament.

Homenuik said he never felt any pressure during the final 18 holes and just wanted to come in with a respectable score. At one time he was 11 under par, but slipped on the back nine with a three-over-par 37.

On the par-four, 400-yard 17th hole, he took a two-over-par six when he went into the trees, prompting Slatter, who had finished his round, to remark: "If he takes nine strokes to get out of there, I've got a chance for first money."

Homenuik took a one-over-par five on the par-four, 396-yard 18th hole when he went into a sand trap, then over the green. He took his time and ended with a five while playing partner Bill Wakeham of Cowichan Station, B.C., picked up a birdie.

CPGA directors selected Homenuik and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., as Canada's representatives in World Cup competition to be played in November at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

Four strokes back of Homenuik were Dick Munn of Vancouver, who held second place after 54 holes but shot a 72 final, and Wakeham. Both had 277 totals for $2,000 each.

Norman, Trapp, Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton and Ken Fulton of St. Julie, Que., had four-day totals of 280 for $925 pay checks. Norman had a three-over-par 73 Sunday but boosted his earnings to more than $2,000, tops on the Canadian tour.

Stan Homenuik, with the best final-round score of 66, was eight strokes off the pace with 281 to earn $650. Defending champion Al Balding of Toronto was well down the list with a 293 total for $106 after scores of 78-73-69-73.

Beats Self

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Weiskopf said the toughest guy he had to best in the $150,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic was Tom Weiskopf.

"I win on sheer determination and desire and it was the most rewarding tournament I've ever won except maybe for my first," said the 28-year-old Chicagoan after shooting a 14-under-par 274 to win the $30,000 first prize by one stroke over Dave Hill and two better than Jack Nicklaus.

George Knudson of Toronto came through with his second straight 69 for a total of 277. He was all alone in fourth place and won $7,050. His first two rounds were 71 and 68.

Vic Washington Goes Against Grid Grain

By BERT ROSENTHAL

A recent trend has seen many Americans decide against a chance of playing in the National Football League and opt for a football career in Canada. Vic Washington hopes to change the flow of traffic.

Washington, who played three years with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian league after starring for two varsity seasons at the University of Wyoming, has come back over the border and is trying to make it with the San Francisco 49ers of the NFL.

The flashy five-foot, 11-inch, 190-pounder enhanced his chance for a spot on the roster by scoring on runs of 13 and 10 yards Sunday as the 49ers beat San Diego Chargers 28-17 in an exhibition game at San Francisco.

In other Sunday pre-season contests, Detroit Lions edged Baltimore Colts 23-20; New York Jets trimmed New York Giants 27-14, and Buffalo Bills whipped New England Patriots 28-14.

On Saturday, it was Kansas City Chiefs 27 New Orleans Saints 7; Atlanta Falcons 21 Denver Broncos 10; Green Bay Packers 19 Miami Dolphins 7; Minnesota Vikings 34 Chicago Bears 14; Houston Oilers 21 Philadelphia Eagles 17, and Oakland Raiders 20 Los Angeles Rams 7.

Pittsburgh Steelers meet Cincinnati Bengals tonight.

If Washington makes it with San Francisco, he won't be the only players to succeed in the NFL after playing in Canada. Others who crossed the border recently and caught on in the NFL include Bo Scott in Cleveland and Joe Kapp, who flourished in Minnesota before flouncering in Boston.

The versatile Washington, who also plays wide receiver, defensive back and runs back punts and kickoffs, called his performance against the Chargers "a very important day for me."

"A lot of people said I wouldn't make it as a running back in the NFL because I'm not big enough," he added. "But the only thing that matters is how big your heart is.

"After two years with Ottawa and one with Vancouver, I thought I'd have a problem in adjusting. But I'm not."

He's going in the opposite direction to such 1970 All-American stars as Steve Worster of Texas, Joe Theisman of Notre Dam, Jim Stillwagon of Ohio State and Rock Perdoni of Georgia Tech—all of whom elected to play in Canada this year.

Others who went to Canada this year includes Greg Barton of Philadelphia Eagles, Jim Lindsey of Abilene Christian, Junior Leon McQuay of Tampa, and quarterbacks Jim Champ of Dartmouth and Don Moorhead of Michigan.

Buffalo's Dennis Shaw and O. J. Simpson also collaborated on two TD passes, for 52 and 10 yards, in the Bills' victory over the Patriots.

Al Woodall, substituting for the injured Joe Namath, directed the Jets to their victory over the Giants in their all-New York battle at New Haven, Conn. Woodall guided the Jets to a 20-0 advantage before the Giants were even able to get out of their own territory.

Soccer Cracks Down

LONDON (CP) — England internationals Gordon Banks and Larry Lloyd both had their names taken in First-Division matches Saturday as English soccer referees continued their crackdown today against indiscipline on the field.

World Cup goalkeeper Banks, the Stoke City captain, was booked after six minutes in the match against Crystal Palace for arguing with a linesman after being penalized for carrying the ball out of the penalty area. Stoke won the game 3-1.

Three players were booked in the match between Dunfermline and Hearts-Mitchell and Gardner of Dunfermline and Anderson of Hearts. Dunfermline won 1-0 with a goal by Gardner.

Brantford Breaks Ice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Bisons, scorcless in their first two Ontario Junior Football encounters, put together seven touchdowns Saturday to topple Sarnia Lakers 47-6.

Quarterback Rick Lewis masterminded 424 offensive yards for Brantford while the Bison defence held the Lakers for 245.

In the only other action over the weekend, Toronto Lakeshore Bears took a 14-7 decision from Peterborough Panthers.

Lewis completed 10 passes, three of which went for touchdowns while the defence took advantage of Sarnia blunders to turn one of five interceptions into a touchdown. They also picked up two touchdowns on Sarnia fumbles.

Terry Under scored Toronto's first touchdown after intercepting a screen pass by Peterborough quarterback Tom Evans.

The final Toronto touchdown came late in the fourth quarter on a 59-yard run by Chuck McMahon. McMahon booted the convert and Tony Bianchi booted a single later in the game to round out the Toronto offence.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Une de Mai and Jean-Rene Gougeon did it again for La Belle Francaise.

The seven-year-old French mare and her 43-year-old French driver won the $125,000 Hoosevelt International Trot, symbol of the world trotting championship, Saturday night, finishing a nose ahead of Fresh Yankee, the Nova Scotia-owned defending champion.

Just as.he did in winning the 1969 global spectacular against the 1 to 5 favorite, Nouvelle Pride of the U.S., Une de Mai charged through the stretch to beat Fresh Yankee in the last stride.

But even though she finished second, Fresh Yankee's $31,250 second-place money pushed her lifetime earnings to $1,008,020.

The team, bought as a yearling by Dunbar MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., for $900, thus became the first American trotter to pass the $1-million mark. Her career earnings are exceeded only by Une de Mai, who picked up $52,500 for the International Victory Saturday to bring her total to $1,300,855.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pat Gamey knew Richard Legendre of Quebec City was going to be tough, but he didn't find out how tough until Sunday afternoon in the Canadian junior closed tennis finals.

Legendre, facing the No. 1 seed from Toronto in his third championship final of the summer, recovered from a shaky second set to crush Gamey 6-3, 3-6, 6-0 and take the 18-and-under crown.

Gamey defeated Legendre in the Ontario junior open, but the Quebec youth reversed it in Quebec.

TORONTO (CP) — Kentucky, the four-year-old stallion from Salem, Ohio, upset favored Canadian pacer Super Wave Saturday night to win the $55,400 Canadian Pacing Derby at Greenwood Raceway.

Kentucky, reined by Bruce Nickells, was trailing halfway through the stretch but won by 1¼ lengths. He covered the mile in 1:59 3-5 and returned $59.60, $12.20 and $4.50.

Super Wave, driven by Jack Kopas and owned by Dr. George Boyce of London, Ont., placed second to return $3.50 and $2.40. Laverne Hanover, owned by Thomas W. Murphy of New York City, finished third, paying $2.30.

Expos Wish They Could Play League Leaders Every Weekend

MONTREAL (CP) — A three-game stand against a division-leading club may not be a pleasant experience for most baseball teams trying to avoid the cellar, but Montreal Expos may have a new outlook on such series following the weekend experience with San Francisco Giants.

The Expos, fighting Philadelphia Phillies to avoid the cellar of the National League's East Division, swept their stand against the Giants, West Division leaders, and may be sorry the West Coast team won't visit Montreal again this season.

Sunday rookie pitcher Ernie McAnally tamed San Francisco's big bats with a seven-hitter and Rusty Staub provided most of the Expo fireworks with three hits as Montreal scored a 6-3 triumph.

It was the three-year-old club's seventh straight win—a club record—and enabled them to sweep their season home series with the Giants, taking all six games at Jarry Park.

Montreal's second-largest home crowd this season, 28,102, saw McAnally strike out Ken Henderson with two men on base and two out in the top of the ninth to preserve his third win in his last three starts and his sixth in 15 decision.

McAnally said he didn't depend on any special pitch but used fastballs, curves and sliders to mix up the batters.

"We got a lot of mileage out of all three pitches," he said.

Montreal also received a lot of mileage out of Staub's bat as the right-fielder belted a single, a double and a home run to push across four Montreal runs.

Montreal battered rookie reliever Jim Barr, one of four Giants hurlers, for two straight singles by Woods and Ron Hunt in the fifth before Staub unloaded a three-run shot which bounced over the right-field fence off Bonds' glove.

Saturday night, he treated a national television audience to 10th-inning heroics, belting a double which scored pitcher Mike Marshall with the winning run in a 4-3 decision.

It was the fourth extra-inning contest won by Montreal this year. All four featured 4-3 scores and wins by Marshall, his only victories of the season.

In Friday's home opener, Bill Stoneman struck out nine en route to a 4-1 decision over San Francisco ace Juan Marichal.

Brewers End Detroit Drought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Milwaukee Brewers had Dick McAuliffe coming and going and Freddie Patek kept Washington on the run.

The Brewers who had lost 11 consecutive games to the Tigers in Detroit, ended that dry spell with a 2-1 decision Sunday, scoring the winning run on a little hesitation step against McAuliffe.

Kansas City dumped Washington 4-1 with Patek stealing two more bases and increasing his major league leading total in that department to 61.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Chicago White Sox tripped Cleveland Indians 5-3, California Angeles blanked New York Yankees 3-0, Oakland Athletics swept a doubleheader with Boston Red Sox, winning the opener 9-3 and taking the second game 2-1, and Baltimore Orioles beat Minnesota Twins 6-3.

On Saturday, Cleveland defeated Chicago 9-4, Detroit trounced Milwaukee 7-2, Oakland beat Boston 4-1, Kansas City downed Washington 8-5 and California nipped New York 2-1.

The Brewers and Tigers were tied at 1-1 in the sixth inning when Tommy Harper opened with a double for Milwaukee. Ron Theobald's single moved Harper to third.

Next, Jose Cardenal bounced to second baseman McAuliffe. Instead of going for the double play, McAuliffe threw to the plate to cut off Harper. The only problem there was that Harper didn't try for the plate. He dove back to third base instead, leaving the bases loaded.

Dave May followed with another bouncer to McAuliffe. This time the second baseman went for the double play, but he didn't get it. May beat the relay to first by a step with Harper scooting home, carrying the winning run.

Patek, Kansas City's pesky little leadoff man, ran the Royals into a first-inning run when he reached base on an error and then stole second and third base before scoring on Lou Piniella's single.

Four innings later, Patek was at it again, touching off another rally with a double.

The White Sox got some long ball punch with Pat Kelly, Mike Andrews and Carlos May all poling home runs to beat Cleveland. Wilbur Wood ran his record to 17-9 for the Sox, who've won seven of their last eight games.

Andy Messersmith hurled a six-hitter while Jim Spencer and Roger Repoz rapped home runs as California clipped New York.

Dave Duncan drove in four runs with a single, double and homer as Oakland routed Boston in the first game of their doubleheader.

Duncan touched off a seven-run explosion in the seventh inning with his 16th homer of the year and then capped the rally with an RBI double.

Leaders Losing Like Mad

Pittsburgh Pirates and San Francisco Giants can't win for losing . . . or can they?

The National League's divisional leaders—the Pirates have been on top since June 11, the Giants since April 13—took it on the chin again Sunday by identical 6-3 counts from Cincinnati Reds and Montreal Expos, respectively.

But again this didn't lose any ground when the runners-up also lost—the East's Chicago Cubs bowing to Houston 4-3 and the West's Los Angeles Dodgers falling to Philadelphia 3-2.

Although the Pirates have dropped three in a row and 20 of their 29 starts, they still lead the Cubs by 4½ games.

The Giants also have lost three straight and 11 of 18 but are 6½ games in front of the Dodgers.

The Pirates jumped to a quick 2-0 lead over Cincinnati Sunday when Bob Robertson smacked a bases-loaded single off Gary Nolan in the first inning. It didn't last long.

"I knew we'd get to Luke Walker," said manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds. "And those two runs didn't bother me too much because we're putting runs on the board real well right now."

Pete Rose snapped the deadlock in the fourth with a two-run homer as the surging Reds won for the 11th time in 14 meetings this month with the top four teams in the NL East.

Rusty Staub drove in four runs with a double and three-run homer and rookie Ernie McAnally tossed a seven-hitter as the Expos turned back the Giants and ran their winning streak to seven games, a club record.

Brockville Hopes Pinned on Pitcher

MONTREAL (CP) — When the Canadian champions from Brockville, Ont. take to the field against Hawaii Tuesday in their first contest at the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., their hopes will ride mainly on Dan Colbson's right arm.

The five-foot, 10-inch fireballer registered two no-hitters in the Canadian championship last week, including a 2-0, 10-strikeout masterpiece over Forest Hills, B.C., Saturday, which gave Brockville the title.

Cultural Diversity Backed by Stanbury

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury says he hopes government policy on diversity of cultures in Canada will be announced within a few months.

Mr. Stanbury, who was minister responsible for citizenship before his recent appointment as communications minister, says he has made proposals to the government on encouraging cultural diversity.

He was being interviewed on the CTV network program Question Period shown Sunday.

Mr. Stanbury said his proposals are in response to recommendations on diversity of cultures made by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The royal commission in its fourth volume recommended a number of specific steps that could be taken at the federal level.

These included such steps as removal by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission of some restrictions on private broadcasting in languages other than French or English.

The report also urged the CBC to remove its "proscription on the use of other languages in broadcasting."

Also suggested was an effort by the CRTC to undertake a study on how radio and television could aid the cause of different cultural groups.

Mr. Stanbury, who was also minister responsible for Information Canada before his recent appointment, said Information Canada is more "out in the open" than information services of other governments.

Rain Came Late

The rain finally came to ease some of the worries the Quinte District Horsemen but for Belleville tennis enthusiasts it should have come a bit sooner.

The downpour knocked out half of the 18 matches scheduled Sunday in the annual Doug Grant Trophy competition between Belleville and Kingston, but it wasn't until Kingston had built up a 6-3 lead in match wins.

Belleville's number one seed Wayne Storms started off quickly against Don McIntosh winning the first set 6-4 but couldn't handle the Kingston native the next two, losing 6-0 and 6-2.

Logie MacDonald of Kingston disposed of Tom Finlay 6-0, 6-3 using a strong net game to handicap the local entry. Dr. Walcott battled Kingston's Neal Naismith to the limit before bowing out 6-4, 6-7, 6-2. Belleville's John Wiggst lost to Jack Campbell 7-5, 6-1; Dr. Buck Ballamy dropped a 7-5, 6-3 series to Mort Morris, and Rob Woodley was trapped by J. Dolphin 6-2, 6-0.

The three Belleville wins came from Frank Craig who took a 6-0, 6-2 decision from Ted Boyd 8-6, 6-2; Allan Bellamy who stopped J. Bates 6-4, 7-6 and Gregg Greatrix who overcame Bruce Cornell 4-6, 6-0, 6-4.

In two matches halted by rain, Robert Hicks was tied with George Elliot at 5-5 after dropping the first set 4-6, and Ken Grant was 2-2 with R. Fletcher.

All unfinished matches and the doubles which were rained off will be completed in the return meet at Kingston Sept. 19.

Squirts Hurry

The Belleville SACO squirts don't like long affairs as illustrated in their Ontario Amateur Softball Association Zone playdowns. The local squad has gone only the three-game limit once in their four series to date.

Saturday at the Alemite they made it short and sweet, with Napanee by-passed on the victors 11-5. The win was Belleville's second in a row and eliminated the visitors.

Andy Rossi was a one-man wrecking crew for S.A.C.O. blasting a grand slam homer, a two run homer and a triple for a total of seven runs batted in. Pitching phenomenon Tim Soule hurled the win, allowing 14 hits while fanning five and not walking a batter. Danny Vance added two singles to the winners seven hit attack.

Gilbert had a triple and single and Maracle three singles for Napanee.

Next play-off action for SACO will be this Saturday, when they host Petersham in the first game of the Zone finals.

Sport Briefs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Allison won a fender-banging contest and narrowly survived a late-race crash Sunday to take the Talladega, Ala., 500-mile stock car race.

Allison beat Richard Petty across the finish line by 2.1 seconds after shaking loose from a final lap collision between Petty and Pete Hamilton that sent Hamilton out of the race.

Allison and Petty admitted there had been considerable fender-banging at 185 miles per hour as the three drivers battled side-by-side and bumper-to-bumper the last 50 miles of the race.

The victory was worth $21,065 for Allison, bringing his total for the season to $171,435. Petty collected $10,340 for second place and now has become NASCAR's first $700,000 season winner with $710,065.

In contrast to Allison's nervous victory, Jackie Stewart of Scotland breezed to an easy win over team McLaren drivers Denis Hulme and Pete Revson in a Can-Am road race at the Mid-Ohio course near Lexington.

Stewart took the lead from McLaren's Revson on the 72nd lap and coasted home to his second victory in five races this year.

BUFFALO (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson, beating the bush leagues for a third crack at the game, twice had his feet floyed with relatively-unknown Vic Brown Saturday night and came up with a unanimous 10 round decision. Patterson was credited by both judges with taking every round.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad and Tobago (AP) — Muhammad Ali said Sunday he will retire from professional boxing after his proposed return next year to heavyweight championship bout against Joe Frazier and devote his life to preaching the Islamic doctrine of "Boxing to me is a sideline," Ali said. "My life is devoted to bringing happiness to the liberation of the black people all over the world."

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Emile Puttemans of Belgium has established two-mile track record when he was clocked in eight minutes 11.8 seconds at the Highland Games Saturday. Australian Ron Clarke held the previous record at 8:19.6.

TORONTO (CP) — Oshawa Tony's edged Oshawa Cubs 4-3 in the men's softball tournament Sunday at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Bob Solomon had a home run and his brother, Phil, rapped out two singles for Oshawa Tony's six hits. Paul Gibbens banged out a two-run homer for the winners.

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP) — Canada's team of six water skiers were chosen over the weekend to compete in the 12th world water ski championships at Banolas, Spain, Sept. 7-19.

Only two of 30 scheduled rounds were completed in a rainstorm here but it was enough to choose the top representatives and two alternates.

George Athans of Kelowna, B.C., captured first place with a 159-foot jump, two feet better than his old record and six feet off the world record.

He also was winner of the men's trick events Sunday with a high score of 4,300 points and Canada's slalom events with 34½ buoys.

* * *

LAKE BAGSVAERD, Denmark (AP) — Alberto Demiddi, a 28-year-old sculler from Argentina and a powerful eight-man crew from New Zealand helped prevent a clean sweep by East German oarsmen in the European rowing championship which ended Sunday.

World champion Demiddi successfully defended his European crown in the single sculls.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A temporary truce has been reached in a dispute over purses fees paid to winning horses that threatened to cancel Monday's thoroughbred racing card at Exhibition Park.

The dispute arose Friday when the Horsemen's Benevolent Association, distributing agent for the provincial government betting scheme, informed the Jockey Club that the money would go only to horses bred in Ontario and returned to the province.

The association's championship bout against Joe Frazier and devote his life to preaching the Islamic doctrine of "Boxing to me is a sideline," Ali said. "My life is devoted to bringing happiness to the liberation of the black people all over the world."

Truckers Making Move

Quinte Transport moved closer to driver's seat in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League Sunday night with a 2-0 victory over the Belleville Falcons.

The win places Quinte in a second place tie with Parsons, two points behind United but the Transports have a game in hand over both teams.

Dave Stephens tallied the only goal of the first half, heading in a shot. The Falcons were stunned when Robin Findley took the ball from the second half kickoff right up the middle and drove a 25-footer past a startled Falcon goalie.

Plane's Waiting

The long wait is almost over for pennant winning Plane's Concrete as their final play-off opponents for the South Hastings Baseball championships will be decided tonight.

Plane's, resting for the past week after eliminating Shannonville four games to one last Sunday, will be watching Trenton's seventh and deciding game between Latta and Read with interest. The winner advances into the finals against Plane's either Thursday or Sunday.

Tonight's game in Latta is the replay of Sunday's rained-out game with starting time at 6:30.

Import Driver Wins With Beverly's June

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

There were a lot of surprises in Saturday night's Greenleaf Memorial Stake Race at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds and a lot of surprised people!

Beverly's June, a four-year-old "green" mare, provided the most excitement of the night by edging out Edgewood Sharon in a photo finish to win the event.

June reached the finals by finishing third in her elimination heat but used a couple of lucky breaks to capture the $800 top prize money.

"We had a couple of breaks — two horses broke so we got position. It's all racing luck," exclaimed elated Nelson White who drove June to victory.

White took over June's reins from trainer Al Vance who normally drives her but who took her to an elimination heat position. "Al was a driving two horses in divisionations and both qualified for the finals so I took the horse that finished lower in the heats which happened to be Beverly's," explained White.

The mare, owned by Cecil Hutcheson of Bath, is a first-year pacer and had earned $500 before the Stakes almost doubled her earnings. "She was well conditioned for the two races although this was the first time she's ever run twice in a night," said White, who trains for Hutcheson in Toronto and made the trip to Belleville just for the Stakes. "The starting place isn't really important to her but she did watch the infield a little bit, etc. etc. in it."

Saturday night's victory came over a muddy track and numerous skips from nervous horses.

"The skips are to be expected in a colt race but the track was pretty bad. No cushion at all. That's why the times were way down," added June's trainer Al Vance.

The time of the finals was 2:14.2 well off any track records but was good enough to stop any other entry. Pre-race favorite Edgewood Sharon who has run a 2:08 mile found the final competition a bit too much to handle although it took a photo to keep her out of the winner's circle. She had managed only a fourth in the second race heat.

Tar Magic recorded a personal record of 2:13 to win the first heat, second race on the ten-heat card, then was unable to finish the finals after smashing into the fence after one recall charged to her.

In non-stake harness racing, Phil Stewart won the seventh race on Quinte Lad to return $19.40, combining with Prima Rae for a $51.30 Exacter. The fastest mile of the night was by John Huntback's Victor Hal Direct who finished in 2:11 flat in the ninth race.

An overflow grandstand crowd pushed $28,668 through the pari-mutuel wickets for the night's racing. First event on the Quinte Exhibition's program.

Dynamic Duo!

It may not make much difference to Beverly's June but to trainer Al Vance it had to be an unexpected but very pleasant surprise. The four-year-old mare let loose in the back straight to nip Edgewood Sharon at the wire in a photo finish for the Greenleaf Memorial Stakes at Saturday's weekly Belleville harness meet. Vance had driven June to a third place finish in the elimination heat but when turned over the reins to Nelson White of Harwood who took the four-year-old mare to victory in 2:14.2.

Track Success Not for Spectators

KINGSTON (CP) — There was less success in the stands than on the track Sunday, official opening day for Frontenac Park.

The track record was lowered three times during the 10 race card but equipment failure delayed the start of the first race more than an hour. Seven eliminated quinella and exacter betting on the crowd of 3,618.

Early stakes John, owned by Earl and Sharon Lake of Elgin and driven by Karl Lake, set a track record of 2:04 2-5, one-fifth of a second faster than the mile the horse paced three years ago. The earlier mark broke a 36 year-old record at the Kingston Memorial Centre.

Also Sunday, the $1,332 Eastern Ontario Pair consolation was won by Roger Lee, owned by Orvil Gibson of Yarker, and driven by Bernard Corcoran.

Hall's No-Hitter Gives Peewees Life

The Belleville Conductors and Brakemen peewees were in danger of ending up a long winter after dropping a 10-3 decision to Oshawa Saturday but that was before Peter Hall had anything to say about it.

Trailing 1-0 in the best-of-three minor baseball series, Hall delighted the home town fans as he struck out 15 and throwing a no-hitter to stop Oshawa 3-0, and even the series.

Hall fanned 12 and walked only four in picking up the win. Belleville managed only three hits, a triple from Mike Burke, a double from Chris Masterson and a single from Paul Weeks but they were enough to back up Hall's clutch performance.

Bill Whales and Clyde Routley were on the mound for Belleville's hosts in Oshawa. They gave up six hits while fanning five. Burke had a double and single and Routley a double for Belleville.

Maddock fired the win for Oshawa getting up eight hits and fanning 10.

The Conductors and Brakemen will try to even it up again this Wednesday when they journey to Toronto to take part in the Toronto Star Tournament at the CNE. Their first game, opponents will be either Dundas or Niagara Falls in an opening round game of the 24-team tourney. Previous to the game Scott Clyde Routley will participate as Belleville's entries in the run, bat and throw competition.

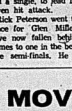
Who Needs Nine?

The less the merrier proved to be Dickens' Voyageurs' calling Saturday night, as they picked up a 5-2 victory over Glen Miller despite playing one man short for five innings and two men short for the final two frames.

Norm Lockhart made up for the lack of personnel on the Dickens' mound, firing five-hit ball and striking out nine. Stan Dafoe continued his hitting streak by smashing a fifth inning two run homer and a single, to lead Dickens seven hit attack.



Rick Peterson went the distance for Glen Miller who have now fallen behind top games to one in the best - of - five semi-finals. He fanned six and walked only one. Wayne and Ken McGeachy, Brian McCauley, Ron Post and Mike Burke each hit safely for the losers.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

'Nerves' Diagnosis One of Last Resort

"Nerves" is often a wastebasket term. The patient is nervous. He (or she) does not understand why he is "different" from the way he used to be. Sometimes his doctor finds trouble that needs correction.

For example, the patient has a bad gallbladder. He is operated on. But the nervous condition persists, even though the gallbladder has been removed, and there is no improvement.

As I keep telling my people (including my medical colleagues), You'll accept a diagnosis of "nerves" until every possible disease has been found not guilty. The following letter is an example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: This letter may possibly be helpful to some poor, nervous soul. I started feeling shaky. I could hardly hold my hand steady. I wanted to do everything and do it in a hurry.

I couldn't relax. I ate as if they were stopping food — did not take time to chew. I began to have diarrhea, as many as 10 stools a day.

Yet I kept saying I felt great. I had a lot of pep. I was operated on for gallstones, but I still shook. Still had diarrhea.

They gave me nerve pills. I could barely hold a coffee pot in my hand. In fact, a few people later admitted that they used to think I drank liquor, because I shook so much.

One day I noticed a swelling in my throat. I went to our family doctor. He took tests and found that I had an overactive thyroid gland.

Three possibilities for treatment were suggested. One was special anti-thyroid pills — which meant all kinds of checkups at least every other week. Another, of course, was operation, which they could not perform until they got me calmed down. It took special preparation and I did not want to wait that long.

The third remedy suggested was radioactive iodine, which I had to drink and then be checked once every six weeks. This did not sound good, either (you see, I wanted to get out of taking any kind of treatment). But as my family doctor and a consultant recommended it, I agreed.

It took about 15 minutes. I drank something that tasted just like water. I went home and returned in six weeks. I have had two return visits so far.

The swelling in my neck is almost completely gone. I do not shake any more. My diarrhea has stopped. I really feel great. I laugh a lot more and enjoy my family for the first time in many months. I have not taken a nerve pill, but don't need them. I hope this letter helps someone who is diagnosed as being "just nervous" — but isn't. — Mrs. C.

* * *

For Mr. S.: I doubt that the calcium tablets you have been taking for leg cramps are responsible for the "bone spurs" that have developed on the heel of your right heel. Neither is this reason enough for discontinuing your milk and cereals.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: On my left hand I have a soft bump that my father calls a ganglion. I'm terribly afraid to have it removed. I'm afraid of a painful operation and a scar. I've begged my parents not to call our doctor. I'm 14 years old. What shall I do? — Miss B.

COMMENT: Ganglion is not serious. It is a cyst — like growth, easily removed, relatively painless, and operation leaves very little scarring. I agree with your parents. See your doctor. (I continue to be surprised at the age-range of readers of this column. Letters from those in their 80s and 90s are not uncommon. However, those from the 8 to 14 group move me most.)

Botulism Is Discovered In U.S. Campbell's Soup

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — The Campbell Soup Co. has recalled thousands of cans of chicken vegetable soup in the United States after the discovery of deadly botulism contamination in a single can of the soup.

A spokesman for the firm in Toronto said chicken vegetable soup sold by the company in Canada is not affected.

The firm said Sunday it already has recovered about 56 per cent of the soup processed at Paris, Tex., and distributed in 16 western and southern states. It said more than 96,000 cans of the soup are involved.

"To our knowledge, no illness has been reported as a result of eating the soup," a Campbell spokesman said. He added that the recall order applies only to chicken vegetable soup processed at Paris and distributed in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Mississippi, Missouri, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

The company urged consumers in those states and in adjoining states to destroy any cans of the chicken vegetable soup they have in their homes. Grocers have been instructed to withdraw the soup from their shelves.

The announcement followed the discovery of neurotoxin botulin in the soup coded 97.213.701.6. The toxin causes botulism, a type of poisoning which kills its victim within 24 hours unless diagnosed early.

Company tests indicate contamination occurred only July 15, the spokesman said, but he added that all chicken vegetable soup packed in Paris before and after July 15 is being recalled.

The Texas plant manager, Joe Rez, said the plant stopped making the soup in late July when the contamination was first found.

He said a report from the National Canners Laboratory in California confirmed Sunday that the contamination was caused by soil-born bacteria that is destroyed by heat in normal processing, but said tests were still under way to determine why processing at Paris did not destroy the bacteria.

Asked if Campbell's knew about the contamination more than three weeks before alerting the public, a spokesman in Camden said:

"I'm not sure that we can answer that question at this time.

"If there was any sort of suspicion at the Paris plant in late July that the soup was contaminated, I am not aware of it."

Last month, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ordered the recall of all soups, sauces and stews manufactured by Ben Venzt, Inc., of Newark, N.J. after a can of the firm's vichyssoise was blamed for the death of a New York state man from botulism poisoning.

Campbell has urged consumers, after destroying the soup, to send the container labels to its plant in Paris. It said the purchase price will be refunded.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Blessed Are the Cool

Apropos of my recent column on the Beatitudes, where I suggested that "cool" might be a better word than "meek" to describe the attitude that Jesus meant, a reader has asked me to define "cool" more fully.

"Are you referring to the old collegiate word of the Beachboy set, or the 'too cool meaning non - violent?'" she asks. Neither, in this context: I am using it in the idiomatic sense of not "losing your cool".

Blessed are those who do not lose their cool. That is to say, those who do not give way to temper-outbursts, those who know that a soft answer turns away wrath, those who do not respond to crisis with recrimination or hysteria.

A cool person does not prevence; does not draw large generalizations from narrow observations; does not confuse differences with inferiorities; does not automatically process new facts so that they conform to old fancies; does not suffer from the paranoid delusion that the ends justify the means.

A cool person never says, "Why did this have to happen to me?", or "You have to fight fire with fire," or "God knows, I wasn't to blame," or "It serves him right," or "They asked for it," or that lofties rationalization straight from Hades, "You have to live."

"Cool" as a noun is quite different in depth and dimension from "cool" as an adjective in that old phrase, "cool, calm and collected." The adjective has no moral connotation: a man can be "cool" kidnapping a child but the noun has a built-in moral significance.

You don't lose your cool for reasons of internal integrity, not for reasons of show or bravado. "Cool" is not the swagger of the man about to be executed, nonchalantly puffing on a last cigarette: it is the quiet refusal of a man to form part of the firing squad, because he knows that all executioners, in Camus' phrase, "are of the same family".

When you lose your cool, the essentially human part of you drops away, and you behave as a species rather than as a person. Or you behave as a function, an aggregate, an abstraction, and regard other persons only as functions, aggregates, or abstractions.

Only a truly democratic society protects and respects "cool"—as totalitarian societies of the marxist or rightist wage incessant war on this trait, for it is a permanent threat to their mythology of power. Nobody fears the "meek," but everyone is secretly afraid of the "cool".

The present administration in the U.S.-fiercely opposes it; both parties dislike and fear it. The communists pretend to honor it, but use it for their own purposes. The Christians, alas have forgotten it.

Mortgage Simply Evidence of Debt

Almost everyone has at one time or another been a party to a mortgage, either through obtaining one or through buying property already subject to one. Even so, many people do not fully understand what a mortgage really is.

In simplest terms a mortgage is really nothing more than evidence of a debt.

The great advantage of a mortgage, though, is that the creditor has security against the property, described in the mortgage and can take steps to sell the property or acquire ownership through foreclosure if the mortgage payments are not made.

To give a simple example of the kind of situation in which a mortgage could be involved, let us say that Smith owns his home clear of all debts and is selling it to Jones for $15,000. Jones has only $5,000 cash so Smith agrees to let Jones pay off the other $10,000 (plus a mutually agreed rate of interest) at so much a month over a period of years. He takes a mortgage from Jones and the mortgage is registered in the land titles office along with the other documents.

If Jones does not make the required payments, Smith can take action under the terms of the mortgage and either sell the property to a third party through "mortgage sale proceedings" or else obtain title to the property himself through foreclosure if no third party is interested.

To illustrate another type of circumstance in which a mortgage would be involved, let us say that Smith's house is already subject to a $10,000 mortgage when he was selling it to Jones. Then Jones would pay the $5,000 difference to Smith and take over Smith's responsibility for the balance of the mortgage payments.

A third common type of situation would be if Smith owned the house clear, as in the first example, but insisted on receiving cash for it and Jones still only had $5,000. In these circumstances Jones would borrow the other $10,000 from a third party so that Smith would receive $15,000 in cash. Jones would then sign a $10,000 mortgage in favor of the third party.

Some mortgages contain a provision prohibiting prepayment, the idea being that the person receiving the mortgage payments wants to prolong the payment period and thereby obtain as much interest as possible.

However, the provinces have legislation giving the person who is making the payments the right to make any additional payment or payments after a certain number of years regardless of the terms of the mortgage.

That's the law!

Diefenbaker Says Kennedy Loaned Top Organizer to Liberals

KITCHENER (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Saturday that John Kennedy, then United States president, assigned one of his top political organizers to the national Liberal party during the election in which Mr. Diefenbaker's Conservative government was defeated.

"He turned over one of his top organizers to the Liberals," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "This man operated out of Toronto under an assumed name.

The former prime minister said Mr. Kennedy wanted him to quit selling wheat to China "and told me so."

"I had to point out that Canada was not Massachusetts, or even Boston," Mr. Diefenbaker said.

This independent attitude, he said, angered Mr. Kennedy and led him to work behind the scenes to effect the Diefenbaker government's downfall.

Mr. Diefenbaker was addressing the Kitchener-Waterloo Press Club.

U.S. leaders have little regard for their Canadian counterparts, he said, and this is evident from the controversy over the recently-announced additional tax on imports and Canada's clashes with the late President Kennedy.

He said President Nixon's failure to give Canada advance warning of economic measures, including the additional import tax that would have a profound effect on the Canadian economy, reflects Washington's unusual low regard for Ottawa.

Ottawa's request to Washington for exemption from the new tax, he said, was like "carrying a tin cup to put out a forest fire."

"The events of the last few days should have been anticipated by the Canadian government. We and the U.S. have been overspending at a rate that sooner or later would necessitate a day of reckoning."

Prime Minister Trudeau's statement that the U.S. extra surcharge would wipe out many Canadian jobs is "one of the greatest alibis in history.

"There are now 535,000 Canadians out of work and the number is increasing. We would have had serious unemployment because of the Liberal government's policy regardless of what the Americans did."

Prime Minister Trudeau, Mr. Diefenbaker said, "spoke with great seriousness but he must have been smiling underneath."

The prime minister should have been in Canada when the economic crisis began, he said.

"In my day we stayed in Ottawa. No amount of time was enough to get things done."

The federal government now should give small businessmen and manufacturers a 19-per-cent tax break to counterbalance the 10-per-cent extra duty, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

"This would allow Canadian products to participate in the U.S. market. As it stands, the import tax is a serious blow to secondary industry in our country."

OXFAM Parley Calls For Help for Pakistan

TORONTO (CP) — A meeting of politically influential people from around the world has called on governments to halt military and economic aid to Pakistan.

The meeting Saturday, called by OXFAM, the worldwide relief organization, also urged an emergency program for famine relief in East Pakistan, to be directed and administered by the United Nations.

Delegates from Canada, the United States, Britain and Asia called on governments to share the economic burden of supporting hordes of East Pakistani refugees who have fled to India.

A final point in what was termed the Toronto Declaration was a request urged governments to intervene to save the life of jailed East Pakistani leader Sheik Mujibur Rahman.

Delegates said the civil war which resulted from Sheik Rahman's independence movement was one of history's major disasters and is a threat to world peace because of the danger of involvement of the big powers.

The conference was held under the chairmanship of Dr. Hugh Keenleyside of Canada, former under-secretary-general of the United Nations.

The meeting was told that widespread famine is expected to strike East Pakistan within the next six weeks and will affect five to 10 million people.

A speaker from the United States said "many of the elements present in many documented famines are present in East Pakistan.

"In previous famines, all the elements were ignored until it was too late. It may be too late now."

Based on figures gathered by U.S. government agencies, he predicted that in the 12-month period ending next July, East Pakistan will need 2.9 million tons of food but at best it will be possible to send in 1.5 million tons.

OTTAWA (CP) — A fund-raising campaign for relief assistance to East Pakistani refugees in the Indian states of Bihar and West Bengal has been launched in Canada by the Canadian University Service Overseas.

Defence White Paper Ready for Release

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP) — Defence Minister Donald Macdonald says his department's white paper, to be released in Ottawa Tuesday, will have four main priorities: The maintenance of national sovereignty, Canada's participation in North American defence, her role in NATO and her part in United Nations peacekeeping missions.

The minister, during a Western Canadian tour, also said during the weekend that he does not expect the United States monetary moves announced last week by President Nixon to affect Canadian American defence relations in any way.

He described the role played by the military in last fall's Quebec crisis as giving credence to Canada's overall military force. It had also demonstrated that a bilingual force is invaluable.

Vandalism Won't Alter Strike Right of Police

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The right of policemen to go on strike will not be withdrawn despite vandalism that gripped downtown Sydney for two nights during the first legal walkout by lawmen in Canada, Attorney-General Leonard Pace said Saturday.

Policemen returned to their beats minutes after Mr. Pace, also provincial labor minister, announced Saturday that Sydney Mayor Carl Neville would recommend council acceptance of wage demands.

Return of police patrols brought peace to city streets following outbreaks of vandalism Thursday and Friday nights when police provided only emergency service.

Mr. Pace said he felt it would be premature to decide the future of police strike power on the basis of only one walkout.

"But if we find strikes inevitably leads to people's lives being placed in jeopardy, then the whole package will have to be re-examined . . . Strike power will have to be balanced with public safety."

The agreement was announced following a meeting involving Mr. Pace, Mayor Neville and his advisers and two representatives of the policemen—John Malroy, president of Local 758, Canadian Union of Public Employees, and Manning MacIntyre, CUPE's national director in Cape Breton.

Mayor Neville said the agreement will be presented to council tonight for ratification. He said he is sure it will be accepted.

Throughout negotiations that started last January, Mr. Neville had said the city could not meet demands of the 56-member force. He said he would not raise the needed money by adding to the city's already-high tax rate.

But he said he agreed to accept conciliation board recommendations already ratified by police after the provincial government said it would provide the city with more money.

The agreement will increase the salary of a first-class constable to $9,000 by the end of 1972 from the present $6,500.

"I'm elated by the outcome," said Mr. MacIntyre, a former policeman.

Women Do Not Dare Complain About Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Under present laws women can't complain they are being discriminated against by their employers because they will be fired, says Dr. Esther Greenglass.

"When a girl feels this way she knows if she goes to her boss she will lose her job; if she goes and complains to the labor board and gives her name, she will lose her job anyway," said Dr. Greenglass, a member of a three-woman group chosen by the Liberal Party.

It has travelled the country to find out which recommendations made by the royal commission on the status of women should be given top priority.

Dr. Greenglass, a Toronto psychologist, says the question of equal pay for equal work is an area of prime concern to working woman across Canada.

The three women attended the Liberal caucus here this weekend and will present their priorities to the party's consultative council in October.

Other members of the group are Jan Steele of London, Ont., executive vice-president of the Liberal Party of Ontario, and Mrs. Lambert Gibeault of Hull, Que., president of the Women's Liberal Federation of Canada.

Dr. Greenglass said other topics that kept cropping up in all regions included the need for day-care centres and discontent over the general principle of sex typing, which the group was told is too evident in job advertisements.

Labor Fears Trudeau May Copy Nixon Move

TORONTO (CP) — William Mahoney, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, said Sunday the labor movement is worried about what the federal government might do about the new United States import duties on manufactured goods.

"Nothing would suit the Nixon strategy better than to have (Prime Minister) Trudeau endeavor to bring about the same legislated controls in Canada," Mr. Mahoney said in a statement.

Mr. Mahoney said President Nixon would be willing to make concessions if Canada would take a similar stand.

"In the process he would be supported by big business on both sides of the border—which is essentially the same big business anyway."

Liberals Would Order Expressway Extension

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, said Sunday his party would order extension of the Spadina Expressway several blocks south, if it wins the next provincial election.

He told a news conference at the close of a campaign school for Liberal candidates and party workers that his party would consider extending the expressway south of Eglinton Ave. as part of a review of urban transportation needs.

The roadbed for the expressway route has been prepared to Eglinton Ave. from Lawrence Ave.

"I have said that I will not permit $140 million already spent to be wasted," Mr. Nixon said.

Premier William Davis announced last June that his cabinet has decided to halt further construction work on the roadway in favor of a rapid transit system.

Mr. Nixon said his party's campaign would not be one of all-out attack on the Conservative government.

"I really feel the stance of attack is not a good political one," he said. "It does not easily come to me. I believe my stance is to be a valid alternative (to the Conservatives) and leave it to the people to make their choice."

He said the Liberals were dissatisfied with the Conservatives' record on managing the provincial economy, and also believe Mr. Davis has neglected Ontario's duty to take a leading role in constitutional negotiations.

They believe Ontario should go ahead with its own plans for tax reform without waiting for Ottawa to implement its schemes.

Mr. Nixon said his party is also far from satisfied with the government's record on pollution control and concern for the environment.

About 300 candidates, campaign managers and party workers attended the three-day school at York University which was closed to the press and the public.

Fossil Fuel Supply Won't Last Past 2,000

HAMILTON (CP) — The present fossil-fuel supply won't last past the year 2000 and governments should put more funds into investigating other sources, a New York City expert said Saturday.

Marc Messing told the International Youth Conference on human environment the present fuel system is also causing considerable damage to people's health.

He said other potential sources of energy are available but little research has been done.

He said that damaging emissions from fossil fuel dump "billions of tons" of sulphur oxide and nitrates, carbon, soot and mercury into the air.

The 10-day conference, with 120 delegates from 75 countries, was in its second day.

Bomarcs Will Go; Interceptors Stay

NORAD Refused North Bay Base

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will drop two squadrons of nuclear equipped Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles, a defence white paper said today.

Defence Minister Donald Macdonald described the once controversial missile as "obsolete" at a news conference.

However, he admitted that U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird and his advisers, when informed of Canada's decision to drop this part of its contribution to North American air defence, were "not enthusiastic."

They wanted Canada to maintain the Bomarcs, stationed at North Bay, Ont., and La Macaza, Que., Mr. Macdonald said.

The Bomarcs will be retired gradually, with completion of the withdrawal set for Sept. 1, 1972.

"Arrangements will be made to minimize the economic effects of this decision," said the white paper. The move will affect 14 civilians and 170 military personnel at North Bay, 71 civilians and 284 military personnel at La Macaza.

At the same time the minister said Canada has turned down a North American Air Defence Command request that North Bay be designated as an alternative NORAD headquarters in case the main headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., is knocked out by a nuclear missile.

The Canadian government has had the request under consideration for several years. North Bay already is a key communications centre in the NORAD anti-bomber command and control system.

The white paper makes clear, however, that Canada will maintain its share of nuclear-equipped interceptor aircraft for continental defence, and will still allow Strategic Air Command refuelling tankers to make use of facilities at Goose Bay, Labrador.

It also will continue to permit SAC bombers to fly over Canada on airborne alert in times of crisis, "as determined by the government."

Dealing with equipment, the white paper says Canadian forces in Germany will no longer operate in the heavy tank role once the present, aging fleet of Centurions goes out of service.

The Centurion will be replaced by a light, air transportable tank, possibly the British Scorpion, though Mr. Macdonald said he is keeping his options open as to just which machine to purchase.

No decision has been reached on whether to buy a new maritime patrol aircraft, or alternatively, to update the present, somewhat long-in-the-tooth Argus with a new Avionics system.

Mr. Macdonald said he will decide this question within a year.

No further cuts are planned in Canada's military contribution to NATO.

For Other Stories On Defence White Paper See Front Page, Second Section

The defence budget will be unfrozen a year ahead of schedule, in the 1972-73 fiscal year, and projected strength of the forces at April 1, 1973, will be increased by 1,000.

The forces will then number 83,000 instead of 82,000. They are currently being reduced from a strength of 98,000 two years ago.

The policy paper said the defence budget will remain within about one per cent of the present $1.8 billion ceiling for 1972-73.

Beyond that it will be established "on the basis of program forecasts and estimates in accordance with practice followed by other government departments."

The current ceiling, imposed by the government more than two years ago, was to last to the end of the 1972-73 fiscal year.

It is being lifted, the white paper said, to take care of new radar and communications expenses and to finance additional roles for the CF-5 ground support aircraft.

Two squadrons of Canada-based CF-5s are being committed for close support on NATO's northern flank in Norway.

CF-5s also are to be used for photo reconnaissance in Canada and over coastal waters, and some will replace T-33 aircraft in the advanced training role.

The white paper provides for maintenance of Canada's role in anti-submarine warfare, but says the long-term objective is

Urban Sprawl To Be Halted

TORONTO (CP) — The growth of Ontario cities and towns will be determined by government, not land developers, Premier William Davis warned Monday night.

He told 750 delegates attending the annual conference of the Ontario Municipal Association that non-government participation in land development would lead to the kind of urban sprawl that is plaguing much of the United States and Europe.

"Perhaps, the easy way would have been for the government to say: 'Let the municipalities and the developers and others sort this out on an individual basis.'"

But such a course would mean "abdicating our responsibilities to our children and their children."

Mr. Davis was defending his government's decision to restrict the growth of Metropolitan Toronto under the controversial Toronto-centred region plan.

The plan is aimed at checking urban sprawl to within a 90-mile area centred in Toronto.

Mr. Davis warned that these problems can only be solved by governments making the kind of "tough decisions that we are elected to do."

The premier said he recognized that some of his government have been disturbed by too much government and property re-assessment have been disturbing to many. But he had no intention of backing away "from them as head of the government."

"I make no apology for the policy that relates to the reorganization of our municipalities where the need is demonstrated and where we can provide a better and more efficient service to the people in the regional operation."

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said the government is considering cutting taxes on clean-burning fuels for commercial trucks as an anti-pollution measure.

Simcoe County's chairman of social services said Monday welfare administrators should be given more control with their clients' needs than "the idea of how soon somebody can be cut off the rolls."

"Public interest in welfare programs has never been higher but some administrators believe that the less the public and recipients know about terms of clients know about terms of benefits or what they're entitled to under legislation, the better off they'll be."

Dr. C. J. Williams, director of municipal welfare administration for the provincial social and family services department, said improved standards should also guarantee private

Dollar Weakens In West Europe Gains in Tokyo

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar weakened sharply in Western European foreign exchanges today but showed increased strength in Tokyo as the Japanese government again refused to raise the value of its money clone.

European dealers reported signs of big money operators entering the market to unload U.S. dollars and a downward trend for the American money appeared to be developing.

But a dollar buying spree developed in Tokyo and the Bank of Japan was forced to shell out an estimated $110 million to satisfy demand.

Japan's acting foreign minister, Toshio Kimura meanwhile, ruled out a unilateral increase in the value of the yen. He told a news conference any change should come as a result of talks among leading countries directly involved in the present monetary crisis.

In Europe, the dollar declined in relation to the British pound, the French franc, the Swiss and Belgian francs, the Italian lire and the Dutch

Municipal Association To Merge with Mayors

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Municipal Association now is holding its 73rd and final convention.

Delegates to the convention Monday night agreed to merge with the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves to form the Association of Municipalities of Ontario.

The convention ends Wednesday.

OMA President Garnet Newkirk, mayor of Chatham, said the two municipal associations would be living together in a common-law arrangement until a formal marriage at the founding convention of the new association in Ottawa next summer.

"That's just what I was afraid of," East York Mayor True Davidson told delegates.

She said the OMA was induced to consent to the amalgamation of the two largest Ontario municipal associations by the offer of a large sum of money from the province.

"I will not use the term bribe," she said.

Miss Davidson said amalgamation of the two associations "was eased through" at the annual convention of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves last May in North Bay.

Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough, in his address to the convention, admitted regional development planning outside the Toronto-centred region is well behind schedule.

The OMA delegates agreed on an annual operating budget of $125,000 for the new association, with 60 per cent of the funds raised from membership dues and 40 per cent from provincial grants.

The draft constitution of the new association, to be submitted at the founding convention, will propose that not less than 50 per cent of the 80-member board of directors be elected municipal representatives.

In addition, the OMA accepted that the executive vice-president and two of the four vice-presidents of the new association should be appointed civic officials.

Berlin's Isolation Ended by Agreement

BERLIN (Reuter) — Two million West Berliners looked forward today to an end to years of tension and uncertainty following the pact agreement on the city reached by the four victorious powers in the Second World War.

The ambassadors of the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France linked arms as they walked out into a garden in a West Berlin suburb Monday to announce a successful end to their 18 months of negotiations on the divided city.

In Bonn, Foreign Minister Walter Scheel of West Germany said in a television interview West Berliners could "breathe easier" as a result of the agreement.

Details have yet to be officially announced, but terms revealed by informed sources in Bonn indicate that under a final settlement isolated West Berliners should be able to travel freely to and from the city and once more into East Berlin and East Germany.

The sources said the Soviet Union had made important concessions to the West by acknowledging West Berlin's links with West Germany and explicitly assumed joint responsibility with the Western Allies for ensuring free access to the city.

Hussein Fears Another Defeat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan warned today that another war soon between the Arabs and Israel would lead the Arabs to another disaster and the loss of more territory to Israel.

Hussein indicated he is willing to consider an interim settlement with Israel over Jerusalem but gave no details.

"The disarray and weakness of the Arab world have never been worse," the king said in an interview with the Beirut newspaper Al Nahar. "The Arab countries are not yet strong enough to take on Israel."

Lawyers Say Tax Reform Bill Obscure

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's new tax reform bill is unintelligible, obscure and full of loopholes and mistakes, the Canadian Bar Association says in a 76-page brief to Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

The brief says many provisions are "virtually unintelligible" at first reading because their purpose is often obscured by the method of presentation. It says legislation should be understandable to lay persons, not just experts.

Many concepts in the new legislation have never existed in Canadian tax law before, the association says.

To integrate them "a completely new taxation vocabulary, the mastering of which might be likened to the difficulty of learning a new language," has been established.

Since detailed regulations have been made available "we have found it impossible to master the proposed legislation to the point where our criticisms can be adequate.

"We do feel confident that for every problem or mistake we have found, there are 10 we have missed," the brief states.

One omission in the legislation, the association says, is the definition of a lottery scheme.

Local Sea Cadet Corps Again Draws Praise

For the second consecutive year, the Quinte detachment of Royal Canadian Sea Cadets Corps has been cited by the Ontario Division of the Navy League of Canada as the most efficient small corps in the province.

In the annual inspect on report recently released, the corps was commended for an increase in enrolment, an efficient supply system, excellent training, high standards of seamanship and good band was considered by the report as being perhaps the best brass and reed band of any sea cadet corps in Canada.

Among small corps, defined as having 75 members or less, the Quinte corps rated a top ranking of 94.3 per cent as the most proficient group. It earned the Navy League of Canada trophy.

In reviewing the inspection reports, Lt. Cdr. J. Jeffries, CD, RCN, Ret'd., deputy provincial secretary of the league, stated that "this corps has done an excellent job of work with their accommodation and boats. Dress and appearance of cadets are very good, and the sailing program and band appear to be outstanding."

"While I'm not a good judge of this, I suspect that this corps may have the best brass and reed band of any sea cadet corps in Canada," he added.

During the past six weeks, 17 cadets served with CFB Cornwallis near Digby, N.S., as part of the East Coast Sea Cadet Staff Board, while local corps commander Barry Bevan acted as bandmaster for the East Coast Band.

Several other cadets travelled to various parts of the North American continent to participate in further training during the summer months.

Petty Officer Fred Keegan attended a six - week boatswain course at Halifax, while PO Richard Hine visited Esquimalt, B.C. for training. Leading Cadet Ed Finlon was one of 10 Ontario cadets selected for a two - week exchange visit to the United States, visiting Los Angeles, Seattle and a side trip to Mexico.

Upon returning to Belleville, cadet Finlon served as part of the HMCS Haida crew out of Toronto for the past five weeks. Also forming part of the Haida's roll were local members Frank Driscoll and Paul Adamson.

The Quinte corps band is scheduled to participate with the Toronto Sea Cadet bands on Open Cadet Day at the CNE Exhibition on Saturday, Sept. 4, and future engagements in Belleville include Decoration Day at Belleville Cemetery in conjunction with the Veterans of Belleville Committee.

Other plans for the corps include a visit to Old Fort Henry at Kingston, a sailing expedition to the St. Lawrence River in the Kingston - Gananoque - Prescott area and the entry of the combined band and color guard at Sudbury for the Ontario Cadet Band Association in October.

Although vacancies are limited in the corps, CO Bevan stated that some 12 to 15 new members will be welcomed in the next several weeks before membership rolls are closed for another season.

"Boys who are at least 13 years of age can apply at the pier at 18 South Front street or they can call us at 962-4617. But we urge those who are interested not to delay because usually we have an overflow of applicants," CO Bevan commented.

The corps this winter will strive for an unprecedented three consecutive years as the most proficient small corps in the province, and based on recent experience, the detachment has the desire and ability to perform that feat.

for more general-purpose maritime capability.

The Canadian navy's hydrofoil, developed as a sub-chasing warship, is being considered for a coastal surveillance and control role. A prototype, the Bras d'Or, is currently undergoing trials out of Halifax.

The white paper says the Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles should be retired because of the relative decline in importance of the Soviet bomber threat.

Intercontinental missiles, against which there is yet no defence, are the more likely weapon.

While surveillance will be needed to keep check on bomber incursions, the time has passed "when a full, active anti-bomber defence is essential for the protection of the U.S. deterrent capability."

"The principal threat to that force (U.S. missiles) is the Soviet land-based missile force, in particular the very large SS-9 type missile."

Moreover, the Bomarcs themselves are highly vulnerable to missile attacks, the document says. They would be knocked out even if the Soviets launched a bomber attack to follow a missile attack.

Finally, the Bomarcs are located to defend eastern North America, while most of the U.S. retaliatory force is sited in the Midwest.

The interceptor aircraft will be retained, however, "since Soviet bombers could considerably augment follow-on attacks on North America."

The interceptor force could also discourage the Soviets from rebuilding a strong bomber force.

By keeping a number of interceptors in the air all the time, and scrambling the rest in emergency, they can be kept relatively invulnerable to attack.

Interceptors will also be needed for surveillance, both in peacetime and in case of war.

The white paper offers no hint of what the government will do about NORAD when the defence agreement with the U.S. comes up for renegotiation in 1972.

"The policy of the government at that time with respect to the agreement and the interceptor force posture required will depend upon the strategic situation extant, including progress in SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Talks)."

The document says no "substantial sums" will be spent on new equipment for North American defence against bombers in future.

"Unless the strategic situation changes, the government intends to update its contribution to the active anti-bomber defences of North America only to the extent that this is required for the general control of Canadian airspace."

The white paper says there is no alternative to continuing to equip the CF-101 interceptors with nuclear warheads held in Canada by the U.S. under storage and custody arrangements.

That leaves the CF-101 force the only Canadian unit with nuclear weapons.

The Honest John rocket used in Europe has been dropped in Canada, the CF-104 squadrons in Europe will end their nuclear strike role by next January and the Bomarcs will be retired shortly.

While defence activities in Canada should be carried out by Canadian forces in peacetime, U.S. Strategic Air Command tankers will continue to us Goose Bay, and SAC bombers will continue to fly over Canada "in times of crisis, as determined by the government."

SAC training flights will also be permitted.

In addition, the white paper says the government is prepared to meet U.S. requests to open negotiations on dispersing SAC tankers and interceptors to Canadian bases in times of crisis.

Mohawk Band Seeks $50,000 To Rebuild Council House

The fund for construction of a new council house on Tyendinaga Reserve now stands at one-fifth its objective.

Almost $10,000 has been raised through private donations and a two-day concert, leaving $40,000 still to be collected for the new building.

The council house was destroyed by fire in July, together with kitchen and dining equipment, craft supplies and furniture.

Because band funds are already appropriated for necessary work on the reserve and the federal government does not give grants for the purpose, the money for a new community centre must be raised by the people of the reserve themselves.

Newest money-making project is a provincially-approved lottery with tickets now on sale throughout Quinte district communities.

The council house has been the nerve centre of the annual Mohawk Fair to be held this year Sept. 18. Women of the reserve have, in the past, served meals there all day with Indian corn soup a featured attraction. The fair will go forward as usual this year, but plans have not yet been completed for dining room and kitchen facilities. Tentative arrangements include taking over another building on the reserve for the purpose, or renting a large tent for the day of the fair.

Public to Get Opportunity To Evaluate Job Programs

A major concern of organizers of a local Opportunities For Youth program called circus is the public hearing scheduled to be held in the coming weeks.

When implemented, the program called for public meetings, giving the residents of the city the opportunity to be critical or constructive in the final evaluation to be handed to the federal government at the closing of the project.

"We think that many of the area residents are unaware of the fact we are functioning in the city," say members of the administration and employees of the program.

Throughout the summer, using a federal grant, employment was provided for approximately 40 post secondary students to serve the varied needs of the community and youths passing through it.

Among the programs adopted by the group were Children's Film Festival; bus trips to the Bengal Banquet (music performances in Toronto); senior citizen outings and surveys conducted for the United Community Services and the interdepartmental committee on youth affairs. The most publicized of their programs was the provision of youth people to staff the youth hostel provided by realtor D. J. Whalen located in north Belleville at the junction of Highways 401 and 14.

"When our project was thought up, it was expected that we could use old drop-ins centre. When we lost the use of this building much of our original program had to be deleted," said Charles Smith senior student employee. "We had planned on a help service for youths in the city but this had to be cancelled. Both minor medical and mental aid was to be given in this service."

With the loss of the downtown centre, much of the energy from the group went into the staffing of a youth hostel. Donated by Donald Whalen of Whalen Real Estate, a hostel capable of housing up to 50 people was erected and taken care of by the members of Circus.

"Because this is a surface type project, it gains a great amount of publicity than the other, less conspicuous projects," said Mr. Smith.

"Another effect of the tent seems to be the shifting of services," said Mr. Pepper. "In our initial plan, our services were to be centred mainly at Bellevilee youths but with the loss of the drop-in and the acquisition of a youth hostel our most notable service was in aid of transients."

The subject of evaluation was brought into the limelight recently when correspondence came from the secretary of state outlining some of the more pertinent questions to be answered in the evaluation.

The evaluation was designed to ensure that funds were wisely during the summer. This evaluation had been one of the conditions set out in the the primary Opportunities for Youth pamphlet.

The first question on the list asks if the project is a worthwhile alternative to student unemployment during the summer.

At the public hearing (yet to be scheduled) the Circus project and the entire concept of the Opportunities for Youth program will be discussed. To supplement the hearing, a survey to determine the worth of the project has been suggested.

"The federal government asked us to find jobs for students that would be worthwhile and at the same time would satisfy some community needs. We have done this and I am more than happy at the response of the city students and the outcome of each of the individual programs carried out by the Belleville group," Mr. Pepper said.

Search For Plane Continues

WELLAND (CP) — Police today were concentrating on the areas of Cayuga, Hagersville, Port Colborne and Crystal Beach in their search for a light aircraft and four persons reported missing since Sunday.

Provincial police said the majority of calls they have received from persons either seeing or hearing an aircraft during a severe thunderstorm lived on the northeast shore of Lake Erie.

Police identified the occupants as pilot Gerry Lusson, a former French Air Force pilot; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Wall, all three lance writers from Toronto, and Douglas Matheson, also of Toronto.

The plane, a Cessna 182 owned by Central Airways of Toronto, was off on a chartered flight from Mansfield, Ohio to Toronto. The four were heading back to Toronto after attending the Mid-Ohio Can-Am auto race at Mansfield.

During the flight the pilot radioed that the aircraft was in difficulty.

Police said at least two aircraft and two coastguard cutters were participating in the search. A spokesman said a ground search would not be called unless it was warranted in a specific area.

Dr. Williams added that automobile examiners shouldn't be required to turn in license plates on receiving welfare. While surrendering plates is not required by law, some offices have adopted the practice.

Cornwall Alderman Kenneth Hough told delegates that his city required car owners applying for welfare to surrender their plates until a year ago.

"We found that it was keeping people off the welfare rolls. The day after we dropped the ruling we had at least 25 or 26 new cases."

Playground Program Ends

The city's recreation department may have most of its summer recreation programs ironed out and events in future years will run even more smoothly, Recreation Director Lorne Williams, said last night.

"This is the first year we've got things really rolling together," he said during an informal end-of-season party for playground leaders, held at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

"We think we now have the basis for future programming."

Mr. Williams and his staff have been co-ordinating activities in city playgrounds with the help of a staff of college/ university and high school students hired for the summer season.

Success of activities in these parks and playgrounds "all hangs on the leaders," the director added.

Gradually improving and scheduling events, the playground staff have come up with a formula for a successful program and Mr. Williams expects to base future operations on their accomplishments.

Training of the 28 leaders who tended to the needs of city youngsters for most of the summer, began in the Easter holiday period and covers including playground administration, crafts, games (active and quiet), public relations, pedestrian safety, first aid and a pinch of discipline and behavior were taught during a week long session at Ben Hleecker Auditorium.

Later, in June, motorists passing the Bridge Street West hall, were startled to see more than 20 of the playground supervisors cavorting on the lawns in a manner similar to kindergarten age children.

But these exercises, add the is exactly what they were, formed part of as practice what you teach period of the training program.

More experienced leaders put the new supervisors through a series of activity periods with the playground staff playing the role of children. Problems and situations were introduced to give the new staff a chance to experience what would face them in the "battle" field.

Armed with arts and crafts supplies and a backlog of games and events, the park and playground supervisors coordinated their respective activities, while chief supervisor Robert Cretney and his assistants Janice Ethier and Mrs. Evelyne Kerr (nee Palisca) overseers of the West and East Hill districts, organized such inter-city events as bowling, track and field, theatre-in-the-park productions, special playground week programs, neighborhood night, a penny carnival at the memorial arena, and displays of arts and crafts at the Quinte Exhibition.

Working for the recreation department not only provided the students with scaled wages between $40 and $50 per week, but many of the summer staff attending college or university will be taking youth-oriented courses in the recreation or child-care field.

For the older youngsters in the city, between 12 and 16, a staff of three community school leaders manned Queen Alexandra, Hillcrest and Queen Mary Schools.

Functions included co-ordination of archery, gymnastics, and sports activities, while Mrs. Audrey Davies headed courses in arts and crafts.

With the playgrounds officially closed as of Aug. 20, the summer supervisors gathered at the Recreation Centre for an informal evening with cash prizes, music and party games.

"We're really quite proud of you," Cliff Belch co-ordinator for playground and waterfront programs for the recreation department, told the leaders during presentations.

Hillcrest playground supervisor Lynda Payton was presented with a special leather of the year plaque and head supervisor Robert Cretney, an eight - year veteren summer employee, received a special, engraved silver tray.

Plans for Summer '72 will get under way immediately, with budget and program arrangements to be scheduled.

Mr. Cretney said scheduling of next year's staff would be easier; although in past years, several summer employees have not been rehired, the department has recommended almost all the supervisors for re-employment, if they wish to return.

And for positions at the top? Mrs. Kerr will be attending Carleton University in Ottawa, and Mr. Cretney will be taking up residence in St. Catharines.

However, Miss Ethier expects to be back to help organize next year's recreation program.

'I Didn't Know!'

Although Hillcrest playground supervisor Lynda Payton may have guessed, receiving the Leader of the Year award was supposed to be a complete surprise. Miss Payton received the plaque during an end-of-season party at the Rec' Centre last night.

Hay Bay Church Service Sunday

The annual pilgrimage service to historic Hay Bay will be held this Sunday afternoon, Aug. 29, at 3 p.m.

Guest speaker for the service will be Revv. Stanley L. Osborne of Oshawa, former principal of Whitby Ladies' College for many years and now retired. Mr. Osborne is secretary of the joint committee for a new hymn book to be published shortly for use of the United and Anglican churches of Canada.

Mr. Osborne's sermon topic for the pilgrimage service will be Methodism and Its Song. Also participating will be John Black, of Kingston, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference and Rev. D. E. Wagar, chairman of the board of trustees.

Added interest at Hay Bay this year are the gravestones of Rev. William Losee and his wife Mary which had recently been donated to the church historic site and are now erected in a cairn at the old cemetery grounds. Mr. Losee was the pastor at the Old Hay Bay church when it was built in 1792.

Allan Grossman To Officiate

Honorable Allan Grossman, Ontario [illegible] will officially open the two new senior citizen apartment projects on West Bridge Street and on Turnbull Street.

The official opening is scheduled for Sept. 15 at 11 a.m.

The 32-unit senior citizen building on West Bridge Street opposite the Belleville fairgrounds has been occupied since last fall, while the local office of the Ontario Housing Corporation said today the 75 unit Turnbull Street apartment building would be fully occupied by Sept. 1.

With the two above complexes, senior citizen accommodation provided in the city by OHC now totals more than 160 units.

Tourism Boost

Norris Whitney, MLA for Prince Edward -Lennox, last night gave a $5,000 cheque to William Weal, president of the Bay of Quinte Regional Tourist Council for tourism promotion and development. Taking a keen interest in the transaction is resort operator Al Owen. The money from the department of tourism and information has been matched dollar for dollar with locally raised funds for tourist development.

Moira Volunteer Program Judged Success by Sponsors

Moira Secondary School's Summer 71 recreational program winds up Wednesday with a record of successful community participation.

The students who conceived the project proved their spring - time assumptions were correct — there is a definite need for summer recreation programs in the east end, specially for the 7 to 12-year-old group.

Summer 71 was run entirely by students, 12 of them on a full time and six or eight on a part time basis. They applied to Opportunities for Youth for a grant to pay the salaries of the student staff, but were turned down. Despite the setback, the students went ahead with their plans, all volunteering their services for the summer.

To get the project under way after federal funds were refused the Belleville Kiwanis Club contributed $500 for supplies.

"We are extremely pleased with the response," said Wally Swain, one of the student leaders.

Art, sewing and cooking were operated with over-capacity classes. The cooking and sewing appealed to girls, but there was a 50-50 split of the sexes in the art classes. Drama and photography appealed to the boys, with 25 girls registering in the photography course. The gym, open 20 hours a day, was a constant attraction, with 575 young people buying season's gym tags for 25 cents each.

During the summer 271 individual memberships were taken out and 29 families registered in the programs.

The adult courses met with a poor response, but there was a moderate interest in photography and the women's fitness program.

Largest excitement, the student leaders report, was among the 7 to 12 - year - olds in the neighborhood.

The program will be continued next summer, "definitely" say the students.

If they can find the money they would like to expand.

"If we can get the money to pay his salary we would like to hire a teacher to supervise one of the shops so it could be opened for high school students' use," said Mr. Swain.

A continuous craft, program, set up so that each participant would begin a project and drop in to work at it at his convenience all summer is another possibility that awaits adequate funds.

And next year the students will take over more space in the school to accommodate the large enrolment.

A better seller will "approve" of a prospective buyer is often an easier person to deal with from the buyer's point of view and the personal accord indicates the buyer is likely to be moving into a social environment that will afford him future satisfaction.
Home owners who have lived in an area for a long time, or even grown up there, are usually socially involved with their neighbors. If they feel that a new owner will meet with their neighbor's approval, they are subconsciously anxious to sell to that person and their attitude can facilitate the sale.
A vital consideration in any home is the area in which it is located. A wise Realtor is guided as much by his prospective buyer's family needs in terms of schools, shopping facilities and the "type" of neighborhood desired as well as the buyer's preferences in the actual land and buildings of the home itself.

A Decade Remembered

Ten years ago, at the opening of Upper Canada Village, the day was distinctly cool and blustery. The wind whipped through the community's laneways and around the corners of buildings of a bygone era, still sturdy as ever in their new and beautiful setting. It tugged at the clothing of visitors and out in the flowing waters of the Seaway Dam and New York it was choppy where visiting navy destroyers lay at anchor.

It was a June day as we recall and it was an appropriately international day for us since we had with us friends from Brockville and the United States. A color picture we took of one wind-blown group showed two young women guides of the village's fledgling staff — green tunics and skirts well below the knee and looking rather like airline stewardesses of the period. Today, staff in the information centre and in the Village Store wear red blazers and shorter pleated skirts and they contrast with the women in period costumes who staff community buildings like the doctor's and minister's homes and Crysler Hall.

This past Saturday we were at Upper Canada again, as we had been on a number of occasions in the years between. This time there seemed to be an atmosphere of increased activity. A twin-engined executive style aircraft sat on the grass landing strip across the road opposite the entrance and beside it was an OPP cruiser. On the way into the village extra parking space had been provided on a section of lawn. It was only later that we discovered, from a poster at the restaurant, that Premier Davis had been invited for the anniversary ceremonies and the Fort Henry guard scheduled to present their drill display. It was not ten years to the day, or even to the month if memory serves us correctly but it was satisfying (if somewhat aging) to know we were there on both occasions. The parked aircraft and OPP cruiser explained the presence of Premier Davis. Weatherwise, it had been a dull morning but the sun came out later to give added sparkle to an eventful day.

Some thoughts on the village itself as distinct from communities along the way. There is an orderliness and attractiveness about the former, transplanted as it has been, along with furnishings, from other parts in the wake of the Seaway development. There is a strength and sense of community about it that evokes the atmosphere of pioneer days. That feeling is less apparent however in the rather straggling, unplanned, development that meets the eye along the St. Lawrence from Brockville to Cardinal and Morrisburg. Cottages, motels, cabins and homes of varying size and degree of affluence are scattered willy-nilly along the shoreline. Where Upper Canada looks well-kept the opposite seems apparent in at least some of the development along the way. In roadside restaurants and diners now defunct for instance, including one abandoned establishment called the Windmill Restaurant near Johnstown down Prescott way, and named in its heyday for the Battle of the Windmill which took place is less settled times not far away. This grim-looking building has stood abandoned and decaying for as long as we can remember.

Still, the route is one of unusual interest, historically and commercially. We recall the ferry trip to Ogdensburg, before the days of the bridge. At the weekend two of the trim Government vessels which maintain the navigational equipment on the Seaway, lay at anchor in Prescott. The freighters and tankers still ply the Seaway and the old man river keeps rolling along.

Police Scene

Consider what a thin veneer of civilization is to be found in our society today — for example when the police decide to answer only accident and other emergency calls. That was the case in Sydney, Nova Scotia, the other day. It was a night of trouble in the city: looted stores, screeching tires and other undesirable activities.

Leaving Sydney and moving closer to home, to Brockville, we see that a visiting British police official, Inspector D. R. Large of the Kent County Constabulary has been visiting there. He was pictured talking with Chief Leslie Sterritt and an attractive young woman officer, Constable Faye Bennett.

There are not many women officers in Canadian police establishments, yet we believe more of them would have a beneficial influence in the overall business of law enforcement. In dealing with young people for instance. If Brockville can have one, why not Belleville and other constabularies around the province?

A Matter of Security

RCMP and Some 'Non-Answers' by the Solicitor-General

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There were distantly disturbing echoes of what rumor murmured could have been a tradition-breaking, if brief and tame, session recorded in the RCMP last December—still absolutely unconfirmed officially — when Montreal Liberal MP Jean-Pierre Goyer replaced George McIlraith as Solicitor General.

He was the second Quebecer, cast in the image of Pierre Trudeau, to take over the RCMP, the Prime Minister himself, in his earlier Justice Minister days, having been the first.

Some alarmists whisper that "protest was not exactly the word for what may or may not have threatened in the RCMP, suggesting darkly that 'mutiny — again only in a token sense — could have come closer to the mark.

It is now beyond reasonable possible confirmation — but still not of denial.

But no official confirmation is required, official or leaked from one of those inside "sources," to know that the RCMP plain dislikes, perhaps, even distrusts Jean-Pierre Goyer.

The federal police force, some members will tell you, worry about his understanding and appreciation of the continuing necessity of security.

Wonder why?

There is some documentary ground for this concern.

Just turn back the parliamentary clock to last March 16 when RCMP Commissioner W. L. Higgitt was being questioned by the Commons Justice and Legal Affairs Committee.

The printed record — pages 18 through 31 of Volume Three of the Minutes of Proceedings and Evidence of that Committee — clearly shows that Jean-Pierre Goyer did not want Commissioner Higgitt answering some pretty searching questions, and running verbal interference for him, effectively prevented it.

Harold Stafford's hard-nosed, no-nonsense Liberal MP from the Old Ontario constituency of Elgin, was conducting the examination.

Recalling that Commissioner Higgitt publicly had warned that if Red China was recognized diplomatically, there would be an "increase in the level of subversion and espionage in Canada," he asked:

"Is that still a valid statement?"

Higgitt: "... I was asked did I think there would be more agents as a result . . . and well the obvious answer has to be yes."

Stafford: "Is there still a continuing threat of subversion from East Bloc nations in this country?"

Higgitt: "Again the answer has to be yes."

Stafford: "Are you concerned at all about the federally-sponsored conference of the Toronto poor and its radical resolutions that President Nixon should free the Black American terrorist Angela Davis from murder charges, that the Quebec Liberation Front is deserving of sympathy and that FLQ prisoners should be turned loose?"

Higgitt: "Wow, which one must we answer?"

The "we" in that answer was a warning to Harold Stafford and the Committee that Jean-Pierre Goyer was getting fidgetty and about to take over the answering.

Stafford: "I ask the Commissioner who has been in the RCMP far longer than the three months the Solicitor General has been in office and must be more aware of the security needs."

Jean-Pierre Goyer interrupted.

Stafford: "I don't think the Commissioner needs any protection from the Solicitor General. If my questions have no relation to security all the Commissioner has to do is say so."

Again Jean - Pierre Goyer bored in.

Stafford: "I want the Commissioner's, not the Solicitor General's answers and I intend asking these questions of the Commissioner regardless of the protection the Solicitor General insists on trying to give him.

Higgitt: "If I understand the question it is whether I am concerned with these kinds (federal Government - sponsored radical movements) organizations!"

Stafford: "Right."

Higgitt: "Certainly I am concerned."

Stafford: "Does the RCMP consider Canadian university campuses to be any sort of a sanctuary or incubator for subversive activities and what precautions are being taken?"

This time Jean-Pierre Goyer succeeded in end-running both Harold Stafford and the Commissioner.

Jean - Pierre Goyer: "We are in a society in which more and more we have to ask ourselves are there to be in Canada places secure from any police operations? Are there to be professors or students enjoying a particular status in society when questions of security arise. These are questions we ask ourselves. This does not mean we should go onto campuses and launch oppressive police actions, not at all. But, when we receive information indicating a plot on a campus represents a danger to society, should we not direct police to get more information enabling us to take appropriate decisions?"

Note, if you will, he asks, not answers questions, neither Harold Stafford's nor his own.

Stafford: "Perhaps the Commissioner would give us a less evasive answer."

But even had the Commissioner wanted to reply — and there is reason to believe he considered a reply inadvisable — Jean-Pierre Goyer stopped him, claiming he personally (with his non-answers) had replied fully "to the best of my knowledge."

In retaliation for the burning of public buildings at York, now Toronto, British troops burned the White House in Washington 157 years ago today—in 1814—during the War of 1812. Earlier that month a British fleet entered Chesapeake Bay and landed an army under command of Gen. Robert Ross. Their only opposition before Washington were some 5,000 militiamen hastily gathered to defend the city. After an unsuccessful attempt to capture Baltimore, Ross' troops re-embarked for attacks at other points along the coast.

Age of The Expressway

Those expressways are changing our lives — for better or worse, as the case may be. I heard of a Toronto guy who got up at five one morning, hopped into his car, and by 10 that night was on the ferry from Saint John, N.B., to Digby, N.S.

Costly Schools and A Maverick Generation

United Church Board of Evangelism and Social Studies Has the educational system produced a monster?

During the fifties and sixties, money was lavished on schools on a scale of generosity never before dreamed of.

The theory was that students were given attractive surroundings, the best generation yet would result.

The kids were given airy rooms, colorful decor, better trained teachers, large reference libraries, projectors, tape-recorders, TV sets and the best lab equipment.

Students were allowed to work on their own; student councils got a voice in running some schools; students even started setting up their own schools and courses.

But in 1970 reaction started to set in. "Taxpayers groaned under the financial burden. They wondered if schools were realistic with the de-emphasis on competition and marks.

The worst blow of all was the students. They grew long-haired and became vocal. Universities suffered student strikes and riots, high schools had student protest over courses and freedom of assemblies. Kids took drugs.

This was the generation which forced the U.S.A. to reconsider its attitudes toward the blacks and the Viet Nam war. It challenged adults on the quality of life in North America, it howled so loudly about pollution that politicians were forced to listen.

Whatever their elders may think this generation thinks for itself and searches for its own answers. A waste of money?

Perhaps not, if they save the world from itself . . .

'Dominion of Canada' Title

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Will you allow me to criticize and strenuously object to the little paragraph at the foot of your editorial column on Friday, 20th of August?

Most Canadians, who stop to think of the matter at all, are very proud, I am sure, of the name of our country, "Dominion of Canada". We have dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific and north to the Polar Seas, of the largest portion of the North American continent (nearly 100 million square miles more than the U.S.A.) Surely no good Canadian need be ashamed of our ancestors, and he should be thankful for this wonderful country which they have given us. I can see nothing derogatory in the word Dominion, nor can I find any suggestion of colonialism in it.

Nor can I find any blame of our country, Dominion of Canada, which undoubtedly for well will be one of the great countries of the world, with dominion from sea to sea.

J. E. GENET

Editor's Note: We did not intend to imply anything derogatory about the word "Dominion" and we have nothing but respect and admiration for those who built this country. Without quibbling about our country's full title, as agreed upon more than a century ago, we think that "Canada" by itself is appropriate in this day and age and is recognized as such around the world.

Appeal for Pakistan

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Anglican Church of Canada has been called upon to support vigorously the Pakistani Relief Appeal which has been launched as part of the Primate's World Relief and Development Fund.

In the past five years some $3-million has been raised by members of the Anglican Church for relief of those who through famine, flood or displacement by war are destitute.

The Anglican Parish of Christ Church in Belleville is using the month of August and early September to make appeal to its members to support this worthy cause. As rector of Christ Church, I have called upon members to show the same enthusiasm in meeting this need as they did earlier in the year in discharging an $85,000 building debt. Their motto is "Care enough to send the very best".

International Monetary Experts Plan Group of Ten Meeting

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Leading international monetary officials are working out the agenda for a meeting of the Group of Ten western industrial countries early next month which will pave the way for a ministerial conference on Sept. 15, informed sources said.

The two meetings by officials of Canada, Britain, the United States, Japan, Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Holland and Sweden will seek agreement on basic changes in currency values and on a reform of the monetary system following the American withdrawal of dollar convertibility into gold.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the International Monetary Fund, who called on the United States Monday to relax its official price of gold, had talks in Washington with Rinaldo Ossola, chairman of the group's deputy officials and a director of the Bank of Italy.

Ossola then flew to Ottawa to go over the agenda today with Canadian Finance Minister E. J. Benson, who is chairman of the Group of Ten finance ministers.

Benson has asked Ossola to assemble the deputy ministers for preliminary policy talks before the Sept. 15 ministerial meeting. The two meetings have been asked for by Schweitzer and by certain countries in the group including Canada, Britain, Italy and France.

The sources said that beading the deputy-level agenda would be proposals drawn up by Schweitzer for specific changes in the dollar values of member currencies.

They said Schweitzer would send a senior fund official to the deputies' meeting to propose that the Japanese yen be revalued upwards by 15 per cent, that the floating West German mark should be raised by between 13 and 14 per cent from its original parity level and that the British and French currencies be revalued by slightly more than seven per cent.

Currency values of the remaining members of the group other than the United States would be revalued by lesser amounts. Canada allowed its dollar to float 18 months ago and it has achieved near-parity with the U.S. dollar.

The revaluations would be achived partly by an official increase in the dollar price of gold of something less than five per cent, and partly by specific bilateral revaluations of other currencies against the U.S. dollar, the sources said.

The IMF delegate is expected to make five specific proposals to the deputy meeting, all of which may be presented again to the ministerial meeting.

These are a moderate revaluation of gold against the U.S. dollar; specific additional paper currency revaluations against the U.S. dollar by the other nine members; a widening of the margins within which exchange rates can fluctuate around dollar parity to three per cent from the present one per cent; and two technical proposals involving IMF transactions.

The sources said American and French sources had indicated that the package of Schweitzer proposals was unacceptable to their governments, but for different reasons

The U.S. authorities feel that the proposed average U.S. dollar revaluation in relation to the other nine currencies would be too low. The Schweitzer package would devalue the U.S. dollar by only 10 per cent or slightly less in relation to the major currencies, while the U.S. authorities are looking for a devaluation of at least 12 per cent before they suspend the extra 10 per cent import charge imposed by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The French authorities, and probably the British, feel that the suggested revaluations for their currencies do not accurately reflect their economic conditions, the sources said.

Nixon Visit Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Some preliminary feelers are being sent to Washington to encourage U.S. President Nixon to visit Ottawa this fall for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau, sources said Monday.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin headed a Canadian delegation to Washington to seek Canadian exemption from the surcharges. Mr. Trudeau is said to be anxious to follow this up with a personal meeting with Mr. Nixon.

But the government is not happy with Opposition and press statements that Mr. Benson and Mr. Pepin went to Washington "with cap in hand" to seek favors for Canada. A trip to Washington by Mr. Trudeau would add to these complaints, they say.

Some U.S. Controls Said Likely to Remain
When Wage-price Freeze Ends in November

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally says the Nixon government is likely to retain some economic controls after the 90-day wage-price freeze expires in November.

"I think it's highly unlikely," that all controls will be lifted, he said Monday in an ABC interview.

"One of the principal advantages it seems to be of the wage-price freeze," said President Nixon's chief economic spokesman, "is to cause the American people to halt for a moment and think about what they are doing to themselves with this constant state-toppling of wages and costs and price increases . . ."

If organized labor challenges the freeze in court, he said, the government won't back down.

One reason for labor dissatisfaction with the new Nixon package is that the freeze does not cover interest rates, especially on home mortgages.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board called a news conference today to "discuss a rise in mortgage interest rates and several steps being taken to stabilize these rates. . . ."

Meanwhile, four Catholic University law professors filed a federal suit in Washington charging that Congress, by passing the 1970 Economic Stabilization Act, unconstitutionally gave the president authority to clamp on the freeze.

The suit, thought to be the first against the new economic policy, charges Congress "totally and unrestrictedly delegated to the executive its legislative power to decide whether or not general wages and prices shall be stabilized" and failed to lay out guidelines.

On Capitol Hill, three former price-and-wage controllers testified voluntary restraints will not work and urged creation of a control board to police the new program.

"When you get into this field, it seems to me that some bureaucracy is necessary," Prof. George Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania told the joint congressional economic committee. He headed the war labor board and wage stabilization boards during the Korean War.

General agreement was voiced by Paul A. Porter, who headed rent control during the Second World War and later the Office of Price Administration, and by former Ohio Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who ran the Office of Price Stabilization during the Korean War.

They suggested formation of a guideline-setting board composed of labor, business and government, backed by a staff of at least 5,000, to enforce the freeze and levy fines for violations.

"It's necessary to start now to build an organization that can phase out the freeze," and easie in other policies, Taylor said.

Foreign Investment Brings Good Life

MONTREAL (CP) — Professor Harry Johnson of the University of Chicago said Monday the effect of foreign investment in Canada "has been to increase standards of living steadily and vastly."

Speaking to 150 professionals from Canada and abroad at the International Conference on Nationalism and the Multi-National Enterprise at McGill University, Prof. Johnson's economics professor said:

"The remedy for monopolistic market organizations is a good anti-trust law and a low tariff, not the exclusion or supervision of foreign corporate competitors in the domestic market."

Professor Johnson was well received by the economists, lawyers and politicians who made up Monday's panel at the conference.

In an earlier session, Revenue Minister Herb Gray said there are enough benefits from foreign investment "to justify, at least in some industries, to justify it's continued growth."

In his introductory remarks to the conference, Mr. Gray said benefits from the operation of multi-national enterprise means "much of the future public policy in Canada and elsewhere will have to be based on recognizing its continued existence and growth."

Law professor Ivan Feltham of Osgoode Hall law school in Toronto also favored a certain degree of foreign ownership. Professor Feltham spoke of the "undesirability of blanket controls in the financial industry" and encouraged new foreign entries into banking and security industries in Canada.

"It doesn't really matter who owns the company but the managers who run it should be amenable and susceptible to host country alternatives and influences."

A strong opponent of Professor Johnson's "liberal economic" policies was Professor Abraham Rotstein of the University of Toronto.

Stressing the need for strong "regulatory policies to control the multi-national corporation," the sole panelist to take exception to the pro-multi-national sentiment cited "the fact for example, that the American government, operating in its own benign fashion, has its hand on the lever of $40 billion of assets in this country."

An advocate of a strong nationalist economic policy, Prof. Rotstein also expressed opposition to foreign ownership on grounds of a possible loss of self-determination.

Indian Youths Shot in Quebec Town

RESTIGOUCHE, Que. (CP) — Micmac Chief William Wysotte said Monday the first of two Indian youths to be shot here Saturday "was shot in the back without warning."

Chief Wysotte said in a statement no Indians from the Restigouche reserve attempted to enter or burn the local school where the shooting took place. The first youth was sitting on the school steps when he was shot.

Quebec Provincial Police at Rimouski, 100 miles west of here, said the shots were fired by a guard hired by the school board to protect school property.

A police spokesman said a call was received from Irene Pettigrew, principal at the local school, saying Indians were breaking windows in the building.

"How many there were, we weren't told, but we sent officers to keep the peace!"

Nine men were sent Saturday and 10 more Sunday to maintain order at the reserve but they returned to their posts after the weekend.

A 23-year-old Restigouche man and a 13-year-old Pemhook, Ont., boy were at first reported wounded but Chief Wysotte said Monday that two teen-agers were shot.

He said a report that one of the victims had a leg amputated as a result of bullet wounds was not accurate.

"First of all," the chief said, "there was no attempt made to enter or burn the school."

"The first youth was shot in the back without warning while sitting on the steps of the school."

Chief Wysotte said the 13-year-old boy made the following statement:

"I was walking on the road and decided to sit on the steps and was joined by two other boys when all of a sudden we heard a crash of glass shatter.

"We went to the church and I felt I was bleeding," the unidentified youth said.

"I went to my house and my mother took me to the hospital.

"Afterwards at the hospital I was questioned by the QPP as to the shooting incident and whereupon I was asked three different times if I was telling the truth."

Chief Wysotte said a second youth was shot about 30 minutes later when he went to the school to check if his brother was near the building.

Police in Rimouski refused to speculate on the varying accounts of the incident because an investigation is under way.

Trudeau Gives Views

Man Should Work If Jobs Available

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says a healthy, young man should not receive financial assistance from society as long as jobs are available and he is capable of work.

But if society cannot help a man find a job it should and should take care of him because society is responsible for its social organization, and if it can't provide the wherewithal for men to be gainfully employed then it should pay the penalty and give them welfare."

The prime minister's statements were published in the current issue of the United Church Observer. Mr. Trudeau was interviewed by the magazine's editor Rev. A. C. Forrest.

"If he can work and there is work available, he should take his choice," said Mr. Trudeau. "If he wants to be a hermit or beggar, that's fine. If he wants to move with the sun and live off the land that's fine. If he is in a society that has work for him I don't think he should theoretically be eligible for welfare."

Mr. Trudeau said there was sometimes "room for violence" in his political philosophy but "in my religion I really cannot think of cases where violence is justified."

Mr. Trudeau indicated he rejected a militaristic approach toward the so-called Communist world.

"I don't believe you can contain ideas by military force," he said.

Mr. Trudeau said he knows of no adverse reaction towards Canada's recognition of China last October and that people "have a sigh of relief when it happened.

"I think it's something which was very politically correct . . . I'm sure in a few years it will be unthinkable to say there House of Commons but we didn't recognize the People's Republic of China. And then we will have to explain what the political constraints were and why it didn't happen earlier."

Mr. Trudeau said he recognized that he has been criticized for his impatience with the House of Commons but said he had tried to help its functioning by introducing improvements.

"I'm not impatient with the House of Commons as an institution, but the way it is operated," he said.

". . . I think that the history of the past 200 years has shown us that by and large the one linguistic group to which separatism is being preached is not moved by the arguments which are used."

WEDDING

BENNETT — TRACY

The wedding was solemnized in Calvary Temple, Belleville, recently when Margaret Leigh Tracy daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Vincent Tracy of RR 2, Consecon was united in marriage to Richard Brian Bennett, son of Mrs. Fanny Bennett of Norwood.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Benn and the wedding music was provided by Mrs. Doris Osborne and Miss Joanne Scott.

Given in marriage by her mother and father the bride wore a floor length bridal gown of imported crystal peau with Victorian neckline and fashionable long length sleeves. The front of the bodice was enhanced with an overlay of re - embroidered Swiss lace. Her flowing length circle train, in chapel length, extended from the gathered Empire waistline also edged with the same Swiss lace. Her silk illusion veil was held in place with a cluster of silk organza loops with peau de soie buds. She carried one red rose with long white streamers.

The sister of the bride, Miss Ruth Tracy, acted as maid of honor wearing mint green floor length gown of crimp crepe with an empire waist. She carried a bouquet of large green 'mums with white streamers.

The bridesmaids Mrs. Betty Dafoe, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mildred Ann Tracy, sister of the bride, were dressed identically to the maid of honor. The flowers they carried were the same as the maid of honor's.

Flower girl, Miss Jodi Dafoe, a niece of the bridegroom wore a white floor length gown of crimp crepe with an Empire waist. She carried a basket of green bottom 'mums.

The ring bearer was Donald Bell nephew of the bride. The best man was Burt Bennett, brother of the bridegroom; the ushers were Eugene Dafoe and Martin Tracy.

At the reception in Kingerly Hall at Consecon the bride's mother received the guests dressed in nylon flowered sheer over green taffeta lining, long full sleeves and gathered at the wrists and around the neck. She wore a white picture hat, matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Assisting her, the bridegroom's mother was attired in lilac chiffon over taffeta lining with full long sleeves. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to points south and west through the United States the bride travelled in a pant suit of white cotton lace with wrap dress and accessories in white. Her corsage was red sweetheart roses.

Upon return the couple will live in Belleville.

'Project Christopher' Successful

MARMORA — "Project Christopher" has come and gone and Marmora is probably a better place because of it; certainly it is no worse.

Ten young people, their ages ranging from 14 to 19, arrived unannounced about 9:30 Sunday evening at Father T. G. Scanlon's doorstep, next to Sacred Heart Church, and he promptly fitted them with a place to stay overnight.

On Monday, arrangements were made with the wardens and rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church for the group to use St. Paul's church hall for their headquarters.

Project Christopher is an inter - denominational movement dedicated to the betterment of society but is sponsored by the Oblate Fathers of the Roman Catholic Church with headquarters at Waupoos Island, south of Picton in Prince Edward County.

The young people were dressed in typical hippie attire but went about the village visiting the elderly and assisting whenever and wherever they could.

The young people, who come from various communities, pay $165 to join the movement and then, receive $1 per day for food and expenses, plus transportation costs to wherever they are sent to carry out their mission. The boys and girls attend a training session before they start out on the community development programs in teams of 10 or more. They are entirely on their own once they reach the community where they have been sent. When they sign up the young people make a promise that they will have nothing to do with drugs, liquor or sex.

The people of Marmora had a standing invitation to drop in to the hall and talk with any of the group. On Wednesday evening the group held a variety night but drew a very small number of residents.

On Thursday morning they moved on to Campbellford to begin another program.

One of the group, 16 year old Bob Lamourous of Trenton, came back to Marmora on the weekend and at Rev. John Lombard's invitation, spoke to St. Paul's congregation during the Sunday morning service.

He explained that the purpose of the Christophers is to help young people learn to get along in our society, to teach them community involvement and prepare them to work anywhere.

The people of Marmora were very friendly towards the group, he said and they had enjoyed their stay here.

Nonagenarian Honored By Many Friends

MARMORA — A birthday party in honor of Dr. Norris L. Coy of Cleveland, Ohio, who celebrated his 90th birthday on August 19 was held on Sunday afternoon, at the summer home on Beaver Creek of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Coy.

Dr. Coy has been coming to the Marmora area for 47 years and has made many friends here. He is still practising medicine in Cleveland.

Dr. Coy is remarkably well, considering his years and is still very much interested in the outdoors and conservation practices.

Owing to rain the party had to be held inside Mr. and Mrs. Coy's home but a good time was had by all.

The honored guest's only grandchild, Mrs. Dale Hamilton, her husband and son, Mark, of Bowie, Maryland, were present for the celebration. Other guests present were from Ottawa, Fowler's Corners, Peterborough, Madoc, East Aurora, N.Y., Clarement, Toronto, Georgetown, and Marmora.

MODERN JEWELRY — The matching clip-on earrings and ring are in beaten gold. The dainty, leaf-shaped brooch is made of gold fronds, highlighted with fine pearls. The jewelry was designed by Buchan Wilson of Britain.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction of retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Community Honors Couple on Departure

MARMORA — Deloro Village Hall echoed to the sounds on Friday evening of "allemande left" and "swing your partners" as friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox of Malone gathered to honor them before departure from the community where they have lived for 43 years.

Because of an illness last year Mr. Fox has been forced to give up farming and they will soon be moving to a new home in Marmora.

One Should Not Drift Along; Set A Goal

By DORIS CLARK

It doesn't matter what age you are, if you want to get anywhere you have to have a goal. Don't just drift along like a small stick in a stream.

I know boys and girls who act as if they were doing their families a favor by going to school every day. I know adults whose only interest in their job is the cheque they get on pay day.

The difference between the guy that gets places and the one who doesn't is the enthusiasm and interest he puts into his history assignment or his bookkeeping. With a little imagination the dullest job can become exciting.

Think about what you are doing. Think of the number of people who have brought your information to you, and what it is going to mean to someone else when you make your contribution.

Take time to think about where you want to be this time next year and this time 10 years from now and make today count toward your goal.

* * *

Dear Doris: I put on weight so fast it takes me forever to lose a pound. I am always hungry. Why should I eat and still be hungry?

I saw a doctor and he gave me pills but they cramp my legs and I can't sleep at all, that is no good.

I am 57 years old and work in a store all day long with lots of good things to eat around me. — Too Much Appetite

Dear Appetite: It could be that:

1. You were taught to clean up your plate as a child and your early habits have carried over — too enthusiastically — into adult life. Most of us do not need as much food after we are grown, to keep properly nourished.

2. You may be eating the wrong things. Too many sweets, not enough protein, inadequate vitamins and minerals — these can add up to malnutrition even when we are stuffing ourselves. So you have a constant hunger.

3. Now that you are older, everything that you eat goes to fat, as the saying goes. You aren't the only one who practically has to starve herself in order to take off a pound.

I am sending you my "Simple Reducing Diet", which I think is tops for a problem like yours. It doesn't limit the amount you eat; merely the kinds of food.

* * *

Dear Doris: I believe you have a booklet available on giving a shower. Kindly mail one by return to the sender, or anything along this line that might be helpful in planning a wine and cheese party for a bride-to-be. Stamped envelope enclosed.—Bridesmaid

Dear Bridesmaid: We have just turned out a leaflet entitled "Showers and Surprise Party" which provides for non - alcoholic beverages as well as wine. I'll send you that and also "Popular Games For Showers". Each 10 cents.

* * *

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Send to Doris Clark, Box 69, Toronto 1, Ontario.

Kitchen-Tested Recipes

Wine-marinated Chuck Steak Is Delicious

By MARY MOORE

An ordinary chuck steak weighing 1 2-3 lbs. and costing $1.17 was spirited into being a tender steak. Furthermore it was grilled on an Hibachi out-of-doors and declared a success by hypercritical testers.

I have been skeptical of wine-tenderizing for years but decided to give it a fling. There are the obvious reasons for this decision: high cost of sirloin and portehouse cuts and requests from you.

WINE-MARINATED CHUCK STEAK (serves 2 or 3)

NOTE: While our steak was cooked on an Hibachi of course you will realize that it may be done as well under the broiler burner and a little less expertly in a frying pan.

One 1 2-3 chuck steak
1-3 cup red table wine
Meat tenderizer
Freshly ground pepper
Salt

Place steak in a deep, 10" Pyrex pie plate and pour wine all over it. Sprinkle with meat tenderizer. Cover tightly with Saran and store in refrigerator for 3 days, turning steak over once and sprinkling tenderizer on other side at half-time.

At least 1 hr. before serving time put briquettes on lower black grate (inserted about 1½" above bottom to allow draft to flow up from vent). Sprinkle with fire starter and light it. When coals are glowing and spraying and hot drain wine from steak and pat steak to dry it. Place steak on top aluminum grill with handle. (We sprayed ours with Pam to make washing up easy.) Snip fat edges to prevent curling, sprinkle with freshly ground pepper and grill one side. As soon as bottom is a lovely mahogany brown, turn it over, sprinkle with freshly ground pepper and finish other side to degree of doneness you desire.

We heated our dinner plates underneath the Hibachi. Cut steak into two or three portions and transfer to warmed plates. Sprinkle with salt.

Ann Landers

Message in Cartoon Depicts Real Truth

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like your opinion of a cartoon I got in the mail this morning. It pictures a couple of shaggy-haired hippies — one is a boy and one is a girl but they look very much alike in their dirty jeans, love beads, granny glasses, sandals and sunglasses. The girl is saying to the guy, "I gotta go pick up my unemployment check. Then I'll drop in at the university to see what's holding up my federal grant. Meanwhile why don't you stop by the free clinic and check your syphilis and gonorrhea — get your glasses at the health centre? If you have time, go by the welfare department and try to get an increase. I'll meet you at 5 p.m. in front of the Federal building for the mass demonstration against the rotten establishment."

This cartoon is more than a laugh. It tells a lot what's wrong with our society. Do you have the guts to print this and comment? — LAND OF MILK AND HONEY.

DEAR HONEY: The underlying message comes through loud and clear. I've said it before and I'll say it again. "Dependency breeds hostility."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is the same old story. You're probably bored to pieces with it. Married 25 years. Children grown. Grandchildren adorable. I should be happy as a meadowlark, but I'm not. My husband is having an affair with his secretary who is 20 years younger. She's plain looking and devoid of personality. In her defense, however, I must say, if I sat in the same room with a wax dummy eight hours a day, five days a week he'd probably begin to look good to me, too. (The expert's call this the Law of Proximity.)

My husband denies there is anything going on but I know he's covering up. I've offered him a separation but he says I am being ridiculous. What should I do? I've seen marriages between people one can break up and nobody is happier." The man loses the respect of his children and friends. The younger woman has an old gaffer on her hands in a few years and ends up being his nurse. The whole thing never comes out best. But I still love this silly bosh and I hate to see him make a fool of himself.

As I sit here thinking of how to end this letter I know what I ought to do. I'm going to stay right here, do nothing, and wait for him to regain his senses. Thanks for helping me make up my mind. You're wonderful. — Ann Landers. — DES MOINES.

DEAR D.: I am? How nice of you to say so. Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son Preston has been dating a girl who is 25 going on 10.

They were married in December of 1967. They talked about a spring wedding. In March the girl returned the ring because she was having recurrent dreams about her foot doctor. Then she changed her mind and never came back. After several months later she asked for the ring back and set the wedding date for January of '69. In May of that year she developed a skin rash and returned the ring because, as she put it, "I am allergic to Preston." Three months later the rash disappeared and she decided her hair spray was the cause. She asked for the ring back but Preston refused to give it to her.

The latest in this real life soap opera is that she says if he will give her the ring she will marry him within a month. He said no and she has threatened to kill herself. I don't want a suicide on my son's conscience. Please advise. — VAN COUVER.

DEAR VAN: If Preston is smart he'll take the ring to the jeweler and see if he can get a refund or a credit. Your son should consider himself lucky that the wedding never came off. She's a nut.

Handicapped Lovers Plan School for Others

VANCOUVER (CP) — "You are beautiful! I will see for you and you will hear for me."

With these words began the love story between a blind girl, Susan (Suzi) Hicks, 22, of St. Louis, Mo., and deaf architecture student John Robertson (Robie) Schofield, 24, of Westminster, B.C.

And that love affair, with its special knowledge of deafness and blindness is responsible for founding an organization to provide help for people suddenly deprived of sight. It also may lead to a global education program on behalf of the deaf and the blind, through the young, if Suzi and Robie have their way.

Suzi went blind after she scratched her eye with a mascara brush, and caused such serious infection that she was near death for several days.

It happened on March 9, 1969. It ended in April, 1970, when scar tissue thinned enough for her to be able to see color, and then a special contact lense gave her sight again.

The period she saw within five minutes of regaining her sight was the one she had loved in blindness.

I'd been in love with Robie for a year without knowing what he looked like."

The love affair of Suzi and Robie began when she stood alone and blind at the top of steep steps of Webster College, in St. Louis, Mo. She was still afraid in the strange new world of darkness.

She heard a male voice:

"You are beautiful. I will see for you and you will hear for me."

He could not hear her rich voice, but could see her cheatnut hair and deep blue eyes.

"That's the way I felt my love," she recalled. "His put his arms around me and promised.

... He would get a pair of feet for me at Alice's restaurant — that's the college cafeteria — and he'd pick me up at home in the morning and take me home at night.

It was not long before they were talking of founding a school for the newly blind, and educating the public about the needs of the deaf for equal opportunity.

With $10,000 in legal damages received by Suzi from the cosmetic company they have founded the Hicks-Schofield Foundation for the Blind and Deaf.

They will spend this summer in Europe promoting their foundation. Suzi's experience has made her determined to help the newly blind.

"I know God gave me back my sight so that I may help others. No one or nothing will stop me. Anything anyone will do to help will be greatly appreciated."

Plaids Predominate Italian Fall Showing

ROME (AP) — Plaids never had it so good.

At the Italian fall winter high fashion showings, designers rediscovered the warmth and smartness of woolly tartan suits. They also made wide use of the design for gaily colored taffeta evening gowns.

Tito Rossi likes it for morning outfits — a pair of wide trousers or an overall and vest. A thickly knitted green pullover, red skirt and a wide floppy beret with a green feather went with it.

Valentino, one of Italy's most expensive designers, also effectively combined tartan and feathers.

He blended camel hair and avocado green for a narrow plaid coat in double faced wool worn over straight camel hair pants with deep cuffs.

Below the coat, a short waist coat was entirely covered in front with the short soft breast feathers of a pheasant. A long tail feather wrapped itself around the brim of a green velvet hat.

Other designers had tarten taffeta for long evening dresses, but Ross and Valentino kept the design for day wear.

Rossi brought back shirtwaist dresses and batwing sleeves for evening gowns in melting colors.

Valentino made abundant use of black for his slinky evening dresses, sometimes in silk, sometimes in velvet. They showed a lot of bare back, a lot of figure and a lot of leg through the slit at the side.

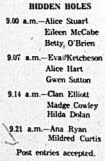
The Fontana sisters preferred golden yellow, turquoise of multicolor prints for next season. But evening dresses apart, they were primarily concerned with coats and capes that run throughout all their collection.

Leg Fashions Brighter

Brighter, clearer colors take the spotlight in leg fashions for fall and winter, providing all-sheltering switch from the subdued, often gloomy tones that dominated last fall, Madeleine Jardim, fashion director, Panty hose boldly contrasting with shoe and costume colors look newest.

"Look of Hot Red or Red Onion, a darkened red shade in panty hose, to add pizzazz to the new crop of classic little black dresses that has enraptured the Paris couture", suggests Miss Jardim. "Chutney, a reddened brown shade nature's own color, is a new favorite co - starred with blanket wrap coats and layered suede costumes in earthy shades.

"Gaucho Green, another new favorite with the sophisticated, is a flattering blue - green tone that gains highest fashion impact when echoing a dominant tone in a multi colored print or plaid.



"Significant, too, is a revival of classics, such as grey flannel, a steely grey, good old camel and a whole spectrum of taupes, attuned to the civilized fashion mood that runs concurrently with the spirited fashion categories.

"Wine shades are rising favorites in leg fashions with Grapevine the newest standout.

"Navy, corduvan and black are sure to be favorites, too, in the fall parade of classic leg fashions".

"Freedom of choice is the strong clear message for fall and winter fashions", said Miss Jardim. "From head to toe the individual is encouraged to select the combinations that appeal to her personally. No authority is seeking to dictate any particular way as the right way to dress.

"In leg fashions there is a choice as wide as the rainbow. The opportunities for mixing or matching panty hose with costumes and/or shoes was never greater".

Select a small gift for your friend's mother if you are invited to their home for a weekend visit.

Food Is A Passion For Restaurant Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — For Gael Greene, self described sensual critic of restaurants, food is a passion. She writes about cooked salmon and baked Alaska with the same poetic rhapsody that D. H. Lawrence saved for sex.

In her new book, Bite, sundaes are "voluptuous glaciers of delight." Custards are "elevated to sainthood. She tastes the "hearty, primitive life force" of vegetable soup and is intoxicated by the "fiercely demonic perfume" of the gnocchi.

When food is not what her cultured palate demands, she is merciless in her criticism. She has been called the Dorothy Parker of restaurant critics and denounces an order of shrimps to be "as tender as roller derby queens." Stringbeans are "limp with embarrassment." Salad dressing is dismissed as insidious orange guck." And dejectedly she terms the mousse at one meal, "blah," sweets, not enough protein, inadequate vitamins and minerals — these can add up to malnutrition even when we are stuffing ourselves. So you have a constant hunger.

She gets love letters from gastronomes in Kansas City and Rome. One woman wanted to give Miss Greene as a birthday present to her husband. A married couple, after reading her work, article called "Confessions of a Sensualist," said they were not sexually aroused but raid the icebox and didn't know which to do first.

SIGN PETITION

Sherbrooke, Que. CP — Local waiters have signed a petition protesting an invasion by topless dancer waitresses who, they say, are taking away male jobs. Although they don't stay in any city long, the waiters complain, the girls double as bar waitresses when they're not "wiggling around" on tables. As one waiter said: "We plan to pursue a merciless campaign to keep our jobs."

Golds Right Up Yanks' Alley

MILWAUKEE (AP) — After capturing the first two championships in the seventh World Bowling tournament, the United States team trained its sights on today's doubles action.

The United States won the four-woman team title and the eight-man all-events event during the first three days of this 32-nation international pageant. Gold medals were presented to the victorious Americans in an Olympic-style ceremony Monday night.

The U.S. girls needed an all-time high six-game series of 4,656 to claim the title. Houston's Dixie Burmeister rallied the cause with an 1,197 series, including a 224 high game.

In the eight-man team event, Canada was eighth with 12,376 points.

Sharks Battered by Gales

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP) — Three dismastings, shredded sails, one pierced hull and three crew members tossed overboard by overpowering winds produced a wild first race for entries in the World Shark sailing regatta here Monday.

Fred Mills of Toronto battled winds up to 30 knots to take first gun and early lead in the seven-race series over 150 local and European sailors.

Jim Jackson of Port Credit came up Lake Ont. 65 seconds behind Mills to capture second place ahead of Bert Weber of Pointe Claire, Que. Paul Olaru of Toronto placed fourth, closely followed by Toronto's Harry Miller.

One recalled start, where hulls could be heard grinding together from 200 yards away, plus wind-hampered sailing, will have the protest committee working into the early hours today to sort out 10 charges of breaches of the rules.

Bodo Gunther of Germany, the Frankfurt hairdresser who has lost two masts in two days, said it "was just one of those freak accidents."

"I saw the pin going on the shroud, and I am too slow with my English to shout to the crew." When the shroud failed, the mast went with it,

Armed Forces in Europe to Get New Role, New Equipment

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 2,800-man land force in Europe will get brand new equipment and a new tactical reconnaissance role under plans announced today in the government's white paper on defence.

The 2,000-man air group, also located in southern Germany, will keep its CF-104 jets, but switch to a conventional attack role from a nuclear strike and reconnaissance mission.

The white paper says the government does not plan any further reductions in the manpower serving with NATO in Europe.

The force was halved last year from about 10,000 men, in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's announcement in April, 1969, of a "planned and phased reduction."

The white paper says the government "has decided that the land force should be reconfigured to give it the high degree of mobility needed for tactical reconnaissance missions in a central region reserve role."

The force now is equipped with heavy Centurion tanks and armored personnel carriers.

The white paper says the Centurion will be retired, "since this vehicle is not compatible with Canada-based forces and does not possess adequate mobility."..

"In its place a light, tracked direct-fire support vehicle will be acquired as one of the main items of equipment.

"This vehicle, which is air portable, will be introduced later into combat groups in Canada."

The government, after talks with NATO, plans to give the three CF-104 squadrons a conventional attack role, providing support for ground forces.

At present, one squadron has a reconnaissance mission and two others are equipped for nuclear strikes.

Canada will maintain her commitment to send a battalion group to Denmark or Norway in case of an emergency on the northern flank as well as her promise to send the balance of a combat group if needed.

The white paper says that extensive trials of the new CF-5 aircraft in Europe in the last year have confirmed its suitability for use there, especially in northern areas.

"The government is prepared to commit two squadrons of these aircraft to Allied Command Europe in photographic reconnaissance and ground-support roles."

They would be based in Canada, flown across the Atlantic when needed and refuelled in flight by 707 tankers.

Canada will also continue participation—mostly coastal defence—in NATO's Atlantic force.

The white paper says continued participation in NATO, complete with forces in Europe, is useful for military and political reasons.

"Hostilities could . . . occur there involuntarily from miscalculation in and around Berlin, or from accidental spill-over from unrest in Eastern Europe," although Europe had been conflict-free for 26 years.

Secondly, "Canada's military contribution in Europe reinforces its political role in the important negotiations in progress, or to prospect, designed to lead to a resolution of some of the tension-producing issues which prevailed from the Second World War."

The document says Canada can voice its views better in such issues as the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks and negotiations toward a force-reduction agreement with the Soviet Union.

It suggests that NATO membership could also pay off in negotiations with members of the European Economic Community aimed at lower tariff barriers for Canadian exports.

The white paper reiterates the government's rationale for cutting the force strength by half in 1970—the increased ability of European countries to provide their own defence, and the increased need to attend to other Canadian aims, such as economic growth and safeguarding sovereignty and independence.

Fire Department Bicycle Winners

Kevin Lyon, 13 and Charles Seeley, 12, were awarded bicycles by the fire prevention bureau of the Belleville Fire Department yesterday. On hand for the presentation were Fire Chief Leo Culhane, (centre) Deputy Chief Robert Emerson (right) and fire inspection officer Reg. Christopher. Over 13,000 children filled out ballots at the Quinte Exhibition last week in an attempt to drive away with the prize.

Challenges to Sovereignty Said 'Matter of First Priority'

OTTAWA (CP) — Non-military challenges to Canada's sovereignty and independence must be met exclusively by Canada "and provision of adequate defence resources for this purpose must therefore be a matter of first priority," says the white paper on defence released today.

These challenges include pollution control, especially over vast areas of the Arctic, policing of Canada's territorial sea and exclusive fishing zones, and civil disorders such as the October crisis in Quebec.

"By assuming the general responsibility for surveillance and control over Canadian territory, waters and airspace, in conjunction with civil agencies, the Canadian forces help safeguard sovereignty and independence," the policy paper says.

The kidnappings last fall in Quebec and the Kingston penitentiary riots last spring showed the need for Canada to be able to cope with future violence, disruption and intimidation at home.

"While civil disorder should normally be contained by the civil authorities, and the strength of municipal provincial and federal police forces should be maintained at levels sufficient for the purpose, we must nevertheless anticipate the possibility that emergencies will again arise which will necessitate the Canadian Forces coming to the aid of the civil power," the policy statement continued.

The white paper says that Canada has "a substantial capability for surveillance over Canada's waters in the temperate zone . . . and a good capability to detect submarines in its waters in the temperate zone."

Surveillance over Arctic land and water can be carried out by long-range patrol aircraft "but at present is limited by light and weather conditions." Surveillance by ships is limited in the Arctic to ice-free periods.

"The department of national defence is assessing the challenges that might be expected in the Canadian North and if warranted, will increase surveillance," the statement said.

The department also is doing research to enlarge its "very limited capability" to detect submarine activity in the Arctic.

More emphasis also is being placed on training the military to live and operate in the North.

A northern region headquarters has been established at Yellowknife, N.W.T. and there is a military liaison staff at Whitehorse.

"Consideration will be given to establishing other small bases in the North, particularly in the Arctic islands."

Also under consideration is reconstitution of the Canadian Rangers, a force discontinued a few years ago. It was set up primarily of native northerners and reported any unusual activities in remote Arctic areas.

Studies reveal the need for the defence department to provide increased support for naval vessels on both East and West coasts to deal with incursions by foreign fishing vessels in Canadian territorial sea or fishing zones.

The studies also show a need for defence forces to make the occasional arrest within territorial waters and pollution control zones of foreign ships in breach of Canadian anti-pollution regulations.

The armed forces have assigned three combat groups and an airborne regiment to assist in internal security operations if required.

"A normal military training prepares the Canadian soldier exceptionally well for this role," observed the statement. "Discipline and restraint, which are vital when acting in such a role, are an essential part of military training."

North Bay Payroll To Vanish in 1972

NORTH BAY (CP) — A Canadian Forces spokesman said today $1 million of the city's armed services payroll will vanish with defence department abolition of two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile squadrons.

Maj. George Lowes, forces information officer, said that only a small number of support trades personnel will remain here after 446 (Sam) Squadron is phased out in September, 1972.

The other squadron is located at Lamacaza, Que.

The North Bay squadron at present has 170 military personnel and 14 civilian employees, while at La Macaza there are 284 forces members and 71 civilian employees.

Both missile squadrons are under the command of the 22nd NORAD Region, also headquartered here.

Maj. Lowes said a majority of the service personnel located here at present eventually will be posted to other bases. There are also 35 to 40 United States Air Force people now assigned to the Bomarc bases here.

Maj. Lowes said he expects dismantling of the missiles and the return of the nuclear warheads to the U.S. will start next spring. The Bomarc squadrons are scheduled to become non-operational in May of next year and the bases closed by September.

Peacekeeping Commitment Is Renewed by Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has renewed its commitment to international peacekeeping in its white paper on defence policy.

The document released today says the government will "consider constructively any request for Canadian participation in peacekeeping ventures when, in its opinion, based on lessons of the past and circumstances of the request, an operation holds the promise of success and Canada can play a useful role in it."

Those past lessons have often been frustrating and disillusioning, it says.

The United Nations forces have been hampered by inadequate terms of reference, lack of co-operation among those involved, lack of support from the big powers, lack of logistical and financial support and failure to achieve political settlements.

The defence department "has capabilities to assist in such fields as engineering and construction, logistics policies, trades and technical training, advisory services, project analysis and air transport."

The forces would work with the Canadian International Development Agency—Canada's aid-giving body—and the external affairs department to study the possible use of military capabilities in aid projects.

This would fit the plan to provide more services by the forces to peacetime requirements of other government departments, in northern development, disaster operations, pollution control and fisheries surveillance, for example.

But "the scope for useful and effective peacekeeping activities now appears more modest than it did earlier, despite the persistence of widespread violence in many parts of the world," the document says.

"The government continues to support the concept of peacekeeping and will seek to utilize Canada's experience, to develop guidelines within the United Nations and elsewhere for effective peacekeeping operations," the white paper says.

A battalion will be kept on stand-by for UN service.

A new requirement may also develop for the supervision of arms control agreements, involving inspection of seabed installations or deployment of forces.

Defence Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the white paper on defence:

Canada will retire its two squadrons of Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles but will continue use of nuclear-equipped interceptor aircraft for North American defence.

No further reductions are planned in Canadian NATO forces.

Defence budget freeze will be ended in 1972-73, one year ahead of schedule.

Forces strength will be 83,000 at April 1, 1973, an increase of 1,000 over earlier projects.

Defence budget to remain within about one per cent of the present $1.8 billion ceiling for 1972-73.

Adequate forces will be provided to meet non-military challenges to Canadian sovereignty, such as pollution control, policing of territorial seas and fishing zones.

There is a need to anticipate that civil emergencies, such as the October crisis in Quebec, may require the forces to come to the aid of the civil power.

The 2,800-man land force in Europe will retire its heavy Centurion tanks in favor of airportable fire-support vehicles, which will also be used in Canada.

The three squadrons of CF-104 aircraft in Europe will all take on a conventional attack role. One now has a reconnaissance role and two have nuclear strike missions.

Two squadrons of CF-5 close-support aircraft, based in Canada, will be available to fly to NATO's northern flank in emergency, refuelling from 707 tankers in flight.

The commitment to fly a battalion group to Norway or Denmark in a crisis will be retained, along with the promise to send the balance of an air-sea transportable combat group from Canada during a period of weeks.

The NATO maritime role will be continued.

A battalion group will continue on stand-by for service with UN peacekeeping forces.

U.S. Strategic Air Command bombers will continue to get permission to fly over Canada in emergencies and for training.

SAC tankers will continue to refuel at Goose Bay.

Program Ends with Inspection

The student summer training program, sponsored by the militia under the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment, held its final inspection in the Armory last night. MP Lee Grills inspected the troops and later said "it is a shame that there could not be 100 here rather than 20. There is no finer training for a boy.

Last night marked the end of the summer student employment program for the Hastings Prince Edward Regiment. Present as the inspecting officer for the occasion was MP Lee Grills.

The students, employed by the militia reserve, were given training throughout the summer in areas such as field patrol, weapon drill and marching drill. These events were the audiences during the summer as they were instructed on the front lawn of the armory.

The program has been active since 1957 when there was an enrolment of 110. The enrolment this year beginning of this summer had been set at 10 but was later increased to 20 because of the interest shown by area youths.

Lee Grills in his address to the troops said, "it is a shame that there could not be 100 here rather than the 20 we see this evening. I feel that there is no finer training for a young man."

Displays during the evening included marching guard drills, first aid and weapons. Mr. Grills took particular interest in the latter display and busied himself talking to the instructors.

"When I talk to these boys, I see a great enthusiasm for comradeship and the need for an activity of this kind," said Mr. Grills.

Mr. Grills was also "very impressed" with the calibre of march music performed by the RCSCC Quinte band under the direction of Barry Bevvan, commanding officer of the corps.

Commanding officer of the student employment program is Barry said "because of the interest generated in this kind of activity, many of the boys came from the regular militia to train this summer and, again, many of the summer students have shown an interest in joining the regular reserve."

Mr. Grills had left Toronto earlier in the day to attend the event. In an aside to Major Carl Hubble of the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment he commented on the size of the group of trainees and said, "I'll see if I can a chance to talk to some of my friends after seeing this splendid performance."

Summer Role Proves Need Claims Grills

NDP Endorses Bomarc Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — Andrew Brewin, defence critic for the New Democratic Party, today welcomed the government's decision to dismantle the Bomarc anti-missile system.

But he voiced disagreement with the decision announced in the white paper on defence to maintain Canada's fighter-interceptor contribution to NORAD.

"Manned aircraft are as powerless as the Bomarcs against the Soviet Intercontinental MP told a news conference.

If NORAD had been scrapped 10 years ago "instead it became clear that bombers were no longer a threat, Canadians could have saved $1 billion," Mr. Brewin said.

Mr. Brewin repeated his party's stand that Canada unilaterally withdraw from NATO and take "another look at our anti-submarine forces.

Cahill's Recruiting Reputation Goes Up Another Notch

TORONTO (CP) — Leo Cahill's reputation as a persuasive recruiter of top football talent moved up another notch Monday when he announced the signing of Tim Anderson, San Francisco '49er r's' first-round draft choice, t o a three-year contract with Toronto Argonauts.

Cahill was almost apologetic when he introduced the 22-year-old defensive back at a news conference.

As head coach of a Canadian Football League club which has won its first four league games, he said it "probably seems an inopportune time to take an another player."

"We wouldn't do this in a normal situation, but this is not a normal s i t u a t i o n," he said. "We're always happy to be able to pick up a No. 1 draft choice from the NFL."

Anderson became the fifth top United States player lured from the National Football League by Cahill this year.

The other four are defensive lineman Jim Stillwagon, running back Leon McQuay and quarterbacks Joe Theismann and Greg Barton.

Stillwagon, fifth-round draft choice of Green Bay Packers, was a former team-mate of Anderson's at Ohio State University, and McQuay, who chose Argos instead of a final year at University of Tampa, is a close friend.

"I talked to both Leon and Jim," Anderson said. "Both of them gave me favorable reports on the game up here and that probably helped me decide to come here."

Anderson's failure to reach an agreement with San Francisco also had a bearing on his decision to look elsewhere, but he refused to discuss details of his negotiations with the '49ers."

Cahill said Tony Razzano, Anderson's agent, "has a story to tell an d probably will tell it later" about Anderson's troubles with San Francisco.

Razzano praised Cahill's way of dealing with players which he said was a major factor in swaying men such as Anderson to come north.

"After having visited up here a few times, I've grown to like Toronto and I think this has a big influence on these fellows," Razzano said.

That, coupled with Leo Cahill's way of handling things—his handling of players goes a long way, it has to be a big factor."

The agent said Anderson's salary with the Argos compares favorably with those of other top draft choices he has signed with U.S. clubs this year.

Anderson said he has been keeping himself in shape and hopes to be able to start with the Argos this weekend, when they meet British Columbia Lions in Vancouver.

Argo Holes Show

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, with an impressive early-season record gained by their strong offence, are being touted as 1971 Grey Cup contenders, but their defensive record shows a weakness.

The Argos lead the Eastern Football Conference with a 4-0 won-lost record after an equal accomplishment in pre-season play.

The Canadian Football League's weekly statistics show Argos on a par, offensively, with Calgary Stampeders who lead the Western Conference, also with a 4-0 record.

But while the Argo offence has a 99.97 edge over Calgary's in total points scored, the Toronto defence has allowed 77 points against 51 by the Stamps.

Toronto's offence has gained a total of 759 yards rushing and 823 by passing while Calgary has 561 and 838. But the Argo defenders have given up 1,080 yards in opposition passing alone and 418 to rushing while Calgary has yielded only 498 to the pass and 376 to enemy runners.

Argos have r e a c h e d first down 67 times but their opposition made it 77 times while Calgary has 71 and only 51 against.

Without some tightening up on the defence, Argos will be forced to continue their reliance on an offence which leads the league in average yards gained per pass with 10.4.

Toronto also has the Eastern Conference's leading rusher and scorer in rookie running back Leon McQuay.

McQuay has gained 458 yards on 84 carries for an average of 5.5 yards a carry, well ahead of runner-up Dennis Duncan of Ottawa Rough Riders who has picked up 385 yards on 71 tries.

In the scoring race, McQuay's six touchdowns give him an 11-point lead over Argo placekicker Ivan MacMillan who has booted eight converts, five field goals and two singles.

Win 8th Straight

Expos Turn on Heat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hottest team in the National League wins even in cold weather.

Montreal's fired-up Expos ignored some gusty breezes and warmed up their Canadian faithful Monday night with a 12-6 victory over Los Angeles that gave them an eight-game winning streak, their best ever.

Elsewhere in the National League Monday, Pittsburgh Pirates belted Atlanta Braves twice 15-4 and 4-3..16 open a five game-lead in the East Division, Chicago Cubs dumped Cincinnati Reds 6-5, San Francisco Giants topped New York Mets 5-4, St. Louis Cardinals ripped Houston Astros 5-2 and Philadelphia Phillies dropped San Diego Padres 3-1.

"It's great to win eight games in any league," said manager Gene Mauch, "but it's pretty tough to play baseball in this kind of weather."

The Canadian crowd agreed with Boots Day and Rusty Staub, who destroyed the Dodgers with nine runs batted in between them.

Day had a two run single in the second inning and a two-run homer in the fourth as Montreal built an early lead. Staub drove in an early run with a sacrifice fly and then climaxed Montreal's assault with a grand slam homer in the eighth, giving him five RBIs for the night.

Los Angeles, which slipped 7½ games back of San Francisco in the West Division race, grabbed an early 3-0 lead with pitcher Don Sutton driving in two of the runs.

But the Expos bounced back with five runs to grab the lead in the second inning with John Bateman's bases-loaded single chasing the first two across and then Day's single and Staub's sacrifice fly capping the rally.

Day tagged his two run homer in the fourth and Ron Fairly followed the issue with his bases-loaded blast in the eighth.

The Giants took advantage of Montreal's victory over the pursuing Dodgers by beating the Mets and adding another game to their West Division edge.

Bobby Bonds paced the Giants' victory, hammering a homer and a double to lead the attack. Jerry Johnson came out of the bullpen to save the victory for rookie Don Carrithers, 3-2. It was the 16th save for Johnson, ace of the Giant bullpen. He also had 12 victories.

Bonds' 24th homer helped the Giants to an early 3-0 edge, then he doubled in one run and scored another in the sixth as the lead built to 5-0. The Mets tayoed Carrithers in the bottom of the sixth but Johnson shut off the rally and held New York at bay after that.

RUSTY STAUB

Hugging Helps Him

After a season of ups and mostly downs, Dick McAuliffe, Detroit Tiger second baseman, is prospering with a home plate-hugging hitting style.

"Right now, I feel I can hit anything outside or inside," said McAuliffe after slugging a three-run homer in Detroit's 4-2 victory over Minnesota Twins Monday night.

In the only other scheduled American League game, Oakland Athletics bombed New York Yankees 8-2.

McAuliffe also had a double, his sixth hit in the last three games, to bring his batting average up to .266. He was only hitting .180 a month ago.

"I was in a bad slump because I was pulling away from the ball," said McAuliffe, who was a .333 lifetime hitter before this year. "But I knew what I was doing wrong—and I corrected it."

Despite his embarrassing hitting average, McAuliffe has made his 12 hits count. He's got 16 home runs and 53 runs batted in—not bad for a .200 hitter.

"I'm looking forward to driving in 70 runs," he says.

Detroit manager Billy Martin kept the faith all along, even if McAuliffe didn't.

"I always had the confidence in him, even though he was down on himself," said Martin. "He's aggressive with the bat now."

Tommy Davis, rookie Angel designated hitter and Dick Green each knocked in two runs and Chuck Dobson notched his 13th victory as runners Oakland bounced New York and moved its West Division lead to 16 games over second place Kansas City Royals.

Up and Over

Larry Kirkpatrick of Wood River, Ill., was heading into the final turn Sunday in a consolation race at the Iowa State Fair in a desperate attempt to grab sixth place and a spot in the final race when his car spun sideways and began flipping end over end. The sprint car hurdled the fence in the background, landing against a retaining fence. Kirkpatrick suffered cuts and bruises and a fractured left wrist. He was reported in satisfactory condition. NEW YORK (CP) — Baltimore Orioles and Oakland Athletics got the go-ahead Monday from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn to print tickets for the 1971 World Series — at 1970 prices. Kuhn said that the ticket prices were established at a meeting during the All Star Game July 13 and had no bearing on President Nixon's wage and price freeze. Tickets for the World Series range from $4 to $15.

Ticat Rookie in Trouble

WINONA, Ont. (CP) — Rookie lineman Wayne Philbrick of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League was charged Monday with possession of 50 pounds of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Philbrick, 23, a centre and defensive end with the Tiger-Cats, was released on $1,000 bail and was to appear in criminal court today.

He missed Monday night's team practice but met later with head coach Al Dorow, Tiger-Cats' general manager Philbrick, a graduate in agriculture from the University of Guelph, owns his own farm at Vineland Station, Ont., and rents the Saltfleet farm as well as one in Beamsville, Ont.

Prior to signing with Hamilton this year, his entire football experience consisted of two seasons with St. Catherines Rams of the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior league.

Hicks Tackles Tennis Task

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Writer

Hubert Hicks needed a summer job — and boy did he get one!

The native Bellevillian and Nicholson graduate had returned from his lab technology course in Hamilton to take up position as assistant tennis instructor for the Belleville Recreation Department behind returnee Anne Thompson; the only problem was that Anne never did come back!

Now the Rec Department found itself with a new head tennis instructor and Hicks found himself with more pressure on him than ever. "It's not the usual summer job that's for sure!" exclaims Hicks. "It's not like digging ditches or anything because it takes a lot of talking and thinking."

The sports enthusiast was first introduced to the sport of tennis by teammate and top ranked Quinte Tennis Club member Wayne Storms. "Wayne started me about six years ago and it's become my favorite summer sport. I used to play a lot of baseball and football and basketball but now tennis takes up most of my summer time."

Hubert has progressed steadily and rapidly in his six years of activity on the tennis courts improving on his game and in his ability to help others. "It's a challenge to try and reach the kids and to get the adults to keep coming back," states Hicks. "I've improved my game 25 to 30 per cent in the last three years and this job has helped immensely. I have to teach the kids the right way so at the same time I'm learning the proper way too."

His job, besides offering him the opportunity to teach the kids, gives him the chance to practice for the many tournaments he competes in under Quinte Club's flag. "I've been in the Kingston-Belleville thing and the Trenton-Belleville matches plus any club meets. I went to Oshawa and Kingston in matches but more to learn and for the experience rather than to win. My service is my strong point but it's inconsistent," he frowns.

Hicks has got help from a literally inhuman source in operating the city's blooming tennis program, in the form of a newly-arrived mechanical server.

The machine delivers balls to waiting pupils while the head instructor watches for faults in their technique.

Even with the most time saving and energy preserving machine there is still the human element. The Belleville Recreation Department's new $400 automatic tennis server saves the wear and tear on head-instructor Hubert Hicks' arm but nevertheless his services include loading and reloading the machine with over thirty tennis balls. The machine was bought to allow students to practise their returns and volleys while Hubert can stand by and observe his pupils.

Lacrosse Does Wrapping Early

It's not Christmas yet but there was a lot of wrapping up in Monday night's Belleville Minor Lacrosse play-off schedule.

Four different players got into the scoring act for the Y's Mens Club when they nipped the Dairy Queen 4-3 to eliminate the ice-creamers two games to one. Dave McBride, Steven Reid, Dan Duffy and Laurie Wilton all tallied for the Y. Jeff Runciman had two and Cliff Young one for the Queens.

The RCAF T-Birds also wrapped up their semi - final series with the Police by wrapping the men in blue 6-1. Ross Hand had the hat-trick, James Kennedy two goals, and Doug Rainboth one to lead the T-Birds to a 2-1 series win. Mark Bashall replied for the Police.

In a novice game the Golden Mile Restaurant was knocked out of the semi-finals two games to one after a 6-5 loss to Bob's Sport despite a five goal performance by Garth Scully. Hugh Wortley with three goals, Gerry Healy with two and Tim Nuttal with one, were Bob's scorers.

Simpsons - Sears bantams also finished their series Monday night by blanking Bob's Sport 5-0. Bruce had two goals for the winners with Manning, Bruce and Coons adding singles.

While the rest of the league was finishing up series the juveniles were just beginning one as Belleville and Trenton battled to a 3-3 tie in their opening game for the league championship.

Danny Payne had two goals and Dan Coulson one for the Belleville squad with Greg Scarlett, Rick Burnett, and Sandy MacDonald replying for Trenton.

Plane's Tads Get Midas Touch

The 'Midas Touch' has come to the Plane's Concrete tadpoles this year in the Belleville Minor Baseball league. Everytime they take the field they chalk up another win.

Monday night was no exception as Plane's opened their best-of-five series with Cablevue for the city championship by blanking the Cablemen 2-0. The league pennant winners followed the two - hit pitching of Tony Parks and Brian Cronkright. The pair fanned 19 and walked eight. Scott Dafoe had a double and Blane Waddell two singles for the winners.

Lorne Andrews and Mike Leger gave up only five hits in taking the loss for Cablevue. They struck out 14 and walked 11. Andrews and Doug Austin had singles for the losers only hits.

Farrell Motors advanced in the peewee playoffs last night by stopping the CN Yardmen 10-9 and winning the series two games to one.

Clyde Routley and Howie Coons picked up the win fanning 16. They also provided most of the clubs hitting with Routley smashing a homer and single and Coons hitting a triple and double.

Peter Hall and Dennis Grier were tagged with the loss for the CN. Ed Marineau had a homer and Rob McBrien three singles to lead the losers at the plate.

In another peewee playoff game the Golden Mile Restaurant nipped the Legion 99 5-4. Gary Stapeley and Paul Weeks picked up the win while Billy Whalen and Tony Meagher chucked for the Legion.

Industrial Softball

Finalists No Surprise

If anyone had bet on upsets in the Industrial Softball League semi-finals their pockets will be empty today after both Union Carbide and Mead Johnson clinched berths in the finals Monday night.

Pennant-winning Union Carbide finally let loose in their series with Morch Mariners to hand out a 12-3 pasting and take that best-of-five semi-final in three straight games. Meanwhile Mead Johnson kept pace by downing the CN Yardmen 10-9 to knock the Trainmen out of the play-offs in three straight games.

Ken Osbourne was the man of the hour for Union Carbide firing a coshitter to squelch Morch's. He fanned eight and walked three. Seven big runs in the first two innings gave him the cushion for his one-hitter.

Garry Little pounded a triple and single and Jack Hughes' two doubles to lead defending league champions at the plate. Jack Lucas had a triple and Garnet Bird two singles in the winners' 10-hit attack.

Glen Barberstock started for the Mariners lasting two innings and seven run, before giving way to Wilson Bulpit. Barberstock walked fire and Bulpit fanned four in their pitching chores. Barberstock was the only one to get to Osbourne, connecting for a single.

Meanwhile, the CN Yardmen watched a 7-1 lead slowly easen before their eyes last night as Mead Johnson scored five timfs in the fourth and three in the sixth to cap a come-from-behind victory.

Sonny Holoway made it three in a row over the CN as he fired five-hit ball. He fanned seven and walked 12.

Blaine Young had a homer for Mead's, with Ray Fiskle adding three singles and Holoway connecting for a triple and single.

Greg Bellis and Brian Plumbe saw mound duty for the Yardmen, giving up nine hits while fanning four. Rusty Fahey had a first - inning double for the only extra base hit off Holoway. Rob McMurter had two singles for the only double hitter.

Union Carbide and Mead Johnson open their best - of - seven league championship series this Wednesday with a 6:15 game at Prince Charles School.

Speedway Offers Two for One

BRIGHTON — The Brighton Speedway gave its patrons two for the price of one Saturday night with last week's rained - out stock car racing card being carried over, making for 21 heats of racing.

Sam Dingman of Warkworth captured the main event of the realigned seven races winning his first Super Feature of the year.

Wayne Foster of Newcastle took his 12th and 13th checkered flags of the season, winning both the six cylinder qualifying heat and the feature.

Westbrook's Bill Card turned the fastest lap of the year taking his eight - cylinder around the one-third mile oval in 20.5 seconds. Card won the eighth heat and Feature.

In the regular night's card, George King of Frankford captured the six-cylinder feature, outlasting 10 other cars in the 15-lap race.

But Fred Lake proved to be the man of the night, taking both the eight cylinder Feature and Semi-Pro Feature.

Leader in the points standing for the Midas Gold Trophy as top overall driver is Doug Davis of Trenton with 540 points.

Next racing action on the Brighton track will be this Saturday with starting time at 7:30 for the usual 13-race card.

Read Lead Sticks

It was a quick start for a long finish in Monday's seventh and deciding game between Latta and Read — a quick start for Read and an agonizingly long finish for Latta as Read tallied twice in the opening frame and hung on to defeat the host club 5-0 and win the South Hastings baseball semi-final series.

Frank Farrell hurled the win, giving up four hits while fanning nine and walking one. Pete Enright had the big bat for the winners, smashing out a double and single.

Bob Smith allowed only three hits in suffering the loss for Latta. He fanned eight and walked three. Glen McMeehan, Dave Chapman, John Masterson and Smith each had singles for the losers.

Read now advances into the South Hastings League finals against Plane's Concrete with the opening game slated for Wednesday night in Cannifton.

Kinsmen Keep Title In Family

The Kinsmen are having a family argument over the city's minor softball tyke championship.

Monday, the West Hill champion Kinsmen Bobcats hammered their way to a 23-6 morning win over the East Hill Kinsmen Hawks. Robbi Cavery had a home run, Phil Van Luntern a triple and Mike Skelly two doubles for the Tabbies.

In a squirt division West Hill championship game Ernie Tuck Appliances doubled the score on Doug Jones' Jewellers 6-2 to take the series two games to one.

Tim Soule fired a four-hit pitching performance and struck out 15 in picking up the win. Darrell Coltman had a triple and two doubles while Clinton Dell had a double and single and Allan Brooks a double all for the new West Hill champs.

Jobs don't grow on trees. They grow from the initiative and enterprise of the private sector. That's a plain fact of economic life. And here's another one. The most promising growth opportunity in a decade is staring you right in the face. Right now. If you're ambitious to grow along with Canada, this is the time to start.

In the past year, we've contained inflation more successfully than any other country with a free economy. Economists (both inside and outside the Government) are predicting that Canada is at the beginning of a new period of growth. Things are moving. Companies are expanding. Opportunities are opening up.
But we can do much better still.
This is no time for undue pessimism; no time for sitting back and waiting to see what happens. Now (while the growing is good) is a time for building and expanding into new markets and new product areas.

There are thousands of skilled people ready and anxious to help you build your business — and Canada Manpower Centres are just as ready to help you find them. If necessary, they can arrange the training of people you need, and help them relocate to wherever you need them for more productive employment.

Canada Manpower economists and researchers are ready to help in their own field, too — with analyses of market potential in every part of the country, with detailed reports covering the probable effects of technological change in your industry and in your company — with whatever facts and figures you need to take advantage of existing opportunities and to create new ones.

Just how far and how fast Canada will grow in the next few years is very much for you to decide. The stimulus must come from your energy, your enterprise and your confidence in the future of this country. We're ready to grow when you are.

The forecast is favourable. The people are available. And the Government has plans to help with all kinds of business expansion programmes.

Now let's get growing!

CBC and CTV Methods Differ In Meeting Canadian Content

TORONTO (CP) — The 1971-72 programming schedules of the CBC and CTV television networks reflect a difference in approach to meeting Canadian content quotas set down by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

While the CBC emphasizes Canadian-produced shows about Canada and Canadians in its new-season lineup, the CTV supplements shows from United States with Canadian-produced programs that frequently feature U.S. performers.

Spokesmen for both networks said Monday their schedules will exceed CRTC requirements for Canadian content. The commission sets an over-all daily and prime-time quota of 60 per cent for the publicly-owned CBC and 50 per cent for privately-owned stations.

The CRTC has not defined Canadian content as it applies to television, but stations uncertain of a program's qualification can ask the commission for a ruling.

The CTV spokesman said it would be unlikely that the commission would not accept as Canadian content any program that "makes use of Canadian resources."

Of 11 new shows appearing on the CTV network in the coming season, five are produced in Canada. Of these, Rolling' On The River, an hour-long musical variety show, is headlined by U.S. musicians Kenny Rogers and The First Edition with occasional visits from Canadian comedian Billy Van: All About Faces, a morning game show, has U.S. performer Richard Hayes as host, and Story Theatre is a television adaptation of dramatized fairy tales and fables originally produced on Broadway.

The other two Canadian-produced shows making their debut on the CTV network this fall are Yoga, produced in Vancouver, and Anything You Can Do, a game show out of Ottawa.

Ten remaining newcomers to the network are U.S. shows: Nichols, a turn-of-the-century western starring James Garner; The Persuaders, an adventure series with Tony Curtis and Roger Moore; The Partners, a comedy series featuring Don Adams and Rupert Crosse; Longstreet, story of a blind insurance investigator played by James Francisus; Funny Face, a comedy starring Sandy Duncan, and Shirley's World, with Shirley MacLaine.

The CBC is introducing 28 shows in the 1971-72 season, 14 of which are Canadian-produced.

These include: The Tenth Decade, a 10-program political history of Canada in the 10th decade of Confederation (1867-67); Ideas of Canada, a series of one-hour films interpreting the development of Canada; a series of National Film Board of Canada films; a Sunday night series of filmed Canadian dramas; the Whiteoaks of Jalna series based on the novels of Canadian author Mazo de la Roche; two day-time drama series: Family Court and Paul Bernard-Psychiatrist; Alphabet Soup, a children's program produced in Toronto; Video-Zone, a youth-oriented, public-affairs series; In The Mood, a variety series featuring the big band sounds of the '30s and '40s with Canadian entertainer Jack Duffy as host; Midweek, a companion series to the returning information program, Weekend; Replay, a sports talk show with former Canadian football star Russ Jackson and sports broadcaster Bob Moir as co-hosts; Let's Call The Whole Thing Orff, a comedy-variety series out of Montreal, and Mr. Wizard, a science-information series originating in Ottawa.

Other new shows for the CBC are: Cannon, an American detective series; The Mary Tyler Moore Show; The Carol Burnett Show; three British series: No, That's Me Over There, Man At The Top and The Benny Hill Show; O'Hara, U.S. Treasury, the new David Janssen series; an Australian adventure series: The Rovers; The Jimmy Stewart Show; The Flip Wilson Show; Elizabeth R, a BBC successor to The Six Wives of Henry VIII series; Get Smart, the Don Adams series now defunct in the U.S.; Getting Together, a musical-comedy series with Bobby Sherman, and The New Dick Van Dyke Show.

CBC shows seen during 1970-71 that will not be returning this season include the Ed Sullivan Show, The Bill Cosby Show, Adventures in Rainbow Country, The Bold Ones, The Red Skelton Show, Storefront Lawyers, Somerset Maugham Theatre, The Odd Couple, The Interns, Music Album, The Monty Python Flying Circus, Julia, Mod Deadly Game, Ace and 55 North Maple.

CTV shows of last season that will not be back include University Challenge, Hee Haw, The Carol Burnett Show, The Johnny Cash Show, The Barbara McNair Show, The Andy Williams Show, The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour and the daytime series, Famous Jury Trials and Trouble With Tracy.

Average Police Bribe In New York $10,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy charged Monday that literally dozens of police officers have accepted $10,000 bribes from narcotics pushers in recent years to turn a blind eye to the drug traffic.

He said in a radio interview that the $10,000 sum for an average bribe was not an exaggerated figure.

Murphy said he could hardly imagine allowing ranking officials to remain in the service if they refused to fill out the questionnaires about their financial status he gave them at a tumultuous meeting earlier.

The commissioner said Sunday he was fed up with what he termed the failure of top commanders to root out corruption, and met Monday morning with the men above the rank of captain.

Police sources said several commanders declined to resign rather than fill out the questionnaires.

A police spokesman said the meeting lasted 30 minutes; other sources said it went on for hours.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Waitress May Be Typhoid Carrier

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have suddenly developed a gall bladder complex. I have come to believe that I am a typhoid carrier.

I'm a waitress. This makes me especially doubtful whether or not I should continue in my present job. One of our customers came down with an attack of typhoid and almost died. Since then I've wondered if I shouldn't resign and get a job as a secretary somewhere instead.

I suppose I'm being silly, but how can I be sure I am not a carrier? How can a doctor tell? If I am what can be do? Miss Y.

* * *

COMMENT: Although you yourself may not be "guilty" it is true we often become complacent about certain diseases. We think they have been obliterated forever because they are uncommon unless an epidemic occurs.

For instance, Sir. A. says, "There is hardly any more tuberculosis around." (The fact is that it is still a major problem.)

Or, Mrs. B. says, "Now that polio has been completely licked, I suppose there is a lot less to worry about in bringing up children." (Unprotected children and adults can still be victims of attacks.)

And so it is with diphtheria, whooping cough, syphilis, gonorrhea and other contagions of man for which we have found preventives and cures. They are still around. So it is with typhoid, too, Miss Y.

Why you think you may be a carrier I don't know. But better see your doctor for repeated stool (feces) examinations. If tests are negative, then you can forget about being a carrier and go about your job a happier person.

However, if you do happen to harbor typhoid bacilli, then your gallbladder may possibly have to be removed (if it is still in). We have found that typhoid bacilli have a tendency to "hole up" in the gallbladder for years. Removing it lessens or removes the threat of "carrying" typhoid innocently to others.

There are additional methods: Antibiotics used in combination with other drugs are often dramatically successful in treating typhoid carriers.

But why speculate, Miss Y.? Your doctor may be able to wipe out your guilt complex within days.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn? What would cause cramps in my toes? They began after I was exhausted from an all-morning shopping trip. Could this have been the cause? Possibly. I wore high heels. Miss A.

COMMENT: I wouldn't know but you may have made your own diagnosis. I'll tilting shoes and high heels often are the guilty parties in causing foot and leg tiredness, cramps and generalized exhaustion. If the cramps persist, better see your doctor. If they disappear, then resolve to wear comfortable shoes on your next shopping tour.

* * *

For Mrs. H.: Yes, detached retina may be caused by a severe blow. But it may be due to some chronic illness that affects the back of the eye, too. The condition requires immediate attention by a skilled eye specialist. Often the retina can be reattached by special new procedures.

For Mr. D.: The semicircular canals are the bony canals of the inner ear. They are important in maintaining the sense of equilibrium (balance).

Sydney J. Harris Says

Crime Figures Tell Story

Let's talk about crime today, and deal in some hard figures instead of the usual slop of prejudice, ignorance and fear.

There are about 450, 000 felonies a year booked in the United States.

Of these, about 300,000 are arraigned. And of these about 50,000 are dropped for various reasons, the largest being the refusal of the complainant to press charges.

Of the remaining 250,000, about 229,000 plead guilty, only about 20,000 go to trial.

Of these 30,000, roughly 20,000 are convicted, and 10,000 are acquitted.

Of the 240,000 who plead or are judged guilty, about 190,000 go to prison. Only about 12 per cent of all felonies are heard by a jury.

Thus, 96 per cent of those prosecuted for felonies are convicted of something. And nine out of 10 end in guilty pleas.

So where is the "soft on crime"? Where is the "coddling of criminals"? In the public's frightened and feverish brain, that's where.

Why do so many defendants plead guilty and forfeit a trial? Because they usually get a reduced charge and a lighter sentence that way.

Why do they get a reduced charge? Because the court calendars are clogged, and the time and expense of a jury trial would be prohibitive.

It is not the law that is slippery or the judges who are "too lenient". It is that the whole machinery of justice is under-staffed, underfinanced, cumbersome, time-consuming, and politically oriented.

Innocence or guilty is not the decisive factor in the system of jurisprudence. Expediency is. How to process the most men in the shortest time at the least expense with the best-looking record for the prosecutor — that's the name of the game in criminal law.

Under such a system, professional criminals can get away with it time and again; not because of "technicalities" in the law, as the layman mistakenly things, or because judges are soft-hearted, but because the system itself is unwieldy and so coarse-meshed that the big fish slip through while the little ones are trapped.

If we have each defendant a jury trial and put all the guilty ones in prison, the whole legal and penological system would grind to a halt. There wouldn't be enough judges, enough courts, or even jails to handle them. Or enough money in the public treasury to support them.

Yet, as I said, 96 per cent of all prosecuted felonists are convicted of something, including quite a few who aren't guilty — which about makes up for the guilty ones who get away.

Honestly, now, did you know any of this yesterday?

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For August 25,

Your birthday today: Most of what you do this year requires revision, adjustment, so leave it open to chance and don't undue difficulty. Many experiments are indicated, relating to various sorts of career projects, household arrangements. Today's natives are quite firm in their opinions, perhaps a bit unorthodox.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The pace of the week picks up. Excitement makes work easier to push through although you must direct yourself more closely for minor discrepancies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Career and related matters are headed upward in an easy period of spontaneous expansion. Personal initiative produces unexpected, perhaps great results.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Begin the day with a bright smile — and mean it. Your basic enthusiasm will eventually tip all balances to make this a very successful career-building week.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): It's time to turn loose of outmoded possessions, property which no longer serves any active purpose. Your favorite charity should welcome any major white elephants.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Special arrangements are needed for even the simpler routine events in your regular work. Rules should be meticulously followed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): It turns out you are the steady one while so many others dither. Be consistent, stay with your earlier position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): There's a way of setting up petty problems for yourself, you will be unconsciously tempted to do so. Reflect, see what it means to yourself and your loved ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 22): Take nobody flippantly, likewise assume nothing derogatory of strangers. Get your share of current ventures up to date and on toward completion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 — Dec. 21): Your sense of humor bubbles forth in response to the intensity of present situations. Much of what happens may seem absurd.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Some personal issues come to crisis for decision. You have to let something go to keep a relation, or you find a relationship simply isn't there anymore.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Attend your normal rounds of amenities and routines. There is enough to do and plenty of interesting news to think about.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Quick decisions are all right where you know the field and the people in it rather well. Where you don't, put aside the responsibility.

International Parley On Money Expected

September 15 Is Likely Date

LONDON (AP) — A high level international conference to negotiate changes in the values of major currencies today appeared to be shaping up as the United States dollar sagged further in European money markets.

British officials said reports from the International Monetary Fund in Washington indicated the meeting probably will be held in London Sept. 15, the day after finance ministers of the European Common Market are to meet in Brussels in a bid to settle their differences over changes in monetary values.

The crisis arose from President Nixon's Aug. 15 action in cutting the ties between gold and the U.S. dollar. That move, in effect, set all currencies adrift in world exchanges to seek their true levels according to market forces.

Messages reaching the British government from Ottawa indicated that Finance Minister E. J. Benson of Canada, this year's chairman of the Group of Ten finance ministers, and Rinaldo Ossola, head of the Bank of Italy, have agreed that the group's committee of deputies should discuss the issue of currency revaluation prior to the London meeting. Ossola is chairman of the deputies committee which is expected to meet Sept. 4 or 5. No site was mentioned.

The aim of the London conference is to draft recommendations on changes in money values to put before the annual assembly of the IMF in Washington.

London—One U.S. dollar bought 40.75 British pence today, 40.86 Tuesday and 41.33 on Aug. 13, the last trading day

lar of 3.19 per cent from the Aug. 13 level and 2.1 per cent from the official parity.

Frankfurt—One U.S. dollar bought 3.3860 West German marks, 3.4025 Tuesday and 3.3830 on Aug. 13. Today's level was slightly above the Aug. 13 rate for the dollar but represented an 8.09 per cent devaluation of the dollar from the official parity.

Paris—The U.S. dollar bought 5.29 financial, or free market, francs in France's two-tier system today, 5.44 Tuesday and 5.5130 Aug. 13. This represented a dollar devaluation of 2.9 per cent from parity and 2.2 per cent from the Aug. 13 level.

Zurich—The U.S. dollar bought 3.96 Swiss francs today, 39.07 Tuesday and 4.06 on Aug. 13, a devaluation of 2.7 per cent from the pre-crisis level and 3.7 per cent at the parity rate.

Lewis Would Close Plant During Strike

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario's New Democratic Party leader, pledged before about 1,000 trade unionists Tuesday that legal strikes would mean plant shut downs under an NDP government.

Mr. Lewis was speaking at a rally ending a 25 minute protest march past the strikebound Kimberley Clark of Canada mill here.

Representatives of several other unions, including the United Auto Workers, the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, marched in support of 200 members of Local 289, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Mr. Lewis said an NDP government would introduce legislation that would end all economic operations by a company during a legal strike.

Surcharge Is Assailed By GATT

GENEVA (Reuter) — The formation of a committee to investigate implications of the U.S. 10-per-cent extra import tax will be the main immediate outcome of a meeting of the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade council.

The formation of the special committee was agreed to Tuesday after sharp criticism of the surcharge was expressed at the meeting.

Although most of the representatives of the 18 countries who addressed the 55-nation GATT council refrained from directly threatening retaliation, they urged the United States to remove the surcharge as soon as possible.

Canadian delegate Maurice Schwartzman, assistant deputy minister in the department of industry, trade and commerce, said it is a matter of the greatest urgency and importance for Canada that the import tax should be removed quickly and that necessary realignments to current unrealistic currency exchange rates be promptly carried out.

"We are not convinced that restrictive trade measures are an appropriate way of dealing with the problem. Such measures should be considered under GATT only when the trade imbalance is the major factor in over-all balance of payments difficulties."

14 Indicted For Police Raid On Panthers

CHICAGO (AP) — State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan, a political protege of Mayor Richard J. Daley, was charged by a special Cook County (Chicago) grand jury Tuesday with conspiring to obstruct justice in the aftermath of a police raid in which two Black Panthers were shot to death.

Superintendent James B. Conlisk of the Chicago police force was named as a co-conspirator but was not indicted. Richard Jalovec, an assistant to Hanrahan, and 13 policemen involved in the raid were indicted with Hanrahan.

Opportunities for Aged Program Is Being Sought

TORONTO (CP) — The United Senior Citizens of Ontario were advised Tuesday to ask the federal government for a senior citizens project similar to the Opportunities for Youth Program.

Metropolitan Toronto chairman Albert Campbell told about 400 delegates attending the group's 12th annual convention that Canada's aged citizens are a vast resource of talents and skills.

He said projects they could undertake "would be useful, practical, suitable and of benefit to society."

Mr. Campbell said the 80,000 members of the organization are "a potential political force of which every level of government must be conscious."

One of the resolutions presented Tuesday to the two-day convention at York University asks the federal government to "provide a sum similar to that for student employment for employment of senior citizens."

Trial of Sadat's Foes Opens in Court at Cairo

CAIRO (Reuter) — The trial of former vice-president Aly Sabry and 90 other Egyptians accused of plotting to overthrow President Anwar Sadat opened today.

Cairo radio reported that after a brief session the court adjourned until Sept. 4 to give defence lawyers time to prepare their case.

The indictment accused all 91 —Sabry, seven former ministers, and 83 others—of high treason, a crime that carries the death sentence or life imprisonment.

Presiding over the three-man court was the speaker of the legislators, Hafez Badawi.

Other main defendants include former war minister Gen. Mohamed Fawzy, who will be tried separately by court martial, former interior minister Sharawy Gomaa, former information minister Mohamed Fayek and a number of leading officials of the now reformed Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party.

In the lengthy indictment, Prosecutor-General Mustapha Abu Zeid charged Sabry and his associates with attempting to topple the government by force.

To achieve their goal, the indictment alleged, the defendants mobilized their supporters in the government and the ASU to spread dissension, organize anti-Sadat demonstrations, and distribute hostile leaflets. They also sought the intervention of the armed forces, with Fawzy's consent, to back their bid for power.

Leaders Weary as Alberta's Campaign Enters Home Stretch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Alberta election campaign moved into the home stretch this week with the two weary leaders trying to elbow each other out of position as they sprinted toward the Aug. 30 finish line.

Premier Harry Strom stepped up his attacks on the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic parties and also had a few harsh words for the news media.

Both Mr. Strom and Mr. Lougheed had logged more than 5,000 miles on the campaign trail, and were making a last-minute sweep into the cities. They had concentrated on rural ridings in the first four weeks of the campaign.

Mr. Lougheed, speaking to 1,000 placard-waving supporters in Calgary Monday, said that since Mr. Strom became premier in December, 1968, Social Credit has had "one talent—talent of whitewash and hiding serious problems under the rug."

Travelling by plane, bus, car, mobile trailer and in the premier's case, even by horse, the party leaders were out to visit all 75 constituencies in what Mr. Strom described as "a different kind of campaign."

Mr. Strom said the "personal touch" was needed to turn back the third serious challenge to 36 consecutive years of Social Credit rule. Mr. Lougheed has adopted the same approach and both he and Mr. Strom have visited hundreds of communities, some of them near-ghost towns.

In 1940, five years after Social Credit first swept to power, opposition groups joined forces to support independent candidates and limit Social Credit to 35 of 57 seats.

In the last legislature, Social Credit held 55 of 65 seats and the Conservatives 10.

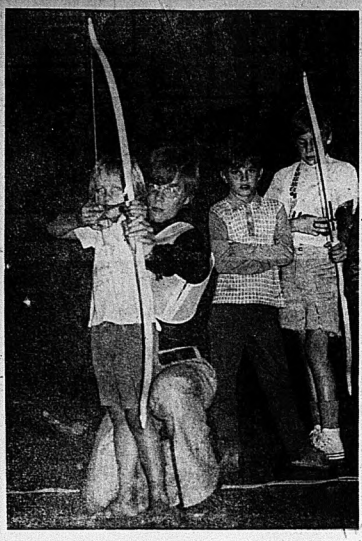
Speaking to 450 people in Red Deer Monday night, Mr. Strom said all Mr. Lougheed wants to do is to become premier, . . . "He does not have a true regard for the people."

As for the NDP, he said, it is "importing negative socialistic ideas into this province."

left Social Credit with 37 of 61 seats.

Speaking to 450 people in Red Deer Monday night, Mr. Strom said all Mr. Lougheed wants to do is to become premier, . . . "He does not have a true regard for the people."

As for the NDP, he said, it is "importing negative socialistic ideas into this province."



Mr. Strom described the former national NDP leader T. C. Douglas as a spokesman "from a party and a government which failed to keep its own house in order." Mr. Douglas was formerly premier of Saskatchewan.

The premier said the Conservatives have made 116 platform promises, of which only a small number would increase the Alberta budget by more than $500 million a year.

"Either they are not serious about these promises, or they plan to double taxes. It can't be any other way."

Mr. Lougheed said the Social Credit platform is evasive because it makes no mention of individual rights, mental health or relations with Ottawa.

David Lewis, NDP national leader, said voting Social Credit or Conservative is like choosing between strychnine and arsenic. The Conservatives would not provide a significant change.

U.S. Surcharge 'Justified But Tough on Canada': Hees

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — The Hon. George Hees, MP, Prince Edward - Hastings, last night told Prince Edward county councillors he feels the United States was justified recently in imposing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports but stressed: "It's going to be pretty tough in Canada for the next few months."

Mr. Hees, a special guest at council's regular session, said a question and answer period the Canadian government has not taken action yet to exempt the country from the newly declared surcharge.

He reminded council Canada was forced to take similar measures in 1962 when cuts in government payrolls and "certain other things" including a surcharge became necessary.

The United States, described by Mr. Hees as "in a tough spot", must be convinced actions harmful to Canada will also be harmful to her. He said he felt Prime Minister Trudeau, "a very persuasive man," should have visited President Nixon. "I think he could have done a better job than any of his ministers," emphasized Mr. Hees.

He explained this opinion does not place derogatory reflections on the ministers' capabilities but underlines Mr. Trudeau's persuasiveness.

Mr. Hees observed the Prime Minister should now meet with President Nixon to point out "what hurts us, hurts you."

"There is really nothing we can do," said Mr. Hees directly to the surcharge.

He said any retaliation would start a trade war and added Canada, the smaller of the two countries, logically would be the loser.

Although the Canadian government possibly could offer subsidies to industries hurt by the surcharge if would be unlikely it could afford to provide them to the necessary extent.

"We can't put up a strong face and indicate that to hurt Canada badly will mean that she cannot buy back," suggested Mr. Hees.

"Things won't get back to normal until Japan and West Germany revalue their currencies upwards," he predicted.

"Looking to the future it will mean a great deal and prove a lasting asset to Prince Edward County," he asserted.

Mr. Whitney said a home for the aged building proposed for Prince Edward remains under study although it is too early for end results of surveys taken to be evaluated.

Hees Urges Winter Works

PICTON (Staff) — A strongly worded recommendation for a winter works program, if forwarded to government officials by Prince Edward County council, could prompt its approval.

The Hon. George Hees, MP, Prince Edward-Hastings, said last night the present unemployment threats created by the United States announcement of an import surcharge could promote a winter works program.

He noted Prime Minister Trudeau has stated recently welfare for able bodied men is not justifiable if there are employment opportunities. If there is no work, however, these men cannot be abandoned.

Mr. Hees said a winter works program is "the cheapest and best way to provide jobs for people," and added that "it makes good common sense."

He urged county council lists be prepared such a program now if they support it rather than wait "until the snow flies."

Employment at 'Heights' To Get Better: Whitney

PICTON (Staff) — Government team work was emphasized during last night's regular meeting of Prince Edward County council when George Hees, MP, Prince Edward - Hastings and Norris Whitney, MPP, Prince Edward - Lennox attended the session to discuss a wide range of topics.

"This is a very constructive step toward bringing our three levels of government closer together; to get anywhere we must work very closely indeed," declared Mr. Hees.

He congratulated Prince Edward County warden Allan Anderson for planning the special meeting and compliimented him on his council's ability to deal with reports "quickly and with dispatch."

Mr. Hees termed the county council "the most important level of government in the country" calling it the basic level.

He explained to councillors that by directing their submissions through him to Ottawa they can be brought to action more quickly. "We are there basically to serve you and members of the riding," he commented.

Mr. Whitney addressed council briefly with reports of recent developments at Prince Edward Heights.

He noted the village complex stresses education rather than medical care and said more than 50 per cent of its employees are county residents. There are now 47 persons employed by the department of health and an additional 23 workers hired by the department of public works.

This will extend more as pupils come in," remarked Mr. Whitney discussing employment figures.

He referred to the possibility of courses at Loyalist College for young persons interested in qualifying for jobs at Prince Edward Heights. Senior staff- members now employed there may later be transferred to new centres creating job openings for locally trained personnel.

Susan Ray Winner

Susan Ray, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ray of Roslin last night won a preliminary Dairy Queen contest at the Canadian National Exhibition.

She competed against three other girls, winners of contests in Lambton, Glengarry and South Niagara counties.

Miss Ray, a brunette with ambitions to become a nurse, is entering Grade 13 in September. She has completed 12 agricultural and 12 homemaker courses in her five years in 4-H Club work.

Preliminaries are being run off this week at the CNE, with semi - finals and finals scheduled for next week. The girls, all county winners, are required to milk a cow, clean the equipment and make a speech. They work in white pant suits of their own choice.

Junior Robin Hoods

A display at the Memorial Arena last night demonstrated the way a number of city youngsters put in their summer under the auspices of the Recreation-Arena Committee's Summer 71 program. Displays of art, ceramics, and archery illustrated the talents developed in 9 to 13 year-olds taking instruction in leisure time activities.

Trenton Retenders Contract

TRENTON (Staff) — Garbage collector, Ross Willman, has agreed to stay on in his position until the town of Trenton is able to secure a replacement contractor for the job. Willman had handed in his resignation earlier this month, telling council he would quit by Sept. 1.

Tenders have been sent out by the town for a new refuse collection contract but they have certain flaws in the wording that may lead to undisclosed problems.

Town officials now want to retender but were concerned that time would run out and the community would face a garbage crisis.

However, now Mr. Wilman has pledged to stay on, so the situation is averted. New tenders will be sent out in the next few days. Mayor Duncan McDonald said today.

Cruiser On Shoal

A 40-foot cabin cruiser owned by a Buffalo man is being inspected for hull damage today at the Belleville harbor after the craft ran aground yesterday near Potters Point west of the city.

The craft was pulled off the shoal by a Canadian Coast Guard boat from Presqu'ile Point and was towed back to Belleville.

At the local dock the $70,000 boat was lifted from the water to allow its propeller and propeller shaft to be straightened.

The fibre glass hull was to be checked today for possible leaks.

IN MEMORIAM

LICKFOLD — In loving memory of Lloyd Lickfold, father Jack Lickfold who passed away August 20th, 1965.
Each day he lived his life he shared,
With others along the way,
And that is why he is not forgotten,
Nor ever will be, they say.
—Sadly missed by wife Bud and daughter-in-law Vera.

MORMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Mormon, father Ernest Sr. Mormon, who passed away Aug. 23, 1964.
Oh! sweet husband and father,
Since you have passed away,
We miss you more years ago.
But our memories will stay
Oh! dear one, how we loved you,
And love cannot forget.
The Lord took you from us,
It was His will,
It was not for us to wonder,
Which no one else can fill.
But in our sadest moments,
One happy thought holds sway,
We will meet again, dear heart,
And be happy some sweet day.
—Wife Sally and Family.

Thurlow Runs Into Garbage Dump Snag

CANNIFTON (Staff)—Thurlow Township Council has run into an obstacle blocking purchase of a block of land scheduled to be developed as the township's new sanitary land fill, garbage disposal system.

The township's agreement for purchase and sale of the land, drawn up in July, expired Aug. 16. Owner of the land, Mrs. Elizabeth Burd, this morning refused to extend this option, disclosed a spokesman for the law office of O. E. Butler.

"Mrs. Burd isn't agreeable to the extension," the spokesman said.

The 100 - acre plot, located on lot seven, concession six, east of Foxboro on Rosedale Avenue, had been verbally approved by a representative of the department of energy and resources, waste management branch. Written sanction had not been received.

Paul Davison suggested "your operation will work as well as the man you hire; he'll make or break your operation."

As well as providing for disposal of routine garbage, the new dump was to have been made available for discarding of derelict, bulk cars. A hill on the 100 - acre location would have been set aside for automobiles. To this end, the township planned to consult a car crushing company for periodic removal of the rusting metal.

With crackdowns on older, open garbage dumps such as Thurlow's 15-20 year site northwest of Corbyville, municipalities have been faced with the necessity of shutting down operations or converting them into sanitary fill sites.

Township clerk Clare Horton said Thurlow is "supposed to have it in operation by Oct. 15." Now the township faces a difficult problem. Where will they get adequate land by the October deadline?

A special meeting of council has been called for tonight with the waste disposal problem heading the agenda.

"We're going to have to try" and get another site, councillor Donald McKeown said, when told of Mrs. Burd's decision.

At the last meeting of council, Deputy Reeve Borden Forsyth commented on the increasing problems of garbage disposal in the township. "Everybody is bringing their garbage into our dump because they have to pay at the one in Sidney Township," he said.

If the Burd property had been put into operation, the township had no plans for municipal waste control. Residents would have been required to dispose of their own garbage or use the services of private collectors.

Factory Is Entered

Police this morning are looking for what may well be a well-dressed thief.

Clothing was not the object of an overnight robbery at the Deacon Brothers factory on Dundas Street East.

Entry was gained after the thief broke a southeast window. An undisclosed amount of money was removed from a soft drink machine.

Area Youth To Question Dr. Potter

Belleville youths will have a chance this Monday evening at 7:30 to talk to Dr. it. T. Potter on youth affairs across the province.

"While the program is designed to appeal to youth, it will also be of interest to adults wishing to attend, and will give these adults a sounding board for their feelings on area youth behavior," said one organizer.

The program is being sponsored through the Opportunities for Youth program ("Circus" Fund).

"But there will be another in the fall, ... program for the group.

The casual, on the floor type seminar, will be held in the recreation centre on Pinnacle St. and "subject areas are flexible -for discussion," said Charles Smith, supervisor in the program.

The Way Things Are

In these days of confrontation of one kind or another, involving not only two sides but sometimes one in the middle (like British troops in Northern Ireland), not to mention a climbing-on-the-bandwagon public, one looks at events and trends and notes that everything, like nature, takes its course.

Consider some of the major and minor issues upon which public and participatory democracy have vented and are venting their endless prejudices and political dyspepsia, according to which side of the fence they sit. Over the long hot summer, for instance, university professors and others may be observed in frequent and abstruse print beating the drum about such themes as Canada and NATO, Canadians in the United States, and of course Northern Ireland. As someone once said in a letter to The Globe and Mail on its Letters to the Editor column, "So many words . . . so little said." Now and again one sees a fair and reasoned article that has regard for the rights of all sectors in any dispute, and one such was Conor Cruise O'Brien's London Times piece on Ireland reprinted in The Globe and Mail the other day. O'Brien, United Nations representative in the Congo in 1961 and now a Labor MP in the Dublin government, was grinding no axe in his article, but rather offering some very fair and reasonable suggestions for defusing the Irish trouble before facing the need for long-term solutions.

Some other political matters which have gone the usual route of rising to a peak of public and international concern, then faded into limbo: campus disorders in the United States — Kent State for one — the civil rights matters (what has become of the Rev. Mr. Abernathy?), Washington demonstrations by the poor. Remember too the furor here and abroad about Biafra. Currently the Pakistan refugees hold the world stage.

And Lieut. William Calley. The heat is off that affair too, so much so than an army review board has seen fit to reduce his sentence from life to 20 years. And at home the principles in the Mary Nelles kidnapping case a couple of years ago are being paroled already.

Quite apart from the wisdom or morality of these moves, they demonstrate the inconsistency of both public and governments, their inability to sustain the big concern of the moment into the months and years succeeding, their failure to stick by the decisions they make in the light of the gravity of events at the time of those decisions.

This is also the way the forces of protest win battles only to lose wars. The people in power simply await the psychological moment, by appearing to back off, then when the public dissidents, pressure groups or whatever, least suspect it, the decision-makers move in.

Fait accompli . . . next issue please, next public concern, furor in parliament, letters to the editor etc. etc.

Downtown Mall?

Belleville should have a go at the downtown mall concept tried with success in other communities. The downtown area now is facing increased competition and a mall, with perhaps a parade to boot, pretty girls, that sort of thing would get people right there where the action is. Toronto, not content with the two already held, is planning a third mall in Elizabeth Street near City Hall. It will have a Chinese theme, be befitting since it was organized by Alderman Ying Hope and it will be called the Mall of the Celestial Dragon. How about a similar effort Belleville? The autumn would be a good time for such an enterprise.

Takes Its Course

You would think with all the furnaces going and people wearing coats downtown in the last day or two that autumn or even winter, was already with us. We seem to have heard also one of those forecasts by our Indian friends that there will be an early fall, whatever that means. After all, nature takes its inevitable course; our days are getting shorter and rain and gales in the southern hemisphere will gradually dissipate as summer takes over there. Here we still may look forward to September and that fabled, ageless scene, the season in decline, and climaxing about the third week in October. Then, as ever, there will be winter, with its own special appeal.

U.S. Trade and $ Moves Spark Continuing Reaction

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — More than a week after President Nixon decided on drastic measures in an effort to wipe out the red ink in American foreign-trade ledgers, nothing much is resolved.

But commentators here are agreed, using the kind of awesome phrase that has become popular lately, that neither the world monetary system nor world trade patterns will be quite the same again.

The two-pronged Nixon plan — new duties on imports and floating of the United States dollar—is aimed at working not only a change for the better in the U.S. trade balance but also a more realistic and flexible way for the world to pay for its trade.

For either of those American objectives to be achieved, the cost is likely to be painful for many of the United States' principal trading partners, at least temporarily.

Their arguments and complaints have been flooding into Washington since the Nixon program was announced. The reply from Treasury Secretary John Connally, chief mover and shaker of the new policy, has been unremittingly tough, as the Canadian delegation discovered last week when it sought exemption for Canada from new import duties.

Connally's view, over-simply stated, is that the U.S. has been trying for some time to persuade other countries, notably Japan and some of Europe's countries, to help correct an unhealthy situation and they have failed to act. So he has had to present them with a situation which will force them to act.

He wants foreign currency rates to reflect their actual value, not an artificial value that helps others' foreign trade. He wants the same accusation of foreign markets that he thinks foreign products have to the U.S. And he wants other countries to pick up more of the cost for Western defence.

The foreign reaction has been a mixture of sympathy and rancor.

Other countries are said to appreciate that to varying degrees their own prosperity depends on a prosperous United States.

But there have been numerous reports reaching Washington of irritation and even anger at what is regarded as U.S. arrogance in believing that the U.S. alone should decide when and how other countries are to revalue their currencies and alter their trade policies.

Although not all other countries are equally guilty, all are being equally punished, the argument goes. And besides, other countries should not be forced to help pay for measures to correct U.S. domestic inflation which the Nixon administration has neglected.

Even closer to home, there are reports of criticism. The International Monetary Fund, whose headquarters are in Washington, is understood to have been pressed by the U.S. behind the scenes to increase the price it will pay for gold above the long-standing $35 an ounce.

Their advice has been flatly rejected, published reports say. Nixon is said to be totally against the idea.

The fund's thinking is that a price increase for gold would allow the U.S. to share the burden with foreign governments of the forthcoming general shake-up in world currency values The U.S. doesn't want any new emphasis placed on gold as a currency standard.

One indication of the complexity of the problems that must be solved and the difficulties ahead came Monday in the European money markets.

The U.S. dollar went on sale in European exchanges for the first time in a week and dropped only a trifle in value. Dealers were reported to be so uncertain about the effects of recent events on the value of the dollar, they held back on trading.

The aim of Nixon's program has been widely reported to be a devaluation of the American dollar of up to 15 per cent in relation to some other currencies.

The unexpected strength of the dollar in the face of drastic U.S. moves only seems to show how much remains to be done before world trade and money values settle into a new pattern.

Problems of the Rural Jobless in the U.S.

UNESCO Features

Every year, mechanization displaces tens of thousands of rural workers from their jobs. This phenomenon is particularly acute in the United States where the number of persons employed in farming fell by two million during the 1950-1960 decade and by another two million between 1960 and 1968.

The rapid growth of urban jobs requiring farm - related skills or knowledge has helped offset this trend. Forestry development, soil preservation and the "agribusiness" have proved especially useful in this regard.

Agribusiness supplies farms with materials and services; processes, packages and distributes its products and cares for farm - related research and education. It is a booming urban industry in the United States, employing no less than 16 million people.

The challenge remains, however, to retrain the rural jobless to fit into the new urban farm - related jobs. One of the best institutions for this retraining has been the secondary school, and the best tool, vocational agricultural courses. About 10,000 schools provide such courses.

Students in the newer courses receive instruction in farm-related occupations and a basic education in agricultural science, followed by some specialized instruction in the occupation that most appeals to them.

With the new courses goes what is called supervised practice — part - time employment in some store or plant that gives a student experience in the job under the supervision of both the employer and the teacher.

One pioneering secondary school is Dudley, North Carolina, owns a forest where students learn skills required for forestry jobs. The production of pulpwood for paper mills is a growing industry in this state and men from the industry helped the school draft its first curriculum.

In Zanesville, Ohio, Charles Coyne uses his small airplane to teach his self-designed vocational agricultural course. He takes students in his aircraft to study land-use planning.

The new vocational agricultural courses are not limited to rural areas and small towns. Just 20 miles (32 kilometres) from Boston, the Essex County Agricultural Institute prepares students for new kinds of jobs. The school has six times as many applicants as it is equipped to accept.

Los Angeles has 80 schools providing horticultural education. Every new secondary school built there since 1950 has a greenhouse and a one-acre growing ground.

Philadelphia has launched a pilot program for 400 students by building a secondary school specializing in agriculture. It is attached to a 78 - acre (31.6 hectare) farm complete with dairy herd.

Throughout the United States, schools are responding to the great emigration of youth from rural areas. Country boys and girls are an important human resource for the cities, if they can get the kind of training which enables them to combine their knowledge of agriculture with marketing, planning and research skills.

One Man's Effort in Bringing The Quinte Mall to Belleville

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The reference in Saturday's Intelligencer to the "vital role" played by Donat Clement in the establishment of the Quinte Mall in Belleville deserved a clarifying of civic leadership without equal in the Quinte region.

Laying aside his modesty and thread to direct the storm of public anger that arose following the OMB decision Mr. Clement turned his home into a campaign headquarters. This comparatively quiet street became the gathering point for the hundreds of participating citizens who trudged from door to door collecting the signatures necessary to prod those in high office to hear the voice of the people.

In undertaking to lead the campaign Don trod on the toes of the many vested interests against the plaza, upset community leaders and incurred the wrath of certain politicians . . . to say nothing of jeopardizing his job as a federal civil servant. His phone rang constantly mostly with offers of support, but occasionally with veiled threats to his well-being if he did not drop the project.

Taking these off without pay to lead the delegation that took the petition to the Legislative building in Toronto like a true vigorous appeals on behalf of the plaza project to the leaders of the opposition and, why not handing over the collected signatures and brief to the Attorney General he let it be known that the citizens of Belleville expected action.

When action resulted in the second hearing by the OMB he again took time off from work to lead the citizens delegation in presenting arguments for the establishment of the Quinte Mall. As has been said before, all those with jobs in this exciting new complex, the city treasurer (when he counts the assessment), the Chamber of Commerce (often they advertise for tourism) and all those thousands of shoppers from the Quinte region, owe it all to one man.

It was typical of Don Clement, when I asked him at the plaza that day what he thought of it all to say, "Well, for a change, the people got what they wanted."

Mr. Nixon's Economic Strictures

The Globe and Mail

Of very great concern to Canada will be the effectiveness of the 90-day wage-price freeze which President Richard Nixon imposed on the United States last Sunday. How well will it work? By what, if anything, will it be succeeded?

There seems to be the first plate in the Washington interim on the part of Washington to make it work. Centres being set up under the Office of Emergency Preparedness in 10 metropolitan centres were expected to be in operation yesterday, and others are planned. Two hundred sub-regional offices will receive complaints about violations. An eight-member team of lawyers has been established in the Justice Department to handle possible court actions resulting from violations of the freeze, and an assistant U.S. attorney will be assigned to each of the regional offices. Mr. Nixon's executive order provided for $5,000 fines for violations, but an alternative means of enforcement could be court injunctions against violators, which could then be fined as much as $100,000 for defiance of contempt of court should they persist in violations.

The appeal to the public is very direct — even universities, for instance, may not increase their fees, even individuals are being asked not to increase the amount they have been paying boys to cut their grass.

'Troublemakers' Get Things Done

Almonte Gazette

Who really are the good and bad guys in society, the rebels or the conformists? Since good and bad are at issue, the nonviolent, humanitarian type of rebel is considered.

This man, out in the mainstream, fights to remove injustice, protect our rights, increase our freedoms. He attacks prejudice, deception and fraud and in so doing speaks for all of us.

He brings out in the open, hidden evils. Rachael Carson exposed the dangers of pesticides. Ralph Nader unsafe cars. Some challenge old attitudes and values, suggest radical new ideas. Should the country be run on service rather than profit? Is war legalized murder? This sparks healthy controversy, keeps thought moving, avoids stagnation. The rebel pricks the conscience of the nation by publicizing racial discrimination, the degradation of poverty and so on. Thus he promotes tolerance, keeps love and compassion alive.

The conformist? His personal life is his main concern, the job, snowmobile, the cottage. He may complain bitterly about injustice but does nothing. Calls to "rise up in outrage" against pollution and other evils, are mostly met with apathy and silence. Sometimes he even boasts, "I keep out of things." Asked to join and support a good cause he may say "I'm not a joiner." He is likely to call the rebel a troublemaker.

But surely the conformist is the troublemaker, the foe of progress. By ignoring and accepting society's wrongs, he perpetuates them. It is he who keeps the unjust society and he paves the way for revolt.

Ivan the Terrible, Czar of Muscovy, was born 441 years ago — he united Russia and succeeded to the throne when he was three. During his teens he was walled away from the council of noblemen and became the first Russian ruler to use the title of czar. Ivan laid the foundations of the modern Russian state. After a decade of impressive conquest but from 1560 onwards his morbid fears of treachery opened the door to mass murder and destruction. He razed Great Novgorod, second city of the kingdom, on an accusation of one councillor. At age 50 he killed his only son and heir in a fit of rage and the throne passed to the Romanov family at his death in 1584.

Making A Point

Emphasizing a point during group discussions being held during Orientation Week for staff of Bayside Secondary School is history teacher Peter Van Huizen while physical education instructor Susan Bowman listens.

Bayside Staff Back in Class

"It will be a people's school," Clifford Dell, house master for the new Bayside Secondary School scheduled to open its doors next January to an expected 750 students, asserted to a gathering of the school's teaching staff Monday as the first day of Orientation Week held at Centennial Secondary School was completed.

"As such, there will be no classrooms in the new school, and both the teachers and students will be directly involved in the government. We will still have discipline and certain rules and regulations, but the boundaries of restraint as in the traditional schools will be greatly loosened," Mr. Dell added.

Although the new Bayside facility will not be completed until the beginning of next year, students will use the classrooms and laboratories of Trenton Secondary School on three days of the week while scheduling field trips, intensive personal tutoring for below - average students and group discussions for the remainder of the school week.

Hastings County Board of Education reportedly handpicked the new teaching staff with the average age of instructors being well below 30. The thinking was to ascertain that the ideas and motivation guiding the curriculum would be fresh and different to the traditional method.

Students will be following a four-day cycle timetable, in which periods will be divided into 50 minutes each.

"This way, a teacher can see his students three times during the four days, for a total of 150 minutes. Each subject will be treated identically, with each receiving an equal amount of time," Mr. Dell explained.

A student will have a wider range of options to choose from. "This system is just a step away from the modular timetable, but we feel with the open concept of the Bayside school, the four-day cycle will be the most beneficial?" Peter Van Huizen, a first-year teacher who just graduated from Queen's University who will specialize in history, added.

The five-day program this week will concentrate on creating a new environment for Bayside and having specialists explain the ideas and philosophy of the school's curriculum and government.

Yesterday, David Bell, the vice-principal who transferred from Trenton Secondary School, reviewed the immediate problems that must be solved if the new open school concept at Bayside is to succeed. The concept involves the elimination of static classrooms, and providing open areas for each discipline.

The school has been constructed with as few walls as possible with vision barriers being available if certain sections of a complex needed to be closed off.

Linton Reed, the principal at Bayside, commented during a lecture to the teaching staff that the aim of the orientation week was to familiarize the staff with each other and the new concept.

"We must make this thing work. It will take leadership from all of us to put this into operation, to make it come alive, and only an understanding of ourselves and the school will help us to overcome the expected problems that will face us in our first year," he stated.

Tuesday, Professor D. Muscella, from the department of education, outlined the implications of the open concept. He reviewed the discussion groups' conclusions and believed that the frank opinions expressed by many of the teachers were healthy, although some of the methods offered for consideration were different from the traditional.

Some of the conclusions reached from Monday's group discussions were the consideration of student self-evaluation, voluntary absenteeism in senior grades and the belief that the curriculum should only be used as a guide, not as the bible of instruction.

Wednesday, Mrs. L. Seppanen, psychologist, was to review the mental health of both teachers and students, stressing that it is not necessarily the student's or teacher's fault for, inefficiency or failing grades in school.

Mrs. B. Simonato, an elementary school teacher, is to outline the practical approach to grouping in classrooms, stressing that the best philosophy is to have classes in as small numbers as possible. Robert Wylie, co-ordinator of instructional media, will point out the advantages, and sometimes disadvantages, of audio visual training.

The last day of the program on Friday will review the week's progress and outline some of the practical problems expected this year.

One of the new systems to be employed in the governing at Bayside will be the creation of a house system whereby the students will be divided into groups to be known as houses, as is prevalent in colleges and in the school system in England.

Each house will then be divided into homes. Some 140 to 160 students will comprise each house, while each individual house will be subdivided into seven units, known as homes.

"Because of the busing of the vast majority of students, and the necessity of grouping large numbers of students to justify the vast resources available at Bayside or at any other secondary school, each student tends to be alienated from students of other grades or levels. This way, students can hope to know more people, and it will help destroy the alienation present in many schools today," Mr. Dell explained.

Bayside Secondary School will be unique, and while the staff is busy preparing for its opening, the real test will come when students actually participate.

Then, it will be realized if it's truly a people's school.

Peach Melba Is Tasty Dessert

By MARY MOORE

A dessert that has captured the fancy of chefs is Peach Melba and I have given you the recipe for it at least twice.

Something equally sensational and flavorful is Fruit Ango which features fruits that are in season now: pears and peaches or nectarines.

My assignment was to bring dessert to a dinner party for five at my sisters' home for guests that are noted for their culinary skill. When my dessert was served questions were "What's in the sauce?" "How did you get this lovely color?" I answered them as I am describing it to you.

FRUIT ANGO (Serves 5)

Grated rind 1 med. orange
1 tsp. corn starch
1-3 cup granulated sugar
¼ tsp. ground ginger
½ cup orange juice
2 tbsps. butter
2 tsps. Angostura bitters
5 ripe pear halves, poached and cored (or drained canned pear halves)
2 halves fresh stoned nectarines or peaches (or drained canned peach or apricot halves)
1 pt. rich strawberry or vanilla ice cream)

In a medium size saucepan combine the orange rind, corn starch, sugar and ginger until blended. Stir in the orange juice, butter and bitters and cook, stirring, until boiling. Turn off heat, add pear and nectarine or peach or apricot halves, cover, and let stand until cooled down.

At serving time spoon generous scoops of rich ice cream into each of five stemmed individual comports. Place half pear and half nectarine or peach or apricot at each side over ice cream. Spoon sauce generously over each serving.

NOTE: 1) We served this with thin slices of a summer fruit cake that I made, recipe for which will appear here tomorrow. 2) Clip the above beauty for your guest dessert file.

Entertainment Ideas Involving Oldsters

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Our Friendship Club is planning a series of picnics for the residents at our lodge for seniors. We are running out of ideas for entertainment. Could you give us a helping hand? We have to cope with the handicapped and semi-handicapped as well as those who are fairly independent.

They are such lovely people and do love a picnic or a party.

Any assistance would be most appreciated — preferably the type where they participate. — President.

Dear President: Eve Henderson was a whiz with senior citizens, organizing a number of clubs for them in Edmonton. She wrote us an article entitled "Tips In Organizing Friendship Clubs" which is full of good ideas and an assortment of games.

Then, of course, we have our own List of Skits and Games, from which to select. Several of the skits would be a heap of fun for the lodge members to practise and put on. For yours enclose 20 cents and stamped envelope. I'm sending both Tips and List.

* * *

Dear Doris: I used to think my brother's boy friend liked me but I don't know for sure. He used to compliment me on my cooking and in general have a lot of fun.

One night he was supposed to meet me at the community dance. My brother dropped me off at the dance but I never saw this guy. My brother explained later that he couldn't pay his way in because he had trouble with the car and was broke from paying for the repairs.

Ever since that night it's been different. He seems to go out of his way to avoid me. He knows that I'm not mad about the dance because my brother told him.

How can I find out what is wrong? — Lonesome

Dear Lonesome: Can you imagine what it feels like to be a boy and not be independent? Our Canadian style of life promotes the idea that men take the lead, pay the shot, act the master.

It is easier for this nice boy the embarrassment of having let you down because he is to avoid you than face up to was broke.

If you want him back enough, plan a party around the idea. Get your brother to bring him, and have two or three other couples. All you need is a stack of records, a record player and a living room the size of a pocket handkerchief. And an okay from your parents—with perhaps a little help in stocking the refrigerator for an onslaught.

Dear Doris: Such an understanding letter! You know exactly my situation. Some time I may let my husband read your letter — although I should be giving it to his father to read.

He is just a little boy in his parents' eyes and has never been allowed to branch out for himself.

I will help our children, when they are old enough, to take off on their own. But I will never try and run their lives. — Broken Hearted

Dear Broken Hearted: By all means show his father my letter, but don't expect too much. Your husband is one who has to break the apron strings this time — and this will hurt those people who have mistakenly done too much for him.

Yet they will learn to live with it; and this is the only way you can get the emancipation you need to raise an emotionally happy household. Remote parental control just doesn't work.

Putting it down on paper helps — in a letter to Doris, who is a Canadian journalist with a master's degree in social work.

Child's Punishment Resented by Father

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I and my mother-in-law are having a three-way fight, with the two of them on one side and me on the other. It's about our three-year-old daughter.

Susie has been a thumb-sucker since she was an infant. This drives my mother-in-law crazy. She says it will ruin the child's teeth and we should not allow it. Last week Grandma had Suzie for the day. When we went to get her we found Suzie sitting in a chair, her hands tied behind her back with a dish towel. Suzie's face was red from crying and she had perspired so much her hair was soaking wet. When I saw this I blew my stack and told off my mother-in-law. She said she had warned Suzie that if she caught her with her thumb in her mouth one more time she'd be punished. My wife got mad at me and sided with my mother-in-law. She said she'd welcome anything that would break the child of thumb-sucking and saw nothing wrong with what her mother had done.

I am writing to you because I know my wife and my mother-in-law read your column and they respect you — when you agree with them, that is. Please give up your opinion. — MINORITY OF ONE.

DEAR R.: No one I know in the field of behavorial sciences approves of tying a child's hands to stop thumb-sucking. The experts say there should be no attempt to shame or punish. The best approach to thumb-sucking is to recognize it for what it is — a source of comfort to an insecure child.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to congratulate you on your advice to the mother with the super-smart daughter whose teacher felt she should be skipped for the second time in five years. (She would have graduated from high school at 15.)

I, too, was a precocious child, advanced two grades and graduated from high school at 15. No one ever saw an uglier duckling. My classmates considered me a baby. I had no dates and was too shy to become involved in school activities. I spent every waking hour studying. I grew to loathe school and refused to go to college.

My parents should not have permitted the grade skipping. They should have insisted instead, that I take extra courses for intellectual stimulation. Our own two daughters are precocious also but I would not allow them to be skipped. They are both much happier and better adjusted teen-agers than I was. — DRAINED BRAIN.

DEAR BRAIN: I received dozens of letters from parents expressing this point of view . . . and not one letter supporting the opposite position. Thanks for taking the time to give us the benefit of your experience.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teen-ager who is having trouble with my folks on account of drugs. I am not on anything. When I started high school two years ago I made up my mind not to get messed up with any of that stuff. I saw too many cats in trouble because they were chicken and said "yes" instead of "no."

My parents read everything they can get their hands on about teen-agers and drugs. Every time I turn around they question me. Last night: "Your pupils are dilated. What have you been taking?" Last week: "What are those marks on your arms?" (They were mosquito bites.) Tonight: "You look very happy. Are you high on something?"

Please, Ann, tell parents not to do this to their kids. It makes them feel not trusted and it's a drag to be on the defensive all the time. — HONOR BRIGHT.

DEAR H.B.: You told them — and better than I could have. Thanks a lot.

The Experts Say

Babysitting Business Taken More Seriously

TORONTO (CP) — Babysitting is a business that, more and more, sitters and parents are taking seriously. There are common sense rules to help prevent emergencies or make them manageable.

There are courses for sitters to take that teach a bit of child care, a lot of what to do when. The Canada Safety Council and Ontario Safety League have developed a course and materials are available to interested groups and teachers. It includes a student information guide.

The guide tells sitters their job begins before the parents leave.

They should be sure to have an address and phone number where the parents can be reached or the phone number of a relative or neighbor. They should also have a list of numbers for the nearest hospital, police department and doctor.

In rural areas, because of distances involved, the procedure should be altered to be suitable.

The sitter should write down the address of the home in which she is working so she can give directions if necessary.

She should be told the children's schedules and whether they are likely to wake up or be nervous.

She should be told of any known dangers around the house, a steep stairway, a broken step, frayed wiring, a nearby stream.

She should have instructions about the family pets and their schedules and habits.

She should know the location of the children's rooms, kitchen utensils, diapers, bedding, first-aid materials and exits.

She should know about what time to expect the parents home. If they are going to be very late, they should phone to say so.

She should know about any phone calls or visitors that might be expected, and be told what to do about them.

The guide tells sitters never to let anyone in the house who is not expected, and to keep outside doors locked.

They should be sure their own parents know where they are sitting.

They should leave the phone lines open.

They are warned against advertising services on bulletin boards. The best employers are people who supply references or are known to the sitter.

Child-care rules vary with the age of the child, but the guide tells sitters to be safety conscious, always with the child's age in mind.

It says a sitter should refuse to bathe an infant under two years because the hazards are too great.

At any age, the parents' rules must be obeyed. If the children are school age, it might be easier for the sitter if children hear their parents tell her what the rules are.

It says sitters should never administer punishment or use force unless it is to stop a child from hurting himself, for instance, from running into the street. Children are more likely to co-operate if they are active and amused then if they are bored and left to their own devices. A sitter should be prepared to play with them, read to them.

At almost any age, the best pre-sleep games for children are quiet, relaxing ones.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Although we have lived in the Belleville area for some years, we have never explored much of Prince Edward County. We now are having some friends come to visit us and they say that they are particularly interested in seeing "Quinte Isle". Can you make any suggestion about a good way of doing this? Incidentally, is Prince Edward County really an "Isle"?

ANSWER: To answer your last question first, yes, the County is an island, though man-made. The Murray Canal at Carrying Place was constructed across the neck of land that originally joined the County to the mainland. This canal is one of the links in the Trent - Severn Waterway System and provides a short-cut between the mouth of the Trent River and the open Lake Ontario for pleasure craft.

As is so often the case, we are inclined to travel miles away from home to see places of interest or beauty, completely ignoring that which is right on our doorstep.

A suggested trip, which, done in a leisurely manner, will provide a pretty complete conception of the varied aspects and charm of the County, is one that more or less circumnavigates it by road.

From Belleville, take the Highway 14 Causeway across the Bay to Reissmore. From there, follow the Bay shore west to County Road 3 through Rednersville to Carrying Place with the view on the way, from the top of Ondercliff Hill, looking north across the Bay and up the Trent Valley.

At Carrying Place, take Hwy. 33 south, rounding the head of Weller's Bay to the village of Consecon. A side trip at this point can be achieved, taking the road east from the north end of Consecon Village along the north shore of Consecon Lake. By keeping to your right, you swing around the east end of the Lake and on to County Road 1 along the south shore back to Highway 33 at Consecon Village.

Take Highway 33 south past Pleasant Bay, through the villages of Hillier and Rose Hall, and along the Lake Ontario shore, with a view to the southeast of the Sandbanks area, into Wellington. Here, a visit to the Wellington Historical Miseum, located on Main Street in what was formerly a Society of Friends (Quaker) Meeting House, is well worthwhile.

From Wellington, continue east on Highway 33 to Bloomfield, and here, take County Road 12 south, past West Lake to the entrance to the Sand banks Provincial Park. Turn left at this point (a four-way stop intersection) and follow along the shore to the junction of County Road 18, turning right on it, past the entrance to Outlet Provincial Park and up the east side of East Lake to the village of Cherry Valley. Here, take County Road 10 east to the village of Milford and, from there south on County Road 9 to South Bay.

At this point, a very worthwhile jaunt is to carry on east along Road 9, through the village of South Bay, along the Prince Edward Bay shore of Long Point to the southeastermost tip of Prince Edward at Point Traverse. This does mean back-tracking as far as South Bay, but the variety of view makes up for having to cover the same ground.

A pause at South Bay to investigate the Mariners' Memorial Lighthouse Museum can be rewarding before continuing north on County Road 13 past the Black River Cheese factory, up the beautifully wooded hill and along the ridge with its magnificent view over Smith's Bay to the junction with County Road 3.

Continuing east on County Road 8, you go through the village of Waupoos, along the shore of Prince Edward Bay and, finally, across to Prinyer's Cove. On the way, you can visit the Waupoos Marysburg Museum at Waupoos, ton.

From Prinyer's Cove, County Road 7 will take you west along the shore of the Adolphus Reach to the Lake-on-the-Mountain and Glenora, at which point you pick up Highway 33 into the town of Picton.

At Picton, take Highway 49 north along the high shore of Picton Bay and Hayward Reach with superb views across to the Hay Bay area. By taking County Road 13, you can continue along the shore of the Reach rather than cutting inland on the Highway. This County Road will take you under the Highway bridge and along the shore of the Bay of Quinte through Northport to Demorestville.

From there, follow County Road 14 west to its junction with Highway 14. Turn north on Highway 14 past Mountain View Airfield and on to Rossmore and Belleville.

To complete your tour of museums in the County, a short side trip on this last leg of your route will take you to the Ameliasburg Museum. By turning west off Hwy. 14 onto CountyRoad 2 about two miles after passing Mountain View Airport, following this road to its junction with County Road 19 and then on 19 to Ameliasburg you will come to the Museum located in a former church building in the village.

From Ameliasburg you can either retrace your route to Highway 14 at Mountain View, and so into Belleville, or take County Road 23 to Redersville and 3 east along the shore to Rossmore.

Canada May End Role in NORAD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has left open the possibility it will terminate its partnership with the United States in the North American Air Defence Command when the current NORAD agreement expires in 1973.

In a white paper on defence, the government expressed strong doubts about the usefulness of an anti-bomber defence system in the era of the intercontinental ballistic missile.

The diminished threat from Soviet manned bombers, as seen here, formed the basis of a decision announced in the white paper to retire Canada's Two squadrons of Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles.

The time has passed, said the policy document, "when a full, active anti-bomber defence is essential for the protection of the U.S. deterrent capability."

The nuclear armed Bomarcs were installed in 1963 following a hotly contested national election campaign in which the issue of atomic weapons for Canadian armed forces played an important part.

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, who resisted purchase of nuclear warheads for weapons systems already purchased from the U.S., was thrown out of office in the election and his Conservative government replaced by a Liberal regime headed by Lester Pearson.

Now another Liberal administration — this one headed by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau — has decided to get rid of the Bomarcs.

Tuesday's white paper said the missiles were a "relatively important contribution" when a full anti-bomber defence existed to defend urban industrial targets and protect the U.S. bomber force which largely constituted the West's deterrent against surprise Soviet attack.

The Soviet Union's deployment of a missile force numbering thousands of weapons "has altered considerably the strategic situation," said the white paper.

Noting that the NORAD agreement, originally negotiated in 1958 and extended once, will be up for renewal two years hence, the white paper says:

"The policy of the government at that time with respect to the agreement and the interceptor force posture required will depend upon the strategic situation extant, including progress in SALT."

The letters stand for Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, currently under way between the U.S. and Russia with the object of curbing the growth of the super powers' defensive and offensive nuclear weapons stocks.

"The Canadian government is not therefore prepared to devote substantial sums to new equipment or facilities for use only for active anti-bomber defences in the future," said the policy paper.

Unless the strategic situation changes, the government intends to update its anti-bomber contribution only to the extent this is required for the general control of Canadian air space.

Dollar Status Is Not Clear

NEW YORK (AP) — Has the United States devalued the dollar?

The U.S. government says no. Foreigners are inclined to agree that the dollar hasn't been devalued but say it should be. And the foreign currency exchange markets have not rendered a conclusive answer.

Nevertheless, some observers and involved parties are saying openly that the dollar has been devalued. What's the difference, they say, if other currencies are forced to revalue or the dollar is devalued?

The distinctions aren't clear. In fact, it's largely a matter of formality. The U.S. hasn't officially devalued and isn't likely to do so despite growing pressures from abroad.

Officially, the only way the dollar can be devalued is to raise the price of gold from $35 an ounce. That was the price the U.S. guaranteed for the dollar: but that convertibility has been abrogated.

It means that for the time being, the U.S. declines to convert into gold dollars held by foreign central banks. Without this link, the dollar becomes what traders are willing to pay for it. It is floating.

In all probability this means that the value of some foreign currencies will rise in relation to the dollar. The feeling is that the ratios were out of proportion for years.

Confirmation of this, however, did not come from foreign exchange transactions in the first day of trading since the President Nixon's pronouncement Aug. 15. Little movement was noted, although the tempo picked up on the second day.

Monetary analysts feel that eventually—nobody seems to know when—the Japanese yen will rise by about 10 per cent, the German mark by a somewhat smaller percentage, the French franc by maybe three to five per cent and the British pound by one or two per cent at most.

If other currencies are therefore worth more in relation to the dollar, it has the same effect as a devaluation—but only in relation to certain currencies. It could develop that the dollar may rise in relation to other currencies, although certainly not those of major nations.

In his news conference Aug. 16, Treasury Secretary John Connally gave this explanation:

"Now in my own judgment, the dollar is going to rise vis-a-vis some currencies of the world. It may decline vis-a-vis other currencies in the world. But to say that it is a devaluation, I think, is a premature judgment."

The distinction is this: If the U.S. had raised the price of gold it would have meant that all currencies that are convertible into dollars would be worth more—because the U.S. would give more gold for them.

In using the tactic it did, the U.S. permitted itself to be selective. And it avoided the stigma that goes with outright devaluation, which usually is associated with failure.

The U.S. tactic was to toss the ball to the other nations and let them do something with it. They had been highly critical of the United States and had long been insisting that it take action.

The action they had in mind, however, was for the U.S. to restore the dollar's value by a harsh domestic program to reduce inflation.

Waffle Opposes Pleading

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Waffle group called Tuesday for a halt to Canadian government pilgrimages to Washington to seek special favors, saying Americans don't grant special treatment for free.

The Waffle, ultra-nationalist faction in the New Democratic Party, said in a statement that "yes-sirring" to Canada have brought with them increased dependency on Washington and a lessening ability to maintain an independent future."

It said there must never be another "pilgrimage" similar to the visit to Washington last week of a federal delegation headed by Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Dief Endorses End of Bomarc

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker and Conservative defence critic Michael Forrestall both supported the federal government Tuesday in its decision to do away with the Bomarc anti-missile system but Mr. Diefenbaker criticized the government for its "utter hypocrisy."

It was the so-called Bomarc crisis in 1961-62 that first caused a major rupture in the cabinet of the former prime minister after his government decided against arming the missiles with nuclear warheads.

"First the Liberals condemned us for bringing in the missiles. Then they condemned us for not arming them with nuclear warheads. Then they assumed office and armed them themselves. And now they are disarming them.

"What utter hypocrisy."

Mr. Forrestall said the system has served its purpose and should be done away with. He added that the changing nuclear threat meant the Bomarc would never be fired.

But the Halifax MP had criticism for the "lack of decision" on weaponry for the forces.

The total effect of the white paper was to lessen the importance of the armed forces, he said.

MAKES SENSE

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican has announced the theme for its fifth World Day of Peace next Jan. 1: "If you want peace, work for justice."

North Bay Mayor Dismayed

NORTH BAY (CP) — Mayor Merle Dickerson said Tuesday night he was shocked at the announcement earlier in the day that the Bomarc missile base here will be abandoned.

Mr. Dickerson, in a prepared statement, said "one year's notice is hardly sufficient time to add $1 million to the city's yearly economy which is being lost by the removal of the military and civilian personnel."

He said the federal government must have known of the intention to close the base for some time and city council should have been advised "so that we could have more time to seek other alternatives in order to fill the economic gap."

The decision was revealed in a white paper on defence. It said Canada will retire her two squadrons of Bomarc anti-aircraft missiles but continue use of nuclear-equipped interceptor aircraft for North American air defence.

Earlier Tuesday, Maj. George Lowes, forces information officer here, said only a small number of support trades personnel will remain after 446 (SAM) Squadron is phased out in Sept. 1972.

The other squadron is located at La Macaza, Que.

There are 170 military personnel and 14 civilian employees attached to 446 Squadron.

Mayor Dickerson, Progressive Conservative candidate for Nipissing in the next provincial election, said he "sincerely regrets the decision by the Liberal government to abandon the Bomarc missile base."

He said the city's only immediate hope was that the 80 new homes to be built here under the National Housing Act will mean 80 new families moving here to expand existing air force facilities.

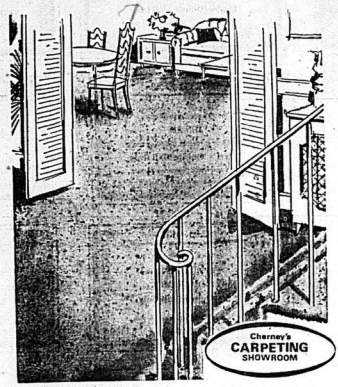
Population Control Considered

HAMILTON (CP) — Delegates from both underdeveloped and developed countries inched towards a common position on population control Tuesday at a three-hour work shop during the 1971 International Youth Conference on the Human Environment at McMaster University.

The mood of the workshop was exploratory rather than argumentative as about 10 delegates from Ghana, Kenya, India, Mauritius and several western countries agreed on the basic premise that population control has to be tackled now rather than in the distant future.

Suresh Fakun, a delegate from Mauritius, noted the difference in viewpoint on aid between developed and underdeveloped nations.

"In developing nations even large-scale developments may be taking place that would not significantly cause any influence in the standard of living because of the exploding rate of population growth.



"That is the main point we are trying to get across to our friends from the developed countries."

The only thing the delegates from east and west agreed on was that birth control should be voluntary.

Taboos and traditions in underdeveloped lands were one of the obstacles to an easy spread of birth control information.

John Danquah, delegate from Ghana, said that among the tribes of his country having many children was a mark of respect and prestige.

Boyhood Curiosity Made Quebec Farmer Into Expert on Birds

KAMOURASKA, Que. (CP) — Young Willie Labrie, wondering what makes birds fly, caught a sparrow and kept it in a cage for three days to study it.

And, when he had found out all he could about the sparrow, he released it and caught another songbird which he kept for a few days.

That was back in 1898.

Today, Willie Labrie is an 81-year-old retired farmer still living in this lower St. Lawrence River village, about 120 miles northeast of Quebec City, and he owns one of the most unusual natural history museums in North America.

Mr. Labrie has a collection of more than 600 different kinds of stuffed birds, which he keeps in a small two-room plywood cabin —Le Majoir des Oiseaux—next to the farmhouse where he has spent his entire life.

In 1933, Willie, then in his 30s, decided that the only way to study birds was to collect and stuff them.

"I had no experience and there was no one in Kamouraska who could teach me how to stuff a bird. And I had no tools. The first bird I stuffed was a sparrow and I did it using a penknife and a pair of wire cutters."

Then he developed his own taxidermy techniques and added tools of his own making.

After Mr. Labrie had collected all the species of birds that could be found in his area, he got in touch with a Dutch-man who had been in South America and in Indochina. He was a collector and wanted specimens of Canadian winter birds. "I wanted tropical birds, so we traded."

The trades enabled him to study birds of paradise, parrots and just about every kind of bird found in Brazil, Peru and Colombia.

Shortly after an operation later for cataracts, one of his friends sent him a beautiful bald eagle specimen.

"I was so excited that I decided to stuff it immediately.

"I worked day and night for almost a week and all the time my family kept saying 'Willie, stop or you will go blind.'

"I nearly went blind, but there it is, the prize of my collection," he said pointing to the stately eagle staring proudly from its glass case.

Today, although blind in one eye and unable to work on small specimens, Mr. Labrie remains passionately interested in birds.

Mr. Labrie is willing to sell his collection to a university or museum so that others can share the knowledge he has accumulated.

"I have learned a great deal about birds and I am sure others could as well. . . . Still maybe I would keep a dozen of my favorite specimens. It wouldn't harm the collection. . . .

"It's just that I don't think I could die without some of my birds here."

Scotland Yard Asks Tougher Prison Terms

LONDON (CP) — The shooting death of a British police superintendent has led to a sharp public dispute over measures to deal with the country's rapidly-increasing rate of violent crime.

At the centre of the developing controversy is a demand by senior Scotland Yard officers for longer prison sentences and tougher methods of punishment to deter hardened criminals.

The demand has been met by silence from the government and outraged denunciation from civil rights groups and several newspaper commentators.

Some observers have suggested Britain's unarmed police may have to begin carrying guns but this idea appears to be repugnant to Scotland Yard, the government and most of the public.

The violent crime rate climbed by five per cent in the first half of this year after a 5.3-per-cent increase in 1970 and a startling 28.9-per-cent leap in 1969.

The current debate was provoked by the shooting earlier this week in Blackpool of Supt. Gerald Richardson and two other officers who tried to arrest several men caught robbing a jewelry store.

Richardson died shortly after being shot in the stomach but his two subordinates are reported in satisfactory condition.

Public concern was heightened by subsequent comments from two senior Scotland Yard officers, criticizing Parliament, the courts and the government for being too lenient with dangerous criminals.

In an interview with The Times, the two officers said only longer sentences and tough, though humane, prison treatment will discourage crimes of violence. Britain has abolished capital punishment.

The influential Police Federation, the police union, quickly endorsed the officers' view.

Reginald Gale, federation chairman, said in a television interview Tuesday:

"I would go along with a basic diet, a bare cell, a hard bed and something to keep them (violent criminals) warm. Anything more they should have to earn.

"An awful lot of people don't listen to the collective opinion of . . . policemen. They support the do-gooders. A little less emotionalism might help."

But the National Council of Civil Liberties replied:

"Of course there is a serious crime rate. But it is not a problem which can be solved by putting the clock back 150 years."

A senior Scotland Yard spokesman said in a recent interview there have also been many suggestions that British police should begin carrying guns.

If such a decision was taken, he said, at least 75 per cent of the current force would resign

Sydney J. Harris Says

Non-violent Need Courage

The forces demanding basic change in America today — ranging from the reformists through the radical to the revolutionary — may be roughly divided into those camps that condone violence and those that condemn it.

In the running argument between the two, the violents are often insulting and contemptuous, accusing the non-violents of being "less militant" than themselves, or even of being "cowardly."

This a false and short-sighted view. I don't expect the pro-violents to take my word for it, but I would like to quote from a man they respect, whose courage and dedication they can't doubt for a moment.

Cesar Chavez, the farm labor leader, made this observation not long ago, in a statement to the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions:

"I don't subscribe to the belief that non-violence is cowardice, as some militant groups are saying. In some instances, non - violence requires more militancy than violence. Non - violence forces you to abandon the shortcut in trying to make a change in the social order.

"Violence, the shortcut, is the trap people fall into when they begin to feel that is the only way to achieve their goal . . . When these people turn to violence, it is a very savage kind."

Then he goes on to explain:

"When people are involved in something constructive, trying to bring about change, they tend to be less violent than those who are not engaged in rebuilding or in anything creative. Non - violence forces one to be creative; it forces any leader to go to the people and get them involved so that they come forth with new ideas.

"I think that once people understand the strength of non - violence the force it generates, the love it creates, the response that it brings from the total community they will not be willing to abandon it easily."

Most of us fail to understand the difference between "force" and "violence." Force is often necessary to achieve social change, but the most effective force is the kind of "non-violent resistance" practiced by Gandhi. His resistance was non - injurious to the public, was motivated by love and compassion for his fellow - men, and thus exerted a tremendous social, moral and psychic force that not all the British troops could overcome.

The love of power can be combated only with the power of love. Resistance to injustice, if successful, ends only in the opposite kind of injustice if hate and hostility are the motivating forces. By violence — we become the fine mirror - image of our enemies.

Wells Will Look Into Children's Aid Societies Operation

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Wells, Ontario minister of social and family services, said Tuesday he would look at the operation of children's aid societies in the province.

He made the comment after the Ontario Municipal Association supported a report recommending that a major portion of the work of children's aid societies should be redistributed between the provincial and municipal governments.

The report recommended the province assume responsibility for work done by the societies in the areas of wardship and adoption. It said family counselling services should be transferred to municipal social services departments.

Mr. Wells said the OMA is suggesting a significant change in the operation of children's aid. He said he wants to be sure, in examining the proposal, that Ontario has the best system to provide the highest quality of services to children.

The report to the association was prepared by Morris Fraser, acting director of social services, regional municipality of Niagara; Murray Smith, director of social services, Essex County; and Terry Stewart, welfare administrator, Algoma.

Mr. Fraser said Tuesday it was not intended that children's aid societies should be abolished.

The report suggested that the societies could continue actual supervision after children had been made wards, although the board of directors for the agencies should be abolished.

A number of civic leaders have claimed that municipalities have lost power to control agencies' spending.

The report said the present societies "are not representative of the people, and they are spending the taxpayer's dollars with boards that are elected by memberships sold for $2."

"There is very little representation by individuals who are elected to public office."

Mr. Wells said the provincial advisory board on child welfare intends to look into certain administrative policies and procedures. Mr. Wells said this should result in improved budgeting and program planning for children's aid societies.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
- Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

(Faith is a powerful antidote against illness. Keep repeating — and believing — "I will get well." If you believe, you help your doctor and yourself.)

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have three sons whose lives are bugged by the nemesis known as acne. They are 14, 16 and 18. Three more unhappy boys you have never seen. They mope around, immediately skip home from school. They don't take part in any sports, debating societies, school clubs or dances.

As we figure there isn't much to do for acne, we haven't taken them to our doctor. All we ask them to do is keep washing their faces to keep excess oil off. Is it time to see a doctor? They've upset us as well as themselves. — Mrs. C.

• • •

COMMENT: Wouldn't you say they have good reason to mope? Inaction on your part as a parent simply spells out lack of sympathy and understanding of their dilemma. All they can do is crawl into their shells — without hope that they will ever get over what so many youngsters consider is a "curse."

Yes, it is time to see a dermatologist (skin specialist Give them the benefit of your aroused concern about them. You will find there will be less moping and unhappiness around the house.

The doctor will prescribe the necessary local treatments, such as special brands of soap that may be necessary to decrease oiliness, salves and ointments. Diet sometimes helps. But the greatest morsale - builder of all is frontal attack on any acne scars and "big pimples" that do not go away.

We call this "dermabrasion." It consists of planing down the upper layer of the skin. It works best in light complexioned youngsters. The specialist sprays the face with a freezing solution that anesthetizes the face and makes it rigid. Then he planes the acne pimples and scars. Not only does it help the present and past results of acne, but may prevent future outbreaks by decreasing sebaceous gland production which clogs up the pores and produces pimples.

• • •

Acne begins to plague some youngsters as early as 11 or 12. I affects anywhere from 50 to 90 per cent of teenagers, with boys outnumbering the girls suffering from it. But too many get "acne vulgaris" — a horrible designation, in which pustules, cysts and angry pimples not only attack the face, but the shoulders, neck and chest.

As I keep saying to parents? Acne is no joke. For many unhappy youngsters it is a tragedy which they think will never end. It is up to sympathetic parents and physicians to give them all the comfort and hope they deserve.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have had bad sciatica down my right leg for the past few months. I am in the habit of taking one ounce of bourbon before dinner. My wife tells me that she thinks it is the liquor that is causing my trouble. I have never taken more than an ounce a day in all my life. I am 52 now, so I doubt that I will ever become an alcoholic. Do you think the liquor is bad for my sciatica? — Mr. E.

COMMENT: I am presuming that you have not seen a doctor for your sciatica, as he would have been glad to answer your question about liquor aggravating it. So my suggestion is this: Yor job is to let him determine the reason for your pain. Is it due to "disc trouble" in your spine, or to something else? Meanwhile, I see no reason why you cannot take your one-ounce highball before dinner.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

August 26, 1971

Your birthday today: Specialization is now your upward path now. You must select a definite line of action and more or less stick with improving your skills as you go. Social activity expands, bringing along with it a broader field for the pursuit of romantic and sentimental interests, with less pressure. Today's natives are astute people - watchers, but seldom say much about their keen observations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It's your energy that turns nearly all the wheels today. Accept the responsibility but make enough fuss about it to get credit, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Anything you do to reduce risks and costs is worthy of careful thought — what seems a minor economy may bring extensive repercussions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If you can get a vacation or holiday mood going early enough, the disparities and breaks of routines and old habits can be quite a circus of fun.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Personal relations are complex at best, particularly where deep emotional attachments exist. Assume the finest motives.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Somebody near you has the experience and wisdom to show you where to get hold of special opportunity in present circumstances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Nothing comes unearned these days. What you do get reflects what you've been projecting for several weeks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Those nearest you need and probably demand all your attention. Some of this corrects an imbalance and is overdue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Think before you move or react to provocation, as the problems possible are all complex, admitting of no simple solutions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good listening and the experience of your older fellow workers stand you in good stead. In purely creative endeavors, you're strictly on your own, as usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Property and personal interests come to sharp focus, and you possibly decide to go it alone on some long - term venture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): The needs of those near you tend to claim much of your time and attention. Family affairs are full of change, perhaps tension.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Economy backfires, as it so often does. Sharing of risk and know - how becomes more reasonable as experience teaches unevenly.

Bumper Barley Crop May Be Hard to Sell

EDMONTON (CP) — There is mounting concern across the Prairies that some of this year's expected bumper crop of barley will have to go at fire-sale prices or languish in storage bins.

The almost-daily changes in world production patterns and demand are playing hob with agricultural market forecasts made last year.

In 1970, a combination of circumstances, including s m a l l crops in the U.S. and Europe, were responsible for record Canadian barley exports and marketing experts cautiously urged Canadian farmers to increase production this year.

In the wake of vastly-reduced acreages generated in 1970 by the federal government's program to reduce wheat stocks, prairie farmers responded last spring by planting 51 per cent more barley.

Now indications are for a bumper yield from the increased acreage while production in other areas of the world also appears good—resulting in reduced demand for Canadian barley.

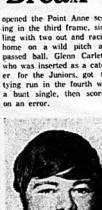
Juniors Break Through



Ted Waite and the Ellis Juniors knew the breaks had to come eventually but their big worry was when, as their semi - final Commercial Softball League series with Point Anne was on the verge of being over with the Pointers leading 3-0.

The Juniors finally had their chance in Tuesday night's fourth game when Waite's 20 strikeout performance helped the youngsters pull out a 3-2 win in ten innings.

In the first game of the playoff double-header at the Alemite, Rollin's Construction evened their series with Howard and Robert Printing at two games apiece by blanking the Printers 5-0.

Neil Goyer provided the Juniors with their first playoff win of the season, connecting for a hard grounder through shortstop in the bottom of the tenth and drove in John Campbell who had led off the inning with a single.

The run capped off the game which saw the Juniors come back twice to stave off elimination. Mike Cook had opened the Point Anne scoring in the third frame, singling with two out and racing home on a wild pitch and passed ball. Glenn Carleton who was inserted as a catcher for the Juniors, got the tying run in the fourth with a bunt single, then scoring on an error.

TED WAITE

Jamie Hunter who took over from Don Holoway on the Pointers' mound after seven appeared to win his own ball game with an eighth inning single in the top of the eighth, but two costly errors in the Juniors' half of the inning allowed Rick Graham to race home with the tying run.

Waite blew strikes past at least one batter every inning and fanned the side three times in recording his 20 killings. Campbell and Goyer were double hitters for the Juniors with two singles each. Waite, Carleton and John Sutherland each had singles and Brian Garinpy a fourth inning double for the winners.

Don Holoway started for the Cementmen lasting the regulation seven innings, striking out 10 and walking one before giving way to Hunter in the eighth. Hunter struck out two in taking the loss. Cook, Hunter and Rosebush had singles for the Pointers with Eric Maher hitting a double.

Joe Rollins' 5-0 win came behind the two-hit pitching of Scott Reid and the four-hit batting of Steve Ling.

Reid fanned nine and walked four in picking up the win, while Ling had a perfect night at the plate with four singles in four trips to the plate.

Rollins waited until the late innings to do their scoring pushing across one in the fifth, one in the sixth and three in the final frame. Consecutive singles by Wes May, Reid and Ling produced their first run while Wayne McTaggart's long fly scored Paul Goodfellow in the sixth. "Goodie" had doubled to open the inning. An error and singles from Ling, Goodfellow and McTaggart pushed the final three runs in.

Rob Ethier went the route for Howard and Roberts, giving up 11 hits and fanning six. Pug Kellar and Paul Stinson had singles for the Printers' only hits.

Next games in both Commercial League series will be this Thursday evening.

Pennant winning Weese's Flowers past performances mean very little in the playoffs and nothing at all to the Dairy Queen who outlasted the pennant-winners 20-11 to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five Ladies Softball League semi-final.

Marianne Sills pitched the victory for the Queens striking out two and walking five. Beth Palmer was a one woman disaster for Weese's as she smashed a home run and scored five times for the winners.

Next game in the series will be next Monday night at the Cheese Producer's Field.

Gold Medallists Galore

Cream of Crop at Cobourg Horse Show

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

To Sandra Jorgenson, attending the Cobourg Horse Show this weekend is merely a logical thing for any sports fan — not merely horse lovers — to do.

"If the Green Bay Packers were in Belleville, everybody'd be out to watch them and that's what's happening horse-wise this weekend in Cobourg," says Sandra, who with husband Ron is one of the busiest behind-the-scenes people involved with third annual revival of what was once billed as "the greatest event of its time ever held east of Toronto."

But the Carrying Place couple and other Cobourg Horse Show directors are not in the market for entries, as the original organizers of the first event were in 1905.

There are already about 400 horses lined up for the three-day event at the former army ordinance depot on D'Arcy St.

"We want the general public to come out. And I don't even care if they come Friday or Saturday — that's just another horse show," Mrs. Jorgenson says of the first two days of Arabian, English, and Western Division competitions that will attract such ardent equine hobbyists as those of this area's Quinte Western Horse Association and the Highlands of Hastings Pony Club.

No Obstacles For Elder at Jumpers' Sweepstake

TORONTO (CP) — Jim Elder of Aurora, Ont., took the opening class of the Canadian National Exhibition national horse show Tuesday when he won the 1,000 Jumper Sweepstake.

Riding Bill McLaughlan's Olympic champion The Immigrant, Elder navigated the 13 obstacle course without a knockdown.

Twenty-three Canadian horses entered the event but only nine reached the jump-off with a clean performance, including mounts ridden by Pan-Am medallists Tom Gayford of Gormley, Ont., and Barbara Simpson of Calgary.

aspect of the Cobourg Horse Show comes Sunday when some of the top equestrians in the world will jump off for top honors in the $5,000 Rothman's Grand Prix.

Before Canadian teams' electrifying final day gold medal win — Canada's only one of the 1968 Mexico City Olympics — names like Jim Elder or Torchy Millar were hardly of the household variety, even for the most avid sports fan.

But that gold medal, in addition to putting Canada on the world's equestrian map, has brought horse sport an unprecendented amount of attention in this country.

People like Sandra Jorgenson want to see some of that attention focussed on Cobourg Sunday, when Elder, Millar, Tom Gayford, and Barbara Simpson, who earlier this month won the Pan-American Games' team gold medal in Cali, Colombia, are among the field vying for the $5,000 jackpot.

"We had about 7,000 spectators over the three days last year — but we're hoping for many more than that," she says. "We're not just looking for the horse owners — they'll be there anyway. We want everyone to come out and see how exciting this can be."

A highlight of Sunday's big-name performances will be an intermission demonstration ride by Christelot Hanson, a double gold medallist at Cali in dressage, the first time Canadians attained such stature in international competition.

In all, Canada's equestrian team won 11 gold medals at this month's Pan-Am Games and the Cobourg Grand Prix marks their first official appearance since their return.

Altogether, some $13,000 will be at stake in the three-day show, which means some of the entrants will enjoy healthy prizes for their hobby; payDays that would no doubt even delight members of the Green Bay Packers.

How to Beat Blue? Easy: Just Be Perfect

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

To beat Vida Blue of Oakland Athletics it seems you've got to be just about perfect. And for six innings, Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees was.

The Yankees' big right-hander was absolutely perfect for 3 2-3 innings Tuesday night in Oakland and was still pitching no-hitter going into the seventh.

He had to settle for a three-hitter, though, while Blue, his dreams of a 30-victory season shattered, was saddled with his second successive four-bit, 1-0 loss. Gary Peters and Boston Red Sox did it to him only last Friday night.

"Where is everybody?" Stottlemyre mused as he stood virtually alone in front of his locker after the victory, his 13th in 24 decisions.

Most of the writers, it turned out, were clustered around Blue in the Athletics' clubhouse.

"Oh, well," Mel sighed. "I guess it's more rare for me to win a game than it is for him to lose one." The defeat was only the sixth for Oakland's 22-game winner.

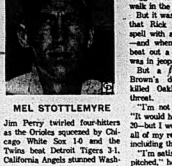
In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles' Mike Cuellar and Minnesota Twins' Jim Perry twirled four-hitters as the Orioles squeezed by Chicago White Sox 1-0 and the Twins beat Detroit Tigers 3-1, California Angels stunned Washington Senators 2-1, Milwaukee Brewers overhauled Cleveland Indians 6-5 and Kansas City Royals toppled Boston 5-4 in 13 innings.

The Yanks got their lone run in the first inning on Thurman Munson's one-out single, Roy White's double and Felipe Alou's infield out.

Stottlemyre, meanwhile, cut down the Athletics in order until Reggie Jackson drew a two-out walk in the fourth.

But it wasn't until the seventh that Rick Monday broke the spell with a leadoff bunt single —and when Dave Duncan also beat out a bunt, Mel's victory was in jeopardy.

But a forceout and Larry Brown's doubleplay grounder killed Oakland's only serious threat.



"I'm not crying," Blue said. "It would have been nice to win 30—but I would have had to win all of my remaining eight starts including this one.

"I'm satisfied with the game I pitched," he said, "I just didn't win."

Cuellar boosted his record to 16-8 with only his fourth victory in nine decisions since last month's all-star break. He got the only run he needed in the first inning as Don Buford walked, sped to third on Brooks Robinson's single and cruised home on a double by Merv Rettenmund.

The ace left-bander, out-duel ing Tom Bradley, allowed only two White Sox runners to reach second base and limited them to four singles.

Perry, last year's Cy Young Award winner, notched his 14th victory—but that only equalled his defeats this season. Cesar Tovar's two-bagger drove in the final run in the seventh.

Aaron Always Breaking Records

Just about every time Hank Aaron plays, it seems that he breaks a record.

Aaron, who passed Ty Cobb on the all-time list of total bases Monday, barged by Tris Speaker Tuesday night in career runs scored as he helped Atlanta Braves beat Pittsburgh Pirates 15-5.

"Records just mean that I've been playing a long time," said Aaron, whose 37th homer of the year produced his 1,882nd lifetime run and, placed him in sixth place.

"I said before the season I'd like to hit 40 homers," said Aaron, "but I probably should pass that now."

Does he think he can hit the 50-homer level, something he's never accomplished in his career?

"No, I have no ideas of 50," said Aaron.

Among his varied accomplishments since he joined the major leagues with the old Milwaukee Braves in 1954, the 47-year-old Aaron has hit 629 home runs.

That puts him in third place behind San Francisco's Willie Mays, who has 654, and Babe Ruth, who had 714.

Mike Lum and Marty Perez joined Aaron in their batting party that produced 21 safeties against the Pirates' shell shocked pitching staff. Lum drilled a three-run homer in the second inning and Perez belted a three-run blow in the third before Aaron unloaded in the fourth.

No 'Aloha' for Brockville

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Wahiawa, Hawaii, scored three runs in the first inning and was never headed Tuesday in a 3-2 Little League World Series opening round triumph over Brockville.

Taiwan won an easy 7-0 victory over Caguas, Puerto Rico, in the other first round contest.

Hawaii pitcher Aaron Lorenzo gave up five hits, struck out five and walked two in gaining the victory.

Brockville almost came from behind in the top of the final inning when Gerald Crooke, who had homered in the second inning, socked a long fly with one men on, but Hawaii centre fielder Sesley Sawai caught the ball just in front of the outfield wall, 200 feet from the plate.

Hawaii scored its first inning runs on consecutive singles by Rick Temita, Lorenzo, Blane Ah Quirs and Randy Kato, and a wild pitch with a man on third.

In the other game, Lee Wenzuei hit a three-run homer for Taiwan and pitcher Hsu Chin-mu threw a shutout against the Puerto Ricans.

Lee's home run came in the bottom of the third inning, with Taiwan already leading 1-0.

It was a perfect day at the bat for Lee, who, in addition to his homer, had a single, a walk and scored three runs.

Hsu struck out 14 batters and walked none and set down the side three times on strikes.

Greens Like Brown

OSHAWA (CP) — Dave Brown of Burnaby, B.C., moved to within one victory of the Canadian men's singles lawn bowling championships Tuesday as he ran his record to 5-0 in the seven-province competition.

Brown encountered stiff opposition from 25-year-old Gordon Law of Winnipeg before winning his sixth-round match 21-18.

The one player with a hope of catching Brown is Harry Figg of Edmonton who had a 4-1 record going into the final round.

In the pairs competition, Jim Watkin of London, Ont., had a 4-1 record and the lead going into the final round. Watkin and partner Bob McIntosh of Ailsa Craig, near London, meet J. G. Brodie and Bob Fender of Verdun, Que., in the final round.

Quebec had a 2-3 record after six rounds.

Watkin defeated John Dickie of Winnipeg 16-13 and Gerald Garroway of Halifax 20-15 Tuesday. Dickie, Garroway and Jim McGregor of Victoria had 3-2 records going into the final round.

In fours competition, Bert Leadbetter of Vancouver had a 5-0 record going into the final round.

Leadbetter defeated defending champion Jim Law of Preston, Ont., 15-12 in the fourth round and followed up with a 21-17 decision over John Henderson of Westmount, Que., and a 21-8 win against P. F. Wankling of Winnipeg.

Ontario rebounded from its loss to Leadbetter to beat Ernie Munro of Calgary 19-13 and run its record to 4-1 with one game remaining.

Singles and pairs winners together with skip and vice-skip of fours, will represent Canada in the world championships in Britain in 1972.

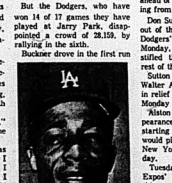
Davis' Imagination Vivid

MONTREAL (CP) — Los Angeles Dodgers' centre fielder Willie Davis used some imagination before Tuesday night's game with Montreal Expos and turned his thoughts into reality, leading the Dodgers to a 6-4 National League win.

Davis, who had been in a recent batting slump, went five-for-five, driving in three runs with a triple in the sixth inning, to help Al Downing win his 15th game in 23 decisions.

"I like that kind of night," said Davis. "It's better than the nights I have been having.



"I just imagined that I was going to have a good night. I just thought good thoughts. I imagined how I looked when I was getting hits. I knew I could do it, because I had done it before."

The Dodgers trailed 2-1 going into the top of the sixth. They had taken a 1-0 lead in the third when Bill Buckner scooted home on a throwing error by Rusty Staub but Montreal tied it in the bottom of the third when Bobby Wine came in on a wild pitch by Downing.

The Expos added a run in the fourth inning when Bob Bailey stroked a double for his 1,000th major league hit and Gary Sutherland brought him in with a well-executed squeeze bunt.

But the Dodgers, who have won 14 of 17 games they have played at Jarry Park, disappointed a crowd of 28,159, by rallying in the sixth.

Buckner drove in the first run after Tom Haller had singled, Downing had walked and Maury Wills singled to load the bases.

WILLIE DAVIS

Dan McGinn then came in to pitch for Montreal and Davis drilled his triple to left centre.

Davis later scored on a sacrifice fly by Jim Lefebvre.

The Expos' Ron Fairly socked his 13th homer of the season in the eighth, driving in Bailey ahead of him and driving Downing from the mound.

Don Sutton, who was knocked out of the second inning of the Dodgers' 12-6 loss to Montreal Monday, came in to relieve and stifled the Expos batters the rest of the way.

Sutton said he asked manager Walter Alston if he could pitch in relief to get some work after Monday night's game.

Alston said that Sutton's appearance would not affect his starting rotation and that Sutton would pitch against the Mets in New York, probably on Saturday.

Tuesday's crowd brought the Expos' attendance to 1,011,754 this season. It is the third time they have gone over the one million mark in attendance.

The crowd brought the Montreal's home season attendance to 1,011,754 for 55 games. They are 38,214 fans behind their pace of last year when they drew 1,424,683. In 1969, the Expos drew 1,212,608.

Mrs. Clarence Walker of Champlain, N.Y., was chosen as the millionth fan and was presented with a color television set.

Etcheverry Figures Wade Ready to Tangle with Ticats

HAMILTON (CP) — Sam Etcheverry, coach of Montreal Alouettes, thinks quarterback Sonny Wade now is ready to match wits with the defensive dozen of Hamilton Tiger-Cats in tonight's only Eastern Football Conference game.

"I think Sonny is the," said Etcheverry. "He's our first-string quarterback and I think he has to get a little work. He hasn't really played that much football."

Wade this year reported to Montreal only a few days before the opener against Saskatchewan Roughriders and rookie caller Jim Chaney earned the starting berth because Etcheverry feared Wade would be rusty.

Wade finally saw extended action two weeks ago against Toronto when the defending Grey Cup champions dropped a 26-14 decision to the Argos.

"I think coming off the bench had something to do with it," admitted Etcheverry. "Chaney started and got hurt, and Sonny wasn't really ready to go in."

Montreal, like the Ticats, are playing only their third regular-season game. Ottawa Rough Riders have five games under their belt, having lost three, while the Argos are undefeated after four starts. Hamilton also is unbeaten after two games, while Montreal has a 1-1 record.

"I don't like the long layoffs," said Hamilton coach Al Dorow. "It's no good going that long without bodily contact."

Because of their lack of action, neither team has a clearly-defined player priority list. Hamilton has been idle since Aug. 11 and Montreal since Aug. 12.

Dorow has had success in manipulating quarterbacks Joe Zuger and Wally Gabler. In their opening game, a 17-15 triumph over Edmonton Eskimos, it was Gabler who drove up the middle to score the winning points a few seconds before the final gun. Against Ottawa, Zuger came back to produce a 20-17 win.

Zuger is expected to get the call to start against the Als. Dorow is hoping that Zuger will make better use of veteran flanker Bobby Taylor who was picked up from the Argos at the start of the season after being released as a free agent.

While Zuger plays with Taylor, Wade will have several familiar faces to work with now that Bruce Van Ness has rejoined Moses Denson in the Alouette backfield.

Game time is 8 p.m. EDT and will be shown on CTV's eastern network.

Calgary Wins Fifth,

Stamp Defence Stumps Lions

CALGARY (CP) — The vaunted Calgary defence continued to click with machine-like precision Tuesday night in leading the Stampeders to a 32-1 decision over British Columbia Lions.

The win, Calgary's fifth in a row, left the Stampeders six points ahead of second-place B.C. and Saskatchewan Roughriders, deadlocked with four points each, two more than Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos.

The Calgary defensive unit now has grudgingly surrendered 22 points this season, an average of 4.4 points a game.

But, the Calgary offence hasn't exactly been dogging it either. They have run up a total of 129 points, best in the league, Tuesday night, merry Calgary touchdown resulted from defensive work.

Fullback Hugh McKinnis scored two touchdowns for the Stampeders and their quarter backs, Jerry Keeling and Jim Lindsey, added one apiece. Larry Robinson kicked three converts, a single and a field goal and punter Billy van Burkleo added a single.

HUGH McKINNIS

Ken Phillips scored the only Lions' point when his field goal attempt went wide in the third quarter.

There were an astonishing 13 turnovers in the game, nine by British Columbia and four by Calgary. The Lions gave up the ball five times on interceptions and four more times on fumbles. Calgary lost two fumbles and the B.C. defensive squad picked off two Stampeders passes.

Calgary churned out 307 yards rushing and 153 passing while substitute quarterback Paul Brothers, filling in for the injured Tom Wilkinson, directed an attack that gained 87 yards on the ground and 76 passing.

Calgary recorded 30 first downs to B.C's 10.

Individual Title at Stake

Ontario Team Wants One More

EDMONTON (CP) — Ontario, with the Canadian junior interprovincial team golf championship already under its belt, had high hopes today of taking the individual junior title... Adam Brown, 18, of Hamilton, who led the Ontario foursome to first place in the team matches Tuesday, said consistent play over the next four days and "a couple of putts" could give him the championship.

The Ontario team's win was its sixth since the interprovincial matches started in 1959. They finished the 36-hole tournament with a 593 total, 13 strokes ahead of British Columbia.

Brown fired a two-under-par 69 in the final round for a two-day total of 141—lowest of the 40 golfers. He had a one-under 34 on the front nine and a one-under 35 on the last leg.

Nova Scotia and Manitoba tied for third with 615, while Alberta, tied with Manitoba for third after the first round, slipped to fourth at 619.

Saskatchewan finished fifth with 620 and Quebec, last year's champions, managed sixth thanks to 18-year-old Daniel Talbot of Beloeil who fired a three-under-par 68, two strokes off the course record.

Prince Edward Island was seventh with 635 followed by New Brunswick, and Newfoundland with 639 and 675 respectively.

"I went into the team match with confidence," said Brown, who finished 10th in the individual championship last year.

"I just can't wait really."

Roughies Riding Ron's Sore Arm

His Saskatchewan Rough Riders have lost four games in six starts this year, twice as many losses as they recorded in the entire 1970 Western Conference schedule when they rolled to a 14-2 won-loss mark.

Setbacks through injuries and retirements have plagued the Saskatchewan club and Lancaster, with his ailing throwing arm, needs a big performance Friday night at home against Ottawa Rough Ridgers to reverse the trend.

Last year's winner of the C F L's outstanding-player award, Lancaster in six games has completed 70 of 143 passes for 9.1 yards and three touchdowns. He ranks second over-all in the WFC to Don Jonas of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Lancaster, with a big game against Ottawa, could vault back into serious contention as the West's top signal-caller and approach his seven-game performance of a year ago when he topped the conference passers en route to his outstanding season.

He has thrown a record 3,011 passes, completing 1,573 (57 short of Sam Etcheverry's record with Montreal Alouettes(for 24,942 yards (640 fewer than Etcheverry's).

His 178 touchdown passes are seven fewer than Ottawa's Russ Jackson threw.

One record Lancaster is not anxious to add to is the number of career interceptions, 214.

Farmers Could Make Ontario Anglers Happy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario is blessed with a good population of fish but the department of agriculture reports that the province could easily increase the numbers if farmers took advantage of ponds on their lands.

J. P. Mysilk, an agricultural engineering specialist with the department, said rainbow and speckled trout as well as small-mouth bass can be stocked providing certain conditions are met.

The stocking of rainbow trout has already proven successful in western provinces where farmers are supplying commercial markets.

Mr. Mysilk said in a news release that ponds with at least a quarter of an acre of surface can be used provided they reach temperature requirements.

Pond temperatures at the surface may reach 80 degrees but they may be 10 degrees lower on the bottom. Oxygen is another prerequisite.

"Speckled trout and rainbow trout are suitable for stocking farm ponds," said Mr. Mysilk. "The speckled trout is a better choice for small ponds but the rainbow can withstand slightly higher water temperatures.

"However, if the pond is not suitable for trout, it is still possible to have fish. Bass are able to live in higher water temperatures and do quite well in temperatures of 72 degrees, or slightly higher. Also, bass will reproduce in a pond, while trout are desirable but smaller ponds will not."

He advises anyone interested in stocking to contact the department of lands and forests for further information.

The department reports that fishing in Ontario last week was especially good for muskellunge. Several hunkers over 20 pounds were caught throughout the province.

Surtax Damage Bad As Feared

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cabinet meets again today on the export crisis caused by the U.S. import surcharge and is expected to bear down on Canada's bid for a general exemption from it.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson, after a four-hour cabinet committee meeting Tuesday, said the surcharge of up to 10 per cent extra on U.S. imports is just as damaging as the cabinet originally feared.

"We still want a full exemption," he said.

Canadian government officials are to meet their U.S. counterparts in Washington later in the week to reinforce Canada's bid with additional facts and figures. They may be given instructions by the cabinet to bear down.

Mr. Benson said Tuesday night he had not heard from U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally, to whom President Nixon gave general authority for carrying through the new economic policy. Mr. Benson and Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin called on Mr. Connally last Thursday seeking the exemption, and were promised sympathy and consideration.

Mr. Pepin's department now is co-ordinating complaints filed with several government departments by Canadian businessmen. The complaint bureau under R. G. Head, assistant deputy minister, will examine each complaint to see it is validly connected with the U.S. import surcharge.

This could have two purposes; To funnel information to Washington in support of Canada's bid for an exemption, and to lay the basis for relief action by the federal government if that becomes necessary.

Mr. Benson would not go into detail Tuesday on federal government plans should no general exemption be given by Washington. But he did say Canada "is a free country, and we can do almost anything we want."

A finance department source said, however, that there are no plans being made now for a fall budget. When Parliament resumes its session Sept. 7 it is scheduled to take up Mr. Benson's general revision of income tax law. A fall budget might be needed later to adjust federal finances to the impact of the new U.S. economic policies.

Ontario Awaiting Discussion

SARNIA (CP) — Premier William Davis said Tuesday Ontario will await the outcome of talks between Canada and the United States before taking any action on a 10-per-cent surcharge imposed on U.S. imports by President Richard Nixon.

"The province of Ontario is not going to move in advance of any discussions that are going on between the two federal governments," Mr. Davis told a news conference.

He said 23 to 28 per cent of Ontario's exports to the U.S., estimated at $5.3 billion, will be affected by the surcharge.

He was here to attend a Progressive Conservative nomination meeting.

Liberal Asserts Plan Lacking

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government has no policies to deal with the United States' 10-per-cent surcharge on exports, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Tuesday.

He also outlined to a Halton West Liberal Association nomination meeting his three-pronged program to deal with the situation he described as "disastrous."

Mr. Nixon said the Progressive Conservative government of Premier William Davis has failed Ontario businessmen.

"They have neither plan nor program, and the need for immediate action is paramount if Ontario is to escape unemployment this winter on a vast and crippling scale," he said.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I think I'll bid seven . . . that's my lucky number!"

Reserve Units To Be Maintained

OTTAWA (CP) — The armed forces' reserve contingents will be kept at present authorized strengths, says the government's white paper on defence policy.

The 21,800 soldiers, sailors and airmen get top marks in the document, which says the reserve plays a useful role in developing a pool of trained manpower for use in emergencies and in performing necessary functions in peacetime.

"The reserves provide trained officers and men for augmentation and reinforcement, and they have a particularly important role in internal security contingency plans."

The naval reserve provides a shipping control organization for use in emergency. The militia provides trained personnel for augmenting civil emergency operations. And the air reserve provides light, tactical air support.

The white paper says the reserves also contribute to our national life "by developing leaders among the young people of Canada. The reserve training program will continue, therefore, to emphasize citizenship and leadership training."

The defence department also says it wants to continue running the summer student training program, enlarging it if demand is high enough.

There were spots for 11,500 students in the summer program this year.

Education Authority Defends Training Surplus of Teachers

KIMBERLEY, Ont. (CP) — At least 50 per cent of the recent candidates for PhDs in Ontario were foreign students, deputy education minister E. E. Stewart said Tuesday.

He told 50 delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Teachers Federation that that was the big reason for the reductions in the incentives to graduate students.

The deputy minister said, in answer to a question, that there was no comparable reason for setting standards to reduce the surplus of students in teachers college "because 98 per cent of them were from Ontario."

Earlier Dr. Stewart said that a government survey showed up to one-third of the 5,500 graduates of teachers colleges in the province didn't get jobs this year.

But he said the government had no intention of setting new standards for teachers colleges to reduce the surplus.

He said, in the case of PhD studies, there were many positions open and it got to the point where universities were "literally scouring the student markets of the world for those who would fit in here."

Students entering teachers college know the risk of finding employment upon graduation, Dr. Stewart said.

He compared the situation with that facing lawyers, who, he said, may have been having trouble finding jobs, yet the applications in law schools in Ontario are higher than ever before."

He defended the department of education from criticism that it was wasting money by encouraging a teacher surplus while at the same time asking boards education to cut back on spen.

He said there were some advantages to the surplus.

"The standards will go up if the whole selection is tailored to the system of supply and demand. If the supply is greater than the demand," he said boards would have greater ranges of selection.

"For the first time in a long time school boards have a chance to make real quality judgements in the hiring of teachers.

"Secondly, the market place will do its own sorting out so there will be no need for artificial barriers."

He rejected an idea that teachers representatives and the department of education consult to set standards for teachers saying, "the idea bothers me."

Dr. Stewart said department of education surveys show that there are five elementary school teachers for every four high school teachers in the province, but that trend will reverse for a period and then swing back, so that by the end of the decade the ratio of elementary school teachers to secondary school teachers will be six to two.

There is little chance that the teaching profession will be given the responsibility of licensing its own members as is now done in other professions such as law, engineering and medicine, Dr. Stewart said.

"There has been some public criticism of that method now," he said, and added that the trend would probably be away from that area in the area of government control.

Defending the summer training program for teachers at a time when there was a teacher surplus, Dr. Stewart said 340 summer students at Lakehead University and 300 at McArthur College at Queen's University in Kingston all had teaching jobs.

"We don't have a perfect fit in Ontario," he said. "In some areas, the far North for instance, there is still a teacher shortage while there is a surplus in the south and urban areas."

Burgers international ...made at home!

Canadians probably serve hamburgers more often than any other meat dish. Here are six new, interesting ways to spark this great every-day meal with flavors from around the world.

It's easy! Start with 1½ lbs. of ground beef, add 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup cold water and mix lightly to combine. Now shape into 6 burgers, and you're ready to offer your choice of 6 international variations on the burger theme. Cooking tip: Broil or pan-fry burgers 4-5 minutes on each side for medium rare.

CHOW MEIN BURGER

BURGERMEISTER
Place cooked burger on toasted bun spread with mustard. Top with sauerkraut heated with caraway seeds for authentic flavor!

ENGLISH BURGER
Place cooked burger on toasted, buttered English muffin. Top with slice of grilled bacon or ham and crisp French fried onion rings.

Anti-combines Law Seen Restricting Regulating Big Firms

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian regulation of multi-national corporations is restricted by the legal requirement of treating monopolistic practices as criminal offences, an international conference on nationalism and the multi-national enterprise was told Tuesday.

Dr. H. W. Henry, director of investigations of the combines investigation branch in Ottawa, said that under the Canadian Combines Act "everything is either black or white."

He told the conference at McGill University that an illegal merger or monopoly had to be proved before Canada could take action against monopolistic practices by multi-national enterprises.

This was because the Combines Act is a criminal law.

Dr. Henry was speaking at a session of the conference devoted to anti-trust legislation, monopolies and mergers of multi-national corporations and control mechanisms provided by international law.

A United States expert said American laws dealing with trusts are more encompassing than Canadian laws although they are not always easy to enforce.

William Fugate of the foreign commerce section, anti-trust division, in Washington said the U.S. might exercise control over parent companies at home or tell such companies to take specific action with their subsidiaries abroad. The government had the power to order the parent company to sell foreign subsidiaries if all else failed.

Enforcement is not easy, Mr. Fugate said, in some cases the laws of both countries might apply to a certain case and might indicate different courses of action.

Dr. Henry said Canada is more inhibited than other countries in dealing with such legislation because most multi-national corporations here are foreign based whereas other countries have more domestic-based multi-national enterprises.

Because decisions made within the country are subject to legislation, he said, it is easier to regulate domestic companies.

Panellists from either countries spoke of difficulties encountered in dealing with multi-national corporations.

Dr. Kurt Markert of the German Commission on Restrictive Trade Practices said West Germany encountered difficulties in investigating the subsidiary of a Swiss-based corporation.

Documents requested by the German government were not provided by the company's head office in Switzerland, he said. The explanation given the Germans was that it is contrary to Swiss law to give out such information to foreign governments.

Paul Leleux, senior legal adviser to the Commission of European Communities, told of an incident in which a U.S.-based company tried unsuccessfully to prevent a French subsidiary from honoring a contract involving goods to be sold to China.

The Frachaut Corp. in France was told by its parent company to withdraw from a contract to build trailers which would end up in China, he said.

Since the order would mean bankruptcy for the subsidiary and a loss of jobs for Frenchmen, the French government ordered that the contract be honored.

Mr. Leleux said this was accomplished only after the subsidiary's three directors resigned and a "provisional government-appointed administrator" was sent in under French law to carry out the contract.

Two Soledad Brothers Say They Were Beaten

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stripping off their shirts in an effort to bolster charges that San Quentin prisoners are being beaten, the two surviving Soledad Brothers have demanded an independent investigation into the abortive escape try in which six men died.

The cuts and bruises the men claimed to have suffered were not readily visible to spectators in the courtroom where the incident took place.

In a tumultuous hearing Tuesday, a judge rejected pleas of lawyers for the Soledad Brothers that the court order black legislators a d m i t t e d to San Quentin "to see what is happening."

George Jackson, 29, the third of the Soledad Brothers, was shot and killed in last Saturday's escape a t t e m p t after three white guards and two white convicts were slain in the prison's maximum security adjustment center.

Jackson was held in the centre with John Clutchette, 28; and Fleeta Drumgo, 25, for trial on charges that they killed a white Soledad prison guard in January, 1970.

"If you don't act in some manner to get these men (black legislators and black community leaders) into that prison, you can blow this country so wide apart it will never be reconstructed," John Thorne of San Jose, Jackson's lawyer, told Superior Court Judge Carl Allen.

"I don't see that to be my function," Allen replied.

Clutchette and Drumgo, who had limped into the courtroom, at one point stripped off their shirts and sat bare-chested as their lawyers charged they were beaten in the adjustment centre.

"They told me I'd be dead in three days," shouted Drumgo, a thin black man.

"There are broken arms and busted heads out there," Clutchette told the judge.

Allen declined a request by Floyd Silliman and Richard Silver, defence lawyers, that the two strip down in Allen's chambers. They said the judge could then see the cuts and bruises they said the prisoners had suffered. Nose was readily visible to spectators in court.

The hearing ended when Allen recessed until 9:30 a.m. Thursday the start of arguments on 14 pretrial motions in the case against Clutchette and Drumgo.

Allen granted a prosecution motion dismissing the murder indictment against Jackson "because he is deceased."

Parking Meter Probe Planned

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — District judge I. A' Vannini announced Tuesday that a judicial inquiry into any misconduct in the collection and disposition of money deposited in parking meters over the last 7½ years will begin Sept. 7.

He said P. S. Fitzgerald, a local lawyer, will act as the inquiry's counsel.

The inquiry was approved by city council Monday after several months of investigation. The financial affairs of the parking authority have been the subject of speculation since two c n a n a d a authority officials were suspended in June.

In Sacramento, Assemblyman Willie Brown, said he is seeking permission to tour the prison with two other black Assembly m e m b e r s, John Miller and Yvonne Brathwaite.

Miller, who heads the assembly's Black Caucus, said of Jackson's death: "The people in the street are saying this is an execution; that it's ridiculous Jackson could hide a gun in his hair. It's reached the point where the only way to clear the air is to have an investigation immediately."

Court News

A Belleville youth who testified in provincial court Tuesday he had kept a 5½-inch butcher knife in his possession for protection while sleeping in an open field, had charges of carrying a concealed weapon dismissed.

Charles Victor Waring pleaded not guilty on the July 12 charge. He was arrested in a poorly lit pathway in front of National Grocers cash and carry depot at Emily and Leighan Streets at 12:45 a.m. When searched by police, the knife was discovered.

Although the police officer testified the knife had been slipped inside the youth's trousers where the knife was; the lighting was poor and possibly part of the knife was visible."

Defence attorney Robert Ord when asked to approach the judge's bench to examine the knife, was asked by Judge Wills, "It's really sharp, isn't it?" Mr. Ord agreed: "There is no doubt about that."

A previous fine of $50 and a probationery period of a year wasn't a deterrent to William Kenneth DeShane of 509 Dundas Street.

DeShane was remanded to Sept. 16 on his own recognizance on a charge of common assault and possession of a stolen bicycle.

He has been charged with assaulting Mrs. Irmgard Krippendorf, also a resident at 509 Dundas Street, the same person he was charged by his attacking July 5, of this year

Richard Christopher McCoy (18) was remanded to Sept. 14 to face charges of supplying liquor to minors. Judge Wills told the defendant he could face a fine of up to $2,000, six months in jail, or a combination of both.

He said that before he had left the building, town police were on the telephone to him with a report that his truck had been stolen. Police had noticed the vehicle racing through the downtown section and gave chase to it as it sped northward.

The high-speed pursuit ended at the Wooler Road sign in northwest Trenton when the driver ditched the truck and headed off on foot into the brush, eluding pursuers.

Trenton police immediately called in the Ontario Provincial Police by 9.30 a.m. Sabre the Belleville detachment's tracker dog, was headed in for what proved to be an unsuccessful hunt. The OPP had also thrown up road blocks above Trenton.

Although town police have a description of the suspect, it has not been released.

Brighton detachment, OPP, reported this morning that sometime before 1 a.m. today, a 1966 black Chevrolet Beaumont was stolen from Barry Heights' subdivision just north of Trenton and in the same area where the truck was abandoned. The car has not yet been recovered and other OPP districts have been alerted.

Truck and Auto Theft Are Linked by Police

TRENTON (Staff) — Police investigation continues today into two motor vehicle thefts in the area last night.

About 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, a half-ton truck owned by MacDonald Hardware on Front Street, Trenton, was stolen from behind the store.

Mr. James MacDonald, the proprietor, said he had just gone over to the store to pick up a few items and had left the vehicle, with keys in the ignition, at the end of an alley to the rear of his store.

Festivals Again Discussed

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County warden Allan Anderson closed last night's council session by suggesting to Norris Whitney, MPP, that the provincial government in augurate legislation to control rock festivals.

He mentioned the Rock Acres Peace Festival held recently in Hastings County and said such events are "a serious matter".

Mr. Anderson said embarrassing situations leading to court cases can result and called the festivals "a little too much for a municipality to handle.

"I was thinking of having one myself," quipped Mr. Whitney preparing to reply to comments on the festival.

He remarked it is difficult to decide "where to draw the line" and said the decision should be made at the municipal level with guidance from the Ontario government. Mr. Whitney suggested Prince Edward municipalities could consult with their county solicitor and if they wished to take the question to Toronto, he will offer his assistance.

North Marysburgh Reeve Harold Harrison objected to the open sale of alcohol and drugs at the festivals and demanded to know why the law permitted it.

Mr. Whitney commented: "Lots of times people drive at 80 miles an hour. You can pass laws but sometimes it's difficult to enforce them." He added if the festival had been policed so strictly that all offenders were apprehended, other areas needing police protection would have been left open.

Municipalities Challenged to Find Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario municipalities were challenged Tuesday by Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services, to create jobs for employable people on welfare.

He told the annual convention of the Ontario Municipal Association that the current unemployment crisis has put the welfare system under the greatest strain since the 1930s.

Several civic leaders asked why municipalities couldn't put welfare recipients to work. The minister said that if the municipalities created the jobs, they could take people off welfare rolls and put them on civic payrolls.

"It lies on your doorstep," he said.

The proposal was not quite what municipal representatives expected. They wanted welfare recipients to work at rates subsidized by the senior levels of government.

It also differed from what Mr. Wells said in a speech in Thunder Bay earlier this year when he said that welfare recipients who are employable should be forced to work for their dole. Premier William Davis said later that was not government policy.

The OMA later voted to ask the provincial government to study a guaranteed-income plan. It also asked Mr. Wells to inaugurate a work program for employable welfare recipients which would be eligible for an 80-per-cent provincial subsidy.

Mr. Wells said he was aware of lazy welfare recipients who spurn job offers but "for the most part the jobs are just not there, that's why the welfare rolls are so big."

The minister said general welfare expenditures in Ontario have risen 50 per cent in the last year but disappointed a number of civic leaders by telling them the province will not take over municipal responsibility in general welfare assistance.

There was no point in talking about welfare reductions or denials or other negative steps until alternative solutions were found, he said.

"If society cannot offer employment then society cannot deny persons the bare means of sustenance."

Delegates were told by F. A. Barley, president of the Ontario Municipal Personnel Association, that councils must be prepared to take tougher stands in wage negotiations and be ready to face strikes.

The St. Catharines personnel director said there is a growing need for municipalities to close ranks around an acceptable standard of wages and working conditions.

Six civic strikes in recent months have shown that Ontario municipalities are moving toward a firmer labor-relations position and are ready to stand by it.

"The decision to let a wage dispute go to a strike is a most difficult one for municipal council, but it is one which may have to be taken more often," Mr. Barley said.

He said that the municipal work force has risen 41 per cent since 1961 but the payroll has increased 146 per cent.

The OMA supported the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves by asking that the province halt further implementation of regional government pending a review of the four existing regional governments.

Basic complaints of the existing regional governments in Muskoka, Ottawa-Carleton, Niagara and York are that the system has produced inequalities, duplication and rapidly-increasing civic costs.

Development Plan for North Is Adopted by Government

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough announced Tuesday that the government is adopting as policy, with some minor modifications, the Phase 2 report of its Design for Development Plan for northwestern Ontario.

The Phase 2 report, issued Oct. 13, 1970, contained 69 recommendations for the economic development of the vast, underpopulated area north of Lake Superior, between the Manitoba border and Sault Ste. Marie.

The main goals include the creation of 18,000 new jobs over the next 20 years; establishment of a system of growth centres; diversification of the economy; expansion of resource-based industries and improvement of transportation, communications, health and educational services.

Mr. McKeough said in a policy booklet released Tuesday that the 33 briefs submitted to the government by municipalities, various associations and private individuals following release of the Phase 2 report, strongly advocated implementation of its recommendations.

The minister said the government was prepared to make some modifications in the selection of municipalities as growth centres.

The Phase 2 report said first priority in the location of industry should be given to the "primate" centre of opportunity, Thunder Bay.

Second priority would be given to strategic A centres: Kenora-Keewatin, Fort Frances, Dryden and Geraldton; and third priority to strategic B centres: Atikokan, Rainy River, Sioux Lookout, Red Lake-Balmertown, Nipigon-Red Rock, Terrace Bay, Marathon and Manitouwadge.

Mr. McKeough noted that in many parts of the region there are evidently "growth areas rather than narrowly-defined growth centres."

One such area includes the municipalities of Kenora, Keewatin, Jaffray and Melick. Another is Red Lake, Balmertown and Ear Falls and similarly Terrace Bay and Schreiber.

"Our intention is to encourage the economic expansion of growth areas without being constrained by municipal limits," he said. "Investment may be concentrated at a point, but there are bound to be spill-over benefits in surrounding areas."

A second modification is to add Ignace to the list of growth centres or growth areas, making a total of 14 in all. Mr. McKeough said mining, forestry and tourism developments in the area north of Ignace make it obvious that the community will substantially increase its population and that this growth should be planned within the context of the design for development.

The third change concerns what the minister described as a "note of clarification" in the labelling of growth centres.

He said there was some confusion regarding the A and B centres. He said the government believes that, in the short run at least, B centres have farther to go than A centres in terms of their capacity to handle more population and economic diversification.

Ottawa's Experts Fly to Washington

Plans Ready If Tax Stays

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister Benson reiterated Wednesday that the federal government still feels a general exemption from the U.S. supplementary duty on imports is necessary to protect Canadian export industry from severe loss of markets and employment potential.

But, Mr. Trudeau said, contingency planning is under way in the event Canada does not get an exemption. Mr. Benson said he understood why the United States could not act quickly on a general exemption, with demands from other countries for similar action.

But in Washington last week, Mr. Benson said Canada cannot afford to wait weeks for the U.S. reply to its bid. The government here, he said, would have to have an answer fairly quickly in order to meet the situation.

The 10-per-cent supplementary duty, imposed by President Nixon Aug. 15 as a temporary measure, but without any time limit, makes most manufactured civilian goods more expensive on the U.S. market.

Goods that now enter the United States duty free, such as most raw materials, or those under quota controls or other regulation, such as petroleum, automobiles and defence materials, are not affected.

A cabinet committee Tuesday, and the full cabinet Wednesday reassessed the impact of the extra duty. Later,

U. S. Dollar Falls

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar slumped in European foreign exchanges today to its lowest level since President Nixon announced his economic program. Leading Swiss banks agreed on restrictions aimed at slowing the dollar's decline.

London dealers said trading was gathering momentum but elsewhere turnover was said to be light.

The Swiss bank agreement was reached in order to forestall official exchange controls.

The banks decided to limit their dollar purchases to $2 million a day when the exchange rate is between 3.95 and 3.96 Swiss francs for one dollar. If the rate falls below 3.95, they agreed to limit purchases to $1 million a day. Any amount taken in above those levels will be frozen, that is taken off the market, for three months.

The prospect of more dollars flowing into Britain in search of high lending rates sent the value of the American money sagging further on the foreign exchange to 40.13 British pence. This represented a dollar devaluation of 2.5 per cent from parity and 2.7 per cent from the Aug. 13 level.

News Briefs

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Firemen battled for nearly 2½ hours early today to bring a three alarm fire under control at the New Wellington Hotel. The 300-room hotel in the city's downtown district appeared to be a total loss. Damage is estimated at about $750,000.

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Bank of Japan bought today an estimated $600 million from exchange banks, which resumed heavy selling of United States dollars following a sudden relaxation overnight of guidelines for their dollar positions.

Half Way Up

Construction of the new 135-suite apartment building at the corner of Sidney Street and Leland Drive is nearing the half way mark, with concrete work for seven of the 14 floors completed. Cost of the structure, to be known as Quinte Towers, is more than $1,400,000. Builders are Stan Klenencic of Trenton and Toronto area contractor Frank Zupet,

Conference Is Held By Working Group

WASHINGTON (CP) — A group of high level Canadian government officials flew into Washington today for a second meeting with United States representatives about new American import duties.

A U.S. treasury spokesman described the session as a "follow up meeting by a working group" after last Thursday's conference involving cabinet ministers from the two governments.

esides import duties, the spokesman said the two sides were expected to discuss the "over-all picture of the monetary situation" in the world following Washington's decision to free the U.S. dollar from its gold peg, in effect seeking a devaluation of the dollar.

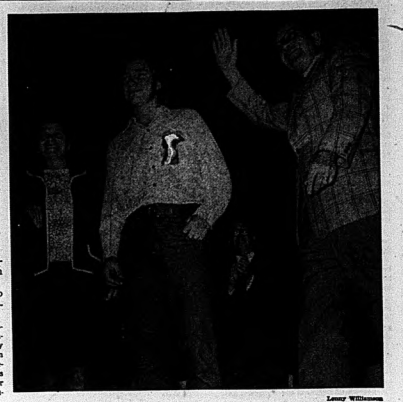
Canada is asking for a total exemption for Canadian goods from the new duty, which can add up to 10 per cent to the cost of imports into the U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally promised only to consider the request.

Ottawa has estimated that one-quarter of Canada's nearly $23 billion in exports to the U.S. could be affected.

Both Canadian and U.S. spokesmen here said there were no plans to issue a statement following the meeting, which was scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. EDT at the treasury building next to the White House. The Canadians were to return to Ottawa immediately afterwards.

Arriving aboard a Canadian government plane for the session were Deputy Finance Minister S. S. Reisman, Deputy Trade Minister J. H. Warren and A. E. Ritchie, undersecretary of state for external affairs who was Canadian ambassador here for 3½ years until January, 1970.

They were picked up on the tarmac at Dulles Airport by embassy cars and whisked away for a working lunch with embassy officials before going to the treasury office.



Among the American officials on call for the conference were at least four assistant secretaries from the treasury, commerce and state departments, including several who have been consistently involved in international talks following President Nixon's announcement of wide-ranging economic changes designed to revive a troubled U.S. economy.

GERALD WEAVER OF TRENTON, acclaimed Liberal candidate for Quinte riding in the next provincial election last night, acknowledges the cheers of party faithful with his wife and son Stephen. Two other men were nominated for the position at the meeting at Centennial Secondary School, but both withdraw in favor of Mr. Weaver.

Gerald Weaver, Trenton, Quinte Liberals' Choice

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Gerald Weaver, retired Trenton car and appliance dealer, will carry the Liberal standard into the next provincial election for the riding of Quinte.

Mr. Weaver was chosen by acclamation last night at Centennial Secondary School after two declared candidates, Dr. Terrance Watts of Trenton and Alderman Art Keegan of Belleville declined the nomination. A fourth declared candidate, William Menzies of Trenton, did not have his name placed for nomination because he may be leaving the district.

The 141 registered delegates at the nomination meeting heard Mr. Weaver deliver a low-keyed kick-off campaign speech hitting at high government spending, high cost of education and health care and inertia in the fight against pollution.

"Nobody argues against the best hospital care and the best educational standard, but I ask you: How high is up?" said Mr. Weaver.

"The present Conservative leadership is mainly the same deck of cards reshuffled," he claimed. "If you vote for the Conservative candidate here, whom you may like personally, you are putting your stamp of approval on the actions of the Tory government in Toronto."

The candidate and the other two nominees indicated the issues on which the election battle will be fought in Quinte riding.

The Conservatives have held the constituency for 34 years and the province for 28 years, "too long for this riding and too long for this province," said Mr. Weaver, emphasizing the "time for a change" theme.

He called for extension of grants to Grades 11, 12 and 13 in the separate schools, saying that failure to give the grants "will surely extinguish their (Roman Catholics') constitutional rights."

"I ask your support on this measure for a very practical reason," he said. "If you check your education tax bill you will find that the cost of separate school education is being much better controlled and could serve as a badly needed brake against super escalating costs in the public school system."

Mr. Weaver hit out at $25,-000,000 worth of office leases entered into by the Conservative government without any regard to competitive tender and "land purchases by the government on the Niagara escarpment for 300 per cent profit".

GATT Will Study U.S. Import Tax

GENEVA (Reuter) — The council of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade agreed early today to set up a working group to examine the supplementary 10-per-cent import tax announced by President Nixon Aug. 15.

The agreement followed 16 hours of deadlocked debate.

The group, appointed by the 55-nation council, also will examine the legality of the import levy under GATT's trading rules, and will study the U.S. balance-of-payments situation and exchange views on other measures of a non-monetary nature announced by Nixon.

A GATT spokesman said this formula, insisted on by the U.S. delegation, left open the question whether the group would examine effects on international trade played by the job development tax credit plan and tax incentives for U.S. exporters which the administration plans presenting to Congress.

The group, formed by the council despite strong protests by developing countries, that their interests were being overlooked, will start work Sept. 6 and report back to the council by Sept. 20. The group, chaired by the Finnish representative to GATT, Klaus Sahlgren, will consist of between 22 and 24 members.

Canada, which is seeking exemption from the import tax, will be a member of the group.

After the meeting, the representative for Trinidad and Tobago, Charles Archibald, said on behalf of developing countries that they had accepted the terms of reference of the working group reluctantly.

Man Dies, 32 Hurt By Belfast Bomb

BELFAST (CP) — Public indignation grew today following the bombing of an electricity board headquarters Wednesday that killed a 23-year-old man and injured 32 persons, most of them girls and women.

It was one of the worst bomb blasts in two years of violence in Northern Ireland and brought the death toll to 92 since 1969.

Even the official wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Arjy, which has claimed responsibility for many bomb blasts and the killing by sniper fire of British soldiers, denied it was connected with the explosion.

An IRA spokesman said: "It was a cowardly attack on a non-military target."

The IRA's more militant provisional wing—which is reported operating in greater strength in the North than the Officials—was silent.

The British press was outraged by the bombing. "Target Innocents" headlined one paper. Bannered another: "The Butchers of Belfast."

Two British soldiers were shot and wounded and four civilians arrested early today as troops clashed with rioters in Armagh, 30 miles southwest of Belfast.

The violence began when a speaker urged crowds at a Roman Catholic civil rights rally to build barricades in the streets and keep the army out.

About 100 people blocked off nine streets, including the main road to the Irish Republic border 10 miles away.

Troops moved in to clear the highway, firing rubber bullets at the mob. Shots were fired at the soldiers and one was hit in the wrist, another in the arm.

A barrage of tear gas was laid down by soldiers as the mobs rebuilt barricades they had torn down. Then the military returned to demolition work and by dawn army headquarters reported the streets were peaceful with three barriers removed.

In Wednesday's bombing, office workers at Northern Ireland's Electricity Board headquarters were given a tip-off about the bomb only 60 seconds before it went off.

Prison Guards Delay Strike

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's 500 correctional institutions officers still were on the job today despite a midnight Wednesday night deadline for a strike.

Although Roy Harrison, executive director of the Alberta Civil Service Association had said earlier that strike action would be taken some time after midnight, the guards told the province they would give eight hours' notice of a walkout, which government officials said would be illegal.

As the midnight deadline passed, neither the government nor the guards had changed positions.

The threat of a strike by guards at the province's jails and correctional institutions arose from a demand that a 4.7 per cent wage increase granted by a mediation board in May be increased by another 4.7 per cent. The union members also are seeking collective bargaining rights.

Several correctional institutions already have made plans to release some prisoners before their sentences expire.

Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart said Wednesday he has notified RCMP their services may be needed if the strike materializes.

Mr. Gerhart repeated his stand that all correctional employees who leave their jobs without authorization will be fired.

He said he has offered to meet with correctional staff officers Oct. 5 or 6, the earliest date he would be available, but there has been no reply.

The attorney-general said the officers have no legal right to strike.

Early today, an RCMP spokesman said approximately 20 men in each of the Edmonton and Calgary detachments will be available for prison duty.

He said if the men are called in to guard the institutions, normal RCMP operations will be curbed.

He said the situation "would create some problems in normal RCMP operations but nothing we shouldn't be able to handle."

City 'Fighter' Goes Political

He may weigh in in the bantam division, but last night Belleville alderman Art Keegan scored a knockout for the Liberal party in the political ring.

"Art Keegan is a fighter," said Ald. Paul Russell in placing his fellow alderman's name on the roster of nominees for the Liberal candidacy in Quinte riding.

And the diminutive Mr. Keegan proved the point with a "sock-it-to-'em" oration in the old political tradition that his listeners in Centennial Secondary School's auditorium responded to with sustained applause, the loudest and longest of the evening.

Mr. Keegan said he had not taken part in a federal or provincial election since becoming an alderman, because "I believe a member of council should be neutral".

"We are representing citizens who have various political faiths and no matter how small the problems seem to be, these problems seem to be their biggest problems, so they must be solved.

"But I have recently become disgusted with the actions and policies of the present Conservative Government."

Mr. Keegan said that "one of my colleagues in council" was acting as "the chief lieutenant of the present member for the riding of Quinte" and "is the massive editor of our local news medium".

"This is too much for me to swallow and remain quiet any longer," he said. "I know the management of our local paper, and I am grateful for the sake of good sportsmanship and on behalf of the people that they serve in this area of Quinte that equal time will be given to all parties."

When the next election is called, said the alderman, the people of Quinte must judge the record of the present government and its member.

Mr. Keegan posed several questions to his listeners, all greeted with more applause from the almost 200 people present.

Concerning Premier William Davis and his policies implemented when education minister, Mr. Keegan asked, "did he give a damn about the cost?"

"What is the story on the new medical services being established at Dundas Street East, Belleville? What will be the annual cost to the taxpayers and who are the personnel employed?

"What help are we receiving from our local member? Why doesn't he familiarize himself with the problems?"

Mr. Keegan hit out at the recent Rock Acres Peace festival in Madoc township.

"We are not satisfied with the events which took place at rock festivals!" he asked.

Mr. Keegan referred to "open sale of drugs, liquor, vice, nudity and rape" he had seen in a film about Woodstock and implored his listeners: "I tell you, fathers and mothers, if you vote Conservative in this coming election, you could be endorsing these principals. What moral and spiritual values has this government?"

"Has the government of Ontario stifled the Quinte lion?" and Mr. Keegan said he represent representative. "Is he now the voice of the government?"

He hinted that other parties might bring in candidates from outside to run in the coming election. "Do we have ringers in this area, both federally and provincially?" he cried.

He charged the government with discrimination in the trend extending grants to the three senior grades of the separate schools.

"I have today given you a few minor problems to think about," Mr. Keegan concluded. "But during the campaign when the timing is right, I will give you the real dynamite of more serious problems."

But Mr. Keegan declined to let his name stand for election.

"There is a federal election, probably next fall. I believe Belleville should have a member elected in the government of Hon. Pierre Trudeau. So not to be selfish I believe the town of Trenton should have a member representing the Quinte riding in the next government of Ontario. This will leave me free to do whatever I am needed in both campaigns, and I can stay and continue my role as I have for many years in the city of Belleville."

Liberals Confer

Mrs. Kay Doherty, president of the Belleville women Liberals' group had a word with Tim Reid, MPP of Scarborough East at the reception in Centennial Secondary School's cafeteria after the Quinte riding Liberal nomination meeting last night. Mr. Reid was guest speaker for the occasion.

Youngster Is Killed As Truck Overturns

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County child was killed yesterday afternoon as a car her sister seriously injured when they were thrown from a pick-up truck at a crossroads in a one vehicle collision on county road 7 near Keller's Hill.

Dead is 12-year-old Mary Lou Markland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Markland, RR8, Picton.

Weaver

"You don't have to dig far before you find who is on the receiving end of this kind of business. It's almost invariably fed out to Tory executives. Check the local area for details on government transactions in this riding. You know who pays the taxes that support this kind of old-fashioned political action."

The candidate said that the record shows only 120 prosecutions against polluting industries since 1956, with an average fine of $275 each.

"Don't hold your breath," he said regarding the $35,000,000 suit launched against Dow Chemical last spring on a pollution charge — "and a trial conveniently coming up after election."

Mr. Weaver, a veteran of 11 years on Trenton town council and 10 years on Trenton Memorial Hospital board, charged that the government in Toronto "has completely forgotten the predicament of the people who pay the tax es."

Mr. Weavve was nominated by former federal member of parliament Frank Fothwell and seconded by Anthony Dalcer of Batawa. Not the least of his qualifications, Mr. Follwell indicated, was his ability to give "fulltime to his constituency".

Reid: Accountability Still Political Issue

The next election in Ontario will be fought on the issue of "political accountability," a member of the Liberal shadow cabinet indicated in Belleville last night.

Tim Reid, MPP for Scarborough East and Liberal education critic told Quinte Liberals at their nomination meeting that the present government "must stand accountable for its decisions over the last 28 years, and for the decisions of Willie Davis on education".

Saying that Mr. Davis, when education minister, "had never answered a direct question I put to him in the house," Mr. Reid told his listeners that they must stress in Quinte riding the accountability of Mr. Davis for decisions he made while holding the education portfolio.

Mr. Reid detailed expenditures he considered excessive or uncalled for, including $12,000,000 on "an educational television bureaucracy", $10,000,000 for the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education building in Toronto, and $15,000 a year salaries for the department of education employees at Toronto headquarters.

"It is all right to have a high cost bureaucracy at the county board level", he said, "if you have good men doing the job the people want and if you take it (bureaucracy) apart at the central level. We must decentralize."

Mr. Reid charged that the government is wasting money training teachers who can't find jobs. Over 3,000 newly qualified teachers have no jobs and the money expended in training them might better have been put into teaching materials for the schools, he said.

"Why train teachers when 20 per cent of them won't get jobs." Is it a union busting move against the teachers' federations?" he asked.

Mr Reid criticized what he termed "duplication of programs in 20 community colleges," citing the situation in Thunder Bay as one of many examples.

The community college, there, he said, has a $280,000 educational television studio.

A short distance away, a secondary school has $230,000 worth of TV studio equipment.

Ann Lakehead University in the same city has $400,00 tied up in more studio equipment.

"There has been no co-ordination at all" no attempt to evaluate the extent to which there could have been shared use of personnel, facilities and programs," Mr. Reid charged.

"This government has become too big, too arrogant, and too insensitive to the people." he said. "A political party that has been in power too long, whether Willie King's or Willie Davis' must be turned out. Vote!" he cried, and women who will bring democracy back to this province and for a party that hasn't lost many friends to pay back after the election."

We lost a brother-in-law with a heart of gold,
A friend to more than wealth untold.
Without himself he fell asleep.
With only memories for us to keep.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days.
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories she left behind.

Citizens' Hearing Off

The Aug. 31 Ontario Municipal Board hearing into the petition of East Hill ratepayers for rezoning to block apartment house construction in their area has been called off.

The announcement that the hearing ordered by OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy would not be held was made this morning by East Bridge Street resident Mario Spinelli who earlier had spearheaded opposition against construction of a 78-unit apartment at 217 East Bridge St.

"I regret to state that due to irregularities of services of notices of scheduled meetings of the Ontario Municipal Board for Aug. 31 next, this meeting will not be held," Mr. Spinelli said.

Mr. Spinelli said the OMB hearing, even if it had been held, would not have blocked construction of the apartment at 217 Bridge Street, fire which a building permit has now been taken out.

The OMB hearing would have been on a petition for rezoning of the East Hill area bounded on the west by John Street, on the north by the south boundary of Victoria Ave. on the east by the present line marking the westerly boundary of lands east and west of Bleecker Ave. presently zoned "A" and on the south by a line 200 feet north of Dundas Street.

The hearing was ordered by OMB chairman Kennedy after city council failed to take action on a petition by East Hill area residents for rezoning to block apartment construction.

In the meantime members of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board tonight will consider the residential character of the city's proposed official plan which two years ago was drawn by city planning director Bert Kenny.

The city planning report, together with an amended zoning bylaw which would set out where apartments could be constructed was referred by city council last week to the planning board for consideration.

Council's action was taken despite a strong plea From Alderman E. A. Orr for the passage of the amended zoning bylaw.

Earlier in Toronto the OMB chairman had said if the amended bylaw was not passed by council he would order a public hearing on the request of East Hill residents for rezoning.

Controversy over what was termed "indiscriminate" construction of apartments in "B" zoned city areas has been under way since last spring when property at 217 Bridge Street East was sold by Hastings County Judge C. Anderson for apartment house development.

Two injunctions seeking to block the apartment were sought, the first being withdrawn and the second granted on the grounds that the city's building bylaw was defective.

A new building bylaw was hastily drawn and passed by council and a week ago the permit for the apartment was issued at city hall.

Meeting Tonight

Chances Dim Rezoning to Pass Board

The latest score in an extended game of planning and bylaw ping pong may be handed down at tonight's meeting of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

City council Aug. 16 voted to refer the residential chapter report of the proposed official plan on Belleville's housing needs and an accompanying rezoning bylaw, to tonight's final meeting of the board. If, however, the planning board once again defers recommendations to the newly-formed area planning board, city housing problems could be lost in bundles of red tape.

As of Sept. 1, the entire staff of the Belleville and Suburban Planing Board dons the hat of the Quinte Planning Board which will coordinate planning for nine area municipalities, including the city of Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney Townships, the tciumvirate of municipalities forming the BSPB.

There is a "possibility of quite a schmozzle developing," Belleville and Suburban Planning Board chairman Zdenek Kvarda, surmised this morning.

"The staff has a lot of works on its hands and if we're forced to hand over work to the Quinte Planning Board, priorities there will be shuffled and problems in Belleville may not be given priority," Mr. Kvarda noted.

He said the problems now facing the Belleville area board would then rest in the hands of "a dead board with a name only."

Referring to the future of sanction for both drafts, Mr. Kvarda said, "If it gets out there, it's going to be tough. Leaving politics aside, they've got a lot of work to do and it would be a couple of months before they can even get to it."

With only six members on the new board appointed from Belleville, a difference in priorities between city and rural factions may develop.

Belleville Alderman Arnold Orr, vice-chairman of the Quinte Planning Board, expressed concern as to the time element if the area board is given the decision-making task:

"It looks to me as if the township councils will work on a delay on this thing. I'm afraid of a delay in the city and I'm afraid we're going to have it; the townships are opposing certain clauses.

"If it goes to the Quinte Planning Board, they'll want to consider it," he said.

One possible solution to the problem, offered by Mr. Kvarda, was that a proposal on the housing and bylaw situation be made directly from the city of Belleville, without worrying about the surrounding townships.

Mr. Orr said this was certainly a suggestion to consider.

"I like the idea of co-operating and working together, but if we can't, something has to be worked out," he stated.

As well as local problems, Mr. Orr said the "planning staff seems to feel the chances of getting this through Toronto aren't great."

Planning director for both boards, Bert Kenny, who has co-ordinated a series of public hearings designed to initiate public reactions to the residential chapter, doesn't hold out much chance for board approval tonight.

Mr. Kenny feels there are too many "divergent positions by city residents, township residents and builders" to be considered, for immediate sanction.

At the same time,the planning director says the department of municipal affairs would not approve any residential chapter without the accompanying reports on future industrial, commercial, educational, parks, transportation, and economic requirements. This total official plan h a s been under construction since the days of former planning director John Beavis, w h o took up his five-year position in 1963, to be replaced by Mr. Kenny in 1968.

Although Mr. Kenny agreed the plan was basically a good one, "I can't recommend the plan as a plan."

He said the Quinte H o m e Builders Association and the Belleville and District R e a l Estate Board plan to share costs of hiring a planning consultant to prepare a brief for presentation to be submitted to the planning board.

Attached to the agenda for tonight's meeting are several petitions, many from t h e John M. Parrot firm, Stanley Park Ltd., asking for amendments to the plan...Of major concern to Stanley Park Ltd. is the development of land, previously approved, which might be affected by adoption of the proposed official plan.

Various verbal and written recommendations for extending zoning restrictions to permit construction of apartment dwellings, include one from D. J. Whalen Real Estate Ltd., predicting possible construction of an 8 - 10 - storey building on Highland Avenue.

A May, 1971, building permit for a 24 - unit apartment on this site has already been taken out, but Mr. Whalen indicates he would much rather make better use of the land, if planning board could encompass it into new zoning areas under consideration.

"I would be surprised if any significant action were to be taken tonight," commented Mr. Orr.

And what happens in Toronto if the plan is adopted?

Mr. Kvarda said he is a "little peeved at the municipal affairs department."

He feels the department doesn't really "give a damn," that there has been "no cooperation between" them, "the residents or the Quinte Planning Board."

The chairman said the idea of forming an area board has been a neglected child of the province; although officially sanctioned by the government, and notified of the impending take-over, dissolvement of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has not been received.

"It's a real mess now," he concluded.

Youth Migration

Some indeed are penniless, but others make a few dollars a day selling everything from necklaces and leftover duty-free cigarets to passports. Others, dressed alike in hippie style and looking characteristically freakish, even scruffy, may be teachers or office workers, temporary fugitives from the square society.

As one young man from Detroit put it to a newsman in Copenhagen: "Look for the chicks you met last year and they are all working in an office some place or married to a cop."

All are, or have been, part of the phenomenon that is the youth migration to Europe and who roam the continent and are to be found everywhere from London, Amsterdam and Copenhagen to the Balearic Islands, North Africa, the Middle East and probing as far as Afghanistan, Nepal and Laos.

And aside from open violations of the law, or the whim of local authorities which saw Spanish police for example bounce the hippie colony on the island of Ibiza, most countries seem to be taking a more lenient view of this new breed of tourist.

Cheap air fares have got them to the jumping off points of Europe. After that the thumb is their key to transportation, a sleeping bag and the park their havens for the night. And the tourist people are finding that not all are poverty-stricken; not a few carry credit cards and overall they are helping to swell overseas coffers, accounting in Britain, according to the Tourist Authority there, for nearly one quarter of the country's $450 million annual tourist bonanza.

Consider also that today's hippie may be tomorrow's solid citizen. Or as American Express has come to realize, "today's barefoot vagabond could be tomorrow's big spender on the deluxe vacation."

We may even be excused a degree of envy of these young people, ignoring for a moment some of their more vulgar characteristics. As the Englishwoman said on U.S. television, concerning the hippie phenomenon: "It's a good idea . . . but they're so dirty."

Some envy, and don't we all become a little travel-stained even under the best of circumstances? Live and let live . . . or, as the young people would say: "Peace . . . !

Students Impress

It was a pleasant group of students who grilled Toronto columnist Richard Needham in the CBC's latest Under Attack program Monday night. They were an unusually well-groomed, well-scrubbed and good-looking lot and neither panel nor audience-at-large exhibited that youthful dogma and know-all attitude so prevalent in generation gap dialogue. Even when trying to show up Mr. Needham as a "phoney" who "hides behind his words" they were quite nice about it. Mr. Needham for his part is nothing if not straightforward and honest; he defended himself well and said that as far as possible he hoped he was the kind of person his columns suggested.

Actor's Death

Actor Paul Lukas' death in Tangier recalls the many other exotic locations that marked his films, as well as the cloak-and-dagger aspect of many of them. He will be recalled mostly for his Academy award winning performance in Watch on the Rhine but one we remember especially was called Experiment Perilous. We recall too some dialogue from that film, words which gave the movie its theme: "Life is short, art long, decisions difficult, experiment perilous." Lukas was one of the old school of the acting profession now passing from the scene, along with a rich legend of movie-making being superseded today by much that is inconsequential and lacking in depth and interest.

TV Changes

We are nearly into September and the new television programs. That means among other things the loss of many long-standing favorites as the Lawrence Welk program, now being axed after 14 years with ABC. For millions who enjoy this weekly entertainment it will be a sad parting. Whether there will be any formal farewell special we don't know; just now we are seeing repeats and we understand the band is on tour, with a date in Rochester included early in September.

Tough on Candidates and Boring for Public

It Is Time Election Campaigns Were Streamlined

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau keeps firing that explosive word "election," but so far has hit no target-date except a horizon — wide "next year".

Sooner or later — and too soon for a still badly divided Official Conservative Opposition — he will draw a head on heart — or tail — or fall and hit some Monday.

The party leaders already are busy with basic training for the campaign trail.

The Prime Minister, between those trips he foresees abroad, has been hitting the pre-election road in Central Ontario, the West and the Maritimes.

In pursuit, before and after his China mission where he had the grey-matter and guts to speak up in defence of the West in general and the United States in particular, has been Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

New Democratic Leader David Lewis, picking his political spots, has been touring the Maritimes and dropping in on Ontario cities where social political partaying of labor unrest could be in prospect.

But train as they will for the fried to come, the leaders, regardless of how hard they go-go, simply will not be in physical — or at the end of the killing campaign trail, psychological-shape for the man - mauling ordeal.

That is, unless Parliament, already facing a huge pre-election overload of work, squeezes out time to do something about it.

The Commons has made one pass at curtailing the campaign, with a committee recommending time limitations on billboard, radio and television election advertising.

But it did nothing /- because of the frustration in trying to draft a fool-proof, fail-safe plan — to cut the campaign time span.

And Parliament itself has done nothing more than accept, with no action commitments, the committee's report.

Since 1920 the shortest time between Parliament's dissolution for an election and the polling of the national vote has been 54 days and the longest 60 days.

In their wisdom, parliamentarians of yesteryear knew it was a long 3,000 miles coast to coast, that trains were slow and buggies slower.

So they deemed it necessary to allow roughly eight weeks for a Government and its Opposition "to get around the country" as they put it, and make their pitch.

It took at least eight weeks — and in the horse-and-buggy era that might not even have been enough time — for the voters to look and listen and decide who and what the parties were "for" and "agin".

But now, instant communication . . . newspapers, radio, TV, superhighways and skyways . . . has shrunk the land.

And eight weeks, often stretched to nine and 10, is time not only to let the voters know, but to completely confuse them into numb unknowing.

Further, in this age of Big-Government — Getting - Ever - Bigger, people, in many self-interest, even self-defence, kept a close watch on tax-costly national affairs.

And the politicians do not have to spell it out to a bunch of backwoods folk homesteading in the outback.

So give the Prime Minister and Leader of the Official Opposition a couple of opening weeks to make their claims and charges, then a closing two weeks for counter-claims and cross-charges.

By that time anybody who has been listening will have had more than enough.

To go dit then - - as has been the practice . . . for another four or five or six weeks . . . is to do several things, none of them good.

For one thing, eight weeks is too physically much, to the point of exhaustion, for the leaders.

For another, the political auctioneering becomes frantic with everyone bidding up the price of votes in promissory notes for tax cuts, higher pensions, more grants, bigger subsidies, fatter welfare.

Finally, there is public boredom.

Because of the national news wire services, the papers, radio, TV, nothing can be as fresh as yesterday's campaign speech.

So unless the leaders can come up with a new gimmick every morning, afternoon and night, the best they can do is a hurried rehash.

This leaves them open to the suspicion of having one-track minds . . . or worse . . . believing the voters are completely deaf, dumb and blind.

For similar results, run a personal plan project in crashing boredom by telling your wife the same tired old joke every three days in a row, let alone through eight, nine or 10 successive mad-making weeks.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aug. 26, 1971 . . .

The 19th amendment to the United States constitution was proclaimed in effect 51 years ago today, giving suffrage to women. Women gained the vote in the U.S. after a long-drawn struggle which had seen a number of organizations involved. The initial success came in 1869 when Wyoming, then a territory, gave women the vote. In 1893 the state of Colorado followed and then in turn came Utah, Idaho and Washington.

1861—Bill Barilko, Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, and Dr. Henry Hudson, a Timmins, Ont., dentist were reported missing on a flight from James Bay. Their bodies were found 11 years later.

1943—Nineteen Germans escaped from camp at Kingston, Ont.

1946—RCAF in action for the first time as war ended.

1922—Japanese cruiser Niitaka sank in storm off Kamchatka taking 600 lives.

1914—Louvain was sacked as a deliberate policy to intimidate Belgian resistance to German occupation.

1914—In two actions, the British sank the German battle ship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and cruisers Arabelle, Koeln and Mainz.

1676—Sir Robert Walpole, who was to become British prime minister, was born.

55 BC—Julius Caesar made his first unsuccessful invasion of Britain.

Another Transplant Failure

Vancouver Sun

Transplant of heart and lungs bought 23 days of life for South African Adrian Herbert — that is, if it can be said he would have died sooner without them. What else did it buy? Grief for the widow of the "donor" who did not approve of the operation, certainly. Prestige for the team of surgeons under Dr. Christian Bernard? A new paragraph in medical history? Additional knowledge and expertise for science? Perhaps, perhaps, perhaps.

The fact is that no multiple transplant recipient has lived more than a few days after his operation. At last report, of 164 heart transplant patients since 1967, only 22 remained alive.

There is still no widespread agreement on the value of heart transplants, either on medical grounds, or on associated social, ethical and moral problems. British doctors have, for the time, abandoned the practice. So have Canadians.

The pursuit of science would be ill - served if inquiry and experiment were stifled in any field. But there remain too many questions for acceptance of headlong licence. There is still a need for a fair world code on transplant surgery. And there is still the premise that, whatever the experiment, the patient's welfare is paramount.

Shadow Of Peking Hangs Over Formosa

Winnipeg Free Press

Economic success alone . . . does not qualify Formosa as a nation state, but it has better qualifications of another kind than many members of the United Nations. Its population of over 12 millions is far larger than that of some lilliputarient African and Asian states, for example. It has demonstrated its ability to govern and, with American support, to defend itself. While its government is not democratic, although more than two decades, how could the United Nations exclude Formosa without disowning its previous rulings, stultifying itself and, more importantly, repudiating the right of all peoples to self-determination?

For its own special reasons, Canada cannot question that right when Canadian sovereignty suffrage to women. Not because it can defend itself but only because the great powers recognize its independence of choice. Canada is a nation and would cease to be a nation otherwise. The same principle applies to Formosa, and the Canadian government rightly insisted on it by refusing to accept the mainland government's claim to ownership.

Until now these grave moral issues could be blurred and postponed in the United Nations while China preferred to isolate itself from the world. Now they must soon be faced under new conditions. The United States government has declared that it will not oppose UN membership for Peking. This logically follows from Washington's recognition of China as a great power by preparing to visit and consult it. On the other hand, the U.S. will fight against the expulsion of Formosa from the UN. This also is logical: for how could the U.S. or Canada or any nation which demands the right of self - determination for itself deny an equal right to Formosa, even if the Nationalist Chinese government rejects it and any thought of two Chinas, no matter what their inhabitants want?

The best answer to this stubborn riddle would seem to be a referendum of some sort among the Formosan people, under international supervision, and this solution was always favored by the Canadian government of Lester B. Pearson. Does the Trudeau government still favor it? If it does, let it say so. Canada, to be sure, is the only one voice among many and the future of Formosa will be decided by forces beyond its control, but it has a responsibility to the principle on which its own sovereignty depends. It cannot do more than speak out clearly for that principle in the United Nations. Assuredly it should not do less.

Dr. Banda In South Africa

Peterborough Examiner

The recent visit of President Kamuzu Banda of Malawi, a black African republic, to South Africa is a significant step in the development of black and white relations on the continent.

South Africa, like Israel, or apartheid, is considered by black African states an enemy of the white man. But Dr. Banda, a black African Unity has forbidden any contact by black nations with her.

President Banda, who became a physician in the U.S. in 1927 and who, at age 43, worked in the South African mines, declared at the 1964 OAU meeting that he will not consider economic suicide by rejecting contact with Pretoria. He maintains the only block of African country in the S.A. capital and was the first black African head of state to visit it in the last 10 years.

His country trades with Rhodesia, in violation of UN sanctions. About 200,000 Malawians work in Rhodesia and some 100,000 in South Africa. Dr. Banda is on friendly terms with Portuguese Mozambique whose ports are his only outlets to the outside world, in spite of OAU guerrilla activity along it.

The leaders of other black nations regard him a renegade and a traitor to the black man's cause. Dr. Banda says he does not mind being "the odd man out".

He doesn't condone apartheid or discrimination against his black brothers. He just does not believe that hysterics, ineffective economic sanctions or guerrilla activity help the African find equality. He believes that trade, contacts and economic co-operation with the government could do more for the blacks than can guns and hostility.

He may be right.

Toronto and the United Appeal

The Globe and Mail

In the 15 years that the United Appeal has served citizens of Toronto it has become an institution. A part of the community that has gained a well-earned respect and gratitude for its vigor and integrity in annually raising the money to support about 78 social agencies.

However, like most institutions. It has come under increasing attack, the charge being that it is too set in its ways; that it is not capable of responding to changing situations and attitudes; that it won't innovate.

There are those among its critics who would like to see the United Appeal closed down as irredeemably unresponsive. Fortunately the extremists are few. They can, and should, be ignored.

More seriously there are the critics who want to see the United Appeal and the United Community Fund which administers funds raised by the appeal shift their focus away from ministering to the financial need of the agencies and concentrate on developing new programs which might prove more effective in assisting the disadvantaged.

These critics would also like to see the Fund more an independent critic of government programs on the theory that voluntary agencies should less a cooperating partner with government and more a countervailing force.

The natural result of following any of these suggestions would be a varying degree of removal of support for the 78 agencies supported by United Appeal funds. Since the funds meet about one-third of the agencies' needs — financing anywhere from 5 to 95 per cent of their budgets — the slightest reallocation of grants would have a catastrophic impact on some agencies. Toronto citizens would face a plethora of tag-days and money - raising campaigns, many of them as wasteful as they would be vexatious.

The critics' request is to let government pick up what's dropped by the United Community Fund. But that argument presumes that government would be willing to finance or take over the work of some agencies, and that is presuming a lot.

The fact is that the United Appeal and the Fund have demonstrated a skill and capacity for doing a job that needs to be done. They have also acquired the confidence of the community, which contributed $12.5-million last year and this year will be asked to contribute $12.6-million.

Innovation and criticism within the organization are necessary. But not at the cost of impairing or destroying service. There is no reasonable replacement for the United Appeal and the work it does, and has done.

Ready for the Road

The King Seagrave pumper became the newest addition to the Belleville Fire Department yesterday as Chief Leo Culhane was presented with the keys by representatives of Motorland Chrysler Al and Bruce Lyon (pictured here getting their first lesson with the hose). Capable of pumping 1,000 gallons a minute, "the truck is perfect, 100 per cent," says the chief.

New Fire Truck Latest in Design

The Belleville Fire Department has made an addition to its fleet of trucks which Chief Leo Culhane says, "is the best pumper in its class. A 100 per cent perfect machine."

Arthur Keegan, chairman of traffic and light control and representative of the city and Al and Bruce Lyon owners of Motorland Chrysler were on hand yesterday at fire hall No. 2 to make the formal presentation of keys to the chief.

"The new truck is capable of shooting 1,000 gallons a minute and is loaded with every available first aid and fire fighting apparatus that could fit in the lockers around the truck's body," said one ire fighter.

Built on a Chrysler chassis and fitted with a King Seagrave pump, it will be replacing the old 1948 Bickle Seagrave. (Both were fitted with equipment by the same company but ownership of Seagrave changed from Bickle to King.)

"The old fire truck will be kept as a back up pumper in the event of a major fire," said Chief Culhane. "There is nothing wrong with the old truck, in fact, she's in great shape. Our problem is that if a major breakdown occurs, parts will be difficult to locate.

An interesting sidenote in the history of the old truck is that Chief Culhane was the first fire fighter ever instructed to drive it and was also the first man to actually drive it to a fire. The instructor who trained the chief to operate the truck is now the vice-president of King Seagrave where the truck was purchased.

Loaded with 1,000 feet of varied diameter hose, the new truck has a new look. The cab of the truck resembles a standard truck cab, more square and higher than the usual fire engine.

"This raised cab design is a great advantage to the driver for two reasons," said the chief. "He has both good visibility of the road and clear vision of the rear of the truck to ensure that the men are safely on board. With some truck designs, the driver cannot see the strength of his crew."

The new truck, aside from a few modifications, is now ready to perform for the department, "hopefully as well and as long as its predecessor," said the chief.

Site Sought For Fire Hall

AMELIASBURG — A special council meeting has been ordered for Tuesday, Aug. 31 to decide on a location for a second fireball in the township.

Council, planning the additional protection for the municipality, purchased a site on County Road 3 west of the abandoned quarry and water reservoir.

Later, council agreed to accept the offer of a piece of suitable property from land owner Jack Hazard. The site to be turned over to the township for $1 transfer fee is situated at the junction of the old Picton highway and the Carrying Place to Rossmore road. It runs through to the bayshore.

Recently, complications developed when the title to the land was being searched. Contrary to general knowledge, a road allowance along the property's east boundary had not been closed officially.

For council to close the road allowence first entails passing a bylaw. Then council will have to seek the approval of county council and finally persuade the Lieutenant Governor the closing is in the public interest.

Since the procedure is considered time consuming and because in other cases the Lieutenant Governor has been reluctant to close road allowances to water, it was decided other sites should be considered at this time, according to clerk William Nightingale.

Earlier this year council approved the expenditure required to erect a second firehall in the Carrying Place area.

Ann Landers

Care of Sick Parents Responsibility of All

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 20, my mother took seriously ill and since I was the youngest of seven children, and the only one who wasn't married, it fell to me to take care of my mother. I had to quit my job, give up my social life and be a nurse around the clock.

My brothers and sisters all said I was a good daughter to make such sacrifices for Mom, but not one of them offered to give me a hand. While I would have given anything for a good night's sleep, they were taking two-week vacations.

After Mom died Dad got sick. It was just assumed that I would take care of him as I did Mom. Well, I did, for eight years. Now I am in my middle 30's, looks gone, health shot, and finding it very hard to hold a job. My brothers and sisters have no time for me. They are busy with their families and can't be bothered. I don't expect anyone to give me a medal, but I do think they owe me something for taking care of Mom and Dad all those years and relieving them of the responsibility. What do you say? — R.A.

DEAR R.A.: I say you should have written to me before you quit your job and signed up as a free nurse around the clock for umpteen years. I would have told you to hold a tribal meeting and announce to one and all that the responsibility for Mother must be split eight ways. You can do very little now about the lost years and the absence of appreciation.

I hope your letter will benefit others for whom it might not be too late. The responsibility for sick and aging parents should be borne by all the children. When one child accepts it, and expects to be cannonized — he invariably ends up sad and sorry.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am under 30, married less than several years and already I am having "other woman" problems. I am ashamed to tell you that the "other woman" is a 15-year old teeny-bopper — the daughter of our neighbors.

I noticed how chummy this girl was getting with Denny about a year ago. Her parents thought it was "cute" the way she sat on his lap and followed him from room to room. Now he is helping her with school assignments, mostly botony projects which require field trips in the woods. I am becoming highly suspicious since these expeditions have extended into summer vacation.

Last Saturday afternoon they spent the whole day together. When Denny came home late for supper I told him I didn't like the whole thing. He called me "crazy."

My question is this: Do you think I should talk to the girl's parents or will I make trouble? — TORN

DEAR TORN: It looks like trouble either way, but you might have less serious trouble if you talk to the girl's parents NOW.

It may well be that the girl is not in control but you have the responsibility to let her parents know that you are uneasy about the relationship. Perhaps they can do something about it. It's certainly worth a try.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make it quick. I know you're busy. He is a physical culture nut. Loves to walk everywhere. Picks dinner places miles away and insists that we walk back to burn up the calories. I love him madly but my feet are killing me. What should I do? — MARCH FRACTURE.

DEAR MARCH: Pick a church with a short aisle. Sweetie.

Successful Living

Don't Choose to Be Ill; Try Something Creative

By DORIS CLARK

A doctor suggest that some people choose to be ill, I think this is true.

One woman, as a little girl, found that the one time her mother fussed over her was when she had a sore throat and had to be kept in bed. Most of the time her mother was far too busy with four other boys and girls to notice her.

She was lonely for affection, for some evidence that she was special and cared about. This came to her when she took sick.

At 35, the habit is firmly set: she takes to her bed when she wants sympathy.

Some people find it easier to be sick than to face up to the consequences of mistakes or wrong-doing. The inability to take life as it is and cope with it is a kind of illness in itself.

How do we help a person change this? If we ourselves are guilty, what do we do about it? The way to mental health is to recognize what we are doing; to meet the tough issues head on; and to get the attention we crave by creating something — a picture, a pie, a party — that people can admire.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'm so tense and nervous all the time that I feel I am about to fly to pieces. Everything bugs me. I can get upset about the slightest thing.

My father has been in and out of the mental hospital for years, and one of my childhood fears was that I would be the same. For punishment my mother would yell at me that I would be like my Dad if I wouldn't obey her in this and that.

My little girl is two and she catches on to my moods pretty quickly, so she is moody too. Then this upsets me because what if she would be like me?

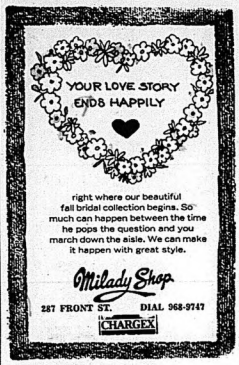
Don't tell me to go to a psychiatrist because we are poor and anyway I don't think they help. From what I've read they just get your money. I wish I could be a better wife for my dear husband but I fear I am—A Real Failure

Dear Failure: Throw off that childhood fear! The thought of mental illness is bugging you so completely that you feel you are half way there. It would seem your mother is still punishing you — by remote control!

A social worker or a psychiatrist is the best person to help you get some better convictions about yourself. Both professions include devoted and understanding people who are more interested in your mental health than in your money — and medical insurance may help pay for your consultations.

Any mother with an active toddler feels tense and nervous and discouraged and despondent at times. Any daughter soaks up her mother's moods. Get the help that will lift you out of this.

* * *



Dar Doris: Could you give me the address of some place where I could obtain pictures of our native birds and flowers? I would like these large enough to hang up in my classroom. Teacher

Dear Teacher: Lovely colored pictures of Canadian birds and animals are available from the Canadian Magazine. They have been done by nature artist Glen Loates; they are suitable for framing and priced at $1.25 each. You will find the cardinal, the cedar waxwing, the black bear, the mountain goat and others among them.

* * *

There's always something to do about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris, a Canadian social worker, is a step in the right direction.

SPRINGBROOK — The community hall at Springbrook was tastefully decorated in pink and white decor when 100 friends, neighbors and family gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Murney Bateman on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The tea table was centred with a beautiful anniversary cake in white and silver decorated by Mrs. Robert Barrons. On arrival at the hall the honored guests were presented with a corsage and boutonniere by their daughter Judy.

Master of ceremonies was William Barlow, who invited the guests to seats of honor on the platform and an address on behalf of [illegible] sent was read by Mrs. Lorne McInroy. The [illegible] sed sincere thanks for the lovely gifts received; also those responsible for arranging the party including the orchestra which played the dance music.

Mrs. Bateman is the former Elda Gordon and they were married in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora on August 24, 1946 by Rev. Edward M. Cadigan. Their attendants at that time were Mrs. Wesley Finch, sister of the bridegroom and Ernest Gordon, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Bateman have a family of five including Mrs. Sam Danford (Judy) RR 1 Springbrook, Mrs. David Nicholson (Linda) RR 1 Stirling and Ronald, Marie and Deborch still at home. Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipe for Summer Fruit Cake

By MARY MOORE

What seems to be becoming an annual event is a summer fruit cake. A reader wrote saying she was watching for my 1971 version.

I was happy to pitch right in and make it for I needed some such sweet for a guest meal.

This is not a big cake but slices as thinly as you want it. It also freezes — good news for you freezer fillers. The no baking powder in this cake.

SUMMER FRUIT CAKE
1971 (one loaf 8½ x 4½ x 2¾")

Pyrex loaf pan)
¾ cup margarine
¼ cup butter
½ cup granulated sugar
3 med. eggs (or 2 extra large)
1 tsp. pure vanilla
1 tsp. pure almond extract
4 oz. (2-3 cup) whole red glace cherries
2-3 cup broken walnuts or pecans
½ to ¾ cup light or dark raisins
1 cup sifted but unsifted cake and pastry flour
1¼ tsps. milk

Into beater bowl measure the margarine, butter and sugar and beat until pale and creamy. Add eggs, vanilla and almond extracts and beat for 2 or 3 min. longer. Lift beaters and add remaining ingredients and stir in until perfectly blended. Line a med.-sized loaf pan (smaller than standard size) with buttered wax paper. Turn batter in and push into corners.

Bake at centre of oven at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3½ hrs. Have water pan in bottom of oven during entire baking period. I had to replenish the boiling water in the pan at half-time.

This fruit cake sliced neatly on the same day. I froze half of it and later was delighted to see that I could slice delicate thick slices without breaking.

One relative in my family is busy making one for their house today because it was such a smash hit. A cake for fussy fruit cake specialists.

Bride-elect Honored At Trousseau Tea

A trousseau tea was held at the home of Mrs. Edwin Warren, Stirling on Aug. 1, in honor of her daughter Marian, a bride - elect of this month.

The guests were greeted by the hostess, her daughter, and Mrs. Ward McInroy, mother of the bridegroom. Miss Barbara Montgomery was in charge of the guest book during the afternoon.

The daintily arranged trousseau was shown by Miss Anya Saville, of Waterloo while Mrs. Lorraine Tester, Toronto was showing the gifts.

An oyster linen cut - work banquet cloth was adorned with a silver service at each end, centred by a silver bowl of roses and baby's breath, flanked by tall white tapers in low silver holders.

Those pouring in the afternoon were mesdames William Warren and G. F. McInroy, (aunts of the bride) J. L. Good, G. Sine, James Black, R. B. Patterson, Miss Joean McInroy, Miss Joan Zakour, Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mrs. Donald Wilson served.

Those attending the ketchen were Stirling members of Belleville 55 OES mesdames F. Laycock, E. Clancy, Charls Wilson, J. L. Good, assisted by R. B. Patterson, and G. Sine.

The evening assistants were members of the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter, IODE.

Ready-to-Wear Fashions by Laurent

PARIS (Reuter) — Yves Saint Laurent's decision to wind down his couture operations in favor of ready-to-wear will not affect other major Paris fashion houses, say spokesmen for Christian Dior, Hubert de Givenchy, Chanel and Pierre Cardin.

Saint Laurent is not abandoning the couture entirely. He will present a small collection of 40 models twice a year to private clients. But the press will be barred from everything except his ready-to-wear presentations in October and April.

Many journalists who helped to build Saint Laurent's reputation over the years are hurt by his press veto, but the designer is still such big news that his future couture presentations will undoubtedly be reported second-hand after interviews with private clients.

The press used to get "black market" reports on Givenchy and Balenciaga 10 years ago when they refused to show to the press until one month after buyers and private clients had seen their collections.

Jacques Rouet, director of the Maison Dior where Saint Laurent was employed as head designer until he opened his own couture house in January, 1962, said: "Every Paris couture house faces different problems. I have enormous respect for Saint Laurent's talent. He is free to create and commercialize as he sees fit, and this decision concerns him personally."

Maison Dior will continue its couture operations and there is no question at present of changing dates to coincide with the ready-to-wear showings.

Mme. Andre de Vilmorin, sales director at Dior, reports that the house has had the best buying seasons in the last four years.

Dior can expect a lucrative season with private clients when they return to Paris after the summer holidays and begin placing orders.

Seventy per cent of the couture turnover at Dior is with the private clientele, including the Empress of Iran.

The professional buyers who take the other 30 per cent of Dior clothes pay far higher prices than private clients for the right to reproduce the models. Each collection is estimated to cost more than $250,000 not counting furs.

As does Rouet, Givenchy acknowledges that each couture house has different objectives. His private clientele also outranks professional buying though one suit—with long, body-conscious jacket, flared skirt and matching stole in reversible woollen—has sold an unprecedented 40 times to separate international buyers in the last two weeks.

"Saint Laurent can do as he pleases," says Givenchy, "but my couture clientele is far more important than ready-to-wear or professional buying, and I shall continue to create a high-fashion collection every January and July."

Mme. de Clermont-Tonnerre, the spokesman for Chanel, explained that the late designer's business consists of 80 per cent private clients and 20 per cent professionals, and is the only leading house which does not make ready-to-wear clothes.

After Chanel's death last January, private clients doubled the usual number of orders, realizing that it was the last collection designed by the famed couturiere.

The Chanel workrooms were so crowded that many orders could not be delivered for four months.

Pierre Cardin, the only self-financed couturier in Paris, also acknowledged that the couture attracts tremendous publicity and serves as a public operation to promote world-wide sales of perfume, accessories, and ready to wear.

"Couture is indispensable to my business," said Cardin, although he is still pondering his old idea of presenting just one enormous couture collection each year instead of the present system of twice-yearly showings in January and July.

Le Dain Plans Book

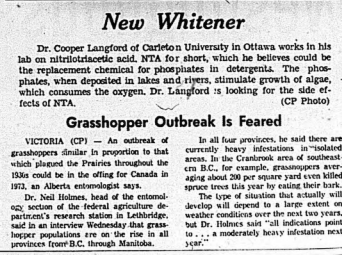
TORONTO (CP) — Gerald LeDain, chairman of the federal commission of inquiry into the non-medical use of drugs, is stepping down as dean of Osgoode Hall Law School of York University when his five-year term expires on June 30, 1972.

He said he will take a one-year sabbatical leave to write a book about government and public law, but will remain afterwards at Osgoode Hall as a professor of constitutional law.

His decision was announced Wednesday by Dr. David Slater, president of York University, in a letter circulated among members of the faculty of law.

Mr. LeDain, 46, a Queen's Counsel, has been chairman of the drug inquiry since 1969. Its final report is due to be published this fall.

"I decided last fall that I did not want to be considered for a second term as dean," Mr. LeDain said. "I wanted the freedom to write."



Like all authors, he said, he is cautious about revealing the substance of his book but it would be about "the processes of government and relationships between certain institutions of government."

While it would not be specifically about drugs, Mr. LeDain said his book would contain "some things about drugs."

Mr. LeDain's previous career includes law studies at McGill University, three years of army service during the Second World War, and periods as constitutional counsel for the Quebec government.

He also has been consultant to the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

Grasshopper Outbreak Is Feared

VICTORIA (CP) — An outbreak of grasshoppers similar in proportion to that which plagued the Prairies throughout the 1930s could be in the offing for Canada in 1973, an Alberta entomologist says.

Dr. Neil Holmes, head of the entomology section of the federal agriculture department's research station in Lethbridge, said in an interview Wednesday that grasshopper populations are on the rise in all provinces from B.C. through Manitoba.

In all four provinces, he said there are currently heavy infestations in "isolated areas. In the Cranbrook area of southeastern B.C., for example, grasshoppers averaging about 200 per square yard even killed spruce trees this year by eating their bark.

The type of situation that actually will develop will depend to a large extent on weather conditions over the next two years, but Dr. Holmes said "all indications point to . . . a moderately heavy infestation next year."

Two Research Groups Differ About Oil Pipeline Dangers

OTTAWA (CP) — Two government-sponsored research projects in the Arctic show differing evidence of danger to the environment from crude oil pipeline spills.

They were supported by a single $20,000 grant from the northern development department and began last September in the Northwest Territories.

Dr. Michael Dickman, a University of Ottawa biologist who specializes in fresh water biology, concluded that an oil spill might affect the Arctic food web.

On the other hand Dr. Adolph Feingold, chairman of the university's mechanical engineering department, said in an interview he believed the danger of a massive oil spill had been grosaly over-estimated.

In a paper prepared for presentation this week to a meeting of international engineers in Norway, he writes that even a massive oil spill on level land probably would melt a crater in the permafrost and create nothing more than a stable pool of oil on the Arctic tundra.

His experiments at Tuktoyaktuk showed that mosses, lichens and Arctic spruce would grow on land saturated as much as 52 per cent with crude oil and that while the oil melted the permafrost, it only melted downward and not to either side on the flat plots of experimental ground.

Of the growth on the oil-saturated ground, he observed in an interview that "to the naked eye no (genetic) damage has occurred."

In his experiments near Inuvik, Dr. Dickman added small amounts of oil to containers of water containing algae—microscopic plant life—and after several hours compared the efficiency of these algae specimens to the efficiency of specimens in uncontaminated water.

He found algae in the oil-laden water to be 10 times less efficient than the algae in the uncontaminated water in converting carbon dioxide to carbohydrates.

In a paper prepared for publication, he noted that about 50 per cent of the total arctic area is lakes and streams and that algae probably are a source of considerable food energy in the region.

The carbohydrates they produce one way or another provide food to at least some of the larger forms of Arctic life, he writes, ultimately including man.

Canadian Papers Lead

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian newspapers are well ahead of their U.S. counterparts in promoting the use of newspapers in the classroom, an American newspaper circulation specialist said Wednesday.

William J. Morrissey of Long Beach, Calif., president of the International Circulation Managers' Association, told 60 teachers attending a newspaper in the classroom seminar at the University of Alberta that American newspapers have been reluctant to venture into the classroom because of finances.

He said American newspapers are often smaller than Canadian ones and have to be more careful with their money.

Nixon Asked to Stop Alaska Pipeline

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon was asked by a group of United States congressmen today to intervene personally and stop construction of the proposed trans-Alaska oil pipeline until a full economic and ecological study has been made of a possible alternative line through Canada to the U.S. Middle West.

They argued that a cross-Canada line would be of more benefit to the whole of the United States.

Seventeen members of the House of Representatives, led by pipeline foe Les Aspin, as well as a fellow Wisconsin Democrat, Senator William Proxmire, signed the letter.

Although Aspin and other opponents have attacked the Alaska project mainly on grounds of conservation in the past, the current opposition came largely on economic grounds. They contended that a Canadian pipeline would help reduce the current wide disparities in oil prices between the West Coast and the higher-cost areas of the U.S. Middle West and East Coast.

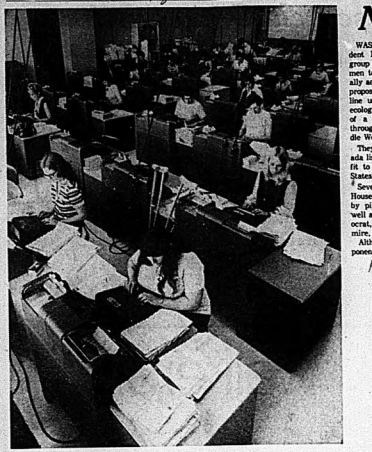
"We strongly urge you to instruct Secretary of the Interior Rogers Morton to deny permits for the construction of the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline," the congressmen wrote to Nixon.

In an accompanying statement, they said it is "imperative" that the economics of bringing oil from Alaska's North Slope to the mainland be studied.

"If such a study is undertaken, it is clear it will reveal that a Canadian pipeline would economically benefit the nation as a whole far more than would the proposed Alaska pipeline."

With all prices now said to be 10 per cent higher in the Midwest and 20 per cent higher in the East than they are on the West Coast, the congressmen said proposals to bring North Slope oil to the West Coast "will only serve to further decrease prices there and thus increase price differentials."

They recalled that a cabinet committee on oil-import controls had recommended that the price differentials be eliminated in favor of a uniform price system for all of the U.S. And the New England governors' conference was in the process of filing a court suit to challenge the legality and constitutionality of the price differentials.



The congressmen said that although a Canadian pipeline would be more expensive and take longer to build, the line would still be 'extremely profitable' for the oil companies and the delay would affect neither national security nor profitability.

"There are some very basic and compelling economic reasons for construction of a Canadian pipeline. If consumers in all sections of the country are to be treated by the federal government in a rational and nondiscriminatory manner, it is very important that the economics of the Canadian pipeline be fully studied."

An interior department decision on the $1 billion pipeline proposal is expected shortly. Secretary Morton has already indicated he will approve the project, although the terms of the permit are in question.

If approved, the trans-Alaska pipeline would still face the prospect of lengthy court battles promised by U.S. conservation groups.

Canada has protested to the U.S. about the proposal on the grounds that oil-bearing tankers would threaten the Canadian West Coast. But Ottawa has not actively pushed the Canadian pipeline alternative because the proposal is still under consideration.

Quebec Party Studied For Federal Politics

By DONAT VALOIS

OTTAWA (CP) — Fifteen well-known Quebecers, including members of the separatist Parti Quebecois, met secretly recently to discuss the possibility of a Quebec party working on the federal level.

The meeting was called by Fernand Alie, former chairman of the Quebec wing of the Progressive Conservative party, and was jointly chaired by Guy Bertrand of Quebec City, former Parti Quebecois candidate in the provincial riding of Dorchester, near Quebec City.

In a telephone interview Wednesday, both Mr. Bertrand and Mr. Alie acknowledged the meeting and said another will be held at the Alie bachelor in downtown Montreal, site of the first meeting. The second meeting was set for Sept. 2.

Other prominent Quebec persons attending the first meeting included Camille Laurin, PQ house leader in the national assembly; Rech Lacalle, the independent federal MP for Joliette who broke with the Progressive Conservatives earlier this year; Claude Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir; Andre L'Heureux of the Confederation of National Trade Unions; Francois-Albert Angers, Montreal head of the St. John Baptiste Society, and Rosaire Morin, head of the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party.

Mr. Laurin's secretary said Wednesday that Mr. Laurin had been to the first meeting where the participants had discussed many topics without taking any political decisions.

A committee was organized to conduct studies on various topics and to report to the Sept. 2 meeting.

Mr. Bertrand said he first entertained the idea of such a bloc in June, 1970, shortly after the Quebec general election which brought Robert Bourassa's Liberals to power.

Mr. Alie said the participants at the first meeting were invited as "thinkers" and were not assured, if such a bloc was formed, of automatic membership.

"All I can tell you is that studies are being carried out by people who are highly placed, and highly representative of the different milieux in the province," he said.

One observer said the bloc may be formed along the lines of Paul Hellyer's Action Canada, but with a strong Quebec influence.

Another informed source said the theme of the first meeting was:

"Should Quebecers be offered the opportunity to vote positively?"

The question might be answered, he said, by the creation of a Quebec bloc or party which would field candidates in the next federal election.

'Speed' Is Blamed For Eight Crimes

HAMILTON (CP) — A Hamilton man was pleaded guilty Wednesday in provincial court to eight criminal charges his lawyer claimed resulted from his being under the influence of the drug dman as speed, was remanded in custody to Sept. 3 for sentence.

Frederick Weise, 27, admitted to criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle, theft of a car, impaired driving, possession of an offensive weapon, three charges of mischief and one of assault causing bodily harm July 17.

Charges of dangerous driving and possession of stolen goods were withdrawn.

Provincial Judge EDWIN Fairbanks heard testimony that Weise struck a milk salesman Harry Cirasko, 42, over the head with an axe handle and used the same handle to smash the windshield of three parked cars.

He then approached the car driven by David Binns, a paraplegic, and ordered him out of the car. When Mr. Binns wouldn't leave the car, court was told, Weise took a wheelchair from the back seat, lifted Mr. Binns into it, then drove the hand-controlled car the wrong way on a one-way street. Weise was involved in four accidents causing more than $2,500 damage.

William Schreiber, counsel for Weise, filed a doctor's report with Judge Fairbanks which indicated Weise was under the influence of the drug known as speed—a common term for amphetamines.

Chinese Communists Organize Provincial Level Committees

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China reported today it had completed forming new Communist party committees at the provincial level, a major milestone in the lengthy process of rebuilding the party and state structure shattered during the cultural revolution.

The official New China news agency said Heilungkiang province in the far north bordering the Soviet Union and Ningsia Hui Autonomous Region, a desert area in central China, held party congresses earlier this month which elected new party committees.

They are the last of China's 29 administrative regions to set up new committees in a program that began last December.

Observers said the announcement could open the way for the convening of the National People's Congress — China's supreme legislative authority — which Peking has said will meet before the end of this year.

The congress, which last met in full session in 1964, is expected to proclaim a new state constitution and appoint a head of state in place of Liu Shao-chi, disgraced during the cultural revolution.

The heads of the Heilungkiang and Ningsia Hui party committees both have a military background, underlying the important role of the military in the party building process.

Army dominance has been the pattern in most new provincial party committes. Army commanders also hold important positions in the government organization that parallels the party structure.

The army was often used to restore order during the three years of cultural revolution turmoil and now holds key posts in the power structure at all levels.

Many of these military figures have been identified as moderates who edged out the radicals who held the limelight during the upheaval.

Steelworkers' Chief Sees Economic Crisis

TORONTO (CP) — William Mahoney, national director of the United Steelworkers of America, says the Nixon administration's wage and price freeze and the placing of high import taxes is Canada's gravest crisis since the end of the Second World War.

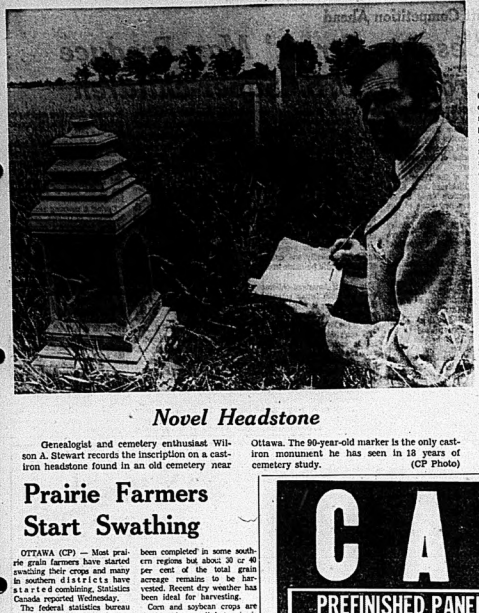
In his Labor Day address to union members, released Wednesday, he said:

"Not only do we face further mass layoffs in manufacturing, but the likelihood of the Trudeau administration seeking to impose some sort of similar wage freeze on the working people is increased."

He said the abject "cap-in-hand" expedition of the federal cabinet to Washington to beg for "special considerations," and "undoubtedly to barter away some more of our precious resources . . . will not solve our problems either."

"At a very minimum any such delegation should have met Washington with some weapons, in hand, such as an export duty on our natural resources crossing the border.

"Then they could have said in no uncertain terms: 'When you, Mr. Nixon, are prepared to back off, then we too can consider removing our duties.'



"As an old bargainer, I simply don't know how you can bargain when you are begging. I've never seen it happen with companies and I am equally certain it will not happen on the international level."

'Canadian Loyalists' Honor Alberta Premier

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Loyalists Association is inviting Premier Harry Strom of Alberta to accept their first citation for outstanding contributions to the defence and promotion of a democratic society in Canada.

In a telegram sent Premier Strom Wednesday, the association invites him to a banquet here Sept. 18 to accept the award.

His nomination, the telegram says, follows the premier's opposition at the June federal-provincial constitutional conference in Victoria to French being declared the second official language in Canada and being given equal status with English.

Prairie Farmers Start Swathing

OTTAWA (CP) — Most prairie grain farmers have started swathing their crops and many in southern districts have started combining, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The federal statistics bureau predicted generally good crop yields this year in a regular telegraphic crop report compiled from telegrams from correspondents across Canada.

In Ontario, combining has been completed in some southern regions but about 30 or 40 per cent of the total grain acreage remains to be harvested. Recent dry weather has been ideal for harvesting.

Corn and soybean crops are coming along well but rain is needed if either crop is to yield above average. Tobacco priming is under way in the major tobacco-growing areas and the tomato harvest is in full swing.

Hashish Pipes Permitted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A provincial court judge ruled Wednesday that marijuana or hashish residue in pipes is not sufficient evidence for conviction on a charge of possession of the drugs.

Judge F. S. Gregory dismissed possession charges against David Thomas and Stephen Willis, both of London.

Thomas was charged in April after police found a waterpipe at his home. He admitted it was his and analysis showed it contained marijuana residue.

Willis was charged in May when police found a waterpipe in the glove compartment of his car and discovered it contained hashish residue.

Wanted Man Arrested

TORONTO (CP) — Dominic Racco, 21, subject of an international search since the shooting July 29 of three youths in a North York shopping plaza, was arrested Wednesday at Toronto Island Airport and charged with attempted murder.

He was the third person charged with attempted murder in the shootings of Dan Gregor, 18, Allen Hughes, 19 and Joseph Boni, 18, all since released from hospital after treatment for gunshot wounds.

The others charged are Frank Commisso, 19 and Joseph Deleo, 18. They are free on $25,000 bail and due to appear in court Oct. 5 for setting of a trial date.

Police said the shootings resulted from an argument the night before when two youths fought with four men in a truck.

Spadina Interchange

As a result of the decision to halt the Spadina expressway, a new plan must be formulated soon for Metropolitan Toronto based on provincial policy. That policy, announced late in June is to pay half the construction and equipment costs of public transit systems and subsidize half their operating losses. Stiff Competition Ahead

'Sesame Street' May Produce Crop of U.S. Super-children

KIMBERLEY, Ont. (CP) — The new president of the Ontario Teachers Federation expressed concern over education of pre-school children at the annual meeting of the organization Wednesday.

Ian Fife of the Toronto borough of Etobicoke said Canadian youngsters could be engulfed by a new wave of "super-children" developed in the United States if this country doesn't keep pace in research into the education of pre-school children.

He also announced scheduled meetings with the president of the Ontario Trustees Association in an attempt to create better understanding between teachers and trustees.

Discussing pre-school education, Mr. Fife pointed to the success of the American television program Sesame Street and said research showed that some youngsters exposed to the program showed improvement of up to 100 per cent in areas of perception by the time they entered school.

He said multi-million-dollar studies now are under way in the U.S. to determine if the same improvements could be made for youngsters in reading programs.

Mr. Fife, new head of the organization which has a membership of 104,000 teachers, said the prospects of Americans forging ahead in reading ability was "frightening."

"It is such a frightening thing in my own mind and I think we are lax in the attention we are paying in this area," he said.

"If we think we are dominated economically and culturally now, it will be much worse then."

He said if American children were so much better educated than Canadians it might not be possible for Canadians to compete in the world community.

"I don't think we can afford not to match the (American) program if it is successful."

The OTF approved a resolution recommending that workshops be set up in the Sudbury and Welland areas and that a one-day conference be held in the Oakville or Kingston areas during the next school year.

Later, Mr. Fife announced what he described as an "historic meeting" between himself and other OTF officials and representatives of the Ontario Trustees Association, including president Dr. Gordon Whyte of Sault Ste. Marie.

He said during the September meeting they would discuss mutual irritants and attempt to promote better understanding of each other's problems, with the intention of publishing a "white paper," with the results of their findings, for the benefit of teachers and trustees.

"It's a bit like the president of a major company and the head of a large union sitting down and discussing working together rather than in opposition," he said.

He said the offshoots of irritations expressed in salary negotiations are sometimes symptoms of bigger problems and he and Dr. Whyte hope they can get at the root of those problems."

During a morning session, J. M. Beatty, of Ottawa, chairman of the federation's curriculum committee, said there is "immense confusion and overlap" in the development of curriculum for Ontario schoolchildren.

"This is partly because we don't know what these needs are" Mr. Beatty said.

Libel Suit Dismissed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith Wednesday dismissed a $12-million libel suit filed by Mayor A. J. Cervantes against Life magazine.

A May 26, 1970, article alleged the mayor had ties with the underworld. Ruling on a defence motion to dismiss, the judge said Cervantes had "wholly failed to establish" his contention that the article showed malice or reckless disregard for the truth.

he article, written by Denny Walsh, was based on "substantial and credible reports and information," Judge Meredith said.

Cervantes called a news conference to announce he would appeal the dismissal.

No Reason Given for Failure To Set Three-way Parley Date

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial ministers of municipal affairs did not set a date for a federal-provincial-municipal conference at their recent conference in Victoria, and no clear reason was given for the delay, the Ontario Municipal Association was told Wednesday.

Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman, vice-president of a municipal committee on inter-governmental relations said he was told that no date was set because agreement to such a conference had not been received from all provincial governments.

"I believe that this is not entirely the reason for the delay," he said.

In other business Wednesday at the OMA's annual convention, delegates:

—Endorsed a resolution calling on the provincial government to assume total responsibility for welfare;

—Formed a special committee to seek a meeting with Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales to protest recent changes in the provincial assessment act;

—Supported a request from several municipalities that the province extend the Dec. 31, 1973 limit for introduction of phosphorus-removal operations in sewage-disposal plants discharging into Lake Erie.

Mr. Newman told the convention a committee of provincial ministers of municipal affairs meeting in Winnipeg last April was to have established date, location, and agenda for the three-level government conference.

But he said the committee's report was never discussed at the Victoria conference, although it was available.

At the Victoria meeting, Robert Andras, secretary of state for urban affairs, was consulted by provincial ministers on arrangements for an early federal - provincial conference at which procedures for federal-provincial co-operation on urban affairs would be discussed.

"There was no indication municipal governments would be accepted as full partners in the conference.

Mr. Newman said provincial governments are using clarification of their role with the new federal department as an excuse to delay a tri-level conference. The federal government has agreed to such a meeting.

Mayor Leo Del Villano of Timmins told delegates the provincial government "is calling the tune on welfare, now why shouldn't it pay the shot."

Delegates voted, for the proposal to have the province assume total responsibility for welfare despite a report of its own resolutions committee recommending it be rejected.

The province now sets regulations for welfare payments.

The association will petition the government to enact legislation to relieve municipalities of welfare administration.

An OMA committee formed at the conference Wednesday will discuss changes in Ontario's assessment act and protest lack of municipal consultation in drafting the legislation.

OMA President Garnet Newkirk of Chatham said the amendments have "wide financial and other ramifications for municipalities and their officials."

The amendments became law July 23 and are designed chiefly to give the province more time to assess real property in Ontario.

Property valuations have been frozen until 1974 when the reassessment is complete.

Revisions will be permitted only on the basis of changes of occupancy, new buildings or subdivisions.

However, municipalities were made responsible for revision of rolls and for sending out assessment notices.

Mr. Newkirk said new duties imposed on municipal clerks because of the changes are "exhaustive." He also said the fact that voting rights have been extended to persons between 18 and 21 complicates problems of preparing a voting list.

Some municipalities at the conference said they want further study of the phosphorus-removal process in sewage-disposal plants.

The association said municipalities alone cannot meet mounting costs of environmental protection and sought further study of the phosphorus-re-experimentation and implementation of pollution-control systems.

OMA Elections Said 'Like Russia'

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Shaw, an Oshawa controller, told delegates to the Ontario Municipal Association convention Wednesday they have no choice in election of executive officers.

As other delegates moved to accept a nomination committee report recommending a slate of officers for 1971-72, Mrs. Shaw said:

"We have no say in who we want on the executive body."

She called on delegates to nominate candidates to the executive from the general session.

David Low, clerk-treasurer of Fergus, called for nominations but there were none.

The slate of officers elected for the 1971-72 term probably will be the last executive to serve the OMA.

The organization has agreed to merge with the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves next summer at an Ottawa convention.

Mrs. Shaw said later:

"Like in Russia, this whole business was cut and dried."

She said there was no use in her trying to nominate anyone from the floor.

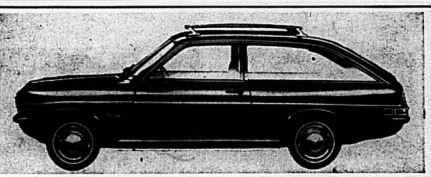
New members on the executive include R. G. Cooper, city clerk of Brantford, as one of five vice-presidents, and A. P. Ross, warden of Wellington County, and D. R. Farmer, treasurer of Burlington, as directors.

The nominating committee included retiring OMA president Garnet Newkirk, mayor of Chatham.

Bylaw Change Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — The borough of North York's planning board was advised Wednesday to amend a zoning bylaw prohibiting unrelated people from living together in an area zoned for single-family dwellings.

The recommendation was made in a report by Planning Commissioner John Curtis.



He was asked to review the zoning bylaw because of the case of four career girls living in a single-family home in North York.

The girls—Barbara Greene, Katie Hayhurst, Celine Fulford and Patricia Wroe—have been told the borough is taking court action against them under the bylaw.

They are scheduled to appear in court Sept. 14.

However, the planning body meets Sept. 8 to decide on Mr. Curtis's report and its recommendations go to North York Council one day before the girl's scheduled court appearance.

In the bylaw since it was enacted in 1964, a family is defined as "one or more persons related by blood, marriage or adoption, or a group of not more than five persons (excluding servants) living as a single housekeeping unit."

Weightlifting Barrett Gets Financial Boost

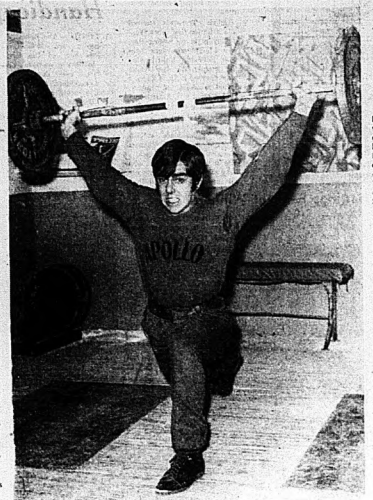
By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

"I just wanted to be strong-er" is the simple explanation offered by Paul Barrett of his beginnings in a sport that has seen him capture Ontario championships, Canada Games gold medals and a second place finish in the Canadian championships.

Weightlifting was the lure for Paul who never intended to stick with it as long as he has, but was in it for quick body building to aid other sporting activities. But the more he stayed with it the more he liked it and the better he got, until this year he became one of only five students in Canada to receive government athletic scholarships for weightlifting.

The third - year Carleton student received a $1,500 grant from the Health and Welfare Department, the second highest amount paid out.

"I didn't intend to stick, but it grew on me. It's an individual sport. You can't blame anybody but yourself if there's a mistake," comments Paul who has made few errors while attaining many distinctions in the 165-pound middleweight class.



If it's individualism that Paul likes he gets lots of it working out at least three times a week at coach Ken Carr - Brant's Boswell Street clubhouse. "I work more in the winter because the big meets are usually in the spring but it's too easy to gain weight and lose some of your technique if I take it the easy so I keep working all summer. I try to vary my workouts because you get stale after a while," says the John St. athlete.

If weight was a problem for Paul in the middleweight class it will be less of one now as he plans to step up with the 181-pound light - heavyweighs. "I'm not doing badly in this class but I'm kind of thin so I'm moving up," explains Paul. "I have to get more bulk. I'll go to the Pan - Am Games this summer because I couldn't steady the weight I had over my head. I could lift it but I couldn't set my feet and keep still. The added weight will help this."

Barrett sees little problem in putting on the extra pound age or in attaining new lifting marks. "It's hard to gain weight in the summer because I guess I'm just too active and don't get enough sleep but once I get back to school where I get three meals a day at regular times I can put on the weight. There's never much problem losing weight, I just have to dehydrate a little."

Paul's personal bests of 220 pounds in the press, 250 in the snatch, and 330 in the clean and jerk should topple easy as he steps up a class. The new weight division doesn't change Paul's Olympic hopes either.

"I'd like to make the Olympics but I'll have to do really well. When I gain the 20 pounds to move up a class it means I'll have to add another 100 pounds to my lifting totals, but I hope I'll be able to make the '76 Olympics at the very latest."

Straining Style

Apollo Barbell Club lifter Paul Barrett strains as he snatches close to 200 pounds in a workout at the Boswell St. clubhouse. Paul has been Ontario champ and Canada Games gold medalist in his brief six-year weightlifting career and hopes to make it to the 72 a nd 76 Olympics.

Rollins' Get Win On One Bad Pitch

Wayne McConnell of Rollins Construction made 48 pitches count for outs in Wednesday night's Ontario Amateur Softball Association play-off game with Brewers Mills but he needed one mistake from his opposing counterpart to verify his effort.

A wild pitch in the top of the first by Brewer's Mills pitcher Larry Scouton allowed Steve Ling to race home with the only run of the night and give Rollins a one - game lead in the best of three OASA Intermediate A series.

McConnell struck out 16 batters and walked only one in stumping the visitors. The only threat he faced was in the final frame when Brewers Mill put men on second and third with only one out, but a strikeout and ground ball ended any threat.

Ling had led off the first inning with a single, raced to second on an error before scoring on the wild pitch. He also had a third inning single for half of Rollins' hitting output. Jerry Hill and McConnell both had singles and both were stranded on third base in the only Constructionmen threats.

Scouton fanned nine and showed flawless control for Brewers Mills. Bill Ball, Steve Barkley and Scouton each had singles for the loers' only hits.

Poirier Coach Of Quintes

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

It took a half-dozen Peterborough players to give Belleville a contending senior hockey team, and-4 Smiths Falls' hotel operator to keep the franchise alive when it recently faltered, so it should come as no surprise that an "outsider" has been named as coach of this city's 1971-72 Senior A hockey entry.

Gene Poirier, a Canadian Forces Base Trenton corporal retiring in January, has accepted the reins of the new Quintes, bringing with him a reputation as a coach who settles for nothing less than 100 per cent effort from his players.

"I expect lots of hustle. All you can ask is for the players to give their best," Poirier said after Quintes' president Ken Murphy announced his signing.

In recent years, the New Brunswick native's hockey coaching has been confined to minor levels, but with great success.

A year after moving—to Trenton in 1961, Poirier accepted the job of coaching that town's juvenile all-stars, and piloted them to two straight all - Ontario titles. After coaching Trenton's Junior B entry for one winter, he guided the, midget Lions to the OMHA semi - finals three straight years before stepping out of hockey last winter.

Al Ferguson, who scored 54 goals in 107 regular schedule games with the now-defunct Mo-Hawks, was a member of those provincial juvenile champions as was former Mo - Hawk Andy Tesple, and Poirier midget charges George Ferguson and goalie John Garrett graduated to the select ranks of OHA Junior A company.

Poirier is no stranger to senior hockey, having played with the Moncton Hawks who won the Maritime senior championship in 1966-67. "We were beaten out for the eastern Canadian title by Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and they lost in the Allan Cup to Montreal Royals," he recalls. "And that year the Royals had guys like Doug Harvey playing for them."

He later coached an Amherst, Nova Scotia team to the Maritimes Senior B title.

Would he find much difference in returning to coach senior hockey after being involved in the minor system so long?

"No. Basically it's still the same game."

In revealing his coach's identity, club president Murphy guaranteed "there will be no interference from management — we'll let him do his job."

Murphy added the Quintes will open training camp at Trenton's Community Gardens Monday, Sept. 20, and play their season's opener at home against their traditional Kingston rivals Friday, Oct. 8.

Week's Rest Hurts South Hastings Pennant Winners

A week's rest was just too much inactivity for Plane's Concrete who returned to the South Hastings League playoff wars Wednesday night and were promptly stopped 3-1 by Read.

Plane's, the league pennant winners, had to wait a week before their final round competition was decided as Read and Latta went the full seven games. Plane's had eliminated Shannonville in five games.

Garnet Adams pitched well enough to win for Plane's but two errors and Carm Milligan's single in the seventh and final frame allowed all three runs to score for Read. Harold Pascoe fired the win giving up five hits.

Adams was touched for only three hits in taking the loss. Bob Neilson and Larry Lewis had two hits apiece and John Tweedy one for Plane's.

Second game in the best-of-seven finals will be this Sunday in Read. Game time is 2 p.m.

Hollywood Finish for Quinte Soccer

One game remains in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League regular season schedule and following the script of any Hollywood movie it will decide the league pennant winners.

Quinte Transport moved into a tie for first place Wednesday night by trouncing Parsons 3-1. The win evens them with Belleville United atop the league. The two teams play Tuesday night at Zwick's Island to decide the pennant. United must win. A tie would leave Quinte having the better goal average.

A stalwart Quinte defence made the difference in Wednesday's game as Parsons moved on the attack quickly. The Transport defenders, who have allowed only seven goals all season held off all Parson thrusts in the first half while Steven Ormsby rewarded their efforts by picking up a loose ball and firing it into the Parson net seconds before the half-time whistle.

Robin Findley upped the Quinte lead to two in the second half scoring from a Brian Smith pass. Tony Goncalves finally beat Quinte goalie Jack Heppes on a bouncing ball at the 25-minute mark as the goalie stumbled while reaching for the ball and carried it into the net.

Handicaps No Hindrance to Peewees

TORONTO — The Belleville Conductors and Brakemen Peewees survived the long drive to Toronto, an hour's delay in the game due to rain and a quagmire for a diamond to record a 3-2 victory over Dundas in an opening round game of the annual Toronto Star - Canadian National Exhibition baseball tournament.

Peter Hall stopped Dundas on only six hits and struck out 10 in picking up the win. Mike Burke provided most of the power, connecting for a home run, Clyde Rousley had a double with Howie Coons and Simon Bennett adding two singles each.

Bennett was also on hand for the batting portion of the run, hit, and throw competition and gained a second-place finish.

The big winner though was Scott Bowes who won both the running and throwing sections for Belleville. All three boys return to compete in the finals Thursday evening at five o'clock.

The next game for the Conductors and Brakemen will be Monday afternoon when they meet Cobourg in a 1 p.m. game. Cobourg edged Lindsay 3-1 in their opening game.

RCAF T-Birds Off to Flying Start

City championship rounds got off the ground twice in Wednesday night's Minor Lacrosse playoff schedule with both the peewee and midget final series opening.

Five different players got into the scoring act for Sun Luck Gardens midgets in their 6-3 opening - round win over the Belleville Auto Dealers. Reid was the only one with two goals while Wallbridge, Donald, Bell and Mercer added single tallies. John Loder scored both Dealer goals.

James Kennedy's hat trick paced the RCAF T-Birds to a 8-4 win over the Y's Mens Club in their first game of the peewee finals. Garry Hackett had two goals with Ross Hand, Doug Rainboth and Mark Desmoureux adding singles to the winners' total. Dave McBride netted three goals and Laurie Wilson one for the Y.

Rick Barbeau fired his second and five - goal performance in two nights but again in a losing cause as his Queen's Motor Hotel mates dropped a 7-5 setback to Towers Food City bantams. John Lowe and Gord Male had three tallies apiece for the winners with Cal Hyderman netting the other goal in the bantam semi-final.

Trap Open

The Bay of Quinte Trap and Gun Club will open their Wallbridge Road clubhouse doors for all would - be hunters and sportsmen who feel the necessity for practice before the hunting season begins.

Wednesday's Results
Charles Thorn 24, Al Smith 22.

George Roberts 20, Duke Prinzle 20.

Day Snuffs Out Early Challenge

Mead Johnson started off quickly but lost speed as the innings progressed while Union Carbide just kept rolling along in the first game of the Industrial Softball League finals.

The Mead's had four runs in the first two innings but could manage only one more the rest of the way as Union Carbide swept past them for a 9-5 win.

Frank 'Junior' Day hurled the win for the pennant-winning Carbide, giving up seven hits and fanning six. Jack Hughes and Cliff Hineman each smashed home runs for the defending league champs while Jack Lucas added a double and single and Day two singles.

Ray Finkle had the big blast for Mead's, connecting for a first - inning two - run homer. Reg Bennett had a triple and Blaine Young two singles. Sonny Holoway was tagged with the loss giving up nine hits and striking out ten.

Second game in the best-of-seven final will be Friday night in an 8.15 game at the Alemite.

Winning Depends On Point of 'View'

Mountain View had no use for a long drawn out affair with Foley's in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League semi-finals so they ended it Wednesday night by doubling the score on Foley's 6-3.

The win salted away a 3-0 series' blitz by Mountain View who now wait the winner of the Bayview-Hillier series.

Earl Colton picked up the win for Mountain View giving up six hits and fanning three in his five innings of work. Gary Eardley relieved in the sixth and shut out Foleys on one hit the rest of the way. Elgin Wyatt started the ball rolling for the Mountainmen with a first inning three-run homer. Rod Wyatt and Ed Callow had two hits apiece.

Everett Dostator was tagged with the loss for Foleys giving up seven hits while fanning nine. Dan Nash had two safeties for the losers with George Foote crashing a two-run homer in the sixth for Foley's big blast.

In the other half of the North Shore semi-finals Hillier upended pennant-winning favorites Bayview Orchards 14-8.

Seven big runs in the sixth inning propelled Hillier to the victory. Clarke Alexander hurled the win allowing eight hits while fanning the same number. Paul Pettingill had three hits for the winners.

Don Bonter started on the Bayview mound, allowing eight runs on seven hits before giving way to Steve Doxtator in the sixth. He allowed the final six runs on four hits. Jim Sopha and Doxtator had two hits apiece for the losers.

Next game in the series will be tonight in Amelisburg at 7:30 p.m.

ski-doo '7?72
Better overall

We want you to look at Ski-Doo early this year for a very good reason. We want people who really know their snowmobiles to get a good long look at Ski-Doo '72 before snow comes.
You see, the longer you look at Ski-Doo '72, the more good reasons you find for buying it. Good reasons like the Rotax engine that's designed specifically for winter, so it starts even at 40 below. Keeps on going thanks to a heat-dissipating aluminium alloy block, aluminium pistons and special cooling fins. Keeps going strong thanks to a balanced governor, clutch and drive assembly that give you the right torque at any speed. Then there's steering. Efficient steering that carves tight turns. Ball joint steering for less play. Choice of bogies or track-flattening slide suspension and a super-tough cab.

These are just a few of the many, many reasons why Ski-Doo '72 has more going for you. And this is the season when your Ski-Doo dealer has plenty of time to give you all the cold hard facts. The season when the pros choose their snowmobiles.

See them now!

Rare Sacrifice

Robinson Bunts Few But Fatal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Robinson, one of baseball's premier sluggers, had not hit a sacrifice bunt since 1957— and the way Wilbur Wood's knuckler was flitting around, he didn't think he would try again for another 14 years.

But Robinson, who fouled his first bunt attempt against Wood Wednesday night, tried again much sooner than he expected and neatly executed the sacrifice, paving the way for Baltimore's 4-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

FRANK ROBINSON

The rare sacrifice came in the sixth inning with the score 1-1 and followed walks to Don Buford and Paul Blair.

After Robinson's sacrifice moved the runners to second and third and Merv Rettenmund struck out, Brooks Robinson was walked intentionally, and Dave Johnson rapped a two-run double and Andy Etchebarren delivered a two-run single, putting the Orioles safely ahead 5-1. It was the 11th victory in the last 14 games for the runaway leaders in the American League's East Division.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota Twins 6-2 as Mickey Lolich gained his 21st victory; Kansas City Royals topped Boston Red Sox for the 11th straight time this season 7-2; Washington Senators edged California Angels 5-4; New York Yankees downed Oakland Athletics 4-2, and Milwaukee Brewers trimmed Cleveland Indians 10-8.

Frank Robinson, commenting on his fouled bunt, said: "The way the knuckler was moving around, I thought I might wait another 14 years before trying again."

Rettenmund drove in the other two Baltimore runs with a grounder in the first inning and a triple in the seventh as Pat Dobson won his 16th game—and first since July 31.

Lolich, the second-top winner in the majors—he is only one victory behind Oakland's sensational Vida Blue, who has won 22 games—spaced eight hits in breaking a personal seven-game losing streak against Minnesota and beating the Twins for the first time since May 18, 1969.

It was the eighth straight complete game for the paunchy left-hander, who leads the major leagues in innings pitched with 305.

Lolich, who has lost nine, also helped his cause with a run-scoring double in the seventh inning after the Tigers had broken a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth on Bill Freehan's two-run double. Detroit's Al Kaline and Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew traded two-run homers early in the game.

Frank Howard, Washington's 6-7, 285-pound giant, triggered a four-run sixth-inning rally with a gigantic 506-foot homer. His 22nd home of the season, was the second longest ever hit at the Angels' Anaheim Stadium. It was exceeded only by a 518-foot clout by Boston's Carl Yastrzemski in 1969.

Denny McLain, despite being tagged for homers by Jim Fregosi and Johnny Stephenson, gained his fourth victory in his last five decisions for Washington. Joe Frazenda preserved the triumph with four scoreless innings of relief.

COACH JUST 27

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Gary Dineen, a centre for the American Hockey League champion Springfield Kings last year, was named Wednesday as the team's coach and general manager. Dineen, 27, a former member of the Canadian national team, will be the youngest coach next season in the league. He will not play.

Pounded by Pirates

Atlanta Ship Scuttled

Pittsburgh Pirates scuttled Atlanta Braves 13-6 Wednesday night and their 18 runs made a total of 65 for the four-game series at hit-happy Atlanta Stadium. There were a 107 base hits as the Pirates won three of four.

"It was quite a series we had here," said Willie Stargell of the Pirates, who hit his 42nd home run Wednesday night and drove in his 111th run, both tops in the majors.

Milt May, who was married a few hours before game time, said: "Not only did I get married, but I got three hits and batted in three runs. Wow!"

Clemente was also giddy after collecting five hits and scoring three runs.

In the other National League contests, New York Mets stopped San Francisco Giants 5-1; Cincinnati Reds trimmed Chicago Cubs 9-4; San Diego Padres turned back Philadelphia Phillies 7-0, Los Angeles Dodgers topped Montreal Expos 4-1 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Houston Astros 4-1.

The Pirates blasted off the spree with a 4-3, 15-4 twi-night doubleheader sweep Monday and Atlanta uncorked a 15-5 knockout punch Tuesday night.

The Pirates settled matters right away Wednesday with a six-run first inning and three more in the second, two on Stargell's homer and the other on Bob Robertson's 26th home run.

Hank Aaron ripped his 30th homer and 630th lifetime blast for Atlanta. It was his second in two nights.

WILLIE STARGELL

Jerry Koosman won his first game in two months as he pitched a three-hitter to lead New York over San Francisco, whose lead in the National League West was cut to 6½ games.

Lee May drove in five runs, four with his 20th and 30th homes as Cincinnati belted Chicago with an 18-hit assault.

Tony Perez also snatched a homer for the Reds, his 23rd.

Clay Kirby pitched a six-hitter while Don Mason led a 12-hit offence with two doubles for San Diego, which held Philadelphia without a run for the second night in a row.

Tom Haller drove in three runs with a homer and sacrifice fly while Doyle Alexander and Jim Brewer combined for a seven-hitter in Los Angeles' victory.

Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter, raised his average to .360 with three hits that led St. Louis over Houston. Ted Simmons had a home run in the Cardinal cause.

Montreal Wins 12-8

Lark Defence Tames Tabbies

HAMILTON (CP) — Honors went to the Montreal defence Wednesday night as the Alouettes scored a 12-8 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Eastern Football Conference action before a record Hamilton crowd of 33,21.

The defence kept us in the game all the way. That's the best they've played all year," declared satisfied Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry.

The game was a fierce defensive struggle from the outset with the Montrealers bursting through the Ticats' offensive line in the second half to harass Hamilton's Wally Gabler, on the field to relieve Joe Zuger.

Mark Kosmos, Mike Widger and Bill Whisler led the assault on the game little quarterback. While Montreal's secondary spread an umbrella over potential enemy receivers.

The Als got to Gabler four times in all, throwing him for a 47 yardage loss of 33 yards.

After an early touchdown by Zuger, which the Ticats into a 7-0 lead, the Als took over. A field goal by Montreal's Justine Canale made it 7-3 after the opening quarter.

A three-yard touchdown run by Bruce Van Ness saw the Als going into the second half with a 9-7 lead, whittled down one point by a 57-yard single from quarterback Zuger. That set the stage for George Springate's 33 yard field goal at 6:44 of the final period which opened a four-point lead for Montreal.

Gene Gaines intercepted a Zuger pass with less than a minute remaining in the game, to snuff out the Ticats' final offensive lange.

The Hamilton loss evened the records of the two clubs at two wins and a loss, and created a three-way tie with Ottawa Rough Riders for second place, four points behind Toronto's unbeaten Argonauts.

The Als rallied to 31 first downs and a very superb defensive effort by the Ticat secondary robbed them of additional points.

John Williams, then Al Brenner came up with quarterback Sonny Wade's passes in the end zone. Wade, who went all the way for Montreal, hit on 12 of 29 attempts for 194 yards, with Terry Evanshen pulling in four for 88 yards.

Under continual pressure, the Hamilton quarterback tandem hit on only 10 of 28 tries for 138 yards; Zuger six of 18, for 56 yards and Gabler four of nine for 43 yards.

Tommy Joe Coffey, whose 48-yard gain off a Zuger pass set up the Hamilton touchdown, added 29 more yards on two additional catches and was the chief Ticat threat.

Moses Denson, Montreal's running machine who spent much of the second half on the bench with an injured ankle, moved the ball 80 yards on 13 carries. Hamilton's best on the ground was Steve Worster with 23 yards on eight carries.

Al Dorow, Hamilton's dejected coach, summed up the story of the game:

"We didn't block anybody on the running game and we didn't hit anybody on the passing game," he said.

"When you hold the opposition to 12 points you should win, but we didn't have the offence to do it."

Coffey Gains Little Ground

A stingy Montreal Alouette defence held the versatile Tommy Joe Coffey to one convert Wednesday night and went on to defeat Hamilton Tiger-Cats 12-8 in the only Eastern Football Conference game.

Coffey, No. 4 in the EFC scoring race, was unable to pick up much ground on Ottawa Rough Rider kicker Gerry Organ who holds down third place with 22 points, two more than Coffey.

Jonas All Winnipeg Needed

EDMONTON (CP) — Don Jonas put on one of the top individual performances of the Western Football Conference season Wednesday night, lifting Winnipeg Blue Bombers out of the cellar and kicking Edmonton into it in a 40-31 trouncing of the Eskimos.

Jonas passed for four touchdowns and kicked 16 points while skilfully shredding the usually-stingy Edmonton defence.

He passed to Mack Herron for 10- and 12-yard touchdowns, threw for 17 yards to rookie Paul Williams for another and fired a 33-yard rocket for a major to Bob LaRose. He converted all four and kicked field goals from 22, 49, 38 and 47 yards.

Edmonton, which put on its best offensive show of the season, got four touchdowns, all from ex-Bombers. Bob Houmard scored twice as did Charlie Bryant. Dave Cutler converted them and kicked a field goal from 28 yards.

Losing by only nine points

DON JONAS

flattered the Eskimos, who picked up a touchdown with less than two minutes left when Winnipeg had the game well in hand.

Ray Jauch, head coach of the Eskimos, when asked his opinion of the game said:

"Don Jonas, period. He did a beautiful job of picking our defence apart."

Bombers coach Jim Spavital reacted to the win as though he'd just won the Grey Cup.

"Jonas played a great game," he said. "We knew we could score against Edmonton. In fact, this team can score against anyone."

The win put Winnipeg in second place with four points, tied with British Columbia and Saskatchewan. Edmonton trails the pack with two points while Calgary is undefeated in five starts.

With the victory, the Bombers equalled their winning record of last season when they lost 14 of 16 games.

Police Beat Thieu's Opponent During Saigon Demonstration

SAIGON (AP) — An anti-government candidate for the National Assembly was beaten and arrested by police today during a protest demonstration as South Vietnam's political crisis neared the end of its first week.

Tran Tuan Nham, a self-described leftist who opposes both President Nguyen Van Thieu and the U.S. presence in Vietnam, appeared in Saigon's main square with a handful of student supporters to display a copy of his campaign poster which police confiscated early last week.

It depicted President Nixon with fangs, a Hitler moustache and a large "X" across the face. It also carried the slogans "Work for World Peace," and "Oppose the U.S., Save Our Country."

Police wrestled Nham to the ground and beat him. He then was carried to a police jeep and taken away. His injuries did not appear serious.

Meanwhile, a usually well-informed Western source suggested that despite evidence to the contrary, President Thieu may not have made his final decision on whether to hold the Oct. 3 presidential election with himself as the only candidate.

U.S. embassy sources said Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, in his second meeting of the day with Thieu Wednesday, outlined the U.S. government's objections to the one-man ballot in "very strong" terms and emphasized "the consequences of an unopposed candidacy."

U.S. officials have said privately that the Nixon administration might reduce aid to South Vietnam if Thieu runs unopposed.

Bandleader Ted Lewis Dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Lewis, the bandleader whose tilted top hat and "Is Everybody Happy?" theme caught the imagination of several generations of North Americans, died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 81.

Lewis began his career as a vaudeville song-and-dance man in 1911 and went on to become one of the top band leaders especially during the 1920s and early 1930s.

Playing such songs as Me and My Shadow and Sunny Side of the Street—and singing them in a soft and quavering voice—he went on to become a radio star in the years before the Second World War.

As late as nine years ago, Lewis, a clarinetist and leader of a number of his own orchestras, opened an engagement in New York to critical acclaim.

At that time, he appeared at a night club with Eddie Chester, who first joined Lewis in 1919.

Chester was the original "shadow" who followed and mimicked Lewis's gestures as the band leader strutted to Me and My Shadow.

Lewis won one of his trademarks—a top hat which he used to slide off his head and roll down his arm—in a dice game with a New York cab driver in 1919 and was soon wearing a facsimile of it when he performed in 1962.

Lewis insisted on asking "Is Everybody Happy?" everywhere he went and usually supplied his own answer: "Yes, sir!"

Cobourg Area Promised Growth

PORT HOPE (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Wednesday the towns of Cobourg and Port Hope and the townships of Hope and Hamilton will have growth independent of Toronto and will not be merely part of a commuter shed for larger cities.

He said the province will sponsor formation of a study group to plan a growth centre community in the area, which would have a population of 100,000 by the year 2000.

He said he hopes the group would begin work in the four municipalities within two months.

A status report on the Toronto centred region plan, released last week, proposed creation of two major cities aimed at a tracting development away from the Metropolitan Toronto area.

One city is planned for the Port Hope Cobourg area and the other for Simcoe County.

Mr. McKeough made his remarks before a closed meeting with the Ontario Regional Development Council.

'Women's Lib' Plans Anniversary Marches

NEW YORK (CP) — With the acquisition of political power and equal rights with men their goals, women's liberation groups planned marches and activities in many parts of the United States today.

Coming a year to the day after the first major feminist demonstrations in recent years, today's activities are intended to focus renewed attention on demands made by the women's liberation movement.

Organizers of the demonstrations say they are seeking equal political power, child care centres, abortion and contraception rights, equal education and employment, and equality under the law.

Marches were scheduled for New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles. The National Organization for Women planned a "speak-out" in Washington to push for passage of an equal rights amendment to the constitution.

Political organizing efforts were set in other cities as leaders of the movement sought to consolidate a voting bloc large enough to make politicians take them and their aims seriously.

In New York City, women's liberation groups planned to march up Fifth Avenue tonight after a day of guerrilla-type actions against bastions of unrepentant male chauvinism.

In pamphlets issued by the Aug. 26 March for Equality Committee, coordinating group, women have been urged to air a long list of demands and grievances.

They were told to join the march "if you're paid less than a man doing the same work. . . . If you were ever forced to be pregnant for nine months and didn't want to be. . . . If you're tired of feeling stupid and having your opinions put down because you're 'only a woman'. . . .

They ranged from eating lunch in a restaurant regarded as a men-only preserve, to presenting "old hat" awards to the presidents of Madison Avenue advertising agencies judged guilty of "sexism" in their copy writing.

Search Abandoned

TRENTON ,Ont. (CP) — The air search for a light, plane which disappeared Sunday night with four Toronto residents aboard ended Wednesday night.

A spokesman for the search and rescue wing of CFB Trenton said a marine search of the shoreline of Lake Erie would continue. The aircraft was last heard from in the Welland area when it lost radio contact in a severe thunderstorm.

Aboard were pilot Gerry Lawson, Ronald White and his wife, Eve, freelance motor racing writers, and Douglas Madison.

The plane had been rented from Central Airways and was bound for Toronto Island airport from Mansfield, Ohio.

Decade of Liberties

Morality Backlash Signs Evident in UK

LONDON (Reuter) — Many Britons have spent the last few months assiduously pondering the current state of the country's morality.

After a decade of liberties won and licences taken in the permissive society, several indications point tentatively to a backlash in favor of a return to more orthodox, sexual mores.

In April, the House of Lords debated the risk of pornography. And in May, a socialist peer set up a commission to combat "its incipient menace."

Then came the cause celebre of the summer. Three editors of an underground magazine were given jail sentences of up to 15 months Aug. 5 for publishing an obscene "school kids' issue."

Although the three appealed and were later released on bail, the case set off public discussion of the whole topic of censorship and pornography.

Richard Neville, James Anderson and Felix Dennis were sentenced to 15, 12 and nine months in jail respectively for publishing an obscene article and sending it through the mail. They were acquitted of conspiring to corrupt public morals.

Most newspapers welcomed the verdict but condemned the severity of the sentences, taking the view that this would help turn the Oz men into martyrs of the underground.

The three were out to challenge society's attitude to sex. Their viewpoint is perhaps best explained by a recent article in another underground magazine, Freedx.

"The act of murder is illegal, the description of it is not; the sexual act is not illegal, the description of it is," said Freedx. "This is the glaring contradiction."

The trial highlighted the dilemma of a society which wants to maintain certain moral values and protect the young while also wanting to uphold the right to free speech and a free press.

Many people deplored the attention paid to the whole London's bookshops selling hardcore pornography continue to flourish. Annual profits in the trade have been put as high as $34 million a year.

Literature is covered by the Obscene Publications Acts of 1959 and 1964 which define as obscene anything that "tends to deprave or corrupt." But the defence can argue that a publication is justified "for the public good" for its literary, artistic, educational or scientific merit.

Many feel the law is riddled with anomalies. David Gold, whose large wholesale organization distributes erotic literature, considers the position intolerably vague.

"In the last year sales have doubled in the field of erotic literature," he said. "Censorship should either be abolished altogether, as in Denmark, and die a natural death as it will do, or we should have a board where publishers can subject their manuscripts to get a certificate."

Parliament has also recently concerned itself with the prickly topics of censorship and pornography.

The government has promised to tighten the controls on private movie clubs that show pornographic works.

Near Riot at Brantford Plant

BRANTFORD (CP) — Supporters of a striking union stoned police and fire vehicles at the Texpack Ltd. plant in a violent demonstration by about 600 persons Wednesday. A national union leader was arrested on arson and watching and besetting charges when it ended.

R. Kent Rowley, president of the Canadian Textile and Chemical Union was released on bail Wednesday night following his arrest.

The near-riot, watched but not interrupted by 31 police in riot gear, was the most violent in a series of incidents that have marked the six-week strike by 150 union members against Texpack.

Rocks and tin cans were thrown at the plant, breaking windows and wooden panelling during the two-hour demonstration.

When a garbage disposal unit was upset and set on fire, flames spread to panelling over a shipping entrance to the plant and firemen had to be called.

A few rocks were thrown at the fire truck. A lone police car which drove by was pelted with rocks and tin cans.

Police Staff Insp. G. S. Rice said police did not become involved because they wanted to avoid injury to anyone.

"There were a lot of women and children there," he said. "If we had sent our men in to clear it, it would have been an over-reaction on our part and women and children would have been hurt."

Insp. Rice said the demonstrators "wanted a confrontation with police and we just didn't give it to them."

Insp. Rice, who was one of two officers in the pelted police car, said the police thought it would be a peaceful demonstration.

Mr. Rowley was the only person arrested.

Employees, who usually leave the plant in three company-operated buses and private cars about 4:30 p.m. each day, left at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Police said they believe this move incited the demonstrators who began gathering around 3 p.m. The company buses bring in non-union workers from Hamilton.

After the fire was set, police carrying night sticks and wearing visored helmets assembled at each end of the road on which the building is located. However, they never moved in on the demonstrators.

One demonstrator turned on a garden hose belonging to the company and put it through a broken window into the plant.

Anthony Fairchild, a television cameraman with CHCH-Hamilton, gave up his camera to six demonstrators who chased him. The film was torn out but the camera was later returned.

Jack Bowman, a photographer with the Brantford Expositor, was threatened by demonstrators when they thought he was taking pictures of the garbage disposal unit being upset.

The demonstrators began dispersing gradually about two hours after the rally began.

Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse of the Supreme Court of Ontario granted an injunction Aug. 11 limiting the number of pickets at the plant's to two at the main gate and one each at the five other gates.

George Campbell, deputy sheriff of Brant County, arrived on the scene about one-half hour after the demonstration ended and read portions of the injunction to a group of women at two union tents across from the plant. He gave them 15 minutes to move or face arrest on charges of watching and besetting.

Mr. Rowley was arrested by police at the tents and after he was taken in custody about 12 pickets paraded in front of the police station.

Farmers Reject Meeting in P.E.I.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Members of the National Farmers Union on Prince Edward Island are reported to have voted Wednesday night to reject a proposal by Premier Alex Campbell that they meet jointly with government officials and the provincial Federation of Agriculture.

Premier Campbell said in a statement Monday such a meeting would give all farmers an opportunity to examine government farm policies and discuss future priorities.

NFU members at a closed meeting Wednesday night are reported to have rejected the proposal and agreed to renew their demand to meet with the premier independently.

Mr Campbell said earlier he would not meet solely with the NFU, which has been demanding a series of measures to help Island farmers. These include low-interest loans, legislation to abolish corporate farming, lower vehicle registration fees and the right to use untaxed gasoline in farm trucks.

The farmers responded with highway demonstrations which ended last weekend in the blocking of the main access route to the island and the arrest of NFU national president Roy Atkinson.

Weather Delays Oswego Spraying For Encephalitis

PARISH, N.Y. (AP) — Adverse weather conditions Wednesday delayed the start of aerial spraying of 14,000 acres of Oswego County countryside with chemicals to kill mosquitos carrying potentially deadly sleeping sickness.

State officials called off spraying efforts for the day because of winds exceeding seven m.p.h. and the imminent threat of rain. They said the start of the spraying, to be accomplished by three airplanes and a helicopter, was rescheduled for early today, weather permitting.

The spraying should be completed in three or four days if the weather co-operates, the spokesman said. Most of the area is mosquito-breeding swampland.

State Health Commissioner Hollis Ingraham announced the spraying program Tuesday after disclosing that eastern equine encephalitis had killed a riding horse on a town of Parish dairy farm.

The disease, a form of sleeping sickness, is carried by mosquitos and birds and is lethal to humans as well as animals.

No cases among humans in this area have been reported.

TORONTO (CP) — There have been no reports in Ontario of equine encephalitis, a provincial health department spokesman said Wednesday.

Ontario officials are alert to the dangers presented by the appearance of the disease in up-state New York, but say there is no cause for immediate concern.

The spokesman said the recent cold weather would tend to keep the mosquito population down.

Ruling on Breathalyzer Causes Court Confusion

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court ruling that a person accused of impaired driving has the right to have an independent analysis made of his breath sample has caused confusion in the courts, a provincial court judge said Wednesday.

"This matter is a very serious one," said Judge Gerald Michel, "and is made more difficult by the fact that the decision in question is a very recent one and it has not been possible to obtain all the facts pertaining to it as yet.

"The argument over the legality of breathalyzer samples is in fact a basic argument over the right of Parliament to pass laws. This dispute will continue until new laws are passed to circumvent and iron out the difficulties which have arisen."

The judge, hearing an impaired driving charge against Roland McDonald of Sudbury, was referring to a Supreme Court judgment by Mr. Justice Patrick Galligan who dismissed an impaired-driving charge against Oakville businessman George Clinton Duke.

Mr. Justice Galligan ruled that breath-testing device readings should not be allowed as evidence unless the police provided the accused with a sample of his breath for independent analysis.

Failure to do this was a violation of the Ontario Bill of Rights.

Guy Mahaffy, counsel for McDonald, used a similar defence to that in the Duke case and argued that Judge Michel was bound by the higher court decision. The judge agreed.

Judge Michel, who rejected a Crown submission that Mr. Justice Galligan was "legislating outside of his jurisdiction," adjourned the case to Sept. 20.

"To pass judgment on this matter now would certainly create chaos in the courts," he said.
